A GOOD EXAMPLE

Within the past few days not a little attention has been attracted by the progress which has been made by the railroads and the representatives of the organizations to which their employes belong. The problems arise as the result of the railway labor board, created a few years ago for the adjustment of dispute arising in the railway industry, which failed to meet the situation and which failed to get respect from both parties to the recent conference. Both the railroads and the employes have defied the board and it has been found that the board lacked teeth in meeting such defiance.

But the desirability of using all possible means of adjustment before there is resort to a strike has been recognized by the men as well as the railroads. As the result of this common desire and the meeting under those conditions a plan has been drafted by, which they agree to a system of adjustments in connection with future disputes, so that if they cannot agree between themselves they will leave their differences to various boards up to and including a presidential commission in an effort to prevent a break and to avoid a strike in which the public is forced to participate.

There are those who believe that the plan does not as yet furnish enough safeguards for the public and recommendations along that line may be expected when it comes to legislating upon the subject such as desired as a preliminary to the ending of the existing railway labor board.

Here at least is shown a disposition to arbitrate their differences, and it provides a lesson which might well be taken to heart by those who have been endeavoring since last August to come to an understanding between themselves concerning the production of coal. Had the conference between the railroads and the employes refused to listen to any suggestion of arbitration unless there was a real advantage provided for one side they would have been at loggerheads quite as much as those at the coal conference.

AGAINST A SUBSIDY

When presidential opposition is announced to any idea of a government subsidy in behalf of the rubber growers it is in keeping with the attitude which has been taken toward similar questions.

There is no question but what the time is ripe for the putting of capital into the production of rubber that will leave the consumers of this country independent of foreign growers and restrictions which they can now place upon the important and much used product, but such funds as are needed for this purpose should come from private sources. At least it is not a matter in which the government should have a hand. Repeatedly it has been said that the money in the United States treasury was never intended for such purposes.

If it is going to be employed for the production of rubber, or as an encouragement to those who are interested in such development, then it can, of course, be used for the production of cotton, the subsidizing of the wool industry or the raising of wheat and corn. Likewise it can be for the subsidizing of any project that happens to come up of a national character.

The individuals or the organizations which are employing millions for the purpose of giving this country a greater independence concerning rubber are headed in the right direction. There's no getting away from the fact that we are being queezed for rubber by restrictions placed on rubber exportation by others. Trouble has also been encountered in other directions but when the attempt has been made to dip into the government funds it has encountered strong opposition and failure. There was no reason to expect anything different concerning the rubber problem, but in anticipation of the appeal which could be reasonably expected it was well to let it be known where the administration stood in regard to anything of the kind. One such a move should be endorsed there would be no limit as to where it would reach.

NOT A FLORIDA ATTRACTION

Whatever the many other attractions of Florida may be, it is hardly probable that it will seek nationwide publicity because of the lynchings which occur within its borders. They stand out however quite as prominent as some of the things which are brought to public attention.

Florida ranked second among the states last year for lynchings according to the record kept by Tuskegee Institute, with two, but it has started 1926 as if it intended to head the list before another year rolls around. A Florida mob has not only taken the law into its own hands and taken the life of a Negro, but it based its actions entirely upon suspicion. The accused was suspected of attacking a woman. He was arrested and while he was being taken where his victim might say whether he was the man or not, he was seized and carried off to the jibbet. It wasn't a case of hastening his end after it had been established by the womab that he committed the deed. It was a case of jumping at conclusions, believing that because he was black he must be guilty and despatching him forthwith.

Florida may lay claim to many things which appeal to fair minded people but it can certainly never attract visitors or settlers to a commonwealth where such conduct is tolerated.

Wheher the authorities of that state will undertake to punish those who are guilty of murdering the Negro remains to be seen. One would not suspect that such things had been done in the past from the manner in which the mob continues to express its open defiance to the laws of the state. The impression is gained that those who participate in a lynching bee feel quite certain that they face no penalty, that if there is an investigation it will get no where and that while the state is endeavoring to set forth its charms in many directions it is not going to do much boasting about the way in which the constitutional rights of a human being are respected within its borders.

MORE CORN

The situation throughout the corn belt with a large crop of corn has resulted in many suggestions. It is by no means unusual that the idea should be advanced of increasing the use of the grain in the daily diet. When wheat has been scarce there has been urged the eating of corn meal. When there has been a large crop of one thing or another it has been freely urged that we eat more of those things whether we need them or not or whether we consider that our rations are already well balanced.

The eating of more corn meal might be of some aid to the farmers of the middle west in getting rid of their large supply of corn, but it might also be of benefit to those who are not at the present time getting enough of a variety in their diet.

There are such things as hasty pudding, Indian meal pudding, johnny cakes, corn pone, brown bread, corn bread, corn muffins, corn mush and many others which are individually and severally a real treat, about which some may know nothing, many probably wished they had them more often and which would be of much value as a food.

There are sections of the country where corn products may be more extensively used, and there was the time when New England families made more of corn than they do today. Whether the effort to get the people interested in using more corn, or insisting upon the old fashioned corn meal that used to come from the grist mills, amounts to anything it can be certain that they are not being asked to use something that will be harmful. To many it may be a reminder that they have been forgetful in looking out for their own likes.

WHAT WILL RUSSIA DO?

Even though the disarmament conference is not in session and the preliminary meeting for the arranging of the program to be discussed at Geneva has not as yet been held there is nothing out of the ordinary about the feeling among certain of the European nations that the outcome will fall short of the goal unless there is participation on the part of Russia.

Russia is a large country and it has a large army it is a factor in Europe regardless of what may be thought of its government. Thus the rest of the nations can be expected to hesitate to agree upon a disarmament policy until and unless it knows what is going to be the policy of Russia. One country has built up and maintained its army and defenses because another nation has. When it comes to decreasing them it is expected that others will do likewise. Unless Russia agrees to and does do like the rest it would be impossible to put any very radical reform into effect. The Russian menace looms to cast suspicion upon that country's possible conduct and such a suspicion is enough to keep the others on their guard.

Just how much dependence might be placed upon Russian participation might also be raised by European countries, especially those which are its closest neighbors. Certainly it is a case where much is going to depend upon the attitude Russia takes. This may be enough to defeat the whole purpose of the gathering called to meet at Geneva, and for that reason it is quite natural that eyes and thoughts should be turned to the country that walks like a bear.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Vesuvius Spits Fire," says a headline. Mussolini ought to be able to stop that.

The conferees at the coal conference have all apparently been sitting with their feet on the table.

The man on the corner says: Where are all those old timers who used to be proficient on a jewsharp?

We have listened in vain thus far for the merry jingle of the sleighbells. But the strawriders may yet provide it.

In these days of cleared streets and uncleaned sidewalks no one can blame the fellow who is tempted to take to the road.

With all the fiddlers coming to the front the Charleston will have to give way to Portland fancy, Virginia reel and quadrilles.

Bad Mexican laws and blood thirsty Mexican bandits certainly make a most unattractive combination about which even Mexico ought not to be proud.

"Anthracite miners and operators near break" says a headline. They seem to have been quite as near that as they have been at any time to an agreement.

There's nothing sensible about the statement that the heels of women's shoes will be three inches high. But when it comes to style good sense isn't to be expected.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

At my suggestion the Dix Amies made a beach party of the last regular monthly meeting. I told the girls that I thought the lake and the lovely outdoors would inspire us to make more noble plans for our next season's work.

"I don't know about that," said Adella Boyde in her brusque way "but it will certainly be fun to have a little picnic instead of meeting in some one's living room. I'll bring a large chocolate angel's food. What will you bring, Lucile?"

"Why, I don't know," I said. "What shal I bring?"

"You might furnish sandwiches," suggested Polly Gray. "Your nice Cousin Fannie makes perfectly delicious sandwiches." All the girls giggled in a silly way, but I couldn't see anything funny in Polly's remark, and I said with dignity that I should be glad to contribute the sandwiches.

On the morning of the day of the picnic when I was wondering what I should wear, it suddenly occurred to me that my cretonne coat would make a very chic beach costume, and I asked Cousin Fannie to help me change the sleeves and put in a plain blue front. She looked amazed.

"It won't be much of a task," I said.

"But, Lucile," she remonstrated, "you have scarcely worn that coat at all, and now you wish to make it over already!"

"But, Cousin Fannie, dear," I explained gently, "I don't like to criticize you, but the fact is that you were so slow in making that coat for me after I asked you to do it that those cretonne coats became so common that I could not bear to wear it. Really, the few times I have put it on I did it just to please you."

"How sweet of you!" she said.

Perhaps it was her lack of interest that made the altering of the coat so much more of an undertaking than I had expected. Anyway, it was late in the afternoon before its conversion into a frock was complete. After I was dressed in it and looked both picturesque and smart in my novel costume, I realized that the sandwiches had not been made and that there was nothing in the house to make them with. Before I could plan what to do Adella Boyde came for me in her trig little roadster.

"Why, where's your lunch basket?" she asked as she took a huge handbox out of the back of the car when we arrived at the appointed place on the beach. "Did you forget it, Lucile?"

"No, you see, both Cousin Fannie and I were so busy with some very important work today that the sandwiches simply slipped my mind until just before you called for me. Then I thought we could stop at some bakery for rolls or something, but you drove so fast, Adella, and were so entertaining that I never thought of it again. But at affairs of this kind there's always a plethora of food, so I'm sure that my sandwiches won't be missed."

"There's certainly what you call a plethora of sweet stuff," remarked Ursula as she unpacked her doughnuts and ranged them alongside of the four cakes and a box of cookies. "Candy and cream puffs! Goodness I'd like a little plain bread and butter."

"Now, Ursula," I said, "you mustn't be fussy. The first rule at a picnic is to take things as they come and make the best of everything. I think it's wonderful to have all these delicious sweets."

"Tastes differ," murmured Polly Gray.

Although I exerted myself to be bright and entertaining, none of the girls seemed really to enjoy the beach supper, and I was glad when we broke up early. On the whole, for some strange reason, it was a stupid party.

"Well," laughed Adella, "I can take my chocolate angel's food home whole. Why, where is it?"

"As it hadn't been touched," I informed her. "I thought it was a shame to have it wasted, so I gave it to those nice young chaps who were eating hot dogs near us. They were simply delighted, Adella."

"I ordered that cake at the most expensive caterer's in town. It wasn't intended for a lot of hoodlums, Lucile."

"How can you speak of those boys in such a way? I should think you would be glad to have contributed to their pleasure, Adella."

"Umph," she said. I fear she is a wee bit selfish.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Johann Peter Hebel, a German Artemas Ward

"Look at the funny man," the mother says to her little boy—and the child stops his whimpering, and turns, and looks, and smiles. "Look at the funny man," says the artist who draws pictures for the colored supplement of the Sunday papers—and children insist that their parents buy the papers so that they can see the funny men."

Artemas Ward, in the United States; John Hay, and James Russell Lowell, all drew pictures of the queer characters they had seen in childhood and then wrote about them in the native dialect that they had heard as children. So did Johann Peter Hebel, a hundred years ago, in Germany. When he was a boy Johann Hebel lived in a poverty stricken home. Around that home he saw a hundred odd characters—queer, bent, wrinkled men and women; afflicted people; people with strange, ignorant ways of speech; people laughably dressed. He himself in his poverty, grew like them, spoke their peculiar dialect, and acquired all their customs. Some of the queer people he loved; some he feared. One and all made a deep impression on his mind. He himself was a quiet, studious boy, who loved books. Like all German boys he learned the rudiments of education. Inspired by the desire to learn more, he studied further, and found his way to a good education. Finally he himself became a teacher.

"Oh, those dear old people," he thought to himself, as his mind went back to his early days. He began to write about the odd characters, and before he died at 66 he had written numerous short stories and poems, largely in dialect, concerning the queer folks who had so interested him. He had a world of memories, and so he wrote a sheiffful of books. Many a man laughed with him over those oddities of life, and he himself became famous—all because he had noticed with such a keen eye the people who had moved around him in childhood. Your characters talk like people in real life," said a man to him one day. They are in real life," he answered. They are all alive—in my heart, at least."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

An impressive personality, great courage and initiative, and a natural gift of leadership are the qualities to which are attributed the success of Clarence P. Dillon, who has suddenly loomed on the financial horizon as one of the "big men" of Wall street. At the age of 44, Mr Dillon has put through a number of deals that have made the veterans of "the Street" gasp in wonder. In the railroad, industrial and public utility field he and his associates have financed corporations in the last year to the amount of nearly $600,000,000 and in the foreign field he activities of the group have extended over a good part of the world. Mr. Dillon is a native of San Antonio, Texas, and a graduate of Harvard. He abandoned a career as an architect and painter to try his fortunes in high finance.

Today's Anniversaries

1790—Rev. Davis Jones preached the first sermon ever preached in the neighborhood of Cincinnati.

1908—Staunton, Va., was the first city in the United States to adopt the city manager form of government.
1924—William J. Bryan named Dr A. A. Murphree, president of the University of Florida, as his choice for the democratic presidential nomination.
1925—Twenty-three persons killed in an express train wreck on the line from Berlin to Cologne.

Stories That Recall Others

Too Hard

John is located where he meets many people and is called upon to answer many questions. A stranger stumped him the other day, he said.

A man whose apparel was somewhat disarranged and whose walk was a trifle unsteady approached him. He passed his hand weakly over his eyes and gazed blankly at John.

"Shay," he stuttered, "I jish betcha maybe you c-can tell me where I have been for the lash three days."

Standing Up for Himself

Toots age about 19, weight about 190, height 5 feet 11, with red hair and very quick tempered, was the driver of a grocery wagon. Toots was a good sort of fellow but on account of a droll manner of expressing himself he unconsciously was the cause of much merriment among his acquaintances.

On this particular occasion Toots was in the grocerman' barn hitching up the horse, which accidently stepped on Toots' foot. Toots dealt the horse a vicious blow with his fist, almost felling the animal.

Just at this time his employer entered the barn and took him to task for striking the animal, and asked him why he did it.

Toots retaliated by saying, "I won't let no dang horse run over me."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GUATEMALA

A new coin has made its appearance in the money changing marts of the world. It is called the Quetzal, and is the silver standard of Guatemala. After 28 years of a paper money regime the Central American republic is now issuing silver money to be followed shortly by gold coins, and smaller fractional ones of copper.

"A step forward in finance is in keeping with other developments of this most populous and perhaps most richly endowed of all the Central American countries," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. Guatemala possesses the largest railroad mileage of any country between Mexico and South America, and although figures vary from time to time, the value of its exports, well up in the millions, will be found each year ranking first or second among Central American countries.

"Guatemala's place near the front of the Central American procession is traditional. At the coming of the first Europeans the region was inhabited by the Maya-Quiche Indians, fierce fighters but among the most highly civilized peoples of their time. Their history reads like a romance and the remarkable ruins they have left indicate a wide spread realm of power and influence. The Spaniards made Guatemala the administrative center for all of Central America and part of Mexico.

"After throwing off the Spanish yoke the country was for a time a part of the "mpire of Mexico but in 1823 an independent nation was formed under the title of the Central American Federation embracing also the present Honduras Salvador Nicaragua and Costa Rica. One by one of the states seceded and formed independent republics.

"Another unsuccessful attempt to unite Central American countries was made in 1921. A treaty ratified by Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador resulted in a federation known as the republic of Ceptral America, with Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, the administrative seat. The new republic, however was short-lived. Guatemala today continues in a sole role with the other nations of the world, although many cooperative agreements, especially in relation to international railroads, have been made between the members of this effervescent Latin American family.

"Guatemala has an area about equal to that of the State of Louisiana and is the second largest of the Central American republics. As it is about midway between the United States and South America, and fronting on both the Caribbean and the Pacific, it occupies a strategic position, both politically and economically. Mountains near the west coast, however, divide its population unequally. The highlands between 1,000 and 5,000 feet above the sea, are by far the most thickly settled part of the country. The long, gradual Atlantic slope is of little importance aside from the timber cutting of the northern part, the coffee plantations of the Coban plateau, and the banana raising of the Lake Izabal region.

"Coffee might justly be said to be the commercial patron saint of Guatemala, for other potential riches have been overlooked or ignored in the development of great plantations to help keep America and Europe supplied with the cup that cheers. Volcanoes that so often level its buildings and houses make return in deposits of volcanic ash that renew the soil and make fertilization unnecessary. A large part of the chicle that goes into the manufacture of chewing gum in the United States comes from Guatemala. Banana farms in the tropical lowlands have lately began to rival the coffee plantations in production.

"Guatemala City the nation's capital, presents another example of the progressive spirit of the country. Practically destroyed by a violent earthquake in 1917, there are hardly any traces of the catastrophe in orderly, well-built city of churches, theaters, clubs, shops and homes of today.

"About sixty per cent of the population is of pure Indian blood and almost half the remainder are half-castes. In the mountains of southwestern Guatemala live thousands of pure-blooded Indians, maintaining the traditions of their forefathers. They have won the admiration of travelers for their physique, cleanliness and scrupulous honesty. One visitor tells of trying to buy a ring from an Indian girl who refused to sell because it was not pure gold, and she did not wish to sell a stranger an imitation!

"The nature lover finds the tropical lowlands of Guatemala a fascinating land, with their dense forests covering more than a million acres. Giant trees are linked together by trailing vines above a gorgeous carpet of orchids, waxon begonias, the peculiar blossoms of the plantain, and scarlet poinsettias.

"The new coin bears the name of the bird that is the national emblem of liberty of Guatemala. The quetzal is more truly a bird of liberty than the American eagle, for the quetzal will not even live if kept in captivity it is still, as it was to their Maya ancestors, a more or less sacred symbol to the Guatemalians. A story is told concerning the part a quetzal played in the unequal duel between the Maya king Tecum Uman and Don Pedro de Alvarado, the Spanish conqueror, which was fought to prevent further bloodshed. A quetzel in his efforts to aid the king, pecked at the eyes of Don Pedro through the holes in his helmet, the only vulnerable spot, as he was clad in steel from head to foot."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Farmer Brown's Boy Visits the Green Forest.

No matter where you chance to be
There's always something new to see.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's boy was heading straight for the Green Forest. The crust which had formed during the night was strong enough to bear his weight. It was a beautiful morning. The sun was shining and it seemed as if the whole Great World was made of flashing, sparkling crystal. As he left the house Tommy Tit the Chickadee called to him. This is what he said, or what Farmer Brown's boy liked to think he said:

"Dee, dee, here I be;
Thanks for all you've done for me!"

As he left the house Tommy Tit the Chickadee called to him

Tommy was busy filling his small stomach with bits of nut meat, sunflower seeds and suet which Farmer Brown's boy kept always where Tommy and his friends could get them. Sammy Jay was in the Old Orchard getting his breakfast, and so were Drummer the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch. It didn't matter to them if each twig of every tree was coated with ice. Farmer Brown's boy had put out a fresh supply of food for them that morning, so there was nothing to worry about.

Through the Old Orchard, over the snow-covered old stone wall, into the Green Forest went Farmer Brown's boy. It was wonderful there. There was no wind and it was almost like a dream forest of flashing crystal. It was so beautiful that it would almost take your breath away. Anyway, that is the way Farmer Brown's boy felt. He moved slowly and carefully. He tried to make as little noise as possible. It was not just to admire the beauty of the seemingly enchanted Green Forest that he had come; it was to see so far as he could how the people who make their homes in the Green Forest were faring.

He particularly wanted to know how Lightfoot the Deer and Mrs. Lightfoot and the fawns were getting on. This weather was hard on them. But most of all he wondered about Mrs Grouse. He was worried about her. He remembered how soft and tempting the snow had been the day before, and now as he stamped on the crust and found how difficult it was for him to break through he worried more than ever. He knew that never in the world could Mrs. Grouse break out if she happened to be caught beneath.

"And there isn't a thing I can do," muttered Farmer Brown's boy. "I haven't the least idea where to look for her. It would be like hunting for a needle in a haystack. I would give much to hear her stout wings whirr for then I would know that she was all right."

He knew where to look for the Deer family. They had what is called a yard, and in that yard they would remain all winter if the supply of food there lasted. That yard was simply a lot of paths crossing and recrossing in all directions and kept open by constant tramping. You know the Deer have no snowshoes, but hard, sharp-edged hoofs which cut through the snow. So when snow is deep the only way in which they can get about is by means of the paths they have kept trodden down. These paths make up what is called a "yard."

Farmer Brown's boy knew just where the yard of Lightfoot and his family was and went straight to it. He found them at once. They had been getting breakfast on the leaves and twigs of some young cedars. It seemed like cold fare to Farmer Brown's boy, but evidently the Deer didn't find it so. They bounded away as he approached, but only for a short distance. Then they turned to look at him. They knew he was a friend and really were not afraid at all.

Sure that the Deer were all right Farmer's Brown's boy continued on through the Green Forest and as he tramped along he once more began to worry about Mrs. Grouse. He hadn't heard or seen her and he had been through several of her favorite retreats.

"I do hope she isn't under the crust," he muttered every other thing.

TIME TABLE CHANGES WILL TAKE OFF SIX TRAINS ON N. & W.

Six trains, three north bound and three south bound, running between Norwich and New London are to be taken off by the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad beginning next Monday morning, according to an announcement issued by the passenger traffic department of the road. In place of the discontinued trains, the New Haven raid indicates that they will be replaced by motor busses as their announcements states: Motor coaches of the New England Transportation company will operate between New London and Norwich on the West Side of the Thames river. It is also expected that motor coaches will be operated over the highway between the following points:

Canton Junction-Stoughton; Providence-Bristol, R. I.; Providence-Plainfield; Danbury-South Norwalk; Hartford-Suffield; Worcester-Providence; Willimantic-Woonsocket; Willimantic-No. Grosvernordale; New Haven-Hartford; Hartford-Broad Brook.

The trains to be discontinued are as follows:

Train 710 leaving New London 8:10 a. m. week days for Putnam will be discontinued.

Trains leaving New London 11:50 a. m. and 6:10 p. m. for Norwich are discontinued.

Train 712 leaving New London 1:35 p. m. daily will leave at 2:00 p. m., due Putnam 4:00, Webster 4:38 and Worcester 5:12 p. m.

Trains leaving Norwich week days 7:25 a. m., 4:30 p. m. and from Putnam week days 1:37 p. m. are discontinued.

The new schedules will go into effect Sunday morning but will not affect Norwich until Monday morning as there are no changes in the Sunday schedule with the exception of one time change, on the New London, Norwich, Worcester line.

There will be three trains daily from Norwich to New London and three trains daily from New London to Norwich and points north. The schedule will be as follows:

Week day trains—Norwich to New London—3:48 a. m.; 11:56 a. m.; 8:50 p. m. Sundays—the same schedule.

TO GRANT NORWICH-PLAINFIELD BUS LINE

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning a public hearing was held in the rooms of the court of common council by the public utilities commission relative to the petition of the New England Transportation Co., a subsidiary of the New Haven road, to extend their bus line from Plainfield to Norwich. The hearing was presided over by Commissioner Charles C. Elwell of the public utilities commission. About 30 people interested in the matter were present. The hearing opened with an explanation of the petition describing the route planned for the line which is to be run under the direction of Harold Price, traffic manager of the New England Transportation company.

The route was described as starting from the New Haven railroad station in this city, through Main street to Tafts station and from there over the river road to Jewett City and on to Plainfield.

Speaking in favor of the petition, William L. Barnett, counsel for the New Haven road, stated that there is a public demand for the line. Mr. Barnett was followed by several who spoke in favor of the petition. Among these were John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce. Abner Schwartz, president of the Norwich Retail Merchants' association, J. B. Caron, Charles I. Smith, Albert J. Boardman, L. M. Carpenter, Mrs. J. C. Phillips, representing the school committee of the town of Lisbond, argued to have the route changed from the river road to the Lisbon road so as to include Newent, Sprague, Lisbon and the more populated section. This would give to the school children facilities which they are now without. Several letters were read from O. L. Johnson, Benjamin F. Dawson, Alex McNicol, Lawton Mills Corp., president of the chamber of commerce of Moosup. The route was further indorsed by Mayor Milo R. Waters of this city and W. W. Bromley of Jewett City and Attorney C. V. James, representing the selectmen of the town of Lisbon, was in favor of the route, but desired to have it operate over the Lisbon route instead of the river route.

Samuel Anderson, local manager of the Connecticut Trolley company, was the only one present who opposed the petition. Mr. Anderson stated that the line would run parallel to the lines operated by his company. William L. Barnet, counsel for the New Haven road, then summed up all that was said, stating that there was really a public demand for the extension of this line and Mr. Elwell, the commissioner, in closing the hearing stated that it was safe on counting on receipt of the certificate and it was then announced that should the certificate be received in time the line will be put into operation on Sunday next with a de luxe type bus carrying from 20 to 25 passengers.

Among those present at the hearing were Edward E. Regan, general manager of the New Haven road, and E. A. Burton, secretary to the general passenger agent of the New Haven road.

HAY ON FIRE IN BARN AT TAFTVILLE

A quantity of hay and part of the barn owned by J. C. Marsan of Hunters avenue, Taftville, and leased by Louis Jarre, was damaged by fire of unknown origin shortly after 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The fire was discovered by a customer of Mr. Marsan's who notified him in his store. The Taftville fire department responded to the telephone call for assistance and soaked down the hay with water. The blaze was largely confined to the hay but part of the interior of the barn was badly scorched. The loss is small.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Mr. Marsan thought he smelled smoke and asked Delvica Benoit to investigate. Mr. Benoit went to the cellar of the house where there is a stove but found the fire in the stove was out and reported to Mr. Marsan that everything was all right. It is thought that children playing with matches may have been responsible for the blaze.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE for Coughs and Colds

A Double Treatment for Colds

IT is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks VapoRub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts in two ways at once:

(1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapors, released by the body heat; and

(2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

WEDDING. Rose—Lord.

On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 9th, in Hanover, a very pretty wedding took place in the home of Mrs. Lillie Standish, the groom being Reginald I. Rose, of Baltic, and the bride Miss Minnie L. Lord, of Hanover. The officiating clergymen were Rev. Roderick MacLeod, former pastor of the Hanover church, and Rev. Dwight C. Stone, its present pastor.

The bride with her mother, who gave her away, entered the parlor to the music of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. MacLeod, a cousin of the bride, and met the groom with his father, waiting at the improvised altar. The couple stood under a large white bell in an archway of green, surrounded by other decorations tastefully arranged.

The bride looked exceedingly sweet and pretty in an exquisite white crepe de chine gown and beautiful veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Immediately after the ceremony all were ushered into the dining room, where a delicious wedding breakfast was served. The table was prettily decorated, green and pink predominating, another bell being suspended from the chandelier.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. T. Sowle of Portsmouth, R. I. She received her education including a thorough course in music, in the west and has afforded much pleasure to the Hanover people in musicales, as well as in the church choir.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rose of Baltic. He was graduated from Boston university in 1923, having majored in chemistry and English literature, thus earning two degrees.

The guests present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sowle, Mr. and Mrs. John Rose, Miss Ruth Rose, Mrs. Lillie Standish, Henry Smith, Rev. and Mrs. MacLeod and Rev. and Mrs. Stone.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Rose expect to begin housekeeping in Baltic, where there are many friends to congratulate them, as well as in Hanover. The Hanover people are especially glad that they are not to lose, at present, their accomodating little post-mistress. Many good wishes go with this happy young couple, and the hopes that much of joy may be theirs.

Ice Harvesting Begins.

Ice harvesting has begun in the city at the Ford pond at East Great Plain, at the Bailey pond on Baltic street and at the Kramer pond in Greeneville. The ice is about 9 inches thick.

YALE SOCCER LETTERS AWARDED TO 15 PLAYERS

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Fifteen members of the Yale university soccer team were today awarded the AYE (Association Yale Football) for having participated in either the Harvard or Princeton games last fall. On recommendation of the under graduate athletic association, the Yale athletic association has awarded the major Y to two men for their participation in the Yale-Harvard and Oxford-Cambridge track meet in Cambridge last year. They were Sabin W. Carr, of Dubuque, Ia., a pole vaulter who won his event and Richard Game of Governors Island, N. Y., a hurdler.

NEW TROPHY FOR MILLROSE "600" RUNNING FEATURE

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A new trophy in the form of a bronze statuette, donated by a Harvard graduate in memory of Percy D. Haughton, will be awarded to the winner of the Millrose "600," historic indoor running fixture, at the annual track and field carnival of the Millrose A. A. in Madison Square Garden, February 6.

Alan Helffreich, former Penn State star now wearing the colors of the New York Athletic club, won the post trophy outright last winter after his third consecutive triumph in the Millrose "600" and will be a contender in the first race for the new prize.

Helffreich will have unusually keen opposition, Charles Hoff, Norwegian all-round star and finalist in the 800-meter race of the 1924 Olympics, is an entry, while Canada will send a representative, probably Allen T. Christie of the University of Toronto. Johnny Holden, Ray Dodge and Joe Tierney will be among the American contestants.

NOTHING IS HEARD FROM DUGAS REGARDING MATCH

Nothing has yet been heard from Chip Dugas regarding a match with Frankie Barber of Danielson, although Barber posted $100 as his half of the purse which Dugas earlier in the season claimed he would bowl Barber for. Today is the last day for Dugas to post his money if he really desires a match with Barber for the championship title. After today Barber will be open to challenges from any bona fide Eastern Connecticut bowler which means that he will roll any bowler in Eastern Connecticut who can show that he has made his residence in the eastern part of the state for the past year.

COULDN'T SWIM BUT WANTED TO MAKE TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The acme of athletic enthusiasm and optimism was revealed, Coach Russell Dean of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology swimming team said today, when a confident youth declared himself a candidate for the varsity team.

"Have you ever done much swimming?" queried the coach.

"Not very much, but I'd like to try for the team."

"Well, swim the length of the tank," Dean ordered.

The youth plunged, threshed about, a moment and sank. Members of the varsity pulled him out. During a sputtering cross examination, he admitted he never had been a swimmer but thought he could get away with it."

"Y" SENIORS CLASH WITH BATTERY B THIS EVENING

A lively encounter is expected tonight when the basketball quintette representing Battery B will clash with the local "Y" Seniors. This will be the first game of the season for the latter, who will include in their lineup Pineault, Adnopos and Grebe of last year's team, Brauman and Brennon, former Emps and a number of new comers who have been showing up well in the pick up games at the "Y". The game will begin at 8 p. m. sharp and spectators will be welcome. No admission will be charged.

SEVEN TEAMS TO START IN AMATEUR DOG RACES

POLAND SPRING, Me., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Seven teams are expected to start in the amateur dog sled races here next Friday and Saturday and practically all of them had arrived here tonight. The first teams to arrive were those of the Misses Caryl Peabody and Clara Enecbuske of Cambridge, Mass.

The race will be 25 miles a day, with the start and finish here. The course as now planned, subject to change after inspection of the roads on Thursday, will be to Poland corner, to Mechanic Falls, to Auburn, to Danville Junction and back here.

THREE L. T. A. OFFICERS SURE OF RE-ELECTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Three of the four present officers of the United States Lawn Tennis association, including Jones W. Messersau of New York, president, are slated for re-election at the annual meeting February 6, it was revealed today by the nominating committee.

The committee also presents for re-election Harry S. Knox of Chicago, secretary, and Louis B. Dailey of New York, treasurer. R. Clifford Black of New York, retiring as vice president, was unable to accept renomination because of business demands, the committee announced, and in his place Samuel H. Collom of Philadelphia is nominated.

Five former presidents of the association are nominated for the executive committee to serve until 1927—George T. Adee, Dwight F. Davis, Julian S. Myrick, Henry W. Slocum and George W. Wightman.

Sectional delegates to the executive committee from the California, Missouri Valley, New England, New York, Northwestern and Southwestern sections will be appointed by their respective associations. Three delegates-at-large named for two year terms are Louis J. Carruthers of New York, William P. Roland of Philadelphia, and E. J. Wuensch of Indianapolis. Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City, Mo., is nominated a delegate for one year, replacing Collom.

MALCEWICZ SUPPORTS CLAIM OF TITLE WITH $2,500 FORFEIT

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., heavyweight wrestler today posted a $2,500 forfeit in support of his claim that he won the championship title from Earl Caddock at Utica four days before the latter was defeated by Joe Stecher. In posting the forfeit, Malcewicz challenged Stecher and Strangler Lewis to a three cornered sweepstakes at $10,000 a side, winner take all.

VETERAN REFEREE AND BOXER STAGE BOUT IN COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A one round battle not sanctioned by the state athletic commission was staged in the office of the commission today when Patsey Haley, veteran referee, and Johnny Reisler, a lightweight boxer, came to blows after Reisler had been suspended for 60 days on charges preferred by Haley.

Reisler, son of John Reisler, Sr., the latter familiarly known in the boxing world as "John, the Barber" and a former manager of Jack Dempsey, punched Haley on the jaw as the referee came out of the inner office of the commission. Deputy Commissioner Eddie Curry and Jess McMahon, a matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, separated the two after Reisler had landed with a right hand punch and Haley had countered with a kick at his antagonist.

The feud between the Reisers and Haley is said to be of long standing starting four years ago when Haley, refereeing a match between Reisler and Bobby Michaels at Madison Square Garden, tossed both boys from the ring for not trying. Last Saturday night Haley refereed a match in New York between Reisler and an opponent and was accosted by Eddie Reisler after he had cast his vote in favor of Reisler's opponent. It was for this interference that Haley preferred charges against the Reisers which resulted in their suspension for 60 days. The trio had been called to appear before the commission next week.

Leo P. Flynn and his entire stable of more than 20 boxers was suspended for 30 days for violating contract rules by signing two sets of contracts for the match between Charley Goodman, one of Flynn's fighters, and Edouard Mascart of France at a local club last week. One contract called for a flat guarantee and the other for a percentage, a violation of the commission's rules.

Tex Rickard asked the board to modify its "no smoking" rule at Madison Square Garden but the commission refused to do so, in commenting on its refusal, Bert Stand, secretary of the board, said:

"Smoking is distasteful to the commission and we see no reason why we should make any exception in the case of Madison Square Garden."

Jimmy Johnston, manager of Mike McTigue, former world's light heavyweight champion, and Jess McMahon, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, were told to appear at the commission next week to arrange for a bout between McTigue and Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight champion.

YALE ATHLETIC BODY PAYS TRIBUTE TO HINKEY

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—An expression of regard and sympathy for Frank A. Hinkey, Yale football star thirty years ago, who died recently, was placed on the permanent records of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association today.

The following minutes were passed by the executive committee of the board:

"The executive committee of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association, at its first meeting following the death of Frank A. Hinkey, '95, enters on its permanent records this expression of regard and sympathy widely felt and recently voiced through Yale alumni and student publications and by many members of the Yale community, graduate and undergraduate. Captain for two years and later head coach of the Yale football team, a leader reticent in word but resolute and resourceful in action, Frank Hinkey won high individual distinction while steadily disdaining to seek it."

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA TO BE ROWED EITHER JUNE 22 OR 25

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The annual championship regatta of the intercollegiate rowing association at Poughkeepsie will be held three or four days before or after the Yale-Harvard regatta at New London, scheduled on June 25, Maxwell Stevenson, of Columbia, disclosed today in announcing that the board of stewards would meet this Thursday to fix a definite date and arrange other details.

Prospects are that the regatta will fall on either June 22 or June 26, depending upon tidal conditions in the Hudson river, and that the four-mile distance for the varsity race will be retained. Formal invitations also are expected to be extended to such institutions outside the I. R. A. membership as the University of Washington, Wisconsin and the Naval Academy, present varsity champions.

C. F. C. and Nordics Clash Tonight

At the Y. M. C. A., this evening at 6.30 the fast C. F. C. quintet will meet the Taftville Nordics. Both teams have been hard at practice and the basketball fans of the city should rejoice that they have this opportunity of seeing a good, fast game. The C. F. C. will use Lambert and Leffingwell as forwards; Ludlow will hold down the jumping position, while Brown and Armstrong play in the guarding berth.

The Nordics will probably pick five of the following: Handy, Grant, A. Smith C. Heap, J. Houston, Archibald, Madison and Pingree.

LONG DISTANCE RUNNING NO SPORT FOR COLLEGES

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Cross country racing and long distance running are not sports for college men in the opinion of John A. Ryder, track coach of the Boston Athletic Association and Boston College. Coach Ryder has positive opinions about distance running and assails it as a sport for the mentally phlegmatic, not suited to active intelligence and imagination. He feels the gruelling training to be injurious to the boy who must study. He pronounces the shorter distances as superior in developing physique.

"Is it befitting the mentality of a college young man who has spent four years in preparatory school to attempt long hours over home lessons or a gruelling five, six or seven mile run; I for one, would not give such men such work."

Let the more phlegmatic Finn win the Olympic long distance honors, he suggests. He feels that the impatient American temperament is unsuited for such sport.

"To me there is no finesse to the coaching or sense to the race. Among those who never reach college are some who might just as well be plugging at long distance running as doing what they would be doing were they not running. Scrutinize a photograph of a group of marathon runners and soliloquize well, they might as well be doing it. One would search long in such a photograph for a typical college boy's face."

CLAIMS NUTMEGS ARE NOT CHAMPIONS OF NORWICH

Manager Raymond of the Taftville Celtics objects to the statement of the Nutmegs that they claim the city championship through beating the C. F. C. quintet. He claims that the Celtics are the champions through the virtue of their record last season which showed that they won 15 games and suffered only two defeats. The only teams to beat the Celtics were the C. F. C. five and the Y. M. H. A. The Celtics won the league title last year and the Nutmegs have no possible chance of claiming the crown unless they defeat the Celtics.

YOUNG DEFOREST CLAMORING FOR BOUT WITH COULON

Young DeForest who recently lost a close decision to Jack Crowley at Arctic some time ago is again clamoring for a bout with Young Coulon of Taftville. The Danielson fans are behind their local product to the limit in a bout with the former state flyweight champion. Danielson people are anxious that some promoter in the eastern part of the state match these two boys for a bout in the near future.

Sacred Hearts Challenge

The Sacred Heart school of Taftville challenges the Broadway school basketball team for a game to be played at Parish hall in Taftville some afternoon this week. If challenge is accepted telephone acceptance to the school.

E. C. BASKETBALL TITLE IN BALANCE TONIGHT

Tonight's game between the crack Jewett City Pros and the fast Baltic club at Jewett City will have a direct bearing on the eastern Connecticut championship. Jewett City has beaten Taftville twice and a win over Baltic which has a victory over Jewett City but has been beaten by Taftville, will give Jewett City a decided edge in the championship running. With the title at stake both teams are sure to exert themselves to the utmost and as a result fans who witness the struggle will be privileged to see the fastest brand of basketball that has ever been exhibited on the local court. The fact that there is great rivalry between the two towns and that all of Baltic will accompany their athletes to the stronghold of their rivals, Bijou Hall at Jewett City, will make the game all the more thrilling from the spectators point of view. The Baltic game has always been the big event of the year at Jewett City and every person from nine to ninety is sure to attend and the cheering alone will be worth the price of admission.

The lineups:

Jewett City		Baltic
Normandin, rf		rf, Coady
Benjamin, lf		lf, W. Robitaille
Faber, c		c, Charron
Barry rg		rg, R. Robitaille
Blake, lg		lg, Provencher

In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies will clash with the Jewett City Seconds and according to advance reports this should be another battle.

SEYMOUR BREAKS WORLD'S MOTORCYCYCE RECORD

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Speeding 132 miles an hour, Johnny Seymour, 22, champion mortocyclist of Springfield, Massachusetts, today shattered his world record of 120 miles set yesterday on the Daytona Beach course.

Seymour's time for a kilometer was 16 3-4 seconds today compared with his mark of 17 1-4 seconds yesterday. A re-check of the speed set by Seymour yesterday on a single cyclinder machine showed his record was 115 miles instead of 122 as first announced.

Valiant Jrs. To Play Broadway

The Valiant Juniors will play the Broadway school five this (Wednesday) afternoon at the Armory. The Valiants defeated the schoolboys last week by a score of 43 to 11 and are out to do some more damage, while on the other hand the schoolboys, after tasting defeat, will go into the game determined to even up the series.

Eagles Open Season With Victory

The Taftville Eagles opened their season Saturday with a 29 to 7 victory over the Taftville Terrors. The Eagles showed brilliant passwork and Lucier and Phaneuf were the stars of the victors. The Eagles would like to play any other junior teams in Eastern Connecticut. Address Leodore Phaneuf, Box 88, Taftville.

Yes, sir! that's my buddy!

TROUBLE'S a bubble, just as the song says. And you can stick it with the stem of your old jimmy-pipe . . . packed to the brim with Prince Albert. Friendly, fragrant Prince Albert. Cool, comfortable Prince Albert. A pal in the pinches . . . a cheer-leader when you're on top.

Pipe-peeves vanish in a P. A. smoke-screen. Problems go up in smoke. Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A. sifts into your system and pins a big red rose on the workaday world. Tobacco with a real mission in life . . . to make you pipe-happy and keep you that way!

And listen to this: P. A. can't nip your tongue or parch your throat! Because—the Prince Albert process put a padlock on tongue-torture right at the start; gave Bite and Parch the gate in the beginning . . . and they've never been back!

Men who thought they never could smoke a pipe have tried again with Prince Albert . . . and stuck! Go and do you likewise. There's a friendly shop nearby where they hand out P. A. sunshine in tidy red tins. Take the shortest cut. Step lively! Your tobacco troubles will then be over for all time.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, round and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

A. C. Latham camp, No. 11, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, held its meeting in G. A. R. hall Thursday evening. After the business was transacted a social time was enjoyed. A number of the members went to New London where they attended a dance in Lyric hall, under the auspices of the Jared Avery Camp, Sons of Union Veterans. On Friday evening commander W. B. Mooney and staff will attend the meeting of Jared Avery camp, in the hall on Union street and installed the officers of that camp.

Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Congdon were callers in Westerly Monday afternoon.

Miss Priscilla Hunt of New London visited relatives here Monday.

Carpenters resumed work Monday on W. W. Keigwin's house on Edgcomb street.

Men were engaged Saturday clearing the snow from the ice on Avery's pond at the east end of Mistuxet avenue. They have commenced cutting ice that has frozen to the depth of nine inches.

Workmen in the employ of the town, on the Groton side, under the supervision of John Godfrey, removed the snow on West Main street Monday and sanded the icy places.

The Old Mystic Social circle met in the Parish house Monday evening. Dr. Congdon continued a talk he had previously began.

Worthy Master James W. Pollard, Lecturer Lottie Schroder, Mrs. Wallace Phillips and Mrs. Thomas Wilcox, of Quinebaug, lecturer of Stonington grange, went to Hartford Tuesday morning to attend the three days session of the state grange.

Plus Ultra class of the Old Mystic Baptist church held their monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Harold Williams.

GETTING THE THEFT HABIT CONDEMNED BY PRIEST

Sunday throughout the world the Roman Catholic church celebrated Holy Family day—accentuating the teaching that the family unit is the foundation of society and the state, when in accord, the parents in harmony, the children subject to the authority of their elders. The gospel read in all the masses of the day was Luke 2, 42-52, narrating the finding of the Child Jesus in the temple, ending, "And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject to them. And His mother kept all these words in her heart. And Jesus advanced in wisdom, and age, and grace with God and man."

Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass to a congregation which filled auditory and galleries, Rev. Myles P. Galvin continued his instructions on the Ten Commandments, again taking up the Seventh, "Thou shalt not steal." Passing over robbery, which he had treated in an earlier sermon as the act of forcibly taking away that which is another's, Father Galvin took up the sin of theft—dishonest dealing with one's neighbor by stealth. How serious God considers stealing is indicated by the fact that He has specifically legislated against it by one of His great laws, the Commandments. Since earliest times the right of man to hold his own has been admitted; and the thief tacitly acknowledges evil—doing through the fact that generally he commits his acts under the cover of darkness.

God's opinion of theft is known; and while, in this age, the meaning of the word appears to have broadened, so that in some examples the thief seems proud of his deeds, nevertheless it is probable that remorse gnaws at his conscience. Though there are the various "isms" of the time—socialism, communism, yet reason has always admitted the right of the individual to accumulate property through his labor, also to increase it through his thrift and economy—this, in spite of the argument of the socialist, who is a prejudiced person, refusing to look on both sides of a question but seeing things wholly from his own viewpoint. Admitting this right to possession, theft has always been held in reprobation, has been severely punished, while no disgrace is held above that of being called a thief or a liar. No great thief, the preacher declared, ever did its big thieving all at once. The devil, in his wise, wiles begins by putting small temptations in one's way, until, having yielded again and again to apparently insignificant temptations, the habit is formed, so that when the crucial test comes the will is broken and the habitual thief falls. The cases of employes in stores, shops, mills, who begin by taking trivial things, eventually acquiring the sinful habit of stealing, were cited as a warning. Honesty in the smallest dealings was given as the only guide to result in good will with neighbors, an untroubled conscience, and approval of that just Judge who has promised a crown of immortality to those who obey Him. For everything stolen, restitution must be made.

Rev. Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion to a very large number. The service began with the hymn "Praise Ye the Lord," sung by the Junior choir, directed by Organist Henry J. LaFontaine.

PROPOSES FEDERAL LAW ON CONNECTICUT PATTERN

A bill for a federal law requiring all motor vehicle owners to produce satisfactory evidence of financial responsibility, which bill would be patterned after the Connecticut law which has just gone into operation, is under contemplation by Congressman Roy G. FitzGerald, of Ohio, who has written to Commissioner Stoeckel of the Connecticut motor vehicle department, for information about the Connecticut law.

"The constantly increasing fatalities arising from the operation of automobiles on our congested thorough fares and consequent damage caused by irresponsible drivers, emphasized by a fractured skull and crippled leg which I sustained recently, influences me to introduce some measure in congress for compulsory liability insurance," says a letter received by Mr. Stoeckel from Congressman FitzGerald.

The congressman was referred to the Connecticut department for assistance in preparing his draft, by Ernest Greenwood, secretary of the national conference on street and highway safety. What the congressman has in mind is to produce a basis for discussion and investigation which he hopes will lead ultimately "to the enactment of some proper legislation for the District of Columbia, the whole United States, or possibly lead to enactment of laws in the different states." His present thought is to limit the bill to a provision for compulsory liability insurance of $2,000 without any suggestion of government fund, put the matter within the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission and provide that persons may deposit collateral or give such security as might be effective, as in Connecticut, "and not make the bill too drastic or harsh."

Shortage of Draftsmen for Navy.

The United States civil service commission states that there is immediate need for additional design, detail, and copyist draftsmen for hull work at the New York navy yard. Increased rates of pay are $5.08 to $10.16 a day for design draftsman, $6.46 to $7.60 a day for detail draftsmen, and $4.84 to $5.04 a day for copyist draftsmen.

The commandant of the yard can use mechanical draftsmen, structural-steel draftsmen, ship-piping draftsmen, or ship-ventilation draftsmen. Applicants will not be assembled for written tests, but will be rated on their education, experience, fitness, and specimens of their work. Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the secretary of the second United States civil service district, Customhouse, New York city.

Girls! Throw Away Your FAT

Look Your Best. Start Today. Take Off from 10 to 60 Pounds. I Did. Simple, Easy, Harmless Way. HERE IT IS.

"If you are ashamed of your figure, decide to take off all that extra fat and look your best. You can do it. I did. I am not going to tell you to go through strenuous exercises or weakening diets. I will not recommend you to rub your body with absurd creams or wear reducing girdles or garments, as I KNOW THEY ARE ABSOLUTELY WORTHLESS. I am giving you here the new way I found out in Paris, which is the most marvelous discovery ever made to easily and safely take off fat. I suffered for years with all the troubles well known to fat people—time after time—I deprived myself from all pleasures, because of my ridiculously fat figure. I turned down parties and friends to avoid the dreaded "here comes fatty," until one day, after I had tried everything known to reduce and failed I hit upon SAN-GRI-NA WITH WHICH I MADE MYSELF OVER. SAN-GRI-NA is the discovery of a French scientist, who has solved the problem of obesity. With this simple, easy, marvelous new way, I reduced from 188 to 138 pounds in eight weeks, and have never regained since. The reducing I went through was gradual and easy—did not leave me flabby or wrinkled—with every pound of fat I lost I felt a steady increase in a breath and vitality. Now my health is splendid, and I look and feel years younger.

SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed absolutely harmless, and positive to reduce you or money refunded. Sold at all good drug or department stores or you can send direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C.

On sale at Lee & Osgood's, Dunn's and Morgan's drug stores.

SAYS FAITH IN JESUS BRINGS TRUE HAPPINESS

Preaching Sunday night at the evening service in English at the German Lutheran church on Franklin street, the pastor, Rev. H. Hunzinger, spoke upon real enjoyment of life, which he said came first through faith in Jesus, following Him and serving Him, who is the light of the world.

In part the preacher said:

It was the plan of the great God of Love to make man the master of his own happiness. But we all know, what a fool man has made of himself by double-crossing this wonderful plan. A fool he was. He should have turned the desert lands of this world into a paradise of love and peace, but he has done just the contrary—he has torn to pieces the little paradise of his childhood, the remainder of God's great paradise and instead of winning the race of happiness, he won for himself evil and sorrow and death. Separated from God and His eternal love man had to study a most sorrowful lesson, none the less than that while there is no God there is no happiness and that sin is the root of all unhappiness.

Do you enjoy life? Not as long as sin is the one great controlling power in your life. Behold now is the day of salvation o, soul, the sun of God's love shines as bright as ever. But you cannot see the light of God and—why?—Because the ugly and deadly dangerous Vampire of sin is waving over your head.

You want real happiness, that will stay in your heart for ever. My friend, here are the goods right at your door. They cost you nothing and the delivery is free also. But there is one condition you must fulfill before you can receive these goods of a new and real happiness. Close your eyes for the light of this world and open them for the light of God, and even if you cannot see His light at first do not despair. It is good for you, O soul, to be in utter darkness for a while, and to wait. The light of god will come to you if there is a real strong longing for it in your soul. My friends: It is an undeniable fact that this Jesus of Nazareth, this poor carpenter's son has been and is now the master of happiness for millions of his brothers and sisters in this world. All that could make people unhappy, sickness, disgrace, sorrow and death, has lost its grip on a soul, in which Jesus is reigning with His love and peace. For such a soul has closed her eyes for this world entirely, such a soul sees Him and follows Him alone—like the wise men from the east in that wonderful gospel out of which I have taken my text. Rich and prominent they were leading men in their country and well learned. Successfully they had studied many of the forces and sign of heaven and earth. But they were not happy. They were craving for a better knowledge, a better wisdom, that could satisfy their heart. In the old books of the Jews they had read about Him who was described there as the coming star of Jacob: the Messiah. And how queer,—these heathen people believed in His coming more faithfully than the proud and holy scribes in Jerusalem. And the more they studied the old prophecies of Him the more they realized that the precious crown of knowledge and happiness would be, to know Him, to serve Him and to love Him. Mysterious old figures in the book of Daniel showed them, that the time of His coming was very near. So for many years they walked and waited carefully for the appearance of His star. And the hour came, when the star of Bethlehem in the glory of an unseen world rose on the western sky. O how they must have rejoiced now they had received a great, wonderful reward for their long troublesome searching, for all their sleepless nights! At once they started off and they found Him, but where and how? Not in Jerusalem the old city of Kings as they had anticipated. Nobody knew Him there. To Bethlehem a poor little town they were directed by the word of God. And the star which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over, where the young child was. When they saw the star they rejoiced in exceedingly great joy and went into the house and saw the young child with Mary His mother and fell down and worshipped Him and, when they had opened their treasures they presented to Him gifts: Gold frankincense and myrrh."

O how these rich and wise men, enjoyed their life—in the miserable barn kneeling before a manger. The little Christ child in it seemed to be the poorest of the poor, but for these wise men He became the master of their happiness. And He will also become the master of our happiness, if we do like these humble men did. Do you want to enjoy your life? Then first have faith in Him, wait for Him, follow Him and serve Him, for He is the light of your life!

UNITED JEWISH CAMPAIGN FOR AID IN EUROPE

Leading Jewish citizens of this state will participate in a conference at the Hotel Garde, New Haven, Sunday, January 17, to determine upon organization plans for the Connecticut section of the United Jewish campaign. All the communities of this state have been invited to send representatives to elect a committee to raise Connecticut's quota of a $15,000,000 "overseas chest," now being raised in this country to save hundreds of thousands of Jews in Europe from hopeless destruction, starvation and death. The quota to be raised in this state is $350,000.

Prominent leaders in Jewish philanthropic and communal causes throughout the state have taken the initiative in issuing the conference call. Hon Jacob Caplan, of New Haven, is the temporary chairman of the committee which has set the preliminary organization of plans on foot.

Among those who have been invited to attend the conference as delegates from Norwich are:

Ike Beckenstein, J. W. Cadden, Aaron Gordon, Nathan Gilman, Samuel Goldberg, Rudolph Henschel, Max Hanover, Charles Jacobson, Sam Radish, Harry Lund, A. M. Pasnik, B. C. Plaut, Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, M. Silverman, Abner Schwartz, Abraham Silverberg, N. Silverman, Elkin Smith, Rev. Max Stamm, Daniel Polsky, Michael Levine and Samuel Taylor.

David A. Brown, of Detroit, national chairman of the United Jewish campaign, and Dr. Henry Moscowitz, of New York, one of the foremost experts in the social service field in this country, will be the principal speakers.

The overseas chest will be used to aid by all means possible in rebuilding the lives of Jewish men, women and children of the war-shattered communities in all the countries of eastern Europe, where the situation now is described as being more desperate than even during the years of the World war.

POETRY

The Snow-Bird's Song

The ground was all covered with snow one day,
And two little sisters were busy at play,
When a snow-bird was sitting close by, on a tree,
And merrily singing his chick-a-dee-dee,
Chick-a-dee-dee, chick-a-dee-dee,
And merrily singing his chick-a-dee-dee.

He had not been singing that tune very long
Ere Emily heard him, so loud was his song;
"O sister! look out of the window!" said she,
"Here's a dear little bird singing chick-a-dee-dee;
Chick-a-dee-dee, chick-a-dee-dee,
Here's a dear little bird singing chick-a-dee-dee.

"O mother! do get him some stockings and shoes,
And a nice little frock, and a hat, if he chooses;
I wish he'd come into the parlor and see
How warm we would make him, poor chick-a-dee-dee;
Chick-a-dee-dee, chick-a-dee-dee,
How warm we would make him, poor chick-a-dee-dee."

"There is One, my dear child, though I cannot tell who,
Has clothed me already, and warm enough too;
Good morning!—Oh, who are so happy as we?"
And away he went, singing his chicka-dee-dee;
Chick-a-dee-dee, chick-a-dee-dee,
And away he went, singing his chicka-dee-dee.
—By F. C. Woodworth.

So Slow to Die

The rainbow on the ocean
A moment bright,
The nightingale's devotion
That dies on night.
Eve's rosy star a-tremble
Its hour of light,—
All things that love resemble
Too soon take flight.

The violets we cherish
Died in the spring;
Roses and lilies perish
In what they bring;
And joy and beauty wholly
With life depart;
But loves leaves slow, how slowly
Life's empty heart.

O, strange to me, and wondrous,
The storms passed by,
With sound of voices thund'rous
Swept from the sky;
But stranger, love, thy fashion,—
O, tell me why
Art thou, dark storm of passion,
So slow to die?

As roll the billowy ridges
When the great gale has blown o'er;
As the long winter dirges
From frozen branches pour;
As the whole sea's harsh December
Pounds on the pine-hung shore;
So will love's deep remember,
So will deep love deplore.
—George Edward Woodberry.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"How long did it take you to learn to skate?"

"Oh, about a dozen sittings."—Tit-Bits.

"What's the plot of this film comedy?"

"Plot?"

"Yes, plot—apple or custard?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"You say you're looking for a cashier? Why, I thought you engaged one just last week?"

"I did; that's the one I'm looking for!"—Tokio Jokeno.

Would-Be Diner—Waitress, please find out if your colleague from whom I ordered a steak some time ago is still employed here.—Passing Show (London).

First Hobo—Say, bo, wot would yer do if yer had a million or two?

Second Hobo—I'd buy me a freight car just for me own private use.—Legion Weekly.

Claudia—I hate you beastly men. I hate you! I hate you!

Claud—Well, what are you going to do about it?

Claudia—I'm going to get a job as telephone operator.—Life.

Conclusion reached after five years of prayer and cogitation by the eminent South Bend Tribune:

"The best and easiest solution of the prohibition problem would be for people to quit drinking."—American Mercury.

Harold—"At last I've found the person I love best in all the world! Tall and slender, big brown eyes, a wonderful smile, beautiful hair, and dimples!"

Horace—"Nonsense, old chap. You haven't dimples!"—Detroit News.

THINK MATCH STARTED BLAZE-- NEW LONDON DYE WORKS DAMAGED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13—Fire that threatened to cause enormous damage broke out this afternoon and gave the firemen an hour's battle, at the two and one-half story building, 46 Bank street, occupied by the City Dye Works and owned by Jeremiah Twomey. Before the flames were extinguished the entire brick basement had been gutted, while the building was also damaged. The combined loss of the dye works establishment and that of Mr. Twomey will reach. it is estimated close to $4,000.

Frank Uta, 76 John street, an employe of the dyeing establishment sustained severe burns about the hands and forearms, face and head and is now a patient at Lawrence hospital. In another ward his wife is a patient for last night she gave birth to a son.

How the fire originated is not definitely known, but it is believed that a lighted match started the blaze.

Uta was working in the basement and with the breaking out of the fire he attempted to subdue it, but as one of a series of tubs containing gasoline and wearing apparel that was being cleansed became ignited the task of conquering the blaze was too great. From his efforts to extinguish the fire Uta was burned. Uta ran to the upper part of the store and caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 23, corner of North Bank and State streets. Within five minutes a half dozen pieces of apparatus were at the fire and with lines of hose stretched in from hydrants at the corner of Bank and State; Bank and Golden and State street, and Railroad avenue. With another line of chemicals brought into play, the flames were attacked with vigor. The entire interior of the basement was a mass of flames when the battle to conquer the fire started and because of the large quantity of chemicals in the place the work of the firemen was such as to require the speediest kind of effort.

The funeral of Mrs. Nora Kelley, wife of Charles F. Kelley, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. Sergeant of Police John Cavanaugh and Miss Madeline McAuliffe, daughter of Mrs. Catherine McAuliffe, Lexington avenue, New York, were married this evening at 6 o'clock at the Cathedral, Fifth avenue, New York. Patrolman Thomas Cavanaugh, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Florence Quinn, this city, attended The bride. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cavanaugh departed upon their wedding tour, which will include the couple visiting Washington and cities in New England, after which they will return to this city and take up their future residence.

Following numerous complaints having been made to the police because of young people indulging in coasting on many streets of the city that are considered dangerous for such diversion, City Manager William A. Holt and Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney today selected such streets as would be the least dangerous for the coasters. These highways and where the coasters will be given police protection in the late afternoon and evening, are as follows: Alger street from Montauk avenue to Caulkins park, Riverview avenue; Crystal avenue, from Grove to Front street; Manwaring street and Hempstead street to Truman street; Vauxhall street from Summit avenue to Ledyard street. Signs will be placed along the highways where the coasting is to be permitted in order to warn autoists.

ATTORNEY MORGAN'S DOGS NUISANCE, SAYS MINISTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—Rev. Chester H. Howe, 11 West street, pastor of the First Baptist church, complained to the police shortly before 6 o'clock this morning, that dogs owned and harbored by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan, corner of Channing and Broad street, had been yelping throughout the night and causing Rev. Mr. Howe much annoyance because his slumber was greatly interrupted. Rev. Mr. Howe declared that the dogs were a nuisance and requested that the authorities take such action as deemed advisable to bring the nuisance to an end. The matter was turned over to Dog Warden John Sweesy for investigation. Several days ago Mrs. A. J. Pelletier, 43 Granite street, complained to the police when one of the attorney's dogs leaped over a fence and attacked her little daughter, the dog being beaten away from the child by Patrolman Frank Philopena, who was passing at the time.

BOOZE DEALERS FINED— HAVE MONEY PLENTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—Luigi Cardello was the only one of the alleged liquor law violators to escape a penalty when presented in the police court during the past two days. The accused resides at 8 Elizabeth street and there he is alleged to have carried on a booze business that was very profitable. He was accused by the pair of sleuths the state police has had in its employ and they were positive as to their declarations, but Luigi set up a defense that led him over the threatening places and he emerged from the trial this afternoon, acquitted. He appears to have had painters as his patrons, for one of the accusing men and one of the witnesses testified that they were painters —that is they used white lead and oil not the stuff that paints the nose.

Steve Lawski, a young fellow who has had a place on North Bank street during many years, received a penalty that was the severest yet meted out in the raids that have been made since the first of the year. He was ordered to pay $400 and did as requested.

Angelo Scaletti received the lightest fine, that being $100.

Tony Menghi, called by one attendant upon the trial, "the Mussolini of New London," paid a fine of $200 and costs of more than $30. Joe Algeiro paid the same penalty.

Murray Cascio was to have been tried today, but he represented that he is desirous of having counsel and to defend his good name and his cash against the assertion that as a taximan he is a bootlegger. He will come to trial next Saturday.

John Quinn is the most unfortunate of the whole lot of accused persons. He is paralyzed in both legs, so that they are not the equal of carrying his immense body. He gets about only by the support of some one who assists him to operate his limbs. But John has been prosecuted many times. He has been fined and he has been imprisoned, but he does not appear to have reached the conclusion, from his experience, that he has come to the parting of the ways. A few days ago he was released from jail after he served a term as a penalty imposed upon him in the court of common pleas. He is now bound over to the superior court in which tribunal an offender whose case was not as aggravated as that of Quinn seems to be, was sent to state prison to serve not less than 13 months nor more than two years. Quinn's mother, an aged woman, is bed-ridden and she of necessity has to be lifted and cared for by others. Quinn gave a bond of $5,000 today for appearance before the May term of the superior court. Frank Scialabba became surety on the bond.

Quinn's counsel endeavored to have the bail limited to a small amount, declaring that it would be impossible for the accused to obtain a large bond, and that Quinn would have to remain in a cell where the light of sunshine never entered. That statement did not induce Judge Prince to change the amount he had decided upon. He said there was no reason for any leniency in the Quinn case and he would not show any.

The price of liquor at these places was shown to be $8 a pint and 25 cents a drink. No claim was made that the price was lower or higher so the rate charged seems to be fixed.

Tony Menghi demurred to the complaint, his counsel stating that he has been a leader among Italian people here from time immemorial. It was admitted that he yielded to the inducement to make money and sold liquor as represented.

In the Cardello case the accused brought witnesses to make out a case for him, whereas in the other cases there was no defense other than a denial of the testimony of the spotters or stool pigeons, as the attorneys alluded to them. A young girl, Anna Papa, living in the Cardello house, declared that she was in the Cardello apartment all day when the sales were alleged and that no liquor was sold there, although the stool pigeons did call and ask for liquor, which was refused them. One Palma, a resident in the building, also declared that he heard the "guys" come and ask for booze and he heard Cardello refuse to sell to them.

Dominica Villano, residing close to the Cardello house, was represented to be the mother of four children and that she would again become a mother in a few weeks. The Villano home was one in which poverty was apparent, and any fine would burden the family. The penalty in her case was made $150.

The state police carted all the accumulation of liquor in the cases away from the police station this afternoon. A still seized will be turned over to the federal authorities, that the department of justice may proceed in the matter if that course is advisable.

Three bummers who struck town yesterday were scooped up in the police drag net last night and today they were sent to jail for a stay of ten days each. A couple of brothers, train riders, were allowed to get out of town on suspended judgment. One of the pair was injured by a fall in some way and he needed attention from a doctor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Farmers' Meeting at Bozrah.

There will be a farmers' meeting at the Bozrah town hall at 7.30 Friday evening the 15th. This meeting is open to every one interested in farming. J. A. Simms, dairy specialist from Storrs, will give a talk on "Cutting Dairy Costs." This should be interesting to the dairymen. Mrs. H. H. Leland of Waterford will talk on the "Value of the Farm Bureau."

The county agent, W. T. Clark, will tell what the Farm Bureau is doing this year.

D. Edward Porter, manager of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, died in Detroit after two weeks of illness. He was formerly associate manager of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, and well known in American music circles.

For twenty years she was a resident worker there in the Universalist Mission. The date January 22 is fixed to meet her convenience.

New York Central's Calendar

As the fifth of its annual art calendars the New York Central lines has issued one entitled "A National Institution" for 1926. It portrays the 20th Century Limited passing the Alfred H. Smith memorial bridge of the Castleton cut-off, which provides a new gateway between the west and New York and Boston and between the south and New England. The painting is by Walter L. Greene and makes a most impressive picture.

Willimantic Poultry and Dog Show

Manager D. D. Cavanaugh and his group of assistants were completing eleventh hour arrangements for the grand opening of the first annual poultry, pigeon, dog, cat and pet stock show at the state armory on Pleasant street here this Wednesday forenoon at ten o'clock. The show is under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association and Company C, 169th Infantry C. N. G., and will continue until Saturday evening.

Several features in addition to the regular exhibits of poultry, pigeons, dogs, cats and various pet stock will offer much source of attraction. The automobile and radio exhibition is one of the finest seen in this section of the state. The dog division is to be one of the largest in the show. Included in the poultry exhibit is a display of Japanese Silkie fowls. Over one hundred dollars in gold will be given away to lucky holders of admission tickets during the show. Saturday will be Boy Scout Day and every boy and girl in scout uniform will be admitted free.

Breed Theatre

Seldom does a picture create much widespread interest as has "The Merry Widow," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, now playing at the Breed theatre to capacity houses, afternoons and evenings. But it was inevitable with such a significant combination of story, director and cast. The title suggests picturesque romance and in the hands of the gifted director, Erich von Stroheim ideally suited to stage such a thing, the production has exceeded the fondest expectations held for it. The title role, in which Miss Murray is featured, furnishes this piquant actress with the best role of her career, and that she gives "The Merry Widow" the charm and vivacity it needs goes without saying. John Gilbert, one of the most popular men on the screen today invests the parts of "Prince Danilo" with a brilliance and dash which has come to be associated with this actor. Other members of the cast including Roy D'Arcy, a new von Stroheim discovery who plays the villainous crown prince, Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Josephine Crowell, and Dale Fuller, acquit themselves nobly in their respective roles.

"The Merry Widow" was filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The picture is based on the international famous stage play of the same name as written by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar. It was adapted to the screen by Erich von Stroheim and Benjamin Glazer.

Connecticut College Course

William Willeke, 'cellist of the well known Elshuco Trio, which is to appear at Bulkeley auditorium, New London, on Monday night, Jan. 18, has achieved a high place among the great 'cellists of the world, both by his appearance as recitalist and with the Elshuco Trio.

Mr. Willeke was born in the Hague Holland, and began his public career with a triumphant tour which took him through the principal cities of England, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Russia and the Scandinavian countries. Coming to the United States, Mr. Willeke repeated his foreign successes, and now he has established his permanent residence in this country. On various occasions he has conducted the New York Symphony orchestra with marked acclaim, and he has been soloist with such symphonic organizations as the Philharmonic orchestra, the New York Symphony, the Chicago Symphony, the St. Louis and the Russian Symphony orchestras. In addition to his achievements as a performer, Mr Willeke has won high esteem as a composer and teacher.

Mr. Willeke's 'cello, a Nicola Amati —one of the four known to be in existence—is dated 1647, and was owned at one time, by Franz Liszt. In Mr Willeke's able hands, this historic instrument gives forth a 'cello tone of ravishing beauty, one of the loveliest now to be heard.

Tickets may be obtained at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, New London.

Palace Theatre

It is your last chance to see "Annie Rooney" featuring Mary Pickford in one of her greatest roles. Annie Rooney is going to live long in the memory of those who have seen this picture. The vaudeville bill is excellent and the six Anderson girls have made as favorable impression as any musical dancing revue this season. The matinee starts at 2:15, "Annie Rooney" at 2:40, in the evening the show starts at 7 o'clock, "Annie Rooney" is shown the first time at 7:35 and the second time at 9:25. The vaudeville comes in between.

Starting Thursday James Oliver Curwood's romance of the Canadian woods, "The Ancient Highway," will be the feature picture attraction and five acts of Paramount vaudeville will be given in addition. "The Ancient Highway" was directed by Irving Willat, who directed "Wanders of the Wasteland" and "North of 36." It is a romance of high hearts and open roads—an outdoor story of the most virile and appealing type in James Oliver Curwood's best style. Jack Holt, after a search through all filmdom, was selected to play the leading role and he is just the type Curwood must have had in mind when he was writing the story. Billie Dove, as the girl in the case, is just the sort that makes it easy to understand why men fight over her. There are countless thrills in the picture such as Holt racing down a raging torrent in a frail canoe ahead of countless swirling logs; Holt risking his life to dynamite a log jam, and one of the most realistic battles on the screen is staged between Montagu Love, who plays the role of the heavy, and Holt.

Miss Sarah Estlow

wishes to announce the beginning of the second term of her dancing classes for advanced pupils next Friday, Jan. 15, in the Wauregan at 4:15.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A public free chiropody clinic for children under 16 years of age, will be conducted by J. Grosvernor, assisted by James Dawson, at 12 Cliff St., Thursday evenings from 7-9 o'clock. All painful conditions of the feet will be scientifically attended to.

Broadway Theatre

Norwich's greatest and most novel theatrical attraction opens at the Broadway theatre.

The management is making arrangements to stage this attraction in it's proper environment which will be the kitchen in any home of the country, and to say the least, the audience will get as much fun out of it as pleasure

The attraction is, of course, our own neighbor and now hailed as New England's champion fiddler, "Uncle Joe" Shippee, of Plainfield, Conn.

Mrs. Otto Opperman will assist at the piano and now the big surprise—a company of eight people, especially engaged for three days, will give the real old fashioned square and quadrille dances—and, of course, the old time prompter, one who is very well known, will be on hand for the calling.

If this is not going to be the greatest and most interesting offering ever in a local theatre, we miss our guess.

Plans for spending more than one billion dollars for good roads in the United States are to be made by 35,000 delegates and visitors in Chicago to attend the twenty-third annual convention of the American Road Builders' association.

GAVE TUBERCULOSIS TEST TO 5,512 CATTLE

Inspectors of the state domestic animals department tested 5,512 head of cattle in December, for bovine tuberculosis, discovering 423 diseased, all but one of which were killed and that one ordered in quarantine. The tests affected 244 herds in various parts of the state.

Commissioner James M. Whittlesey issued 53 accredited herd certificates during the month for 1,122 head of cattle, 78 tuberculin test certificates for 2,214 head and 71 first test certificates for 1,500 head.

Permits were issued for the importing of 679 head of dairy and breeding cattle into the state and for 241 head for immediate slaughter. Eighty-four horses were imported during the month, 14,733 swine, 131 sheep and poultry to the number of 94,961.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized today's stock market which was featured by a sensational advance of 52 points in Nash Motors and a late rally in United States Steel common which carried that stock across 126 for a gain of about 1 1-2 points. Final quotations disclosed considerable irregularity, the average of 20 leading industrials showing a moderate gain on the day, while the railroad average sagged to the lowest level of the year. Total sales fell below 1,750,000 shares. Speculative sentiment appeared to have turned bullish at the opening, but stiffer call money rates and the disruption of the anthracite conference dampened bullish enthusiasm in the later trading although operations for the rise were continued in a long list of industrial specialties. The announcement of changes in the capitalization of the Sears Roebuck and Mack Truck companies was followed by heavy profit taking in those stocks, the former breaking over 8 points to 225 1-4 and then rallying to 228, and the latter yielding over four points to 144 1-2 but later making up most of its loss.

Shares of the hard coal carriers were in rather free supply throughout the session. Delaware and Hudson broke four points to 160 and then rallied a point; Lehigh Valley closed 1 3-4 lower, at 83, and Reading showed a net loss of 3-4 at 88 1-2. Lackawanna, which has been under heavy accumulation lately in anticipation of a special distribution for stockholders in the near future, touched 153 1-3, the highest price in five years, but later slipped back to 153, unchanged on the day. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron dropped over two points to 42 3-4 and then rallied slightly.

Despite the weakness of Sears Roebuck and Mack Truck, buoyancy developed in some of the other high priced industrial specialties. Foundations company soared six points to 173 on reports that the company had negotiated several large foreign contracts on a cost-plus basis. General Electric, which Wall street fears is to be split up on a 6 to 1 basis closed over five points higher at 346 5-8, after attaining a new record price at 347 1-4. Special buying also developed in such issues as American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Consolidated Cigar preferred, Mathieson Alkali, National Biscuit, Pullman, Pressed Steel Car, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Weber and Hellbroner, all up two to 5 points on the day.

Barnsdall issues were active and strong on the formal announcement that the company had acquired the entire common stock of the Waite Phillips company, the A stock closing about a point higher at 32 7-8. General Asphalt closed a point higher at 71 7-8, but the other oils moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Heavy buying of Wabash common which advanced five points to 52, the highest price since the reorganization of the road about 10 years ago on merger rumors, featured the railroad list. Good buying also was noted in St. Louis Southwestern, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Atlantic Coast Line.

Texas and Pacific Land Trust jumped 74 points to 735, a new high record on odd lot buying. Weakness developed, however, in Woolworth, Pierce Arrow preferred, Gloss Sheffield Steel and Otis Elevator, all off about 2 to 3 points.

Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent holding at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Strength and activity of sterling exchange, demand bills advancing 3-8 of a cent to 4.85 3-8, featured the irregular exchange market. French francs broke 7 points to 3.75 1-4 cents and then rallied slightly. Other European rates showed only nominal changes.

PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Wednesday, Jan. 13, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over Lake Ontario is off the Maine coast and another disturbance is making its appearance over the Canadian northwest.

The outlook is for snow Wednesday in the north portion of the middle Atlantic states and in northern New England and for rain Wednesday in southern New England.

Elsewhere, the weather will be mostly fair Wednesday and Thursday in the states east of the Mississippi river. Temperatures will rise Wednesday over central and northern districts.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Moderate northwest backing to southwest and becoming fresh and weather partly overcast Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh west and weather partly overcast Wednesday.

Forecast

For Southern New England—Cloudy followed by snow and rising temperature Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy.

TAFTVILLE

The monthly meeting of Council Cagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean de Baptiste, was held Tuesday evening in Parish hall with President Joseph C. Marsan in the chair. There was a large attendance. Four new members were initiated and four applications were acted upon. It was voted to have the installation of the newly elected officers on Sunday, February 14th, and an effort will be made to have Henri Ledoux of Woonsocket, R. I., Grand President of the Order come to Taftville and act as the installing officer. This installation of officers will be public and it is expected that there will be a large attendance. It was reported that 10 members of Council Cagnon went as delegates to Plainfield last Sunday to assist Emile Duhuque to install the officers of the council in that village. J. O. Tellier, chairman of the committee which is arranging to present a play, advised the members that the play would be ready to present at the installation ceremonies.

A flock of inquiries regarding the 1925 incomes of individuals has been received this week at the local postoffice.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS ON NORWICH Y. M. C. A. WORK

The local Y. M. C. A. board of directors held their January meeting on Tuesday evening with a good attendance and interest. President James C. Macpherson presided. All the reports covering the various departments of the work were very encouraging and evidenced a healthy condition of the work as a whole. The gymnasium classes are taking on new life and enthusiasm, especially is this true of the business men's class. The exercises well mixed with the kind of games the different groups enjoy are calculated to greatly benefit the body as well as to give real pleasure and fun. The social life of the association is gratifying and the various games are much enjoyed by many boys and men.

The religious work report indicated a steady interest in the various phases of the spiritual activities of the "Y".

The membership now numbers 922, and a number of new members are coming in each month. Withal, the management has reason for great encouragement at the condition of the work to which they are giving unstintedly of their time and money.

POLICE MUST PAY FOR AUTO REGISTRATION LIST

Police departments around the state are to be charged $25 this year for the list of automobile registrations issued by the motor vehicle department, which police heads consider a good deal of a hardship because the work of the police turns in so much money to the motor vehicle department.

In prosecutions made in automobile cases after arrests by local police officers, the only money that the local department gets out of it is the costs. The fines collected go to the motor vehicle department and as these often times amount to $100 or over, particularly in fines for driving while intoxicated, the police feel that they deserve the registration lists without such a heavy tax being laid upon local police departments to secure them.

MAXIMUM PENALTY GIVEN FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION IN NORWICH

The maximum penalty, a fine of $1,000 and six months in all, was imposed by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Tuesday afternoon upon Joseph Toczyko of 296 Laurel Hill avenue, when the latter was found guilty of an illegal sale of liquor on May 8, 1925, at Stanley Chmielewski's place at the corner of Eighth and North Main streets.

After the jury had found him guilty, Toczyko was put to plea on the second count in the information against him, charging him with being a second offender because of a previous conviction, Nov. 12, 1923. To this he pleaded guilty. At that time Toczyko paid a $200 fine and was given 15 days in jail.

In passing sentence Judge Brown said that he felt that the jury verdict had been fully warranted by the evidence and that he should be obliged to take into consideration Toczyko's own testimony that he had formerly sold liquor illegally for two different periods of about ten months each, in two different places in Norwich.

Trial of the case was started before Judge Brown and a jury when court opened Tuesday morning.

It was brought out in the course of the evidence and the arguments that the case against Toczyko was the outcome of an attempted to "get" Stanley Chmielewski at his restaurant and gas station because he had sold poison liquor to Felix McMahon about a week before. McMahon induced a young man by the name of Walter Kezucki to go into the Chmielewski place and buy the bottle of liquor and that was in evidence in court, but the sale was made by Toczyko, according to the testimony of Kezucki, and the man's arrest followed. After McMahon and Kezucki had taken a drink out of the bottle and turned it over to Officer Joseph Gendron.

Toczyko's defense was an attempt to prove an alibi as he claimed he was at his home at the time the testimony of Kezucki placed him making the sale.

Additional Jurors Called

In selecting a jury for the case, the panel of 35 was exhausted by challenges by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, by the counsel for the accused, Attorneys T. M. Shields and V. F. A. Quinn, and by the excuses which were offered. Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main brought in three additional talesmen, two of whom qualified, and the trial proceeded with the following jury: John H. Powelson, James M. Young, Ernest F. Gadbois, Charles W. Dow, Norwich; Frank E. Crary, Walter R. McClimon, Preston; Herbert F. Finley, Colchester; Frank C. Perkins, Lebanon; Henry E. Holden, Frank I. Date, Franklin; Frank Mell and Walter C. Drew, Lisbon.

Officer Joseph L. Gendron, who was the first witness for the state, testified to going to Greeneville with McMahon about 8 o'clock on the night of May 8, 1925 and to receiving from McMahon and Zezucki the bottle of liquor which was said to have been purchased at the Chmielewski place.

McMahon gave testimony to the effect that he had bought liquor at the Chmielewski place that poisoned him, and when Chmielewski refused to pay the doctor's bill, McMahon resolved to get even with him. He told of inducing Kezucki to buy the liquor, giving him a $10 bill, from which Kezucki gave him back $8.50 in change.

Walter Kezucki, a Greeneville young man, was called to the stand by State Attorney Brown. He testified to McMahon seeing him in a Greeneville cigar store on the night in question and inducing him to go to the Chmielewski place to buy some liquor on the plea that McMahon wanted the liquor to take on a party with three girls and two fellows, inviting Kezucki to make the third man. The witness said the liquor was sold to him by the accused man. In reply to a question from State Attorney Brown the witness said he had no idea he was getting evidence for the police, but bought the liquor as a friendly act for McMahon.

The witness also told of Chmielewski asking him, after the arrest of Toczyko, how he would like to take a vacation with all his expenses paid.

Officer Luke Riley also gave testimony and William Lewis, investigator attached to the state's attorney's office, testified that the bottle of liquor tested 120 proof.

Testimony for Defense

Testifying in his own defense, Toczyko said that he is a carpenter and had previously been in the liquor business with Chmielewski in Greeneville and at the American house. After his arrest at the latter place for which he served 15 days in jail and paid a $200 fine he quit the liquor business and dissolved partnership. He signed the dissolution papers while he was in jail. He denied that he made the sale of liquor with which he is charged in the case on trial and that he was at home that night.

On cross examination, he said he had been in the liquor business for about ten months at each of the places named before he was arrested in the case on trial. When his case was continued for a few days in the city's court he skipped his bond of $1,000 and stayed away for six months before he came back and gave himself up.

Thomas J. Coffey of 2 Church street a painter, said he was at the Toczyko house on the night of May 8 from 7.30 to 9 and that Toczyko was there at that time. Coffey was trying to get the job of painting the house.

Coffey resumed the stand after the noon recess, when he was asked by State Attorney Brown if he were not the Thomas J. Coffey who was presented and pleaded guilty to embezzlement in Jan. 1918 before the superior court and was sentenced to one year in jail. The witness answered "Yes," and said he was put on probation.

George U. Zurcher of Prospect St., a contractor, testified to doing work for Toczyko on Laurel Hill where Toczko was working with him on May 8 all day. He quit work at 5 o'clock.

Eric Erikson and Michael Bisowski were other witnesses for the accused and his case was closed with the testimony of his wife, Mrs. Emily Toczko. She said that she heard of her husband's arrest the next day after May 8. He was in the house all that evening and Coffey was there that evening also. On cross examination she said she and her husband were in bed when the policemen came.

State Attorney Brown spoke briefly in making the opening argument and was followed by Attorneys Shields and Quinn for the accused. After the state attorney made the closing argument, Judge Brown charged the jury. The twelve men were out about half an hour when they returned with the verdict of guilty, which was reported to the court by Foreman Walter Drew and sentence was pronounced by Judge Brown after brief remarks by State Attorney Brown and Attorney Shields.

PREACHER ASKS QUESTION ABOUT ANSWERED PRAYER

At the morning service Sunday, at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster, preached upon the theme, Do We Believe That Prayers are Answered?

For his text, Rev. Mr. Foster took the verse, Luke 11:1, "One of his disciples said unto Him, Lord, teach us to pray." In fact the preached said: "The meaning of prayer is related to a conception of deity. So commonly, prayer has been interpreted to be a special and an occasional relation to the God who is outside of the world which we know. By means of adoration and coaxing and pleading on the part of the devotee, God, at times, intervenes in human affairs and so determines the course of conduct. Thus, through such faith, the sun and the moon stood still that Joshua might slaughter additional Ammonites. Thus by holding a special prayer meeting on the deck of a threatened vessel shipwrecked at sea is avoided.

Through the efficacy of prayer the disasters of drought or flood or famine or pestilence are averted, and the weather is controlled. Such occasional or spasmodic control of affairs from the outside is an historic type of the special favor involved in successful prayer. In other words, most of the time the affairs of life run haphazard and only occasionally under control of intelligence.

In contrast to this, there is a very different conception of prayer and it is one which compels respect. It assumes a background of law universal and not caprice; it assumes ethical command and not passion and revenge as directing impulse; it assumed unselfish desire and not personal inconvenience or local prejudice; it assumes spirituality and not the pandering for worldly rewards. It does not ask for exceptional favors but rather yearns for closing cooperation and harmony with the great and eternal law of righteousness.

In such a light it is stimulating to read the stately and rhythmic passages of Solomon's prayer at the dedication of his great temple when he asked for the wisdom of the understanding heart. The teaching of Jesus is seen in two contrasted types of prayer.

He tells of the haughty Pharisee and the humble Publican who went to the temple to pray and he clearly indicates which one returned to his home justified. Jesus says further; "When ye pray, use not vain repetitions; be not as the hypocrites who love to stand on the street corners that they may be seen of men and think they shall be heard for their much speaking; be not ye like unto them!" Are much prayers answered? "Verily, they have their reward!"

Further, we read of the words of prayer of Jesus in the agony of the garden. To quiz and question as to whether the hopes and pledges of the extremity of anguish are answered, is to lower all to the standard of the mechanical and to limit ourselves to the role of the literalist.

How different in association, Solomon's prayer and the prayer in the garden, are the choice lines so universally honored as the "Lord's Prayer." For beauty of expression and for adaptability to circumstance and condition where is another such? Its appeal is two-fold; it portrays the universal—God and His kingdom and as correlative to that, men with their needs their trespasses and their temptations. The very words are enshrined in the affections and devotions of all classes of men throughout Christendom.

Is this prayer answered after the words pass from our lips; was the prayer in the garden answered or the prayer of Solomon in the temple?

Shall we look to history for our answer? How foolish and how futile to revert to mechanics or statistics for answer or conclusion. How the literalists lose sight of the vital elements, for their eyes are closed unto the things before the; that they should not see or understand. We pray for faith and strength and love; and such come—even though without observation—when we place ourselves in the sunshine of the spirit.

Whitcomb Riley is not accounted especially devout or conventional and yet, many have found in his words the sentiment of the larger prayers of life: "Brink unto the sorrowing, All release from pain; Let the lips of laughter overflow again; and with all the needy O, divide, I pray. This vast measure of content, That is mine today."

CHILD WELFARE SPEAKER FOR MISSIONARY MEETING

The regular meeting of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission society of the First Baptist church was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Herbert Willey of Asylum street, opening with the hymn, I Am Thine O Lord. The president, Mrs. Frank Lathrop read the scripture and offered prayer, after which a letter of acknowledgment was read by Mrs. George Rathbun in regard to a box sent to China.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Edith Parker, superintendent of the state bureau of child welfare, who was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of her instructive talk.

Interesting papers upon children were read by Mrs. Samuel Billings, Mrs. Charles Burke, Mrs. George Rathbun, and Mrs. Frank Davis and a poem was read by Mrs. Maud Wheeler.

The meeting closed with prayer.

ARCHITECT'S SUIT FOR HIS FEE ON TRIAL

The $3,000 damage suit brought by George R. Beaudette, a New London architect, against Dr. F. M. Dunn, of that city, was on trial before Judge Christopher L. Avery, in the civil superior court at its additional January session in this city Tuesday. Court was held in the common pleas court room.

Beaudette, who was represented by Attorney Thomas E. Troland, sues to recover $3,000, alleged to be due him for architectural services rendered Dr. Dunn, in designing a new house.

Beaudette, who was on the stand all the morning and into the afternoon, said that he met Dr. Dunn one day in February, 1924, and that the latter inquired how much it would cost for a new home. He said that he later went to the physician's home where, in the presence of Mrs. Dunn, the doctor instructed him to draw up a set of plans. He stated that after he had drawn up the plans he took them to the Dunn home and Dr. and Mrs. Dunn made several changes and he drew up a second set.

The witness said that it was customary to charge for such services at the rate of 6 per cent., of the lowest estimate submitted to build the house. He said that he informed the doctor that, having small overhead expenses, he would only charge five per cent., and finally agreed to three per cent., and one per cent. additional if he supervised the construction.

He claimed that he received an estimate of $45,000 from other architects, as the cost of constructing the house which was to be on Pequot avenue and he therefore claimed three per cent., of that amount, which was $1,350.

Dr. Dunn, who was represented by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, represents that Beaudette and himself entered into a verbal agreement whereby the plaintiff should receive three per cent. only and do the supervising of the house if the estimate did not exceed $23,000.

The case of Sullivan against Kennedy went off for reassignment.

ELKS WIN MATCH WITH ARCANUM CLUB

An oyster chowder was served at the Arcanum club Tuesday evening and later a feature attraction was provided in a duckpin match between the club bowlers and a sextette from the Elks.

This was a seesaw contest all the way which was not decided till the last few balls were rolled when the Elks came across with a few spares that gave them the match by 25 pins, 1,902 to 1,877.

ADVISES LAFAYETTE MAIN TO HIRE LEGAL HELP

When the case of Attorney Thomas H. Shields, of Norwich, against Lafayette Main, of Stonington, came before Judge Charles B. Waller, in the court of common pleas, in this city, the court advised Mr. Main to engage counsel to defend him, after the defendant had signified his intention of defending himself.

Judge Waller informed Main that he was not qualified to defend himself and when the judge was informed that the suit was brought for counsel fees, alleged to be due Attorney Shields for legal service when he represented Main in a case before Judge Waller, the judge said that he would therefore be disqualified from hearing the case.

Main advanced the opinion that he did not intend to pay a bill twice and is now considering whether or not he had better attempt to defend himself.

Justice John H. Barnes, of Norwich and a jury some time ago heard the case of Attorney Shields against Main and the jury rendered a verdict again t Main. The latter then appealed the case and announced at the time that he would defend himself.

FIELD ARTILLERYMEN TO GO TO TOBYHANNA AGAIN

Local field artillerymen in the national guard of Connecticut will again go to Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania, for their two weeks encampment, according to an announcement made by Adjutant General G. M. Cole. The batteries attached to the 192nd Field Artillery, will all entrain for their summer camp on July 4. Last summer the camp was held in the same place and was very popular with the citizen soldiers.

Tobyhanna is located up in the hills of Pennsylvania above the Delaware Water Gap, about half way between Stroudsburg and Scranton. The reservation there has a number of ranges for firing the 155 mm howitzers, with which the 192nd Field Artillery is equipped, and the climate is ideal for a summer camp in tents. At no time during the last camp was there any excessive heat and many of the nights were cool enough for overcoats.

NORWICH TOWN

There was a good attendance Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, when the January meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters was held, with the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presiding. Following the opening exercises, one new member was received into the chapter. This also was the annual business meeting when reports of officers and special committees were submitted and officers elected for the ensuing year.

For the year just closed, the work committee reported encouraging progress for the eight meetings held in homes of different members, when 160 garments, mostly for children, were made. The first meeting of Home Chapter Sewing society for 1926, will be with Mrs. William Risley, at Buckingham Memorial, Thursday, January 21st. At the meeting on Monday, small socks made of pieces of silk, were distributed to be used as containers for loose change. Each member is to drop in pieces of money from time to time during the summer, with hopes of each container being filled, when they are called for in the fall. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of Johnson Home, in furnishing additional new rooms, under contemplation on the upper floor at the home. Mrs. Alfred Davis having resigned as recording secretary due to ill health, after sixteen years of faithful service, was spoken of in commendatory words by many members. The officers elected for 1926 as presented by the nominating committee, Mrs. Geo. Kampf, Mrs. Edwin Lathrop and Mrs. John Olsen were as follows: Leader, Mrs. William E. Manning vice leader, Mrs. Charles Cross; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche; recording secretary, Mrs. Earle Christman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fred N. Clark; membership committee, Mrs. William R. Balcom; work committee, Mrs. Neville Blicq, chairman, Mrs. William H. Whiteman, second flower committee, Miss Lizzie Ortman; chairman of Silver Cross committee, Miss Maria Briggs; entertainment committee, Mrs. Arthur Fulton.

During the social hour that followed, Mrs. Fulton served, in the absence of the retiring hostess, Mrs. Charles H. Marsh, who is ill. Sandwiches and coffee were served.

A large number of children representing all ages indulge in coasting each afternoon after school, on one of the hills known as Gilman hill, connected with Lowthorpe Meadows. This is a most attractive spot for both summer and winter sports. In the meadows proper, is a fine large skating pond. For the past several years, the very successful Community Picnic, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, has been held in the summer at this beautiful meadow, which covers a large area.

The Drop-in class, of the First Congregational Sunday school, holds a meeting Friday evening at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

When the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor society of the Methodist church re-organized at its semi-annual meeting, the following officers and committees were elected for the next six months: President, Mrs. Richard Carter; vice president, LeRoy Miner; secretary, Miss Hazel Cruthers; treasurer, Edward Howe. The committees are: Lookout, Miss Florence M. Bennett; prayer meeting, Mrs. Albert G. Miner; missionary, Mrs. William Weaver; social, Miss Florence M. Brown; music, Lewis Aldrich; flower, Misses Doris Rose and Isabel Gimbel.

At the beginning of the New Year, the Methodist Sunday school re-organized and officers and teachers were chosen (some being reelected) as follows: Superintendent, Frederick H. Bushnell; assistant superintendent, Stanton W. Brown; second assistant, Miss Theodora Brown; secretary, Miss Effie Ladd; assistant secretary, Miss Elizabeth Gifford; treasurer, Lewis Aldrich; pianist, Miss Florence Brown; librarian, Miss Hazel Cruthers, assistant librarian, Miss Gladys Cruthers. Teachers are: primary class, Miss Grace Mitchell; intermediate class, Miss Florence Brown; girls class, Mrs. James B. Aldrich; boys class, Miss Gertrude Tefft; boys class, Mrs. Richard Carter; young men's class, Miss Florence Bennett; Bible class, Mrs. George Manning.

At the Sunday morning worship at the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, preached from John 1:43. "The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, follow me." Emphasis was laid on the last two words—"Follow Me."

For his evening sermon, Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from Psalms 50:15. "And call upon me in the day of trouble, I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify me."

Edward Howe was the leader of the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service, which preceded the evening address. The topic was How Is Prohibition Succeeding? Proverbs 23:29-32.

The January meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church is to be held Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. James B. Aldrich hostess.

The meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the First Congregational church, which was scheduled to take place this week Wednesday, has been postponed to a later date.

Instead of Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, officiating at the Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon, as announced, through exchange, the service was in charge of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, who spoke from Matthew 5:47. "And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? Do not even the publicans?"

The musical part of the hour was in charge of the chorus choir of Trinity M. E. church, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham directress.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, gave a splendid talk at the Norwich Town Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service, Sunday evening. His theme was "Progress in Prohibition." George F. Hyde was in charge of the meeting and the leader was Mrs. Ronald Nelson. Miss Louis Bailey, pianist and Miss Ruth Sterry, violinist, accompanied for the hymns. Miss Bernice Underwood, soprano, favored with a vocal solo. There was an attendance of fifty-five.

The Immanance of God. Psalms 19: 1-2, will be the theme of the Congregational service, Thursday evening. Following the service, there will be a meeting of the church corporation.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey of Elm avenue will attend the Inter-denominational meeting of the ministers of New London and Windham Counties today (Tuesday) at the Methodist church, New London.

Mrs. Owen Smith of Washington street is leaving the early part of this week for Eustis, Florida, to pass the remainder of the winter season at her home there. Mr. Smith, who is already there, left Norwich several weeks ago.

Dr. and Mrs. John H. Evans who were guests at the First Congregational church Sunday morning when Dr. Evans gave the address on The Near East Activities in the Caucasus, were dinner guests at the home of their cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street.

After completing their services in this work, Dr. and Mrs. Evans traveled extensively through Europe for several months' before returning to America.

Lewis Aldrich has been singing in the choir of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) for the past several weeks.

Blizzard Strikes Home

Coughs and colds are a natural sequence to an unexpected blizzard, and should be treated promptly to offset complications. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a pleasant and effective remedy for coughs and colds. Keep a bottle on hand for any emergency. "The children and I had colds and the first dose of Foley's Honey and Tar helped us right away," writes Mrs. Mather, Richwood, Ohio. Foley's Honey and Tar is a good cough remedy for the whole family. PENN. ACTS TO REGULATE ANTHRACITE INDUSTRY

Measures Presented at Extra Session of the General Assembly—Bills Introduced Proposing Repeal of the Anthracite Tax and the Miner Certificate Law—At Hazelton, Pa. Today the Miners Are to Discuss the Strike Situation—Leader Lewis Will Present the Report of the Sub-Committee.

HARRISBURG, Pa. Jan. 13—(AP)—Control and regulation of the antracite industry as proposed by Governor Pinchot in his message at the convening today of the extra session of the Pennsylvania general assembly, is proposed in administration-sponsored measure introduced in the legislature today

Two other bills were introduced proposing repeal of the Pennsylvania anthracite tax and the miner certificate law.

MINERS ARE TO DISCUSS STRIKE SITUATION TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—The anthracite strike situation, brought about by the disruption of the wage conferences yesterday, will be discussed by the miners at Hazelton, Pa., tomorrow by the tri-district scale committee, which has the power to approve or reject the decision of its sub-committee which conducted the fruitless negotiations with the operators. The committee numbers thirty-five, including President John L. Lewis and other international officers.

Lewis Philip Murray, international vice president, and C. J. Golden, president of district No. 9, left today to attend the meeting. Other members of the miners' sub-committee left for their homes last night and early today.

At the meeting tomorrow, Mr. Lewis will present the report of the sub-committee. He expressed interest in the statement issued by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, to the legislature today, in which he attributed the breakdown in negotiations to the operators. Mr. Lewis showed interest in the bill which would make the anthracite industry a public utility, but he would not comment.

He said he had no information from Washington concerning a possible attempt to bring the opposing factions together and placed no credence in published reports that some of the operators might attempt to open the mines. Spokesmen for the operators likewise declined the reports.

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' sub-committee, before leaving on his home in Scranton today, issued a statement in which he commented upon Mr. Lewis' reiteration yesterday that the operators were willing to arbitrate human rights but refused to arbitrate property rights.

The statement follows:

"In offering to submit all phases of the wage dispute to arbitration, the operators meant exactly what they said—that the offer was made without strings or reservations, and that in making it they realized fully that the arbitration board might rule that some things, including the opening of their books and the granting of the check-off, were necessary.

"Should it be so ruled, after examination of the facts, the operators would be bound to abide by the ruling. Specifically, as to the opening of the books to show cost and profit, it will be for us to submit to the board any and all information and data it might ask or that might be required to prove our contentions.

"We have repeatedly said in substance to the miners what I am saying now and I do not believe there is any doubt in Mr. Lewis' mind that arbitration will develop all the facts he is so anxious to have disclosed. His objections to arbitration are based on quite different ground. He doesn't want the facts so much as he wants to retain his 'own untrammeled power.'"

Major Inglis was the only member of the operators' committee in the city today, the others having scattered to their homes last evening.

CHARITY AGENCIES FEAR FOR IDLE COAL MINERS

SCRANTON, Pa. Jan. 13—(AP)—Charity workers, who, for several weeks, have been feeding and clothing the families of miners made destitute by the protracted hard coal strike, today viewed the outlook with some alarm.

The breaking off of negotiations looking toward a settlement of the strike came as a particularly hard blow to the needy among the 158,000 idle miners, and to the charity agencies as well. These agencies have been taxed almost to the limit in obtaining funds to supply the necessities of life of the poor and they said today that unless gifts were received from unexpected sources their funds soon would be exhausted. Two weeks ago a movement was launched among business men and others, known for their philanthropies, for advances on their donations for the year and it is this money that is being spent now in relief work.

WORLD COURT TOPIC OF DEBATE IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The senate returned today to consideration of the world court which will remain the chief business at least until the tax reductions bill is reported about the middle of next week.

In renewing the debate, interrupted last week by consideration of the Nye case, Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, called on the state department for copies of all communications passing between the departments of the American government and between this government and the League of Nations regarding American adhesion to the court protocol.

He also introduced a resolution directing the senate foreign relations committee to have prepared for the use of the senate an index and abstract of all correspondence in the possession of the state department bearing on the subject. The resolution was referred to the foreign relations committee.

American adhesion to court protocol was urged by senators McKinley of Illinois and McLean of Connecticut, republicans.

Asserting that the world court is the common ground upon which all nations may stand to attain the end of world peace, Senator McLean declared that adherence to it would not bring the United States any nearer to the League of Nations than it is at present.

SENATE DEMOCRATS NOT TO BLOCK TAX REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—National democratic party leaders today sent word to minority members of the senate finance committee who have sponsored a substitute tax reduction program, urging them to facilitate early passage of the pending revenue bill even at the expense of success of their plan.

After a conference with Clem Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, reiterated that he expected his program for increased tax reduction to be approved by the senate, but that he would not hold up passage of the bill in effort to bring about its adoption. On the contrary, he said, he was ready to fight for early passage.

DAWES TO BE "PHANTOM" AT PHANTOM RADIO DINNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, George Eastman, camera magnate and philanthropist of Rochester, N. Y., and General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America will be the "phantoms" at a phantom radio dinner to be given by the alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in fifty eight cities next Tuesday.

CAMPAIGN IN BOSTON TO PREVENT DANCING ON SUNDAY

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Summons against the Argonaut club, a night entertainment organization on the water front, and Edward Hanson, its manager, were issued today in municipal court on application of the police who charged that Sunday dancing was permitted at the club.

Proceedings were taken against the club as the first move in a campaign recently announced by the authorities to enforce the city ordinance forbidding dancing on Sunday.

DECREASE IN PRODUCTION OF CERTIFIED SEED POTATOES

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Jan. 13—(AP)—A striking decrease in both acreage and production of certified seed potatoes occurred in 1925, as compared with 1924, in eastern Canada and northeastern United States, the New England Crop Reporting service announced tonight. The bureau here, a branch of the federal department of agriculture, covers the so-called northeastern district, comprising Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York in its survey.

A total of 17,726 acres passed final inspection last year or 39 per cent. less than the 28,935 acres passed in 1924. Total production in the field run from this acreage is estimated at 4,973,060 bushels and is 47 per cent. below the 9,380,860 bushels of the previous year. Production in this area however, was about 25 per cent. larger than in 1923.

Average yield per acre field run was estimated at 281 bushels or 14 per cent. below last year's yield. In Maine the average yield from acreage that passed final inspection was estimated at 315 bushels as against 360 last year

OFFICERS ELECTED BY CONN. STATE GRANGE

HARTFORD, Jan. 13—(AP)—Minor Ives, of Meriden, was elected master of the Connecticut State grange at this morning's session of the three-day convention. Mr. Ives received 129 of the 153 votes cast, the remainder being scattered among several. He succeeds Allen B. Cook, of Niantic.

Louis G. Tolles, of Southington, steward, was advanced to overseer and Mrs. Jenny B. Whitham, of Groton, lecturer for New London county, was made state lecturer, succeeding Professor Charles A. Wheeler, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, who has held the office for eight years and who was not a candidate for re-election. Frank H. Peet, of Kent, was advanced from general deputy to steward, Mr. Ives has been an overseer for the past four years previous to which time he was a steward.

The following were re-elected: Charles M. Adams, assistant steward; the Rev. Dr. J. Howard Hoyt, of New Canaan, chaplain; Darius A. St. John, of New Canaan, treasurer, and Ard Welton, of Plymouth, secretary.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN LANGLEY PENNILESS

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 13.—(AP)—John W. Langley has left his mountains, practically penniless, he says, after a public career of more than forty three years, the last eighteen as congressman. He did not announce his destination, when, accompanied, by his faithful wife, he left here late yesterday, but said he was waiting for the court order committing him to the Atlanta federal penitentiary for two years, the sentence passed upon him after conviction for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

In a statement, in which he referred to his sentence as the final chapter of his "martyrdom" Mr. Langley, "to save our home" asked his constituents to elect Mrs. Langley to the seat in Congress which he vacated Monday after the supreme court had refused to consider his case.

Martin Behrman, 81, mayor of New Orleans for his fifth term, died Tuesday, after an extended illness.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Cardinal Mercier out of Danger

BRUSSELS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier's condition was described this evening as stationary. An earlier statement indicated that he was continuing to show improvement from his recent operation. He is considered out of danger, but remains confined to bed, which is a measure of precaution on the part of his physicians, who wish him to avoid any exertion whatever.

TAYLOR CONFIRMED AS MEMBER OF THE I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The battle front over President Coolidge's nominations to the interstate commerce commission was reduced by half today with the confirmation by the senate of the appointment of Richard V. Taylor, of Alabama.

Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, alone held out against Mr. Taylor, but the nomination of Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, who is serving under a recess appointment, continued to face much stiffer opposition.

Mr. Woodlock appeared before the senate interstate commerce committee meeting today for questioning by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, and will appear again tomorrow. Some members of the committee predicted that the fight over his nomination, which the senate refused to act upon at the last session, would be a long one.

Coming before the senate with the unanimous endorsement of the interstate commerce committee, the Taylor nomination was confirmed without a roll call and after only a brief address by Senator Blease. It was stated that the senator was the only one to vote in the negative on the viva voce vote.

MUSSOLINI GOVERNMENT DEBATED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The Mussolini government was assailed and defended in the house today in debate on a resolution to authorize acceptance of the Italian war debt settlement.

Leading an attack on the Italian agreement, Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, charged that the state department had suppressed information about an attack by fascisti on American Vice-Consul Gore at Leghorn, Italy, last summer.

Replying to this statement Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, said the department, after an investigation, decided the attack was not made as an affront against the United States and that the fascist officer involved was ignorant that he was assaulting an American.

Mr. Rainey asserted Premier Mussolini maintained his government by "the most cruel, murderous force ever exercised in centuries," and read from a book he said had been smuggled from Italy before the premier could suppress all copies. It contained a number of pictures, which the representative described as showing persons slain by fascisti.

MAE MURRAY AND VALENTINO LIKE SISTER AND BROTHER

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mae Murray and Rudolph Valentino are just "little sister" and "big brother" to one another, and are not planning to marry when Rudolph's wife gets the divorce now pending in Paris, Miss Murray asserted today when she arrived from abroad on the Majestic.

The screen sheiks said some time ago he wanted a domestic wife so Miss Murray whose name has been linked with his in unconfirmed reports, was asked about that, too, but her reply was "I prefer to have someone prepare my bacon and eggs of a morning for me."

Miss Murray announced that on her way cross she taught Georges Carpentier, French pugilist, to dance the Charleston, and that he was an adept pupil.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT FOR THE OIL BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Returning from a six weeks' trip abroad, Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co., said more petroleum products were being consumed both in England and on the continent than ever before. The oil business was facing the future with better prospects than in many years, judging from what he heard while in Europe, Mr. Sinclair asserted, all indications pointing to a healthy state in the industry. He expected higher prices if consumption increased. "We still have our interests in Russia on Sakhalin island, but the property is in what you might call 'statu quo' at the moment."

THREE ALARM FIRE IN CENTER OF NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 13—(AP)—Fire which broke out at 11 o'clock tonight in the basement of the Woolworth building on Chapel street, one block from the center green, gained headway so rapidly that three alarms were sent in by 11:20. The building, a seven story structure was soon enveloped in smoke and the flames were shooting out of some of the upper story windows.

Shortly after midnight the fire was under control.

PONZI TO EXTEND HIS CHARPON LAND SYNDICATE

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The Boston Herald will publish tomorrow a telegram from Charles Ponzi, former international postal coupon wizard, now in Florida, announcing that he will extend his Charpon Land Syndicate, now operating in Jacksonville, to all prats of this country, and abroad. He said he would continue his Boston agency, now under investigation by Massachusetts state authorities, unless the attroney general's inquiry was supported by the general laws.

PARTICIPATOR IN LYNCHING FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Jan. 3—(AP)—A verdict of not guilty was returned here late today in the case of O. O. Cain, tried by a jury in Coahoma county circuit court on a charge of murder in connection with the recent lynching of Lindsey Coleman, negro.

OBITUARY

George Kuhns

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 13—(AP)—George Kuhns, president of the Bankers' Life Insurance company, one of the leading insurance executives of the country, died at the Methodist hospital here this afternoon. Death was due to an infection of the nose, following an attack of influenza. He was 64 years old.

Four Bank Robbers Shot [illegible]mit, Mich.

Had Robbed Bank of Several Thousand Dollars—Bank Patron Wounded.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Four Toledo bank robbers robbed the bank of Hadley (capitalized at $4,000), at Hadley, a town of 300 population near here today stepped out of the front door with bags of gold and currency in their hands and were greeted with a storm of lead.

Three of the men fell wounded in the snow, dropping their money bags. The fourth reached the waiting automobile and escaped from Hudley only to drive into the hands of state police from Flint.

The robbers' car appeared in Hadley about 2 o'clock this afternoon and drove through the main street slowly several times. It was 2:13 p. m., according to B. F. Hadley, telephone exchange manager, when the car stopped in front of the bank and the four got out.

Mr. Hadley's suspicions were aroused. The men were all strangers to him, and he wondered what business they had with the bank. He watched.

A moment later one of the men appeared at the bank window and pulled down the shade. Hadley's suspicions chrystallized into certainty and he quickly went to storekeepers of the town, telling what he had seen and organizing a posse.

Meantime, inside the bank, the robbers were busy. They held up E. H. Potter, cashier and Newman Barber, who is blind and who formerly was cashier of the bank. Potter and Barber were bound hand and foot and tossed into a corner. The robbers then began looking about for the money. Failing at first to find it, they returned to Potter and demanded that he tell them where the currency was kept.

Potter refused to talk. The robbers became insistent and one of them produced a knife which he threatened to use, but Potter would not speak. The man then slashed Potter's leg. By that time, the other robbers had located the bank's cash—between $2,500 and $3,000—and gathered it into bags.

Outside, the posse of Hadley citizens had been organized and armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers. Carefully, the posse men advanced on the bank from every side. They were close to the entrance when the unsuspecting robbers stepped from the door.

Fire was opened without ceremony. The first volley dropped three of the men. The fourth reached the waiting car and drove out of gunshot range. Ira Jones, 56 years old, a Hadley citizen, who was just entering the bank when the firing started, was wounded, possibly mortally.

Telephone wires had been cut, but Hadley finally was able to reach Flint with news of the holdup. State police immediately started for the village, meeting the escaping robber en route. A quick exchange of shots and this member of the robber band was wounded and captured. He said he was William Willard, 35 years old. The officers said he had been drinking.

The other robbers were: Harold Anderson, 23 years old; Fred Williams, 24 years old; and Andrew Barry, 25, years old. All were shot in the leg and their wounds were said to be not serious.

FIVE HOLD-UP MEN WERE ARRESTED AT LUDLOW, MASS.

LUDLOW, Mass., Jan. 13—(AP)—Five hold-up men were arrested here today ten minutes after they had held up Mrs. George Northup, owner of a North Wilbraham filling station, and taken between $35 and $50 from her at pistol point. The automobile in which they were riding was found to have been stolen in Worcester.

NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The first major difference of opinion in the discussion of the surplus products question by the fourth national co-operative marketing conference developed tonight when former Governor Lowden of Illinois, dirt farmer champion, appealed for some form of federal legislation to remedy the situation.

The farmers themselves might find a solution, he asserted, if completely organized, but they were not and he believed some legislation should be enacted providing means of relief from losses on their surplus until they could extend their co-operative methods.

Mr. Lowden, member of the executive committee of the national council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Associations, disagreed with previous remarks on the surplus question by Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, chairman of the council, and Aaron Sapiro, attorney for Co-operative Marketing Associations who held that no legislation of this kind was needed, but that the farmers should be left alone to work out their own solution of the surplus problem.

While the co-operatives were in conference, representatives of the Standard Farm Paper Editors' Association, meeting separately, formulated a program calling for a constructive national policy for agriculture with extension of co-operative marketing and the handling of surpluses and reserves by the grower's own co-operatives.

WHY MERRITT IS OPPOSED TO THE 18TH AMENDMENT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 13—(AP)—Congressman Schuyler Merritt, of the fourth Connecticut district, in an article which he prepared for the Yale News today gave two reasons why he opposed the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution. The first was that: "I did not and do not think that the amendment is a proper part of the constitution of the United States. My second reason is really a corrolary of the first, I do not thing it feasible or wise except for the protection of public order for one section of a community to try and impose by law its views on a social question on the whole community."

ARRIVAL OF JUGOSLAV DEBT FUNDING MISSION

BELGRADE, JugoSlavia, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Coincidental with the arrival of the Jugoslav debt funding mission in the United States today, King Alexander gave an exclusive statement to the Associated Press in which he declared he regarded the debt to America as one of honor, to be settled on that basis up to the limit of his country's resources.

Explosion in Mine Caused 90 Deaths

But Eight of 101 Escaped Near Wilburton, Oklahoma — Rescuers Are at Work.

WILBURTON, Okla., Jan. 13—(AP)—An explosion in the Degnan-McConnel coal mine, near here, today probably cost the lives of more than 90 men. Little hope was held tonight that any of the 90 miners still in the workings could be reached alive.

Fire, which broke out in the workings late today made rescue work hazardous, while damp and falling rocks also contributed to the difficulties.

One hundred and one men, 25 white and 76 negroes, were in the mine when the explosion occurred this morning. Eight negroes had come out alive today.

The bodies of three men were recovered early tonight.

Negroes who were rescued told of walking over bodies of dead miners as they progressed from a small pocket under the main shaft to the manway from which they merged.

John Evans, white pit boss, A. D. Thomas, a mining engineer of Hartshorne, and two of his assistants were in the mine and have not been accounted for.

All other mines in the Wilburton field closed down soon after the explosion and their crews were rushed to the scene to aid in the rescue work. The wrecked mine was operated on a non-union basis, as are most of the properties in this area.

Trained rescue crews from Krebes, McAlester, Hartshorne and Haleyville tendered their assistance. The Wilburton chapter of the American Red Cross served coffee and doughnuts from a hastily erected canteen.

Hysterical relatives of the entombed men congregated about the entrance of the mine and remained there throughout the day. Sightseers flowed into Wilburton from many surrounding cities and roads leading to the mine were lined with motor cars for miles.

Doctors and nurses with medical equipment were summoned from all nearby twons and a special train was brought here from McAlester to rush injured men to the hospital as soon as they were brought out.

A specially equipped rescue car of the United States Bureau of Mines tonight was being rushed here from Asbury, Missouri.

Seventy five men compose the rescue crews, but only four may work at a time because of the narrow shaft.

The work of clearing the tunnel to the remaining men will require between three and four days, it is believed. The digging will continue until all of the bodies are recovered.

Rescuers have reached a level of 198 feet, but the work from now on will be more difficult and slower, it is said. A steel basket, operated by a hoisting engine, has been put in operation to left debris to the surface.

After Julius Graham, one of the rescued negroes, had been taken from the shaft he rushed back and saved his step-brother, Ray Gray.

A. B. Thomas, 36 years old, a mining engineer, for more than a year a member of the faculty of the state school of mines here, was among those in the shaft at the time of the explosion. He had contracted with the company to survey three mines. This was his first day in the mine.

BELIEVE FOUR MEN LOST WHEN RUM BOAT SANK

SCITUATE, Mass., Jan. 13—(AP)—Belief that four or five men perished when an unidentified rum boat exploded, caught fire and sank 20 miles east of here today, was expressed tonight by Captain John Flynn of the Scituate coast guard crew.

Captain Flynn and his men put off from their station here early today when they sighted the flaming craft, but on account of the intense heat from the flames were unable to board it before it sank. Except for the words "New York" on the bow, they were unable to make out any identifying marks.

The boat was a 50-footer, Captain Flynn said tonight, and probably carried a crew of at least four or five men. If they had had a tender they might have got away safely, but he and his men wer certain they saw no skiff in the vicinity.

Even if the crew did have a small boat, Captain Flynn said, he doubted if they could have escaped so quickly did the boat burn.

"It was more of an explosion than a fire," he declared, "and if the crew were below, they would have been trapped without a chance."

Half a dozen picket boats from the Boston coast guard base searched the waters of Scituate Point today in a vain attempt to find some trace of the missing crew.

CORPORATION TO COMBAT FOREIGN RUBBER MONOPOLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The national automobile chamber of commerce special committee appointed to form a corporation to combat the foreign rubber monopoly today decided to issue an immediate call for stock subscriptions from 102 automobile companies; to incorporate the new concern at once in Delaware, and to call it the American Motor Rubber Corporation.

The committee also appointed a sub-committee to choose executive officers and select headquarters in New York City. The new corporation was voted an initial capital of $10,000,000 by the chamber of commerce yesterday.

Offers of rubber plantations and properties were presented at the committee meeting today, it was announced afterward, from Brazil, Ceylon, Old German East Africa, Colombia, and Cuba.

ONE SHIPMENT OF RAW SILK VALUED AT $10,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Two train loads of raw silk valued at $10,000,000 arrived in one shipment tonight for distribution to mills in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England after making an 86-hour run across the continent.

The heavy interest charges of $1,850 a day on the value of the silk induced the brokers to pay excess charges for speedy delivery.

The silk, comprising 10,000 bales and packed in 22 passenger baggage cars left Yokohama on December 27 completing the trip here tonight in 15 days. Railroad authorities said it was the largest single trans-continental shipment of silk ever handled in this country.

CONFLICT LIKELY TODAY AT FRENCH CABINET MEETING

M. Doumer, the Former Premier, Will Antagonize Financial Measures of Premier Briand—Radicals and Socialists Are Endeavoring to Smother the Briand Government in the Finance Committee of the Chamber.

PARIS, Jan. 13—(AP)—The radicals and socialists pursued their efforts to smother the Briand government in the finance committee of the chamber today. Meanwhile there was diligent canvassing of the deputies by the minister of the interior, M. Chautemps, in the lobbies, furnishing tangible evidence that "the spirit of Locarno," which the premier not long ago said had penetrated the councils of his official family, had disappeared from the cabinet.

M. Chautemps openly solicited the votes of the deputies against M. Doumer's financial measures, which he and the other radical ministers had voted for in a cabinet meeting just before the holidays. This revelation of a fresh outbreak of dissension within the government gave rise to excited comment, though it was far from a surprise to a good many of the deputies, who were aware that the agreement in the cabinet on M. Doumer's bills was merely a holiday truce.

Briand's friends were promptly on the trail of the recalcitrant minister of the interior, warning the deputies that the premier would not submit to being crowded out of office by the chamber committee and that whatever was decided in the committee room there much be an open debate in the chamber, in which all the parties must take their share of responsibility.

M. Doumer's bills must be passed before the end of the month, they said or the government would have to ask for another increase in the circulation of the franc, already again weakening under the influence of the political manoeuvres around the financial problem, and if the situation grew worse through partisan action of the groups, blame must be placed where it belonged.

There will likely be a conflict at the cabinet meeting tomorrow, when it is expected M. Briand will notify his colleagues that he means to fight the battle to a finish and that if the radical ministers repeat their threat to resign he will, with the backing of President Moumergue, fill their places and bring the issue at once before the chamber.

LUTHER NAMED TO FORM GERMAN COALITION CABINET

BERLIN, Jan. 13—(AP)—President von Hindenburg today brought to an end his effort of several weeks to find a new chancellor to form a "big coalition cabinet" by turning again to Chancellor Luther, whom he commissioned to form a new government. Thus the political crisis which has been paralyzing German political life since early December seems near solution.

As the president definitely instructed the chancellor to form "a neutral cabinet of the middle," the second Luther government may be expected to show only a few faces filling the vacancies caused by the withdrawal of the nationalist ministers after the conclusion of the Locarno agreements.

It is practically certain that Erich Koch, the democratic leader, will be named minister of the interior, which portfolio he held in the Baurmueller and Fehrbach cabinets. Dr. Peter Reinhold, finance minister of Saxony, probably will be asked to assume the same functions in the Reich government in view of the unusual record he has made in Saxony. Dr. Reinhold, who is only 38 years old, formerly was publisher of the Leipsiger Tageblatt. Two other posts to be filled are the ministries of justice and economics.

INCREASED LIFE HAS BEEN BUILT INTO AUTOMOBILES

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—One of the greatest improvements in the 1926 automobile is the increased life that has been built into it, experts have agreed after viewing the glistening creations of motordom on display at the annual motor show in the Grand Central Palace. They declare that the 1926 models will far out-live their predecessors, but that this will not be apparent until the new cars have been in service a year.

That the new creations will run from 10,000 to 20,000 miles without grinding of valves, to say nothing of adjustment of bearings or fittings of new rings, is the conclusion the experts have reached.

Among other improvements noted is simplification of chasis lubrication. In some instances spring bolts and spring bolt lubrication are eliminated by use of rubberized fabric spring shackles.

A profusion of lacquer finishes, in various hues give the finishing touch to the new motor creations. Durability, good looks and easy application are given as reasons for the popularity of these finishes.

NEW FRENCH AMBASSADOR HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Senator Henry V. Bergencer, poet, novelist and statesman, arrived on the Paris today to succeed Emile Daeschner as the French ambassador to the United States.

Senator Berenger, accompanied by his wife, was met at quarantine by Maxine Mongendre, French consul general in New York, Roberty Goyet, financial attache of the French embassy, and Louis De Sartiges, councellor of the embassy.

It was his second arrival in this country with recent months, as he was a member of the French debt commission led by Joseph Caillaux.

According to custom, Senator Berenger declined to discuss political questions until his credentials have been presented to Secretary of State Kellogg and President Coolidge.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The naval appropriation bill, carrying $319,419,000 was reported to the house.

Assistant Attorney General Donovan continued his testimony in the aluminum case.

Former Governor Lowden of Illinois outlined his views before the house agriculture committee.

Abandonment of Lakehurst air station and reduction in navy personnel was urged by a house committee.

Premier Mussolini and the Fascisti occupied the house during debate on the Italian debt settlement.

MEXICAN AUTHORITIES QUIET ABOUT BANDITS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13—(AP)—The Mexican authorities are not divulging any details of the reported capture or execution of the bandits who massacred passengers and guards on the Guadalajara-Mexico City train on Saturday night. So far as official information is concerned the case continues to be shrouded in mystery.

Unconfirmed unofficial reports indicate that some of the bandits were captured and some were killed. It is believed that the federal troops, who were immediately dispatched in pursuit of the murderers, are still engaged in that task.

ARGUMENTS COMPLETE IN THE SACCO-VANZETTI CASE

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The fate of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti convicted in 1921 of the murder of a shoe company paymaster and guard in South Braintree, Mass., rests in the hands of the supreme court of Massachusetts. Arguments on bills of exceptions brought before the court by counsel for the two defendants were completed today, and judgment was reserved.

Dudley R. Ranney, assistant district attorney of Norfolk county today replied to charges by William G. Thompson, chief of defense counsel, that Sacco and Vanzetti, whose defense was financed by radical organizations in many lands, were convicted as radicals and "dangerous men" rather than as murderers. He maintained that questions put to the two men at their trial as to their socialistic beliefs were designed to meet evidence brought out by the defense.

"This testimony of radicalism commenced in the direct examination of the defendants, and was of their own choosing," Mr. Ranney said. "The state had offered evidence to show consciousness of guilty and these men themselves brought up the subject of radicalism to explain it. The defense desired to show that these men were radicals, that many men were being deported."

NINE MEN HURT IN COLLAPSE OF OLD PARKER HOUSE, BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Two floors of the famous old Parker House collapsed today and crashed into the main dining room, carrying down a dozen workmen who were engaged in razing the hotel. Nine were injured, two severely, but the others escaped serious harm although they were plunged to the ground floor in tons of debris. Firemen, police and ambulances were rushed to the hotel and aided in extricating the workmen from the tangled wreckage. The floors that fell were at the rear of the main structure.

The accident was the fourth serious building collapse to occur within such disasters took a toll of 47 lives eight months in Boston. Three other and caused injury to scores of persons. A workman was killed and a pedestrian was hurt when a house being wrecked on Cambridge street collapsed last May. In June two children were killed and many other persons injured when a three story building being remodelled in East Boston collapsed. Forty four persons lost their lives in the morning of July 4, when the five story Pickwick club building plunged into the basement during a celebration. Scores of the 125 persons at the holiday party were hurt.

DONOVAN FLAYS CRITICS OF DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Concluding his statement before the senate judiciary committee, William J. Donovan, assistant to the attorney general, struck back vigorously today at the critics of the department of justice with respect to the investigations now being made to determine whether the Aluminum Company of America has violated federal court decrees.

Declaring that the wilful imputation was that the justice department and the federal trade commission were seeking to "protect" a company in which Secretary Mellon is largely interested."

Mr. Donovan said he was charged with responsibility of enforcing anti-trust laws and "gladly assume that responsibility."

"I don't give a damn whether this is a Mellon company or any other concern," he said, "in point of fact, because some officer of the government is interested I would be more meticulous in pressing the investigations.

"And I want to say another thing. I have learned the obligations to my country in other places than around this table."

Mr. Donovan was the commander of the Sixty Ninth New York regiment in the Rainbow Division during the World War.

PRISONER DECLARED INSANE BY COMMISSION

HARTFORD, Jan. 13—(AP)—Governor Trumbull today issued an order directing Sheriff Edward W. Dewey to transfer William Mullaley from Hartford county jail to the Connecticut state hospital, Middletown. Mullaley has been declared insane by a special commission consisting of Drs. Otto G. Weidman and Harold A. Bancroft, of this city.

At the request of the jailer of the New Haven county jail, the governor has appointed Drs. James A. Gettinger and Willis M. Crowe, of New Haven, as a commission to examine and determine the mental condition of Thomas O'Connor, a prisoner at the jail.

WINDHAM SCHOOL BOARD TAKES DRASTIC ACTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Differences existing between the town school committees of Mansfield and Windham again came to the surface this week when the Windham school board issued an ultimatum to the town of Mansfield that the latter town settle for a tuition bill of $255 in arrears for the past two years, for children who have been or are now students at the Windham High school in this city or that all children from Mansfield be barred from the high school on dept. 1, 1926. The reply must be made on or before February 8, 1926 Further than this no pupils from Mansfield will be received or allowed to continue in the local school beginning September 1, 1926 if the amount is not paid.

The Windham school board took this action at a specially called meeting held Tuesday night at the home of Chairman William J. Sweeney on Jackson street. The trouble got its start when the Mansfield school committee issued a notice that any pupils from that town desiring to enter Windham High or any other approved high school must first make application to the committee from which a permission would be granted and the tuition fee paid accordingly. The failure of a number of pupils to secure this permit the last fall term was brought to the attention of the Mansfield committee and that body voted against paying one fee to Windham. The local board reiterated by sending notices to the parents setting a date when such children must be withdrawn from the school unless the tuition was paid. The parents then handed and some time ago stormed the Mansfield school committee at one of its meetings in Storrs and after some discussion the committee yielded to the demands of the parents at the same time issuing a warning that its regulation must be complied with in the future. Considerable of the matter was thereby settled but it cropped up again when the Mansfield committee, through its secretary, William F. Kirkpatrick refused to pay the tuition fee for Esther Beers, a student at Windham high during the school year of 1924-25. Secretary Egbert A. Case of the local committee sent a bill of $7.072 for the tuition of Mansfield children to Mansfield last June. Secretary Kirkpatrick later returned a check for $6.917 leaving a balance of $155. One hundred is also due on the Beers girl's tuition, the total balance claimed amounting to $255.

It has also developed that the supposed victory of thirteen irate parents who insisted that the tuition fee for their children be paid in full regardless of the fact that they had failed to secure the requisite permits was only partial. The approval of payment of the fees was made retroactive only as of October 1st leaving an unpaid balance for the month of September, for some of the children. The school committee also balked at paying the tuition fee of a girl living at the Ridges, town of Mansfield and now attending Windham High. In the cases of the Beers girl and the student residing at the Ridges, both are living with guardians. The local committee holds that the fact that they are in the charge of guardians, who reside in Mansfield places, within the law requiring that any town in which a high school is not maintained shall pay the tuition fee of any child who resides with his parents or guardians in such town and attends a high school designated by the school committee of the town.

In part the ultimatum issued to the Mansfield school committee of the local board takes cognizance of the fact that Mansfield guarantees to pay the full tuition of all pupils, there being about 75 in number, except one child now attending Windham High school and fails to acknowledge, pay or explain the balance due on previous tuition bills.

Under this circumstances the local board could increase the tuition charge beyond the actual cost but hesitates at this action in order to be fair to other patrons of the town never attempt to evade payment. The rate at Windham is lower than any other school of like facilities and is no source of profit to the town of Windham. With 75 children from Mansfield attending the high school is overcrowded, but additional room cannot be provided for while Mansfield maintains its present attitude toward the value of the service being received. The letter continues, Therefore it seems best that you transfer your pupils to some other school, where, in your opinion, you will receive a larger return for your money. In order that you may have ample time to provide for these children and that our high school may be organized to take advantage of the extra room which will become available, we are obliged to take early action in this matter. Accordingly, unless we receive official notice on or before February 8, that you will either pay the full balance of your account or abide by the decision of the state commissioner of education in regard to it, you are hereby notified that beginning September 1, 1926, no pupils residing in the town of Mansfield will be received or continued in Windham High school.

Secretary Case states that the tuition fee of $180 for Esther Beers, who graduated from W. H. S. in 1924, has not yet been paid. The young lady is now attending C. A. C. at Storrs. The girl resides with a family named Owens, and, when informed of his rights, Mr. Owens wrote to State Commissioner A. R. Meredith, who replied that the town of Mansfield was responsible for the tuition fee. Secretary Kirkpatrick's stand in the matter is to have all students through their parents, receive a written permit from the Mansfield school committee before entering or re-entering Windham High so that the committee could maintain a definite check-up of how many children must be paid for.

The members of the Windham board are sincere in their ultimatum and all signed the letter despatched to Secretary Kirkpatrick.

MANY FANCIERS ATTEND POULTRY SHOW AT ARMORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—The first annual poultry, pigeon, dog, cat and small stock show opened auspiciously at the state armory on Pleasant street Wednesday with a good sized attendance of fanciers and spectators during the day which was increased by hundreds in the evening indicating that the affair will close the last of the week as a huge success. The show is under the joint auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association and Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard.

The pigeon exhibit which has 230 pigeons including some of the finest varieties of birds in the country is one of the feature attractions. H. J. Spooner of Linden Farm, Dighton, Mass., entered 194 birds. The exhibit by Mr. Spooner includes a chocolate mealed priest pigeon which is the only one of its kind known to be in existence.

D. D. Cavanaugh, manager of the show stated Wednesday morning that he had received a telegram from Rhode Island stating that poultry, mostly bantams, which had been entered for the show could not be sent due to the embargo on transportation of fowl from that state.

Among various features is the dog divisionin charge of Z B. Diamond and Mrs. Edward Belek. Wednesday was devoted to hunting dogs and this Thursday will be the working dog's day.

W. A. Gordon of Norwich is at the show organizing an Eastern Connecticut Fanciers' club. With the continual arrival of new exhibits for the various divisions and in the trade exhibition the judging for the show will probably get under way this Thursday morning.

A church family night and supper will be held at the Methodist church this (Thursday) evening. A program will be carried out as follows: Vocal duet, Mrs. Ruth Shedd and Mrs. Cora Rice; violin solo, Charles Rainville; selection by the X-L choir; reading, Mrs. Charles H. Beebe; selection by the X-L mixed quartet, Rev. C. E. Spaulding, pastor of the New London Methodist church and a former superintendent of the Worcester district of the New England Methodist conference, who is a specialist in young people's work, will be the speaker of the evening. Mrs. F. J. Williams is in charge of the program.

The following directors of the Windham National bank were elected yesterday by the stockholders, at the 94th annual meeting: H. Clinton Lathrop, Edgar E. Bass, William A King, George E. Stiles, Arthur L Bill, William D. Grant, Louis A. Kingsbury, George F. Taylor and James P. Bath. The directors then elected the following officers: President, H. Clinton Lathrop; vice-president, Edgar E. Bass; cashier, Herbert D. Pollard; assistant cashier, Archibald W. Buchanan Jr.; tellers, Harold S. Maine, Earl K. Haling and Willis Hidgeway.

Tuesday evening about 8:30 o'clock, the first coasting accident of the year took place on Mansfield avenue. A "double ripper," on which Miss Eveline Gadue, of 330 Main street was a passenger was descending the incline at a fast rate of speed, when a runner suddenly broke and she was thrown headlong for a distance of nearly 20 feet, [illegible] Her face was [illegible] her home and Dr. S. J. Turcotte was summoned An X-ray photograph disclosed the fact that she had sustained a complete fracture of the fibula and a dislocation of the lower portion of the tibia in her left foot and leg.

The fourteen foot flag staffs to be set in holes drilled in the sidewalks along the business section arrived Tuesday and were being delivered by Joseph Van Loy of Charles Learned Post No. 1, of Detroit. In all, 153 flagstaffs were ordered. The cost of drilling each hole and the purchase of the flag and staff totals $7.50. The movement had the endorsement of the Business Men's association, the Exchange club and was advocated by the local post of the American Legion.

Mrs. Anna Maria Porter Mills, 75, died at her home at Exeter, town of Lebanon, Wednesday morning at 5:30 o'clock. She was well known in this section and a highly respected resident of Lebanon. Mrs. Mills was born in Willimantic, February 5, 1850, a daughter of Austin and Hannah Anna Cobb Porter. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. James O. Thomas of Lebanon and Mrs. Olive Baldwin of New Haven.

Steam has been brought into use to thaw out frozen sand and heat the mixtures of cement, sand and gravel which are being laid as the flooring of the Community hotel. The workmen are meeting with the several handicaps of working in cold weather but the ground floor was nearly completed Wednesday evening.

Grand Knight Patrick A. Connor of San Jose Council No. 14 Knights of Columbus has appointed a committee to arrange for a carnival in April.

Mrs. A Stanley Muirhead, wife of Rev. Mr. Muirhead, of the Methodist church, is resting comfortably at St. Joseph's hospital following an operation sustained Tuesday.

Sheriff Charles A. Gates called at the county jail at Brooklyn Wednesday afternoon and took Harry Beckett, Jr., to the states prison at Wethersfield, to serve the sentence imposed by Judge George E. Hinman in the Windham county superior court. He also took Ferdinand Boyer, Silva Joly and John Jolicour to the state reformatory at Cheshire for automatic terms.

The Masonic bodies which suffered the loss of their headquarters in the burning of the Windham National bank building have taken quarters temporarily in the Woman's club rooms on Main street.

Brief Notes

Mayor John C. Tracy attended the annual meeting and banquet of the Connecticut Optometrical society in Hartford Tuesday evening and delivered an address.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Deppeler left for New York Wednesday to spend the winter.

Mrs. Maud S. Deming, state department president of the Woman's Relief corps, attended the installation of officers of Bristol corps Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson entertained her brother, Louis Kenyon, of Hampton, over the past week-end.

PLAINFIELD

LINCOLN CLUB HEARS TALK ON COOPERATION

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13—The Lincoln club held its meeting in the vestry of the Congregational church Monday there being a large attendance. An excellent supper served by the home and cradle roll department of the Sunday school, was the primary factor for a great deal of enthusiasm. The new president, Cecil L. Butler, for the first time officiated in the chair and Secretary Fred Jeffries read the minutes of the previous meeting. A fine program of entertainment was rendered. Piano selections by Arnold Smith were well received. Several musical numbers were given by the Wandering Brothers, Ray W. Greene and Earl S. Butler, who were made up in professional style. Raymond Hoode, a local school boy drew some splendid cartoons in charcoal. The feature of the meeting, was the appearance of Joseph Shippee, the New England champion fiddler, who played two of the selections he played at Providence recently; the Arkansas Traveller and Money Musk. The audience of 75 men were most enthusiastic in their applause and a rising vote of appreciation bore testimony of the high esteem in which Mr. Shippee is held in his home town. Mr. Shippee is a charter member of the Lincoln club. The speaker of the evening was Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of public schools at Putnam and president of the Putnam Rotary club. He told several stories, introductory to one of the best addresses given before the club. His subject was Community betterment and he emphasized the value of looking ahead in your community life, the mobilizing and diversifying of industries, cooperating in community work educating the children to help their home town, the need of a few men of vision, faith and good workers pulling together for the public good. John L. Chapman, superintendent of schools in Plainfield, made a few fitting remarks, speaking of the new modern school opened Monday on Flat Rock Hill. Fred W. Tillinghast, the guest of the evening, also responded with a few appropriate remarks. Three new members were voted into the club.

Valmore Guertin of the new village is seriously ill at his home with double pneumonia. A few days ago Mr. Valmore, while hunting, went into a pond to save his dog when it was being bettered by a 26 pound coon. He beat the coon into submission but contracted a terrific cold as a result of his wetting, this developing into pneumonia.

The Children of Mary society has made plans to hold a whist party at the community house this week. The proceeds will be donated to St. John's church. Sunday will be communion Sunday for the Rosary society.

Paul Peltier the retiring president of St. George Council of St. Jean De Baptiste society, was presented an emblem and charm by Emile Dubuque, the supreme officer from Pawtucket, at the annual installation of officers of the council, at the community house. Mr. Peltier was made honorary president after serving several years in the official capacity of presiding officer of the order. The installation was made by the visiting national officers: President Emile Dubuque of Pawtucket; vice president, M. Rochet of Norwich; honorary president, A. P. Cote, of Baltic and Chancellor Mr. Lemouelin, of Willimantic. Pierre Larimee of Willimantic acted as master of ceremonies. Addresses were made by Rev. Fr. Morrissey, chaplain of the order, Mr. Dubuque and Mr. Laramee, who spoke of the welfare and benefits derived. Over 100 visitors from neighboring councils were present.

GRISWOLD

C. C. Palmer of Hopeville is ill with a severe cold. His daughter, Mrs. Pearl Morgan, of Hartford, was with him over the week end.

Miss Mildred Montgomery of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Montgomery of New Haven were called home, Monday, to see their uncle, who is critically ill.

C. Palmer Chapman, of Westerly, master of Rhode Island State Grange, assisted by Mrs. Chapman, Pomona, of the National Grange, installed the officers of the Pachaug grange last Thursday evening. There were also members present from Groton grange. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served after the meeting.

DANIELSON

RIGHT OF WAY GRANTED MOSES H. BERTHIAUME, JR.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—Wednesday afternoon, at a conference between members of the High School Building committee and Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., a final and amicable agreement was reached as to mutual property releases in a right of way between Mr. Berthiaume's property, fronting Cottage street, and the high school property, which the Berthiaume property adjoins on the westerly side. Mr. Berthiaume has agreed to release a certain small tract of his land required by the town, in connection with the construction of authorized additions to the high school in exchange for a certain other small tract that the committee has agreed shall be released to him. The committee's agreement, as a matter of formality, must be validated by the town, so in order that this may be done the selectmen have called a special town meeting for Thursday of next week. The parcels of land involved in the exchange are tiny, but the transaction will give both the town and Mr. Berthiaume better alignment of property lines and provide full and free right of way for Mr. Berthiaume.

TAKING OFF THE TRAINS AFFECTS BOROUGH MAILS

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—Widespread interest was aroused all through this territory Wednesday relative to the coming reduction of train service incident, to the further development of motor coach lines of the New England Transportation company, subsidiary of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company. Danielson, in common with other towns between Putnam and New London, will lose certain train service now available after next Sunday. The north bound 9:39 a. m. train is to be discontinued. To the local traveling public that will not mean a great deal, for there is motor coach service to the north every hour. The change does affect mail service out of here, however.

For some time past two special pouches were made up here for that train. One of these pouches was for Boston, the other for Hartford. These took mail dropped in the office after 7 a. m. and insured delivery to addresses in the cities mentioned on the same day. Business houses here, particularly the banks, found this special mail service very valuable and convenient, as matters originated at the opening of business any morning could be disposed of and replies immediately mailed. Now the Boston mail will have to lay over here until about 3 p. m., for a north-bound train. The special pouch for points west of Putnam cannot be despatched now until about 11 a. m., going to New Haven and thence to Hartford. It is doubtful that this mail will be received in Hartford for delivery on the day of mailing.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Danielson Trust company held at their banking rooms here the following board of directors was re-elected: J. Arthur Atwood, Dr. W. W. Adams, Sidney W. Bard, F. E. Bitgood, W. Irving Bullard, George H. Call, Herman M. Coulter, N. Lorne Greig, F. A. Jacobs, D. E. Jette, Angus Park, Frank T. Preston, Alfred L. Reed, Clifford H. Starkweather, E. T. Tillinghast, F. W. Tillinghast, A. Putnam Woodward. Meeting subsequently, the directors elected these officers: President, J. Arthur Atwood, vice president, Frederick A. Jacobs, secretary-treasurer, Clifford H. Starkweather, assistant secretary-treasurer, Harry E. Magoon, teller, Howard Franklin. The past year was the most successful in the history of the institution. It paid semi-annual dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum and two special dividends each of one per cent., a total of 8 per cent. for the year.

When members of the Danielson Building and Loan association meet next week, they will hear an interesting annual report. Assets of the association, formed ten years ago to help in relieving the housing shortage here, have increased $22,000 during the past year and now total $156,000. Requests for loans are always sufficiently numerous to more than absorb all the income of the association, which has regularly paid dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum with interest compounded semi-annually.

The latest issue of shares is the twenty-first of the series. Shares are issued every six months. In series 20, issued last July, 175 shares were subscribed.

Affairs of the association have been very capably managed from the first and the position of the organization has grown stronger from year to year. It has materially served the purpose for which it was brought into existence—the construction of homes in Danielson. Numbers of houses have been built here with funds of the association and under a favorable arrangement that has allowed those who have had the use of the money to pay for their homes from month to month. Those who first obtained loans, ten years ago, will in the course of a little more than two years have completed their payments.

A recent suggestion in this column that a Killingly Historical society be organized has aroused considerable interest. Numbers have talked about the matter, but nothing definite has been done to put the plan into effect. However, there are those who believe real progress has been made. The Bulletin received Wednesday from a person living in a distant part of the county a request for one of the "new histories" of East Killingly. Also, in the same letter, a request for one of "Joe" Shippee's new phonograph records. Here is evidence that business is to be secured through advertising if one cares to go after it.

Miss Lena Roberts, 57, died Wednesday at her home on the West Side after an illness of four years. She was a native of Danielson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts, and had lived here all her life. She leaves her sister, Della Roberts, and a brother, Louis Roberts, both of Danielson.

Officers and members of the Service battery are interested in the announcement that the 192nd Field Artillery is to have its annual period of field services again this year at Tobbyhanna, Pa. It was at this site, which affords opportunity for field artillery practice, that the battery was in camp in the summer of 1925. The trip to and from the camp was made overland in the big motor trucks kept at the state armory here. Last fall a camp site was sought in Connecticut, but none of a suitable nature was found.

At the annual meeting of St. Alban's parish corporation the following were elected for the ensuing year: Senior warden, James E. Milner, junior warden, William G. Shaw; clerk, Alfred L. Reed; treasurer, John R. Marland; auditor, Walter A. Musgrave; collector, John M Bamford; vestrymen for three years, Samuel Boyd, Merrill Gallup, Herbert H Hepler Edward W Anderson; vestryman for one year to fill the unexpired term of John T Ashworth, who has transferred to Trinity parish of Brooklyn, F. O. Armington; delegates to the diocesan convention, Alfred L. Breed, Francis E. Storer; delegates to the archdeaconery meeting James E. Milner, William G. Shaw. All of the annual reports were very satisfactory.

As yet, feeding of protected game birds has not been a matter of requiring the attention of gun clubs or individuals this winter. Even the snow that now covers the ground is not sufficient to prevent the birds from getting sufficient food. It is the ice storms, apt to come in February, that play havoc with these feathered denizens of the woods. In a late fall and winter season so favorable as this has been to date, hunters see a prospect of good hunting next fall, for the losses to the birds on account of weather and feeding conditions are reduced to a minimum. In case ice storms come, feed for the birds will be distributed throughout the countryside.

In the discontinuing of certain train service on the Providence-Willimantic route of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company, many here see the prospect of increased riding of the motor coach lines that run between these cities via Danielson, also increased business for the coach lines operating out of Providence via Sterling and Moosup. So swift and satisfactory has been the development of motor coach lines and service during the past year that the public looks with equanimity upon the reduction of passenger train service. No longer does the outcry of a few years ago arise when there is talk of removing trains. The public is appreciative of the fact that is has more service in this territory than ever before, and that it is possible to go north or south, east or west at any hour of the day and go comfortably and rapidly.

It is possible that Danielson has more service than it requires, but this is largely because Danielson has become, insofar as trunk line highways are concerned, what railroad junction towns have been for many years. It is the cross-over point for north and south routes as east and west routes operating in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island. This fact may mean a great deal to Danielson in the not distant future, for the motor coach service is still in its infancy. The Chamber of Commerce has sensed this and will not overlook opportunities to make the fact react to the benefit of Danielson. The Danielson route is the shortest and best between Providence and Hartford and already one of the most important and heavily burdened trunk lines in southern New England.

If Danielson can find ways and means of capitalizing its favored location to the extent of getting business out of the people figuring in the traffic passing through here, it will have done somthing well worth while, and it is going to try to do just that thing.

This is ice harvesting week for numbers of dairymen and other farmers who get a year's supply of the commodity every winter.

Howard A. Fenton of Brockton was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Numbers of Spanish-American war veterans will gather at the state armory tonight (Thursday) for the installation of officers of Colonel William H. Hamilton camp.

Failure of the coal strike conference aroused no great interest in Danielson. If a fuel shortage exists here for anyone, little is heard about it. Many are using substitutes for anthracite coal.

Deer are reported numerous in the surrounding countryside this winter. An explanation offered is that scores of the animals came across the line from nearby Massachusetts when hunters went after them during the recent open season in that state.

Arthur A. Dean will take over the duties of personal tax collector Monday, succeeding Attorney Louis A. Wolcard, who did not desire a re-appointment.

PUTNAM

FINE ENTERTAINMENT BY PARENT-TEACHER ASSO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13—Another very enjoyable entertainment was given by the Parent-Teachers association last evening at the Putnam High school auditorium. The program was made almost wholly of musical numbers and included many of the most accomplished musicians of the city both vocal and instrumental.

There was a very large attendance and although the program was a lengthy one it was so well balanced and the rendition of the various numbers was so excellent that no one thought it too long. The outstanding numbers of the program was conceded to be the piano numbers by Mrs. Katherine S. Lown. She is a very accomplished artist who continues to progress in her m[illegible] of the piano forte.

The program was as follows:

Gavotte Souvenir, Sweet Forget Me Nots, High School orchestra; soprano solo, Dear Heart, Tidi Matiel, Miss Stevens; vocal trio, The World is Waiting for the Sunrise, Mrs. Cropp, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Wheaton; instrumental trio, Morris Dance, Edward Germain, Misses Bessie Oblets Edmaer Guy and Master Paul Wheaton; reading, Pippa Passes, Browning, Miss Elizabeth Ransom; baritone solo, Considez and Hear Me, Wooler, William Wheaton; instrumental trio, Old Londonderry Air, Kreisler, Misses Esther Rouse, Gertrude Warner and Annie Ash; soprano solo, violin obligato, Schubert's Serenade, Mrs. Robinson and Miss Oblets; piano solo, Gavotte, Eugene D'Albert, Mrs. Katherine Lown; vocal trio, Stars of the Summer Night, Nevin, Mrs. Cropp, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Wheaton; reading, The Connecticut Road, Anna Brant, Miss Ransom; instrumental trio, Hungarian Dance, Brahms, Misses Rouse, Warner Ash; baritone solo, Captain Mac, Anderson, Mr. Wheaton; piano solo, Rondo Cappricioso, Mendelssohn, Mrs. Lown; Robin's Departure, High school orchestra.

Miss Claire Bonneville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bonneville, was taken to the Day Kimball hospital Tuesday morning for an immediate operation. For the past week her father has been suffering from an abscess of the ear which has been very painful and serious.

At the next meeting of Quinnatisset Grange, Mrs. Henry Robbins, lecturer, has chosen for topic for discussion, "What must the coming generation do to make life a success" Mr. Reardon, Mr. Chandler, Mr. Kimball and others will speak. As this will be an unusually interesting meeting it is hoped that all members will be a large attendance.

The Ruth Wyllys Chapter, D. A. R., is to entertain the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America at the state library in Hartford, this (Thursday) afternoon. The speaker of the afternoon will be Judge Harry F. Atwood, of Chicago, president of the Constitutional anniversary association, on "Our Heritage and Responsibility."

While crossing Quadic Pond after a fox a few days ago Charles Roth stepped into a spring hole. By a quick presence of mind he threw himself to safety but was thoroughly wet and lost his gun down the hole. The next day after fishing for the gun for about an hour he recovered it. The fox escaped.

The annual Junior Prom of the Putnam High school will be held this year on Friday, January 29. It is being held earlier this year than usual because of the Lenten season coming early this year. Samuel Harrison, who has previously conducted a dance for the Junior class has been chosen as chairman of the prom committee. As this is an invitation affair, cards are already being sought.

James B. Tatem of Center street, who has been ill for the past two months is reported as much improved. He is now able to take short walks and hopes soon to again attend to his work and is contemplating a trip south in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Miller, who have been living with Frank Miller since their marriage, have gone to Asbury Park, N. J., to make their home. A farewell party was given them by their friends. Mrs. Miller before her marriage was Miss Bertha Farrows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Farrows of Woodstock avenue Putnam.

Nathaniel Lyon of Phoenixville killed a fowl recently and noticed that the crop seemed exceptionally full and decided to count the kernels of corn in it. When he had finished his task he counted 456 grains and now he is wondering if it pays to keep hens.

Miss Lorena Gallant, nurse for the American Thread company, of Willimantic, has returned to her duties there after a two months' absence while she has been taking care of her mother, Mrs. Mark Gallant, of Church street, who underwent a serious operation.

Miss Florence Murray, a nurse at the Day Kimball hospital, who has been suffering from an infected finger, is improving and will soon be able to assume her duties.

The following is the honor roll of the Putnam High school for the second period.

First honor roll. Seniors, Edmser Guy, Bessie Oblets; juniors, Jeannette Green; sophomores, Madelyn Houghton, Jeannette Marion.

Second honor roll. Seniors Norman Amidon, Dora Bonin, Prudence Dean, Pauline Jear, Celia Kaminsky, Marthe Torrey, Arthur Bonneville; juniors, Vera Morse, Anita Brodeur; sophomores, Carl Whitehouse; freshmen, John Ash, Mary Bennett.

William H. Perrin, the eldest resident of West Thompson died at his home on the farm where he was born, September 2, 1844. He was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Parrin. Mr. Perrin married Mary Ann Huntington and to them ten children were born five sons and five daughters. Mrs. Perrin and five of the children died a number of years ago, and the oldest daughte Mrs. Hattie Maynard died last October. He is survived by three sons, Joseph Perrin of Hartford, Daniel Perrin of Denver, Col., and William, living at home. There is one daughter living, Miss Jennie Perrin, of West Thompson, and one sister, Mary E. Huntington of Waukesha, Wis. There are 14 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Mr. Perrin has been a farmer all of his life. He was also a member of the Methodist church and sang in the choir for a great many years. The funeral services were at the West Thompson Methodist church on Tuesday afternoon, Rev N B Burton officiating. Burial was in the Perrin family lot at the West Thompson cemetery The bearers were the two sons, Joseph and William Perrin and his four nephews, Joseph Baker, Everett Huntington, Daniel Brayton and John Brayton.

Gertrude Lisotte, twelve year old daughter of Edward Lisotte of Laurel street, died Wednesday morning. She had been an invalid almost from her birth and had been a patient sufferer.

Felix Dessy of Thompson informed the police that he parked his 1923 Ford touring car on Livery street at 5 o'clock last night and that when he went after it two hours later it was missing. The state police has been notified as well as the police of nearby towns.

Funeral services for Barrak K. Smith, who died Sunday morning, were held at the home no Buck street at 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. J. F. English, pastor of the Congregational church. Burial at Grove street cemetery.

District Deputy Grand Master J. H. McCulloch and suite installed the newly elected officers of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows Tuesday evening. Following the installation, brief speeches were made. The newly elected officers are as follows: N. G., Reuben N. Peterson; V. G., Stanley E. Johnson; recording secretary, Herbert A. VELIE

WHAT THE VELIE HAS MEANT AND WHAT IT MEANS TODAY

A Record of Consistency

From its first appearance eighteen years ago to the present, the Velie car has consistently maintained a reputation for Value—for the finest Value to be obtained at the price. That reputation was its original aim and, achieved at the very start, has always been jealously guarded. That it has remained untouched and has, in fact, been steadily increased, is a record that not many have equalled and one of which the Velie Corporation is justly proud.

Today, with new resources permitting ever more progressive policies behind the Velie, it is our intention to enhance that reputation still further—to maintain the thought that Velie and Value are almost interchangeable words.

Wanted! 15,000 Sufferers from DEAFNESS Head Noises or Nasal Catarrh

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments.

DR. W. O. COFFEE
NOTED DEAFNESS AND CATARRH SPECIALIST

Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.

15,000 Treatments This Month FREE

I am proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I want to prove that my original home treatment will give relief from catarrhal deafness, head noises or nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing.

You feel the difference the first day. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply send coupon or write and say that you are suffering with deafness or head noises or catarrh. I will gladly send the free treatment. It is the best treatment I have ever found in over 40 years' practice as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. I want every sufferer with deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or catarrh to try it free.

Don't Neglect Deafness or Catarrh!

Catarrhal Deafness, Head Noises, and Nasal Catarrh generally grow worse when neglected. Authorities claim that ninety per cent of all deafness is primarily caused by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that nasal catarrh often causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach, and many other diseased conditions. If you suffer from partial deafness or nasal catarrh, do not neglect this condition.

There are thousands, who are now practically stone deaf, whose hearing could no doubt have been saved had the right measures been taken in time. I have personally restored hearing in hundreds of cases, where the patients were so deaf they could hear nothing. I want to prove the value of my treatment to you entirely at my own risk and expense. I will gladly send it without cost. Just fill out and mail the coupon.

Try This Free!

I don't ask you to send one penny for this treatment. I send it free to you prepaid without cost. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of catarrhal deafness, head noises, or catarrh. I believe I treat more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. I know this treatment is the best I have ever used. Send your name and address today. State whether you have deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so mail the coupon at once.

Profit by the Experience of Those Who Know

Feeling Fine
"I am feeling fine. I suffered from head noises, could hardly hear before I began your treatment. Now I feel well."—Joe M. of Lawrence, Miss.

Helps Her
"It has helped me. I am not troubled with head noises, and my hearing is as good as ever."—Mrs. J. B., Chicago, Ill.

Brought Back Hearing
"Your treatment has brought back my hearing. I can hear now about as good as I ever did. I want to thank you."—Mr. E. M., Houston, Texas.

Relieved in 3 Days
"I received your treatment for my catarrhal deafness and in three days' time after I began to use the treatment, my hearing commenced to come back and I feel wonderfully improved. My age is 71 years."—D. H. C., Ashland, Ala.

Hears As Well As Any One
"I can hear just as good as any one. I have no noises in my head and no dropping in my throat. My hearing was very bad to start on. You can use this letter."—Mrs. R. M. of Boulder, Colo.

Hearing Improved
"I was afflicted with the disease catarrh for ten years, had doctored with local doctors, but found no relief until I started your treatment. I had a discharge from my nose and head. Became quite deaf, but now I can hear, and my head has quit aching. I feel like a new woman. You can use this testimonial if you choose."—Mrs. C. B., Ansly, Ala.

Most Wonderful Treatment
"I received your treatment and began using it. I am here to tell you that it is the most wonderful treatment I have ever tried. I have had roaring in my head, I had the worst shortness of breath, cramps and aching in every inch of me. I feel so much better. I can see and hear better, can talk better and feel better all around."—Mrs. Ethel G., Lythia, Fla.

Now Hears Well
J. C. P. says: "I have suffered with nasal catarrh for seven or eight years, had terrible noises in my head. My hearing was seriously afflicted. It was necessary for people to speak very loud for me to hear them. I gave your treatment a trial and assure you I do not regret it, as my hearing has been restored so I can hear ordinary talk and the head noises are among the things of the past. I am 56 years old."

PENNSYLVANIA TO TRY

Those who are still interested in the situation surrounding the coal strike now turn their attention to the special session of the Pennsylvania legislature which has been convened for the purpose of dealing with this as well as a number of other special matters.

The New York conference between the miners and operators was no more successful than was the conference last August. There was no such thing to getting together unless the operators yielded on certain points to the demands of the miners' president. What his position is and has been from the beginning seems to have been fully summed up in his statement to the effect that, "We don't care what price you charge for coal provided we get what we want."

That is the attitude that has been taken in the past concerning demands in the coal fields, and it has invariably been the case that the consumer has been obliged to pay. He had no other course. That is he had no other course if he continued to burn anthracite. There has come a time however when he isn't obliged to burn anthracite, substitutes have given him an independence. The consumer has balked at the constant raise in price and today he is doing little worrying about the hard coal strike. It bothers him less than such an interruption of coal production has ever done before.

Whether the Pennsylvania legislature is going to get anywhere remains to be seen. Regarded as a session prompted by politics for the benefit of the governor little hope is held out. There are matters in connection with the anthracite industry that Pennsylvania should deal with, and it is interesting to note that bills have been introduced calling for the abolishment of the state tax on anthracite and the removal of the law concerning those who can work in coal mines.

Perhaps Pennsylvania has awakened to its duty but it will require something more than the opening of a special session of the legislature to demonstrate it. It remains to be seen, however, whether Pennsylvania is going to seriously end the deplorable situation.

SEATING NYE

The United States senate is part of our greatest law making body. It is guessed to as the real deliberative branch of congress, where consideration is given to facts and to laws, the house where real sound law making is to be expected. For the same reason it is to be supposed that it would be a body that would govern its action in keeping with existing laws, and yet how unimpressive a showing it makes in connection with the action taken relative to the seating of the new Senator Nye of North Dakota.

According to those who dug deep into the law concerning the situation Senator Nye was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Ladd without Governor Sorlie of North Dakota ever having been vested with the authority to make such an appointment. There is no getting away from the fact that the state legislatures have the right to grant such an authority to a state's chief executive but such has never been done in the state of North Dakota. At least it has not been possible to point to such action being taken.

According to the Constitution provision is made for the filling of vacancies in the United States senate with a proviso that legislatures may empower governors to make temporary appointments. That action is frequently taken, but where it is taken the legislatures have acted. Otherwise the vacancy is filled by a special election.

Governor Sorlie of North Dakota has called a special election for next June but without being empowered by the legislature to do so he has named a temporary senator, and that action has been confirmed by the senate even though it is against the provisions of the Constitution.

It is a case where facts and law have been cast to the wind. Politics is what has governed the selection and once again it is a decision which has been reached by a combination of the democrats and the insurgent group of republicans. It is of course politics before justice and makes a very poor impression concerning decisions in that body.

PROTECTION LACKING

The railroad wreck in Florida is not one to create confidence in transportation in that state. It is fully understood that demands are being made upon the railroads of that country [illegible] and it is due to [illegible] that a double track line [illegible] but the fact remains that the entire business on a single track system. The situation is not entirely the fault of the railroad for not having built double track lines years ago in anticipation of a deluge of business in 1926.

Perhaps it is a fact that under normal conditions the methods employed in operating the railroads there are adequate, and yet it would appear that there is a lack of safety provisions.

One passenger train, an express, had been halted by a signal, and while it was standing the rear brakeman had gone back to protect it. Recalled from that position when the train started it doesn't appear that there was anything to tell the engineer of the limited that was following that his leeway had been reduced. The express was moving but it was not traveling as fast as the limited. The latter was unaware of the fact that he did not have a clear right of way, and upon rounding a curve crashed into the rear end of the express, injuries and deaths followed, as well as a demonstration of the need of those safety devices which that particular system greatly lacks. Overcrowded with business there is the absence of a block system and there has been no automatic control system installed on that railroad. It is too much like a case of hit or miss, and hitting too often and too hard.

Where conditions impose so much business upon railroads it is a good and sufficient reason for the putting forth of all possible efforts in behalf of safety. If that has been the policy in the past it has now been demonstrated that one situation was not thoroughly safeguarded.

USING SOFT COAL

From the time when it was indicated that bituminous coal could be used to the purpose of producing the results that had hitherto been obtained from anthracite there have been those who have maintained that low volatile bitumnous coal as a household fuel is not only a good substitute but it has merits which encourage its use even when anthracite can be had.

Such statements have been taken with a grain of salt in spite of the vast number of people in other parts of the country who are using it regularly. Nevertheless there are those who have used the bituminous coal to the exclusion of all other this winter and a Framingham man writes to the Boston Herald as follows:

"Very reluctantly, but under the compulsion of stern necessity, I undertook to keep the fires (hot air furnace and kitchen range) going by means of a product designated by my dealer 'semi-bituminous.' There were difficulties and some annoyances, but as there were due mainly to unfamiliarity with this species of fuel, we soon learned to avoid them. And now, after a thorough trial of several months, I would not willingly return to the use of anthracite."

That is an expression from experience and supports what others have maintained. Experience in the use of low volatile bituminous for domestic purposes has been small in this part of the country, but the consumer has had a chance, not of his own seeking, to find out what its merits are. The result is that the talk and threats of coal strikes, and the strikes themselves, no longer have terror for the coal consumers. They have found a way to protect themselves and they are employing it.

COASTING ON CITY STREETS

The authorities in New Britain are faced with a problem which prevails in many cities—that of dealing with coasting in the streets.

Up to now it has been dealt with by closing certain streets to traffic and permitting coasting thereon. This has been regarded as the best method of avoiding those accidents which result from the collision of coasters with automobiles or other vehicles, and no doubt it has prevented many serious accidents.

Yet such a means of trying to permit and still safeguard the pleasure is regarded as obliterating the city in case of accidents on such restricted thoroughfares. Likewise there are those who believe that streets are meant for vehicular use and that they should not be otherwise employed.

No one likes to interfere with the pleasure of the children, or even their elders, when it comes to sliding down hill. And yet as a measure of safety and prevention there is no question about the importance of restrictions. If restriction can be regarded as making a community liable, the same may be said concerning toleration without restriction and in even greater degree.

The situation in the streets today is far different from what it was before the automobiles arrived on the scene. It is one that cannot be ignored and it presents a problem that bids fair to be dealt with in accordance with the different conditions which are faced in the various cities. Whatever action is taken there can be no disposition to disregard the importance of safety.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Something to allay your worry. There's only one Friday, the 13th, this year.

Every day of normal winter weather makes the predicted severe spell just that much shorter.

The man on the corner says: January doesn't create the desire to stand on the curbstone most of the day.

Have you stopped to figure that it is only a matter of 17 weeks to the opening of the straw hat season?

The arrival of cargoes of Welch coal shows that we are not dependent entirely upon Pennsylvania for anthracite.

The desire of the coal miners to get back to work does not seem to have been impressed upon their representatives at the coal conference.

The plea of Greece that its debt to the United States be made larger before it agrees to pay what it now owes doesn't make a good impression.

One who has just returned says an attempt is to be made to teach natives of India to chew gum. There are quite a few well qualified to serve as teachers.

A fashion note says skirts are to be shorter. If that's so they'll be little better than wide belts.

THE SALARY BOOST

Pretty little Mrs. Willis giggled as her trim new maid tripped out of the room.

"Jim is evidently enjoying that long needed increase in salary," remarked her mother-in-law, her glance following the maid's footsteps. "How come, my dear?"

Her daughter-in-law laughed again. "'Tis a long, long tale," she whispered confidentially to her husband's mother, "And it happened two weeks ago. You know, mother," she went on, settling herself beside the older woman, "there's really nothing to this apartment. Jim says I always manage it with one hand tied behind me.

"But you know how things happen just when you don't want them to. For three months Jim's been warning me that his boss was coming to dinner some evening, and for goodness' sake, let's give the old man a good time!

"Well, I cleaned everything cleanable and polished everything polishable for days and days so I wouldn't be caught napping when the boss did finally come. And the refrigerator was stocked to the brim. And bake! Say! Every time Jim would call up in the morning and tell me that he'd try to get the boss to come that day I'd bake enough apple pie for a dozen hired men on a million-acre farm. Jim's boss used to live on a farm, you know, and he's wild about apple pie.

"And then along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon Jim would phone that he was awfully sorry but the old man just couldn't come out that evening—"

"Of all things!" gasped Jim's mother. "You shouldn't let Jim act so foolish, Marjorie. Make him make a date and stick to it. It would serve Jim right if his boss came unexpectedly and got nothing at all to eat."

The wife of Jim giggled appreciatively. "That's just what happened, mother. You see, after the first few weeks Jim got in the habit of saying he always read to welcome his boss with open arms and apple pie, so he quit phoning about the old man's visit. And two weeks ago, just when I had decided that we'd never have him for company, he came, unannounced!

"But it wouldn't have been so bad if he had come alone. I had the curtain down and the sewing machine in the middle of the dining room and the house man had just been in and tracked the kitchen floor all up. As for eats! There wasn't a thing.

"Anyway, in they came. Of course, the boss' wife would never have come if she had known they weren't expected, but Jim told her it was all right, and she thought he meant that I knew all about it and was waiting for them."

"That Jim!" commented Jim's mother.

"Oh, it was all right," laughed his wife. "Everything turned out for the best, mother.

"The boss' wife just didn't say a word. She simply eyed me silently. At first I thought there was contempt in her glance, but I found out later that it was pity. And she insisted on our going with them to a restaurant.

"All through the dinner she was cold as ice to her husband, but simply lovely to me. And the next day Jim came home with a nice increase in his salary, and, under the circumstances, I simply had to get a maid, because they're coming again next week. You see, mother, the boss' wife jumped to the conclusion that I was a poor, frail little thing and she told her husband that if he'd give that little bride's husband the salary he deserved, maybe the poor child wouldn't have to kill herself over her housework. How d'you like that?" asked the wife of Jim, triumphantly.

"Three cheers for the boss' wife!" laughed Jim's mother. "She's all right!"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Captain Frank B. Littell, who is in charge of the United States Naval observatory expedition which has traveled more than half way round the world for the purpose of observing today's total eclipse of the sun from the island of Sumatra, has been continuously engaged in astronomical work for nearly 35 years. During this period he has accompanied several expeditions to study solar eclipses and has journeyed abroad to consult with foreign scientists. He joined the staff of the Naval observatory in 1891 and became assistant astronomer in 1898. Twenty-five years ago he made a visit to Sumatra for the observation of a solar eclipse. One of his monumental works is a catalogue of nearly 25,000 stars. Captain Littell is a native of Scranton, Pa., and a graduate of Wesleyan university.

Erastus Corning, an American Promoter

The prosperous city of Corning, New York, where much of the glass that is used in the United States and elsewhere is manufactured, was named after a stalwart American business man, Erastus Corning, whose work brought prosperity to the place. He was among those far-sighted men who realized the advantages that the railroads would bring to the country, and who made their lines of steel stretch far and wide across fertile regions, thus bringing the products of the country to the city without delay. Erastus Corning was a man of power and great wealth. He had a broad vision, a strong imagination and the daring to put his plans into execution. Thus it was he who built the Sault Ste. Marie Canal. No one who knew him in the days of the Civil War, when he was president of the New York Central railroad, a man sturdy and strong at nearly 70, would have thought that this leader could never have been poor. Nevertheless, he built the foundations of his own great power.

Erastus Corning was a remarkably small boy for one of 12 years when he timidly entered a hardware store and got a job. He worked for a long time in a Troy hardware store and learned to "tell a tenpenny nail from a railroad spike," as the proprietor told him to. He learned much else, too. The youngster picked up information about everything in the store. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is Prayer of Any Use?

Mr. Editor:—The question we presume to discuss is not new, but, indeed a very old one, in our sacred books we find it there proposed by Job, in what we regard, as one of the oldest, and is really the first theological discussion of that theme Extant. He presents the question thus—"What is the Almighty that we should serve Him, and what profit shall we have if we pray unto Him?" (Job. 21-15.)

It is to the credit of Job that he gives this old, but now a quite modern question—not as his own, but as representing a class, the voice of which also says unto God, "Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of Thy ways." (ver. 14.) So, also, today it is a question asked by thosew he stand on the negative side, and by those who believe not in a divine superintendance of the universe.

Certainly, if there be no divine Sovereign, a man might as well appeal for deliverance from a machine in which he has been caught and expect it to give heed. It is blessed that the elect do not belong to this class, and that even for this class there is provided a ransom receivable by prayer. It is evident that prayer, therefore, has its basis in the existence of a Divine, independent creative and superintending being; and it is clear, in order to prayer being of use, such a being must either really exist or be assumed to exist.

The modern thought as conceived by some seems to be that the universe, as we behold it, came into, and is sustained in existence by what they call "Natural Laws" (but what are natural laws?) but the observed uniformity of inanimate things we see which have no motive in intelligence? We have no method by which we can account for the "Uniformity."

Let us remember that matter is inert, incapable of setting itself in motion nor of stopping itself when once put in motion—hence it is plain that it is subject, to some ulterior, exterior power. We speak of the laws of light and of gravitation, but what do we know of the causes thatn rodnce refraction, reflection and color, in light, or what binds particles and atoms together in attraction? Just nothing at all. We have no solution for the power that creates, except that which pre-exists in a divine intelligence we call God.

Even if left without a revelation we would have to postulate one of necessity. So the heathen, without the revelation, had to invent "Gods many and lords many."

Admitting a Creator then, it is absurd that we should think he has produced a universe beyond his own control, or that it is out of his power to vary its uniformity for the accomplishment of purposes serving his better will in reference to his animate creation and the intelligent partakers of his divine and loving care.

Even a man's machine would be considered imperfect if not provided with attachments designed to meet the exigencies of accident and repair. On the more low level of mechanics, not to speak of reverent devotion to an all loving merciful parent we are impelled to the conclusion that prayer is available much more when urged by precept, and taught by example, it, surely, becomes not only a duty but a blessed privilege to make our wants known to Him who is able to do exceedingly abundant, even beyond all we can think, or ask.

Mouth Organ From Greeks

Probably the ancestor of the modern mouth organ is the ancient Greek musical instrument known as the syrinx, one of the oldest of all music instruments.

The modern mouth organ dates from 1830, when Christian Messner of Trossingen built his first factory at Wurtemburg. This factory still gives employment to 8,000 persons, 5,000 working at the factory and 3,00 doing piece work at home.—Popular Science Magazine.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Sometimes things happen to be so
By gain is in another's woe.
—Yowler the Bob Cat.

I suspect that more often than not his is so. Anyway, Yowler the Bob Cat always has his eye open and his ears open and his nose working that he may not miss any chance of turning to his own advantage the troubles and misfortunes of others. So it happened that as he was sneaking through the Green Forest early that morning after Jack Frost had put a hard crust over the snow he caught a faint sound that made him pause and prick up his ears. For a moment or two he heard nothing. Then off to one side he heard a faint tap, tap, tap. The cushions of his big feet made no sound as Yowler turned and swiftly stole in that direction.

The noise ceased. Yowler waited, his stub of a tail twitching with eagerness and excitement. There was a gleam of hunger and fierceness in his yellow eyes. Tap, tap, tap. The sound was just a few feet away and, just as he had thought, it was coming from beneath that hard crust. Yowler moved forward until that tapping was directly under him. Tap, tap, tap. It came directly beneath his nose.

Yowler's tail, that stub of a tail twitched faster. His yellow eyes fairly blazed with eagerness. His mouth watered. He guessed what that tapping meant. He guessed that with only the thickness of that icy crust between them was Mrs. Grouse. Noiselessly he backed away a few steps and then crouched with his eyes fixed on the spot whence came that tapping. After a time the tapping ceased. Yowler waited just as long as he could. Then he moved forward and began to claw at that snow. He was trying to dig a hole through that crust. It was then that Mrs. Grouse heard the scratching sound and knew that some one was trying to get at her.

But ice is hard and Yowler didn't try long to scratch a hole through that crust, for he knew that he would soon wear his claws down and that wouldn't do at all, not at all. So after waiting around a while he went off. He would look elsewhere for something to eat.

But Yowler couldn't forget Mrs. Grouse and the fact that she was under the crust a prisoner, Jack Frost's prisoner. The more he thought about Mrs. Grouse the more his mouth watered. There was nothing, nothing at all of which he could think, that would taste quite so good as a meal of Grouse. So every once in a while Yowler would steal back to that place to listen for that tapping and so make sure that Mrs. Grouse was there.

Once he found Reddy Fox listening, his head to one side and his black ears cocked to catch that tap, tap, tap. "Get away!" snarled Yowler. "That Grouse is mine." Reddy grinned as he backed away. "Oh!" said he. "I didn't know she was yours. I suppose you have her under this crust for safe keeping."

Yowler merely snarled and took a few steps toward Reddy. Now Reddy is no match for Yowler and he knows it. He backed away, still grinning.

"It is hard to get anything to eat and I'm very hungry. Won't you save me a leg or a wing?" said he, and grinned more broadly than before.

Yowler merely growled way down in his throat and twitched his stub of a tail. "Well," said Reddy, "if you feel that way about it there is nothing more to be said. I hope you will enjoy that meal. Don't allow me to interfere."

With this Reddy chuckled right out and turning trotted away. He knew that he hadn't a chance to catch Mrs. Grouse and he shrewdly suspected that Yowler hadn't either. And when he chanced to catch a glimpse of a quiet figure standing in a clump of evergreens he was sure of it.

Bleeding Piles Cured

Kansas City, Mo., 1824 Madison Ave.,
E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

Mr. Dear Friends:—I received your kind favor. One week ago yesterday I was in bed helpless. Today I have cleaned my four rooms, cared for my children and feel fine. I am taking your treatment regularly and feel sure I would have been dead if I hadn't gotten some relief. I was bleeding to death and Oh! the agony. I cannot find words to express my thanks to you. I am feeling fine and do not know I ever had any piles. I remain,
A sincere friend, MRS. M. L. BUCKNER.

Man Cured After 30 Years

Danville, Va.
R. R. No. 3, Box 151

Mr. E. R. Page.

Dear Sir:—I will write you a few lines to let you know that I am well of the piles. I am sure they are never coming back. I feel O. K. now. I had the piles for over 30 years. Since I took your treatment and freed myself from them I have gained 30 pounds so you can see I am benefited very much. I recommend your remedy to all who suffer from piles.
Very respectfully, E. ELMORE.

Calls It a Sure Cure

R. No. 2, Box 24,
Algoma, Wisc.

Marshall, Mich.

With pleasure I wish to let you know that I have been suffering with Piles for 13 years, have been using all kinds of salves, but found no relief, so have used one Large and Small Size Treatment received last Spring and now I find myself cured. Thanks very much. I shall recommend your treatment to any sufferer of piles as it is a sure cure.

Yours truly, LOUIS BATHKE.

Cured of Protruding Piles

Forest City, Pa., Box 102

Mr. E. R. Page,

Dear Sir:—I have had no trouble since taking your treatment. Am as well as I ever was in that respect in fact your treatment accomplished wonders for me. I suffered with protruding piles for 35 years and one of your small treatments was all that I needed to make me well. I am only too glad to let you publish my name if it will be of help to some poor sufferer.
Respectfully yours, CURTIS C. OLIVER.

Had 3 Operations for Fistula

Marianna, Fla., R. C. Box 148

Mr. E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

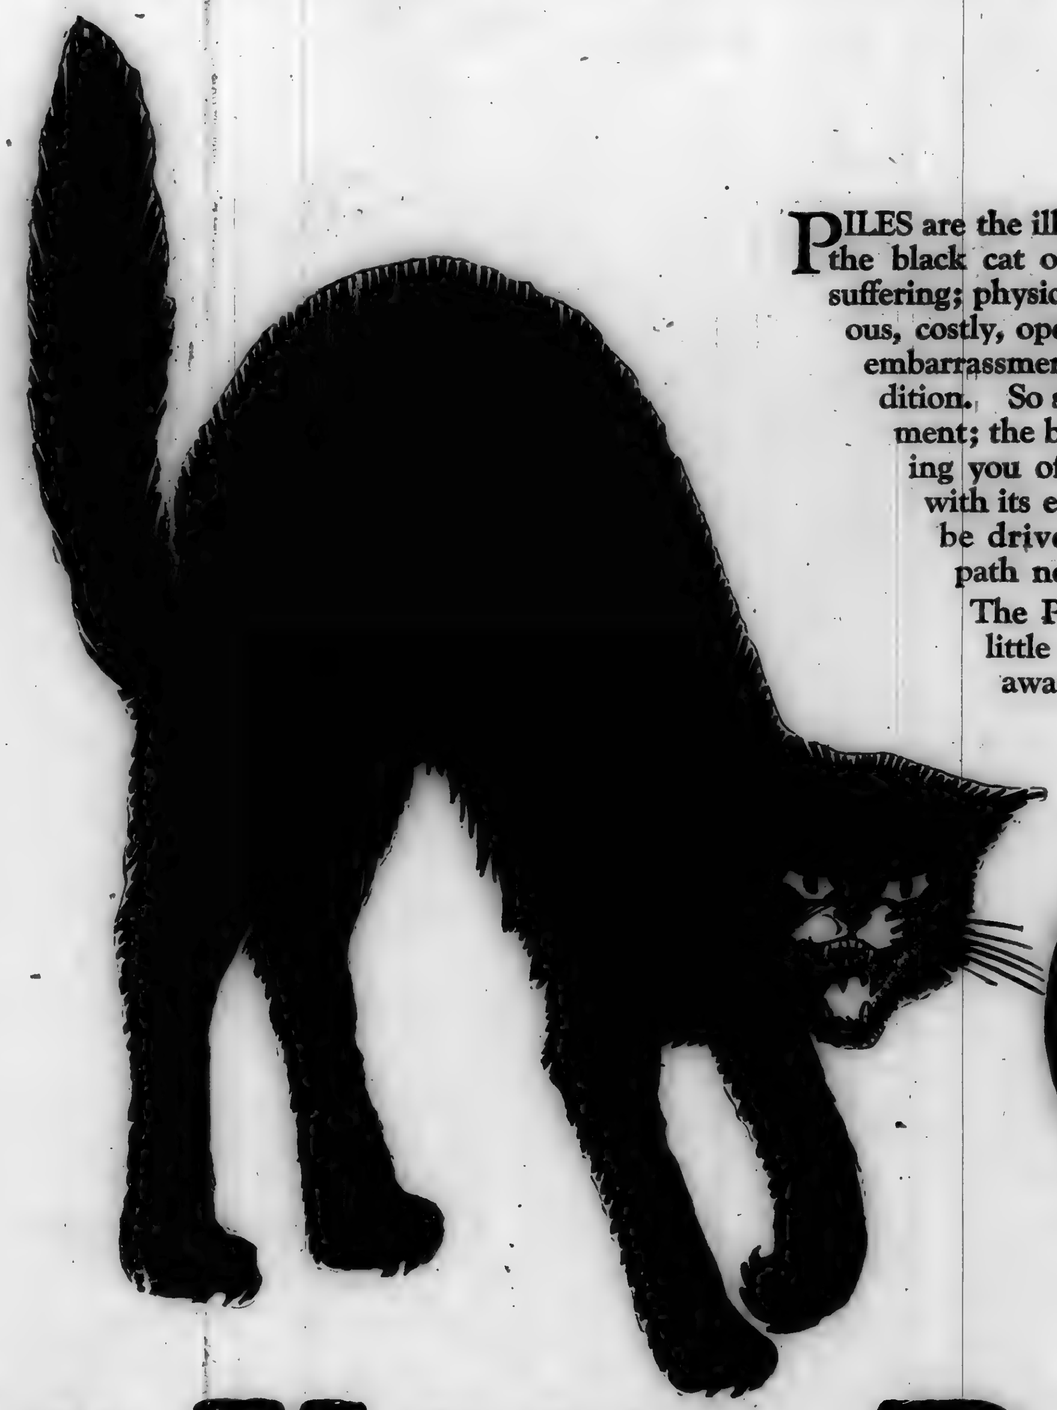
Dear Sir:—Before I tried your Pile Treatment, I had three operations for fistula which were of no use. Now thanks to you and your cure I have every reason to believe that my piles and fistula are cured. I have been troubled for a number of years with piles and fistula, but have not felt any pain for sometime. I have recommended your Pile Treatment to people in Marianna and expect you will hear from them. Thanking you, I remain
Very truly yours, F. T. Dickens.

"I Am Glad I Sent For Treatment"

Nampa, Idaho,
R. R. No. 2

Dear Mr. Page:

I am still well and would be glad to help others if I could. I think your treatment is the finest for piles and I am entirely cured of them. I am glad I sent for your treatment and the package seemed to be all I needed to make me well. I will always be glad to recommend your cure.
MRS. J. M. SWIGGART.



PILES are the ill-omen of bad health. They are the black cat of misery, forecasting continual suffering; physical breakdown; painful, dangerous, costly, operations; loss of time; constant embarrassment and a strained nervous condition. So stop your piles by internal treatment; the black cat of pile suffering, warning you of added physical grief to come, with its expense and torturous pain, can be driven away. It need cross your path no more.

The Page Internal Treatment—the little tablets—will chase your piles away.

STOP YOUR PILES

BY INTERNAL TREATMENT

Have Salves or Ointments Ever CURED Your Piles?

TREAT FROM THE INSIDE AND YOUR SUFFERING ENDS

[A Tablet Occasionally and They Disappear]

PILES can not be kept a secret—nor can you conceal their evil effects. They reveal themselves in your every action; in your features; in your humor and in your general health.

If you are gambling with piles—taking temporary relief from salves and ointments—you will lose. Piles indicate an internal disorder; they warn you of "something wrong" inside. By treating the piles from the outside, you do nothing to correct the internal trouble. You may relieve the suffering—YES—but the cause is still present. To heal piles you must treat internally. Heal the disorder and the piles will disappear.

Even the healthiest person may have the piles; but they won't be healthy long. They do not have to keep them.

They can be healed. Internal treatment by use of a few tablets heals the piles; it ends suffering at once; the piles disappear. Science has developed the modern pile remedy; the internal treatment. The trouble inside must be corrected before the piles, which are the outside manifestation, leave forever.

Thousands Have Been Cured

Thousands of people, many of whom were chronic pile sufferers have written telling of their complete cure by the new internal method. Your case is no doubt similar to some of these. If it has cured them—it can cure you.

We know what this new treatment has accomplished in the past; our offices contain thousands of letters telling of pile cures. We are anxious that you give this treatment a test. To prove the worth of the method; to show our good faith; to demonstrate the effectiveness of this internal system of treatment; a test package will be sent you absolutely free. It will give you almost instant relief. In this manner you can assure yourself of its worth at no expense to you.

If you have piles, with their pain, dangers, embarrassments and loss of time, health, money and freedom wouldn't you do anything to be rid of them?

Test Package Free

Would you mail the coupon if you knew relief was in sight? We will let you test the treatment; use a test package free—at no cost whatever. See its effect on your case.

The Page Method is the logical treatment; first the tablets—gently they wage their war against your disorder. To relieve you until the tablets have a chance to do their work, a pleasing ointment is included and then the bowel regulator; that completes the Page internal treatment.

These are the things we are trying to give you—not a quantity of each—NO—but enough to give the Page Method a fair trial. It has helped thousands, so why won't it help you. Remember it is at no cost to you, whether it helps or fails. We are just allowing you to test its worth in your particular case.

Can you afford to gamble with such a serious thing as piles? An operation is feared by everyone—its effects are uncertain and the cure always in doubt. But if you heal the cause, if you remove the disorder; the piles leave and you are well once more.

Cured by Tablets

Just a few "easy to take" tablets and your piles disappear. No dangerous, uncertain operation, no pain, no delay from work; just the tablets occasionally and the piles leave.

Can you afford to pass it up? Relief and the end of your suffering is in sight. Remember—if you are gambling with piles—you will lose.

Mail the coupon today for the test package—a trial packet sent at absolutely no cost to you, now or ever. It is free; to test our method.

Have you been cured by ointments, salves or local applications?

Are you willing to submit to a painful, expensive, dangerous operation?

Then before you go further; before the piles become chronic, try the new scientific internal treatment that removes the cause and heals your piles.

Free Test Package to Prove Our Claims!

A trial packet of the Page Treatment will be sent you at no cost whatever to prove the method's worth; show our good faith and to demonstrate its effectiveness.

CARPENTIER ARRIVES IN NEW YORK READY TO FIGHT IF HE GETS BOUTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Georges Carpentier, "orchid man" of France, arrived today on another pugilistic mission to the United States but this time it is not entirely on his own account.

"Fight?" he repeated. "Most assuredly, if the opportunity is good, but you should see this Paolino of Spain if you wish to see a fighter."

Carpentier thus epitomized the main purpose of his visit. Now 32—he celebrated his birthday yesterday—and admittedly past his fistic prime, the "gorgeous one" is not particularly anxious for a strenuous program on his account, though he considers himself in good trim and "would like, Monsieur a shot at Paul Berlenbach or Young Stribling."

But Paolino! That is another matter and Georges, with an expressive gesture, mildly asserted the Spaniard is the "greatest heavyweight in the game today," ready now to take on either Gene Tunney or Harry Wills and anxious to prove his right for a match with Jack Dempsey.

Carpentier is here chiefly as advance man for Paolino, who is due in New York in February with his manager, Francois Descamps, and other boxers in the Descamps' stable.

Paolino, according to Carpentier, requires no "build-up" to prove his ability, the 200-pound Spaniard, he says, has been the sensation of European heavyweight ranks and packs a "terrible left." Georges became convinced of the power in Paolino's punches from first hand experience in a gymnasium workout in Paris.

Carpentier will consider offers from Tex Rickard, as well as promoters in Newark, N. J., and California for bouts during his stay here. Rickard has proposed Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., light heavyweight, as an opponent but Georges confesses himself a bit shy of Delaney's right. He would prefer Berlenbach or Stribling. After two weeks here he will visit California, not with any bouts in view, but willing to listen to any reasonable offer to fight in the ring or before the movie camera.

"Dempsey? Ah, he is still a great champion. He would crucify Harry Wills, I think, but," added Georges, reverting to his favorite topic, "he must fear our Paolino."

OBERLANDER ASKED TO COACH AT OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Andy "Swede" Oberlander, Dartmouth star backfield man and all-American selection this year has been invited to become assistant football coach at Ohio State University, if Oberlander accepts, he would come here next summer.

Officials said they believed Oberlander would take the position.

His acceptance, athletic officials said, would not endanger his amateur standing until after his graduation next June.

The offer, officials said, was the first step in the reorganization of the Ohio State football coaching staff.

In addition to his coaching duties Oberlander also would fill an instructor's position on the Ohio State faculty. What subjects he will teach has not been made known.

Oberlander Accepts

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Andrew J. "Swede" Oberlander, of Everett, Mass., outstanding back on this year's championship Dartmouth football team, tonight accepted an offer to become assistant football coach at Ohio State university under Dr. J. W. Wilce.

THUNBERG IN SPECIAL RACE AT GARDEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Clas Thunberg of Finland, world's amateur speed skating champion, Charles Gorman of St. John's N. B., Canadian champion, and Joe Moore of New York, international indoor champion, will comprise the field in the three mile international special, the feature event of the metropolitan indoor skating championships at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Thunberg, the "Nurmi of the ice," makes his American competitive debut at this meet against two of the best amateur skaters on this continent. The Finnish flash romped away with the skating laurels in the 1924 Olympics but this is his first test on indoor rinks and under racing conditions prevailing in this country and Canada.

Nineteen events will compose tomorrow's program but the Finn will limit his activity to the special race. Metropolitan championship events for both men and women are included in the schedule.

JEWETT CITY PROS EVEN UP SERIES WITH BALTIC

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13—The Jewett City Pros evened up the series with the Baltic five here tonight by defeating the visitors 28 to 20 in a hard and fast game, the fast floorwork and accurate shooting of Benjamin, Normandin and Joe Faber were the main reasons for Jewett City's victory. The locals took the lead early in the game and held it throughout the entire contest. The score at half time was 12 to 10 in favor of the home team. For Baltic, W. Robertaille and Gauthier shared the scoring honors with three baskets each.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies defeated the Jewett City Seconds 18 to 12 in a fast encounter. Next week the Pros will play the Cheney Bros. team of South Manchester. The summary:

BARBER-DUGAS BOWLING MATCH IS NOT TO BE

The time in which Chip Dugas was given to post his money for a match with Frankie Barber, of Danielson, expired at midnight Wednesday, and Frankie Barber says that he is through with the thing for all time. Dugas simply ignored the money of Barber although for some time previous he had been clamoring for a match. Mr. Barber said Wednesday evening that from now on he and Dugas were all through and that Dugas would have to go out and get a reputation before Barber would even think of rolling him.

Barber would now like to arrange a match with any bowler in eastern Connecticut.

WINDHAM NOSES OUT KILLINGLY BY 1 BASKET

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—Windham High of Willimantic won one of the fastest contests seen on this court here tonight from Killingly high by a lone basket the final count being 24 to 22. Both teams started off at a fast pace and the first quarter ended with the score tied at 5 all. In the next quarter Brennan of Killingly caged four from the foul line and the whistle at half time found Killingly leading 17 to 11.

Windham closed up on Killingly in the third quarter and the quarter ended with Killingly leading 19 to 16. In the final quarter Windham forged ahead and held the lead until Capt. Conklin of Killingly tied the score at 22 each with a foul shot. In the last few minutes both teams displayed great defensive ability and a number of long shots were missed by each team. In the last few seconds of the contest E. Nichols of Windham found an opening which he used to good advantage. He shot and made the basket which decided the contest the ball being in midair when the final whistle sounded.

For Killingly Conklin starred making a total of ten points including two pretty shots from past the center of the floor. Heller and E. Nichols shared scoring honors for Windham.

In the preliminary game the Danielson grammar school five won from the Killingly freshmen five 20 to 8. The summary:

NO DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS CHOSEN AT HARTFORD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 13—(AP)—Appointment of a director of athletics at Harvard will be made as soon as a suitable man can be found, the president and fellows (known as the corporation) announced today. The director will be chairman of the committee on the regulation of athletic sports and as such a member of the faculty of arts and sciences.

The Associated Harvard clubs, a year ago last May, appointed a committee to study the athletic situation at Harvard. The committee suggested the establishment of a director of athletics.

A year ago the late Percy D. Haughton, former head football coach here, was suggested for such a position, but his death last fall caused interest in the proposal to flag.

"Y" SENIORS TOO TOUGH FOR BATTERY QUINTET

Forty minutes of lively tussling, interspersed with some snappy passwork and clean shots, resulted in the Y. M. C. A. Seniors capturing their game against the Battery E quintet on the Y floor last night the score being 43 to 25.

The chief cagers of the evening proved to be Adnopoz, Pineault and Brauman and Finlayson, each making some pretty shots from various parts of the floor.

Brennan and Blinderman, newcomers on the Y team, showed up well in their first game, and will probably find a place on the regulars from now on. The summary:

SHARKEY MEETS GATES AT HARTFORD MONDAY

Local boxing fans are saving Monday night on their schedule to go to Hartford to see Jack Sharkey of Boston and Leo Gates of New York in the ten round main bout on the Atlas A. C. card at the Broad street armory. These boys are heavyweights and Sharkey is one of the best in the game in New England.

Other bouts on the card are Clem Johnson and Big Jim Stone, a colored heavy from Montreal in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Frank Senk of Springfield meets Frankie O'Brien in the second semi-final of eight rounds at 138 pounds. The six round preliminary brings together Jack Harner of St. Louis and Young Emmons of Waterbury at 141 pounds.

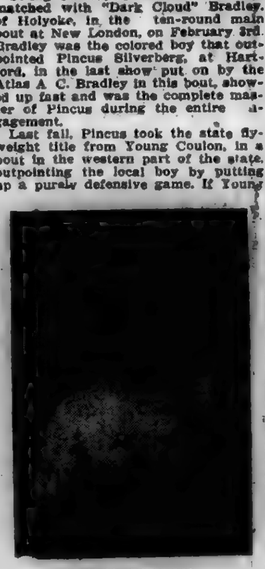
Bradley was the colored boy that outpointed Pincus Silverberg, at Hartford, in the last show put on by the Atlas A. C. Bradley in this bout, showed up fast and was the complete master of Pincus during the entire engagement.

Last fall, Pincus took the state flyweight title from Young Coulon, in a bout in the western part of the state, outpointing the local boy by putting up a purely defensive game. If Young



YOUNG COULON

Coulon gets the verdict over Dark Cloud at New London next month, he will get a return bout with Pincus in the near future. Coulon is to box in Madison Square Garden, some time during the next few weeks if negotiations which are under way, go through. Denny McMahon, manager of Young Coulon, is endeavoring to match the local boy with some fast flyweight of the Metropolitan district.

Young Coulon stands ready to meet Young DeForest, of Danielson, anytime that a bout between these two can be fixed up.

Y. M. H. A. JUNIORS BEAT TAFTVILLE EAGLES EASILY

The Y. M. H. A. Juniors won their fourth consecutive victory Wednesday evening when they defeated the Taftville Eagles 55 to 25 at the Y. M. H. A. court. The visitors although they fought hard were outclassed by the more experienced Junior players. Henschel and Charron starred for the victors while Pepin and Phaneuf were the mainstays of the Eagles' attack. The summary:

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 13—(AP)—G. E. Van Cott, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was elected captain of the freshman basketball team of Wesleyan university today.

U. S. GOLF ASSOCIATION SELECTS TEAM TO DEFEND THE WALKER TROPHY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The executive committee of the United States Golfer Ass'n today announced selection of eight outstanding amateur players, including the national champion, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga., and his youthful rival from the same city, Watts Gunn, to invade England next June in defense of the Walker cup, international team trophy held by this country since 1922.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago again has been chosen to captain the American players. Other members of the team will be Francis Ouimet of Boston, George von Elm of Los Angeles, Jesse P. Guilford of Boston, Jess W. Sweetser of New York and Roland Mackenzie of Washington, D. C.

In the event of withdrawals, substitutions will be made from the following five alternates: Max R. Marston and D. Clark Corkran of Philadelphia, George Rotan of Houston, Tex., H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., and Harrison R. Johnston of St. Paul.

The selection of Gardner as captain places at the head of the invading team the amateur champion of 1903 and 1915 and a player who has represented America in all three contests staged so far for the Walker cup. Of the six matches he has played in cup competition, Gardner has suffered defeat only once.

Jones, Ouimet and Sweetser also are veterans of former cup series, but Gunn, Mackenzie and Von Elm are named for the first time. All flashed brilliant golf last year, Mackenzie leading the qualifiers in the amateur championship, Gunn reaching the final round against Jones, and von Elm having been finalist with Jones in 1924.

The dropping of Marston's name from the regular team follows a failing off in his play last season.

The international matches are scheduled at St. Andrews on June 2 and 3. Captain Gardner will leave the first week in May with the team, which also expects to participate in the British Amateur title and St. George vase tournaments in addition to the cup event.

The Walker cup, placed in competition in 1922 by George H. Walker, of St. Louis, was won that year by American players, and was later successfully defended in England in 1923 and here in 1924. No matches were played last year.

NUTMEGS TO PLAY PONEMAH WHEEL FIVE

Friday evening at the Armory the Nutmegs five will clash with the fast Ponemah Wheel club quintet of Taftville in what should be one of the hardest fought seen in this section in many a moon. The Wheel club team comes to the Armory with a good reputation and with a hard week's drilling should be in first class shape for the fray.

The Nutmegs will pick their team from the following men who have distinguished themselves on the court so far this season: Capt. Ellie Segal, Brauman, Berberich, Bergeron, J. Burns, Couture, Carden, Goodrow and Prodell. These men have carried the Nutmeg colors through to five victories in six starts, losing only to the Nordics but one of the above men was in the lineup. However, the Nordics were defeated last Friday in Norwich.

For the Taftville club Friday evening the following should appear: Lamareaux, P. Finniski, S. Finniski, Lemieux and Smith. However no definite lineup has been given out by the visitors.

The Nutmegs would like to arrange a game or games with the Taftville Celtics through Mgr. Raymond to decide the town or any other championship that may come up. But the local team fails to see how the Celtics can lay any claim to a Norwich city championship as the majority if not all of the members are non-residents of the city while all of the Nutmeg players live in the city proper. Answer through this paper.

Collegiate Track Meet

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—The fifth national collegiate track and field meet under the auspices of the University of Chicago will be held here June 12. Athletes representing 51 schools participated last year, and two world's records were established, in the 120 yard high hurdles and the broad jump.

C. F. C. FIVE PROVES TOO STRONG FOR THE NORDICS

Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. the local C. F. C.'s basketball team ran over the Taftville Nordics to the tune of 36-14. The first half was slow, both teams taking their time. The winners were ahead when the whistle blew ending half the game by 14-9. But they came back with a determinator, to do something and in the next quarter piled up fifteen points to the Nordics lone tally.

"General" Jackson playing his first game for the C. F. C. quintet showed up well, being both fast and shifty. Owing to the fact that the Nordics had never before played amateur rules they were badly handicaped. The summary:

Indoor League Standing

With the Stars defeat of the Tigers at 9.30 Monday evening the final Norwich indoor league standing follows:

	W	L	Pct.
Battery B	4	2	.666
Stars	4	2	.666
Nutmegs	2	3	.400
Tigers	1	4	.200

The Stars and Battery B indoor baseball teams may play off the tie now existing although nothing definite is known at the present time. Such a series would undoubtedly arouse much enthusiasm as rivalry between these two is at a high pitch.

MAE MURRAY and JOHN GILBERT in a scene from THE MERRY WIDOW
NOW PLAYING AT THE BREED THEATRE

When you entertain at home—and the sumptuous feast has been greeted with royal praise by the laughing, pledging friends —have a Camel!

WHEN invited guests come in for dinner. And the festive board resounds with joyous words of friendship. When the primest feast ever served is finished—then, how welcome are those words of hospitality—"Have a Camel!"

For no other cigarette was ever so fitly smoked and served to others as Camel. Camel goodness insures a fitting climax to every perfect spread, adds of its own fragrant welcome to every home's bright occasions. Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown in all the world. They never tire the taste, never leave a cigaretty after-taste. Fragrance and mellowness have made Camel the greatest word in all the history of smoking.

So this night, as you learn anew the joys of giving happiness to others. As after-dinner laughter rings out through all the house—know then the pleasures of smoking and serving the finest. You may be doubly sure that every good feature is rolled into Camels that anyone ever searched for in a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

Into the making of this one cigarette goes all of the ability of the world's largest organization of expert tobacco men. Nothing is too good for Camels. The choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The most skilful blending. The most scientific package. No other cigarette made is like Camels. No finer cigarette can be made. Camels are the overwhelming choice of experienced smokers.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

ACHING JOINTS, RHEUMATIC PAIN

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area whether in knees, feet, legs, hands, shoulders, back, neck or body. Instantly you feel this harmless, vigorous penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of any aching or swollen joint, muscle or pain-ridden nerve. Besides, "Heet" relieves the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid. Cannot stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

SIMPLE MIXTURE MAKES STOMACH FEEL FINE

Buckthorn bark, glycerine, saxola in Adlerika, helps stomach in TEN minutes by removing GAS. Brings out a surprising amount of old waste matter you never thought was in your system. Relieves that full, bloated feeling and makes you happy and cheerful. Excellent for chronic constipation. Adlerika works QUICK and delightfully easy. FUNDS INCREASE IN NURSES' ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Nurses' Alumnae Association of the W. W. Backus hospital training school was held at the new nurses' residence at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Reports of the officers were given, the treasurer's report showing that the fund for the sick nurses had been increased during the year by food and remittance gifts, so that at present it amounts to $921.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Perry Raymond; first vice president, Miss Elizabeth Sullivan; second vice president, Mrs. L. W. Ryan; recording secretary, Mrs. Harrison Greer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elmer Flynn; treasurer, Frances Belanger.

A very interesting paper was read on Group Nursing, a subject which is occupying the attention of the nursing profession and hospital authorities today, and aims to give skilled nursing care to patients of moderate means, while safeguarding the interests of the nurse and hospital. Delicious refreshments were served after which a social hour was enjoyed.

The demand for taffetas in the silk trade has increased notably during the past few weeks and merchants who had these goods in stock experienced something very much like a "run" on their supplies.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the W. W. Backus Hospital, Norwich, Conn., is now registering applicants for the February classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and nine months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have had year of high school work. Students have the advantage of a new residence for nurses where every comfort and convenience is afforded them. For number of information address Supt. of the Training School.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Schneider

The death of Anna K. Rogler, 3d, wife of the late John Schneider, of 22 Rock street, occurred Wednesday morning at 2 o'clock in this city following an illness of several months. She was born in Wunsiedel, Bavaria, Germany, Aug. 13, 1866, the daughter of Christian and Rosina Rogler and came to this country when a young girl. For a number of years she made her home in Brooklyn, her marriage taking place in that city to John Schneider in June, 1884. With her husband she came to this city three years ago, where she has since made her home. Mr. Schneider's death occurred in this city last June.

She is survived by a brother, John B. Rogler, a sister, Mrs. Valentine Reich and a niece, Miss Anna R. Rogler, all of this city. She was a member of the German Lutheran church.

Mrs. George A. Mills

The death of Mrs. Anna Porter Mills, widow of George A. Mills, occurred Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock after an illness of several months from a complication of diseases, at the home of Miss Emily Watrous at Leonard's Bridge, Lebanon, where she has been most tenderly cared for during her illness. Mrs. Mills was born Feb. 8, 1850 in Willimantic, the daughter of Hannah N. Cobb and Austin Porter. Except for a brief time spent in New York city her early life was spent in various sections of this state. In Norwich on May 23, 1872 she was united in marriage with George A. Mills whose death occurred about five years ago. After their marriage they resided in Norwich for a few years after which they moved to Lebanon where she has since resided.

Mrs. Mills was of a kind and jovial disposition and won for herself a large circle of friends. She was always interested in the social activities of the community so long as her health permitted. She was a member of Exeter Liberty Hill church. Mrs. Mills is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James A. Thomas of Goshen and Mrs. Olive Baldwin of New Haven, and two granddaughters, Mrs. Reginald Taylor of Lebanon and Miss Olive Cox of Goshen also two grandsons, Frank King and Charles Cox of Lebanon.

Mrs. Ellen Donohue.

Mrs. Ellen Donohue of 377 Washington street passed away Wednesday morning after an illness of eight weeks. Mrs. Donohue was born in the County Roscommon, Ireland, coming to the United States in 1863 and the greater portion of her life was spent in Norwich. She was married in Moosup, Conn., by the Rev. James Quinn to Thomas Donohue, who passed away twenty-five years ago. She is survived by the following children: Francis D. Donohue, real estate agent, Dr. James J. Donohue, compensation commissioner; Mrs. Joseph P. Moylan and Miss Nellie T. Donohue. Mrs. Donohue was a faithful attendant of the Sacred Heart church. She is the last of her immediate family.

Charles H. Peale

Charles H. Peale, eldest son of the late Charles S. Peale and Eliza Davidson, died Tuesday at the Lynn hospital, Lynn, Mass. He was born in Norwich, Dec. 1848, and married Belle Couch, of Hartford, who died six years ago in Lynn. Mr. Peale moved to Michigan while a young man and as architectural contractor, planned and built the dormitory of Michigan Agricultural college in 1872. He moved to Tennessee a few years later, where he carried on his work. The last thirty-five years he has resided in Lynn, Mass., and was employed by the Lynn Electrical Co., of the United Shoe factories. He retired three years ago. As a young man he joined the First Baptist church of Norwich.

Two sisters survive him, Mrs. L. A. Hurlbutt and Mrs. Charles S. Burke, both of Norwich, and five children, Ernest R. Peale, of Haydenhill, Mass. Mrs. Nelson B. Todd, of Lynnfield, Mass.; Mrs. George B. Alley, East Lyme; Earl Peale, of Lynn, and Robert N. Peale, of Beverly, Mass. There are also seven grandchildren.

TIME OF HIS LIFE FOR UNCLE JOE SHIPPEE

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 13—Uncle Joe Shippee was tonight accorded one of the most elaborate receptions tended any man in the town of Plainfield, in the history of the town. The master of old-time dance music, champion of New England, Uncle Joe, is the most esteemed person in the town of Plainfield today. He was escorted from his home on Pleasant street, by the Plainfield band and a multitude of his friends to the Plainfield Community house where he played for the last time before leaving on a vaudeville tour on the B. F. Keith circuit.

In front of the band were numerous townspeople waving red torches. Amid cheers of hundreds of people from all the surrounding towns and Plainfield, the parade marched to the Community house. The band lined up in the lobby and played the Connecticut march as Uncle Joe made his way to the stage where he was greeted by the committee. A loud uproar went through the hall, as Uncle Joe proceeded to his seat on the stage. The grand march led by Charles Heap and Miss Joan Kirby, started at 8:30. At 9 o'clock there were 1,000 persons in the hall and they were still coming strong. It was almost an impossibility to dance as the floor was crowded with spectators. Nearly every old-timer, for miles around, attended and danced to the strain from Uncle Joe's fiddle. After every dance there was tremendous applause from the dancers. The prompting was done by three professionals Messrs. Coffey, of Brooklyn, Frink, of Ekonk, and Cussick, of Tafts Station.

During intermission Benjamin Dawson, cashier of the local bank, presented in behalf of the Plainfield Community association, $100 in gold, to Mr. Shippee. Uncle Joe was plainly overcome with gratitude and was unable to make any response. He wishes the press to say he thanks the people of Plainfield, his friends and those responsible for the reception from the bottom of his heart.

Mr. Dawson also read a telegram from Henry Ford saying he was sorry but he was unable to attend the reception on account of urgent business at home.

The committee in charge was Louis LaMotte, chairman; Edward King, Miss Theresa Sullivan, Clifford Struthers and George Wilson on refreshments. A beautiful accordion solo was rendered after the dance by John T. Mitchell, of Providence.

Police Raid Unsuccessful.

Eight policemen, some of them in disguise, made a raid Tuesday night on a place in Railroad avenue in a search for liquor law violators, but without success.

A correspondent comments on the activity of Mrs. Emily Gillette, of Dayville, who passed the century mark New Year's day. Mrs. Gillette was born Jan. 1, 1826. She was able to sit in her chair at the window most of her natal day. She received a few callers and many greetings from friends.

BERKER IS FOUND GUILTY ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE; BAIL IS RAISED TO $25,000; MAY APPEAL

Gabriel C. Berker, 35, formerly head of the stock brokerage firm of G. C. Berker & Co., was found guilty by a jury in the superior court here late Wednesday afternoon, on the charge of embezzlement in abetting, counselling and commanding George A. Finn, treasurer of the Bankers' Trust Co. in embezzling the sum of $40,934.69, on Sept. 15, 1924.

The jury brought in its verdict at 6:20, after being out about 40 minutes and reporting through Foreman Charles W. Dow.

Berker has been under bonds of $20,000 since he gave himself up on Jan. 23, 1926, but immediately after the verdict had been returned, Judge Allyn L. Brown, who presided at the trial, raised the bonds to $25,000 in default of which Berker was taken to the Norwich jail.

Sentence was deferred until this (Thursday) morning.

May Take Appeal

Berker's counsel, Attorneys Earl Mathewson and Thomas M. Shields, stated Wednesday night, that they would decide in the morning, whether to take an appeal.

Berker's trial and conviction came on his 35th birthday.

After an all-day trial, the arguments were reached at 3:40 in the afternoon, when State Attorney Arthur M. Brown made the opening argument for the prosecution, speaking for 15 minutes. He was followed by Attorney Mathewson, for the accused man, who spoke five minutes, and was followed by Attorney Shields, who addressed the court and jury for 50 minutes. State Attorney Brown occupied 20 minutes in the closing argument for the prosecution, and Judge Brown sent the jury to its room after his charge, which occupied 25 minutes.

Opening The Case

When the trial opened at about 11 in the morning, the court room was filled with spectators, a condition that continued all day. A jury was chosen without difficulty, consisting of: Charles W. Dow, Norwich; Walter R. McClimon, Willis H. Spicer, Preston; Frank C. Perkins, Lebanon; Ellsworth C. Gray, North Stonington; William Kilroy, Bozrah; Henry E. Holden, Franklin; Curtis L. Hazen, Sprague; Frank A. Mell, Lisbon; Floyd L. Fletcher, Thomas A. Day, Salem, and William Jarvis, Voluntown.

In opening the case for the prosecution, State Attorney Brown introduced certified copies of certificate of authority of the Bankers' Trust Co., and the minutes of the meeting showing the election of officers for the year 1924, showing George A. Finn as treasurer.

Finn, who had been brought here to testify, from Wethersfield, where he is serving sentence of from 5 to 9 years for embezzlement from the Bankers' Trust Co., was the first witness called to the stand.

He was calm and collected on the stand and smiled at times in the course of his testimony.

In response to a question from State Attorney Brown, he said he was now living in the state prison at Wethersfield, to which he was committed a year ago, on the charge of embezzlement from the Bankers' Trust Co., of which he was treasurer from 1921 to October, 1924.

He said he knew Berker, first becoming acquainted with him in 1923 when Berker was manager of Pappas & Co., a brokerage office, that subsequently failed. Berker had opened his own office before the Pappas failure.

The witness said he did business with Berker, through buying and selling stocks. This business began in 1924 and continued till Finn's arrest early in October, 1924. The Berker office was under the name of Gabriel C. Berker & Co. Finn said he bought stocks from Berker on a margin and did approximately a total of $75,000 in business with Berker. A proposition was made to him by Berker, the witness said, Berker to buy the stocks and Finn to put up the money, and they were to share the profits 50-50.

Finn said he took the money illegally from the bank and told Berker he was taking the money by misappropriating the bank funds. This began soon after the 50-50 proposition. Touching upon the embezzlement named in the complaint, Finn said he took out one of the bank customer's deposit slips in order to get the account out of the ledger and he credited the Berker company account with $14,000. The rest of the amount was used to take care of cash items advanced to Berker before Sept. 15, and there was a balance of $3,000 to $4,000 for which Finn said he made out a deposit slip and kept it.

About a week or ten days before Sept. 15, the witness said that Berker told him about a coalfields consolidation in Kentucky for which he would need to make an overdraft of $14,000, which would be the final overdraft.

Berker asked Finn to take care of it, Finn said his answer was that he could only do it "in the usual way" by misappropriating the bank's funds. Berker's reply was: "Go ahead, do it. I will have the money back before it has a chance to cool off."

Finn testified that he had a talk with Berker in the Bankers' Trust Co., when he told him he wanted him to put the money back, but instead Berker continued drawing. The witness said he had several letters from Berker but kept in touch mostly with his chief clerk.

Letter Is Introduced

Over the objection of counsel for Berker, an undated letter from Berker to Finn written on stationary of a Cincinnati hotel, was introduced by State Attorney Brown. It read as follows:

Dear George:

Have a few minutes before a directors' meeting. Have been running all over the south. Everything going fine. The engineers say they will O. K. Allen's report in every respect and probably add to it too.

I wish you would help just a short time more to hold things together. I know it's been tough on you. It's been tough for me. But the remuneration to be received will make us both forget the tough part of it. That's gospel truth and the first of Nov. will see us grinning. Please stand by.

GABE.

Finn Under Cross-examination

Attorney Shields took Finn in hand for a searching cross-examination. In reply to questions the witness said his total embezzlements were approximately $140,000, of which from $3,000 to $4,000 was before January, 1924, with which Berker had nothing to do. When Berker told of the coalfields proposition, it looked sound and he said he needed accommodation, but there was no arrangements for Berker to overdraw up to $50,000, the witness said. From July on the Berker account was constantly overdrawn, but the directors didn't know of this.

The attorney produced a sheet showing the bank account of the Berker Co., and said it showed a balance of $338 on Sept. 15, after the credit of $14,000. Finn said that Berker's subsequent overdrafts ran up to $36,000 or $37,000. He didn't know whether the $14,000 was entered in the passbook.

Tied Hand And Foot

Asked why he continued to honor Berker's drafts, Finn answered: "I had to keep honoring his checks. He had me tied hand and foot. I couldn't do anything."

At another point in his testimony he said: "He had me tied hand and foot. I would have jumped off the Brooklyn bridge if he had told me."

"I kept after him to make his overdrafts good. I received any number of promises from him that were never made good."

Asked if Berker gave him anything, Finn said: "No", but Berker had once offered him a Packard sedan. "I refused it in front of his office help. I wasn't interested in what I was going to get. I wanted to get the bank right."

Just before paying one of Berker's checks, the witness said, "We would get promises but they weren't fulfilled. I ran a chance of losing everything there was in it. I could have stopped and taken a chance of losing everything."

Asked why he hadn't attempted to verify Berker's representations about the coalfields proposition, Finn said he started to make inquiries of the name of a bank that Berker gave as a reference, but he got a message from Berker that the matter was to be kept confidential, so that Finn said this prevented him from getting confirmation. The witness said that about $25,000 went into options on the coalfields proposition, but he couldn't tell what became of the rest of the money.

Attorney Shields asked Finn if any promise had been made to him for testifying in this case. Finn replied that no promise that testifying would be beneficial to him had been mentioned or considered. He admitted that he hoped to ask for a pardon.

Describes Two Transactions

After a recess for 20 minutes, Finn was on the stand again for continuation of cross examination, testifying that on the 50-50 arrangement, Berker took half the profits on one transaction, but the next was a loss and Finn stood all the loss. The first transaction was in General Electric in July, 1924 in 1,000 shares. Shortly after came the unsuccessful transaction in the same stock. The first profit was a $2,750 profit but the second was a $10,000 loss. It was a total loss. Finn said he traded under his own name and the names of James L. Simmons, Edward Dunn, George W. Taylor, and French. He said he put up $25,000 in the first General Electric transaction.

Attorney Shields showed Finn a bank book of Berker & Co. and asked if there was any credit of $14,000 on it. The witness said it did not appear.

On redirect examination by State Attorney Brown Finn said that a deposit would not show in the pass book if the pass book was not in the bank at the time. Of the $40,000 misappropriated on September 15, the witness said that about $7,000 or $8,000 went to take care of cash items advanced to Berker to buy stocks. The sum of $11,000 to take care of stock bought from the Bankers Trust Co. and the balance was held on a deposit slip.

Finn said he told Berker on the $25,000 General Electric transaction that he was taking the money from the bank. Berker's response to this was that he would have the money back before the matter got cold. Of the total defalcations, Finn said about $55,000 was represented by money advanced to Berker to buy stocks.

When Berker told him that the $14,000 would be his final overdraft and asked him to take care of it, the witness said he told Berker that he could do it in the usual way by misappropriating funds from the bank. Berker said "Go ahead and do it," according to the witness.

State Attorney Brown put the question to Finn: "Was it because of your knowledge of Berker's knowledge of your misappropriation that you kept on giving him this money?" The witness answered "Yes" and in reply to the question why he traded in so many names he said this was at Berker's suggestion. He thought it was because Berker wanted to make the impression to his firm that he was opening up a lot of new accounts. Finn said that Berker owes him $40,000 now that he has not been able to collect.

Judge Asks Question.

Judge Brown asked Finn to explain just what was done in the taking of the sum of $40,934.69 which is named in the writ.

Finn explained that he took the customer's deposit card right out of the bank and made out a certificate of deposit for it. This he held for a few days and then put it back in the bank. He used what he needed and made out a deposit slip for the balance. He turned back this slip to the bank the day he was arrested.

This concluded the testimony of the witness.

Lester E. Shippee of Hartford, deputy bank commissioner, testified that he examined the Bankers Trust Co. on October 24, 1924, and found in relation to the item of $40,934.69 that it was transferred on Sept. 13, to certificate of deposit account on Sept. 15. The certificate disappeared and these funds were used in various ways. The G. C. Berker account was credited with $14,000, the G. A. Finn account with $500, a certificate of deposit for $3,500 and the balance in cash items. The bank records do not show who benefited by these cash items.

Afternoon Session

The state rested just before the noon recess and the defense began in the afternoon by calling Berker to the stand.

He said he now lives in New York city and is 35 years old, having been born in Norwich and living here until he was 16, when his father, a barber, moved to Providence. There Berker went to high school for four years and later was in the real estate business. He was in a troop of cavalry that was called into service in 1916, and went overseas in September 1917. He was in the service for 18 months and was in the engagements of the 26th division, at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

Upon returning from the war he went into the real estate business for about a year and then went with Pappas & Co., stock brokers. He left them in December, 1923, and opened his own offices. He first became acquainted with Finn about August 1923. Finn did business with Pappas and later with Berker's office. He was always a fairly heavy trader.

Berker denied the 50-50 agreement with Finn, but said that Finn gave him a bonus on the first trade that was made. It was about $25 or $30 from a $400 or $500 profit. Berker denied that he ever demanded or received any from Finn. He thought it might have been at his suggestion that Finn traded in several names. This is not unusual in the business, the witness said.

Berker said the Berker & Co., account with the Bankers Trust Co., opened about Jan. 1924 and after he started the consolidation of Kentucky coal properties it was constantly overdrawn. It cost about $50,000 to secure options and for other purposes. A man who had agreed to go into it withdrew after a start had been made, and Berker then explained the proposition to Finn who, he said, told him to go ahead and his drafts would be taken care of.

Attorney Shields showed the witness a statement of the bank account of Berker & Co. The witness said the account showed overdrawn on every day except Sept. 15. The account was overdrawn about $52,000, when it was finally stopped.

The witness said he knew he was overdrawn all the time. He was shown the Berker & Co., passbook in court and said there was no deposit of $14,000 on it on Sept. 15. Berker said he had not known until last night that the company account had been credited with $14,000. Berker said he had not seen Finn during the time since Sept. 1 to Sept. 15, 1924. There was no reason why on Sept. 15 he should have been credited with $14,000. Finn threatened to call a loan in the latter part of September, but it was not called.

Berker denied that he ever suggested or acquiesced in misappropriation of the funds of the bank by Finn. He said the first he knew of this was the night after Finn was arrested in Oct. 1924.

Berker testified that $55,000 to $60,000 was in the largest amount ever in the possession of Berker's company at one time in connection with Finn's stock operations. There was nothing, the witness said, to lead him to believe that Finn was using money other than his own, "If I had known that, I wouldn't have stayed around that bank," the witness continued. Berker said that not all of Finn's transactions were made on his advice, but some against his advice, and he denied that he agreed to have Finn's losses made against Berker's advice.

Cross Examination

On cross examination, Berker said he received his first training in the brokerage firm of G. F. Redmond & Co., of Providence, which went into bankruptcy. Later he was with Pappas & Co., which also is in bankruptcy. Finn began to trade with the Berker firm on January 1, 1924. Finn's total placings with the Berker firm for stock dealings was about $80,000. Berker denied that he got any of the profit from Finn's first deal. He said it never struck him as at all peculiar that Finn was using so much money.

Berker admitted that he sent draft after draft to the bank, when he didn't have a nickel there, until the whole amounted to about $50,000. At the time of writing the letter which had been put in evidence, Berker said he was overdrawn $30,000 and Finn had agreed to protect him to $50,000.

After a few questions on re-direct examination, the defense rested and the state also rested.

Denies Defense Motion

The jury was excused while Attorney Thomas M. Shields moved to have the court direct a verdict for the defendant on the ground that the only witness against Berker had been an accomplice and there was no corroboration for his testimony.

After the arguments by Attorney Shields and Brown in the absence of the jury, Judge Brown declared a short recess while he took the motion under consideration

When the court was in session again Judge Brown denied the motion for a directed verdict and the jury came in again to listen to the arguments, which were begun at 3:40 in the afternoon and not finished till 5:10 when Judge Brown charged the jury and sent them out to try to reach a verdict.

WESTERLY

POLICE GET "HARD STUFF" IN RAID AT OAKS INN

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 13—Oaks Inn, Shore road, Westerly, Thomas Gotis, proprietor, formerly of Hartford, came under the searching rays of a force of Westerly police officers on Wednesday afternoon about 2:20 o'clock, headed by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, who was armed with a search warrant. As a result of the "penetrating optics" of the police, some fifty bottles of "hard stuff" were seized and brought to the Westerly police station on Union street. Gotis was given a summons to appear in the regular session of third district court the next Friday morning to answer to a possession complaint.

The searching party was made up of officers George H. Champlin, Robert Russell, George L. Madison, LeRoy Norman and Fred Ferarro. Arriving at the well-known place on the Shore road, the searching party divided some visiting the inn, where Mr. Gotis was at the time, in the kitchen. Others visited the barn or garage where he kept his automobile and there such bottled "stuff" as Scotch whisky, benedictine, Metaxis and Glika-Kummel all high grade liquors, covered with paper and straw, was found. The bottled liquor was all assembled and placed in the police autos. It was then taken to Westerly lock up for safe keeping.

This is the first time that the Oaks Inn has been raided and the raid follows a reported series of holiday parties held there, which are said not to have been the quietest imaginable. Since the place was taken over by proprietor Gotis no expense has been spared to fix up the inn in a most attractive manner. More and more have come parties from neighboring cities, journeyed there to "dine under the bacon rays of Watch Hill light."

On this (Thursday) night the vanquished bridge teams of the Westerly Circle club and the Mistuxet club, of Bloomington, are to be the hosts to the conquering teams of the Westerly Masonic club and the Colonial club. A turkey dinner brings to a close the first section of the winter series of bridge duplicate matches which these clubs have conducted during the past two months.

It is not often that a distant universe is entered by a student to learn that the section of country which gave him birth is listed as first among seven named, covering the whole world, where climatic conditions are almost ideal for human health and activity." Such was the experience of Frank Joseph Robertson, a graduate of the Westerly High school, class of 1922 and now a senior at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia.

There from a text book, "Business Geography," 1922, with New York and London publishers, by Ellsworth Huntington, research associate in geography in Yale university, and Frank E. Williams, professor of geography and industry, U. of P., was found in the part, "The Business of the Continents," and the sub-division, "Europe; the Most Active of the Continents," the summarizing statement "the only other parts of the world that have equally favorable conditions of temperature are: (1) a limited strip of land on the eastern coast of the United States includes Long Island and southern Rhode Island"; "Terra Optima," in a word, seemed to characterize his home country and perhaps it may be a close second to the "celebrated watering place," which the famed explorer of olden time-Ponce de Leon, set out to discover.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association was held on Tuesday evening, in St. Michael's hall, Pawcatuck. Following the business session the election of officers took place and the following were installed: President, Mrs. Margaret Mafr; vice president, Mrs. Catherine Devine; second vice president, Mrs. Catherine Twomey; past president, Mrs. Mary Shea; recorder, Miss Dorothy Sullivan; assistant recorder, Mrs. Grace Barker; treasurer, Miss Nellie Sullivan; financial secretary, Mrs. Margaret Sullivan; marshal, Mrs. Agnes Powers; guard Miss Helen Keefe; trustees, Mrs Mary Keane, Mrs. Elizabeth Barker, Mrs. Sarah Morey, Mrs. Mary Lynch.

A delightful bean and salad supper was served.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, of Westerly, won out in the caucus of the republican members at the Rhode Island legislature on Wednesday afternoon, when as the present incumbent, he was opposed by George S. Phillips of South Kingstown, a former deputy sheriff. There was a full attendance of senators and representatives, 17 in all. Of the 17 votes cast Mitchell received 13 and Phillips 4. Later the choice of Mitchell was made unanimous.

W. Herbert Caswell, of Naragansett Pier, was the unanimous choice for clerk of the superior court for Washington county, which position he has held for years.

In the third district caucus of senators and representatives, Oliver Williams, of Westerly, was unanimously chosen for justice of the district court of the third judicial district, and Herbert P. Clark, of Westerly, received caucus election as third district court clerk. All of the delegates, nine in number, were present.

In the second district caucus Judge James O. Watts, of Wakefield, was unanimously selected to serve another term as justice, and John B. Pierce, of North Kingstown, was the unanimous choice for clerk.

The clerkship contest of the third district court, between M. Walter Flynn, Jr., the present incumbent, and Herbert P. Clark, will be taken today (Thursday) to the grand committee where it is reported Flynn will have the support of the democratic minority. In grand committee 70 votes are necessary for a choice, when all members are present, there being a total of 139 votes.

Too Tired for Housework? Beware of Chronic Fatigue

Thousands of tired, nervous, run-down women are victims of chronic fatigue—and do not know it.

TOO TIRED to wash the dishes

Chronic fatigue is an unnatural tiredness — usually due to lack of sufficient organic iron in the blood. By restoring this iron to the blood Nuxated Iron quickly banishes chronic fatigue and gives new strength and vigor. Will not injure teeth or disturb the stomach like mineral iron.

Take Nuxated Iron for 2 weeks. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

JEWETT CITY

TWO JEWETT CITY STREETS ARE MISSING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13—A search warrant is out for Grant street and Downing street. Some time in the dim past, or even perhaps not so long ago, there used to be two streets in the then village of Jewett City, that bore these names. As the result of rerouting the highways and years of property transfer, their exact locality has been obliterated and forgotten. Old records, supplimented by the memory of men who can recall matters of 50 years ago, also authority for the fact that these streets were truly laid out and named by the selectmen of another age. Daniel L. Phillips, who knows more about Griswold's history than any man today, had discovered, Tuesday, a line on both.

Grant street, probably extended from the Junction of Tracy avenue, (not laid out then) and Mathewson street to North Main at a point near the old St. Mary's church. A part of this street still remains as a sort of drive-way to reach the one time Henry Wilcox house.

It is also substantiated by some proof, that Downing street was at one time a part of what is now Green avenue.

The name originated with Martin Downing, who 50 years ago was the village butcher, and peddled meat from door to door, using a cart that resembled a market in itself. There was a shelf up top where the chickens were laid along, with another lower and smaller one, where upon were displayed the steaks and chops. In the body of this wonderful cart were to be seen several hundreds of pounds of all sorts of joints and roasts, while here and there a shank soup bone as long as one's arm, which last one could buy for a nickel. Built low at the back, and partly under the main body of the cart, a long-box was fashioned, wherein tripe and corned beef were carried in compartments by themselves.

The annual meeting of the Jewett City cemetery association was held Tuesday evening. The directors elected were: Arthur M. Brown, Adelbert R. Young, George H. Prior, John E. Phillips, Frank L. Frink, Frank C. Whiting, Earl E. Gilbert. The officers are: President, J. E. Phillips; vice president, E. E. Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, A. M. Brown; superintendent, Frank L. Ray; auditors, G. H. Prior and R. J. Guy. Mr. Whiting and Mr. Gilbert as directors were elected to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Thomas E. Lee and J. H. Kennedy. The permanent fund is today in excess of $9,000, and the working fund is over $900. Mr. Brown was first elected secretary and treasurer, Aug. 8, 1903, since which date the permanent fund has given from $1,600 to over $9,000 and the working fund from $44 to well above $900.

Mark Twain told in "Roughing It" about a chap, a great poker player, who when he held a winning hand, threw it face up on the table, saying as he did so, "Read 'em and weep." Jewett City people will have to do that same, when they peruse next Sunday's new time card. This flourishing borough is left with but two trains each way daily. The 9 a. m. No. and the 2.29 p. m. So. will make their last trips Saturday. Other than this curtailment, the only change for Jewett City is that there will be a 2.55 p. m. No. train instead of 3.25. This will allow a little more leeway on the connection at Putnam for Boston.

On the Providence and Willimantic division the a. m. train from Providence only runs to Plainfield. The first afternoon train for Providence is made up at Plainfield leaving at 4.35 p. m.

A local reader of The Bulletin, noting the item relative to the new transportation via motor coach, in Wednesday's paper, allowed as how we were to be "busted" again.

It seems a sure thing, and with a new fleet of busses, operated by the New Haven Co., going on to the road next week, in addition to the Connecticut company's hourly service, it will be a case of half hourly coaches north and south.

Some of the wise ginks got a bit of a jolt Wednesday when they read in the Bulletin that Samuel Anderson, local manager of the Connecticut Co., was present at a meeting in Norwich Tuesday, where he opposed the operating of busses to Jewett City and beyond by the New England Transportation company because they would run parallel to the lines operated by his company. Many here have maintained that the Connecticut Co. was a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Prentice W. Chase, Welfare superintendent for the Ashland Cotton Co., has completed arrangements with Frank H. P. Clement, superintendent of the schools of Griswold, and on Thursday, at the forenoon session of the Riverside Grammar school, the pupils in the higher grades will be given a demonstration by Captain Carroll W. Bryant of Washington, D. C. Captain Bryant is official examiner of the Life Savings Corps of the American Red Cross.

The Methouist church choir rehearsal is to be Friday evening at the parsonage.

The Missionary society of the Congregational church will meet with Mrs. G. H. Jennings this (Thursday) afternoon.

Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters met at the home of Mrs. Abraham Zegeer on Tuesday evening. The leader, Miss M. A. Burdick, appointed the committees for the year as follows: Sick committee, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs. J. T. Stewart, Mrs. Robert Robertson and Mrs. Abraham Zegeer; work committee, Mrs. G. H. Thornton, Mrs. Herbert Wyatt, Mrs. Frank Ray and Mrs. Charles Spicer; social committee, Miss Clara Wells, Mrs. Irving Thornton, Miss Sadie Thompson, Miss S. K. Adams and Mrs. C. B. Cheney. For places of holding meetings, Mrs. J. H. Tracy. The report from the sale of Christmas seals showed $186 received of which $30 goes to Voluntown and about $25 to the state tuberculosis commission. The sum of $141 will be added to the Circle's tuberculosis fund. During the past year three patients in the town have received help from the circle's funds. Nationality or religion makes no difference as to who may have the aid from this fund. It is for town use, and Voluntown also has a fund. There is also a town tuberculosis fund, and the Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters has a fund.

Mrs. Clarence Mall, Mrs. Frank Mell and Mrs. Ella Gager were in Providence Wednesday, to attend the funeral of Edwin J. Griswold. Just four weeks ago, Mrs. Griswold's son, Clarence, was buried.

Michael F. Shea, Happy Blake and Everett Whipple recently motored to Stonington Point and called on friends.

At Marlborough, the harvesting of ice from the lake began Monday when the Cheney cottage icehouse was filled with ten inch ice.

PRESTON

The Christian Endeavor of the Baptist church was led Sunday night by Merle Woodmansee.

The annual meeting of the Preston City Congregational church was held recently at the church. The members met at noon and a splendid dinner was served. The meeting was called to order at two o'clock and the Rev. George Clark was chosen moderator. Reports were given by the pastor, clerk and treasurer, showing the church to be in a prosperous condition. Reports were also given of the Christian Endeavor Sunday school, Missionary society and the World Wide Guild. The following officers were chosen: Clerk, Clifton Dawley treasurer G. V. Shedd; church committee, Sidney Hall, Ernest Kennedy, Sterry Pierce; standing committee, Mrs. Lydia Crary and Mrs. Marjorie Dawley.

Later in the afternoon the Ladies' Aid society met and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Ernest Kennedy; vice president, Mrs. Frank Krug; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. G. V. Shedd; social committee, Mrs. Clifford Main, Mrs. Raymond Krug, Mrs. Frank Crary and Marion Pierce.

The body of Mrs. Sarah Swan was brought from North Stonington Tuesday for burial in Preston City cemetery. She was well and favorably known here.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church was led Sunday night by Mrs. Alice Hall.

Miss Alice Krug has accepted a position with the Thermoe Co., Norwich.

The Grange met Tuesday evening and in the absence of Worthy Master Walter McClinton, Worthy Overseer Fred Benjamin acted as master. The Grange opened in form after which Lecturer Edith Pierce announced the program which consisted of songs by the grange, readings and solos by James Turner. The speaker of the evening was A. E. Shedd, manager of the Preston Co-operative Exchange, who spoke along the line of co-operative buying.

Farmers about town are busy harvesting ice.

The board of assessors, Edwin Lewis, William Mitchell and Nathan Hall, met at the home of Mr. Hall on Wednesday.

At a very smart dinner and decorations of spring flowers at the Plaza, New York, Tuesday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer were hosts, the guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sherrill (George Barker Gibbs) and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas (Marie Good Beckett) known in eastern Connecticut society.

TERHUNE, BAD CHECK PASSER, IS BROUGHT BACK TO NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13—Harold Terhune, alias Dudley Dean, who posed here as a stock salesman, and who was arrested in Washington several weeks ago, for fraudulent operations, while wanted here for passing a worthless check, was brought back to New London this afternoon by State Police Officer Silas Watson, of Groton barracks. The accused will be in the police court tomorrow morning. He is a prisoner at the police station, having been unable to procure a surety on his bond of $250.

Terhune was a resident at the Hotel Mohican during November and negotiated a check for $35, drawing the check upon the Bankers' Trust company, New York, and tendering it to Robert R. Rutherford, of Lyme, who negotiated it. Several days after negotiating the check Rutherford received the check back from New York as worthless since Terhune did not have funds upon deposit at the institution. Rutherford lodged complaint with the police and Terhune being apprehended in Washington, Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollendersky issued a warrant for Terhune's arrest and late yesterday he was delivered to Officer Watson.

Terhune nearly succeeded in making his escape in Washington for while he was being held a prisoner in the court room several officers entered with three prisoners, who had engaged in a hold-up and had committed murder. During the excitement, Terhune stealthily slid out from the court room. His absence was quickly discovered and a search was started for the prisoner. Terhune was taken into custody at the railroad station where he had purchased a ticket for an eastern city and was nabbed as he emerged from a telephone booth.

City employes are completing the sanding of icy sidewalks of the city this afternoon. When they have finished that task the probability is that they will have the work to do again, for indications now are for another fall of snow. There is a difference of opinion among citizens as to whether it is the duty of New London to perform this sort of work. The city does not insure the safety of its residents when they leave their homes and guarantee that they shall return without broken bones sustained by falling upon snow or ice-covered walks. There are ordinances providing that property owners remove snow as soon after storms as is reasonable and that they shall distribute sand or dirt on slippery walks. If that is done, the city of the city spending hundreds of dollars after every storm would be obviated. Prosecutor McGuire won a decision from the superior court when he contended that "reasonable care on the part of the city to make walks safe for pedestrians" was all that the law required to hold the municipality free from blame in the case of pedestrians falling. That appears to be a sensible construction of the law. Property owners and occupants seem to have the opinion that if they can get into and out of their premises safely that relieves them from further concern as to whether the walks are safe or unsafe. The time would appear to be at hand when a decision on this subject that will cover all cases of accident will be rendered. Perhaps it will come from the United States supreme court or it may come from a ruling by the supreme court of this state, but it is pretty surely coming.

One of the best known restaurateurs in the city, when sought as a tenant for vacant restaurant today declared that there were too many restaurants in the city now. He said the reason there were so many was that many of the owners did not pay their bills. That is one way of looking at a problem that has been a puzzle for many people.

The W. R. Perry Ice company today started harvesting its second crop of ice for the season for a force of men are engaged housing 10-inch ice at the company's Columbia pond. The company also started work housing ice at its pond at Willington.

Mrs. Kate Comstock Crocker, widow of Herbert J. Crocker, died late yesterday at her apartment at the Hotel Mohican where she had resided many years. Mrs. Crocker was of advanced years and had been an invalid many years. She is survived by a brother, Clark Comstock. Mrs. Crocker was born in New London and had resided in this city her entire life.

Mrs. Joseph St. Onge Kearns, wife of Bernard Kearns, formerly a resident of New London, where she had resided many years, died late yesterday at her home in New York. Mrs. Kearns has several relatives residing in this city.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, widow of Andrew Sullivan, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley deacon, and Rev. Alexander Wellenkoper sub-deacon. The bearers were James C. Sullivan, John Clifford, Timothy T. Sullivan, Patrick Murphy, John Sullivan and Michael O'Neill, all members of the New London police department. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

There were only two cases before the police court this morning. Frank Callahan, who claims Bridgeport as his residence, was sent to jail for begging in the street. He was under the influence of liquor and no one on the streets the night before escaped his importunings for money. Policeman Martin was complained to of the conduct of Callahan and thereafter Callahan's begging was for water to the police station. Tom McCann was drunk in the street. He said he came from Noank and had worked up to a fortnight ago. In the intervals between work and idleness he had occupied his time in drinking freely. Last night what he drank overcame him and he could not navigate. He was fined $5 and that penalty took him to jail.

Thomas Connors, arrested Sunday for beating his wife, was to have appeared for the penalty due him this morning, but there seems a chance that he can be shown the error of his ways and that he will refrain from kicking and striking his wife, who is soon to become a mother again. That his professions of a determination to begin a life that will be such as he should live may be tested, his case was continued for three months.

A committee of the city council will recommend next Monday evening at the meeting of that body, that improvements be made in the corner of Montauk avenue and Lower Boulevard by the rounding of the corner there and the shifting of the tracks of the street railway. The owners of property there will give land to the city for the improvement, if the tracks are removed, as suggested. The contract which the Connecticut Power company asked the city to make and which was submitted to the council has been approved, after certain modifications had been made and the committee will report next Monday evening to the council. The changes in the system of lighting are believed to be for the advantage of the city.

Kenomoc Hose company is anticipating the most enjoyable banquet in the history of the company tomorrow evening at the Hotel Mohican. A feature of the entertainment will be vaudeville acts by Allie Harvey and Jimmy Nilson, members of the company.

Lee Kilroy, of United States Coast Guard destroyer McCall, state pier; Master Oscar Lubow, 37 Alger Place; Mrs. Daniel Crawford and infant son, 51 Franklin street; Earl Barbier, West Mystic, and Helen Clark, Noank, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Fred A. White has sold a 10 foot strip of land on Marshall place to Marie M. Grove.

John S. Crandall and Charlotte C. Crandall, executors of the will of Noyes B. Crandall, have sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Michael Friedman, of Montville.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a house and lot on the westerly side of Montauk avenue to Julia S. Leach.

Clyde C. Ingram, Waterford, administrator of the estates of Manuel and Annie Perry, husband and wife, has sold a house and lot on Denison avenue to Annie Perry.

Samuel P. Johnson and Ray S. Leeds have sold a house and lot on Chappell street to John J. and Mary E. Gorman.

James Scoville has sold to Thomas and Bridget Quinn a house and lot on Center street.

New London Home Owners' association has sold a house and lot on Sherman street to Charles and Annie Edwards.

Levi Q. Raymond has sold to Norma Miller a house and lot on Raymond street.

Louis I. Allen, 18 Alger street, reported to the police this morning that a thief had visited the hennery at the rear of his home and had stolen nine Rhode Island reds. Allen stated he did not know when the theft was committed, but that the poultry was stolen within three weeks.

The society of Taiesusza Kosciuszki held its annual meeting in the basement of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church this week and admitted Antoni Smairowski and Wladislaw Smairowski to membership.

The following officers were elected: President, Stephen Smolenski; vice-president, Jozef Jontonowski; recording secretary, Roman Potkoi; financial secretary, Antoni Czydelat; treasurer, Jan Lovska; vice treasurer, Adam Dzycek; vice treasurer, Jan Popiowski; marshal, Jan pierzchala.

When installation of officers, was held by Star of the Sea branch, No. 681, Ladies Catholic Benevolent association, at Odd Fellows hall, Mrs. Frank E. G. Douglas of this city, supreme deputy, conducted the exercises.

The spiritual advisor is Rev. Timothy M. Crowley.

Past president, Mrs. P. L. Glenn; president, Mrs. Julius A. Kouby; first vice president, Mrs. Conrad Stick; second vice president, Mrs. Michael J. Flanagan; financial secretary, Mrs. Cornelius P. Heffernan; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Buckley; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank E. G. Douglas; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Mary Murphy; marshal, Mrs. George M. Cleary; guard, Mrs. Paul T. Stoddard; trustees, Mrs. Catherine Moran, Mrs. Catherine Foss, Mrs. Thomas W. Cahey, Mrs. Fau. T. Stoddard, Mrs. Agnes McGrath.

Groton's grand list as just completed by the board of assessors for the year 1925, is $9,397,523. The board exempted taxes in the sum of $286,185. Of the amount of the grand list there may be further exemptions when the board of relief sits.

Fanny Yadico has negotiated for the purchase of the property of David Uhrman at 460 and 462 Bank street. A deposit of $2700 was made on the place today to insure the purchase at a price of $16,500. Mrs. Yadico is a sister-in-law of Arthur Messer and the latter is to establish a business at the place. He is to make three stores and as many tenements on the second story. A tailor shop and meat market now occupy the building and Mr. Uhrman and family have apartments above one of the stores.

Nellie Domensky was arrested this evening by Patrolman Augustus Ray charged with breach of peace, upon complaint of Virginia Domenisky. She furnished a bond of $50 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Patrick Russell Campbell, a stranger in New London, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Patrolman Frank Linehan charged with vagrancy. Campbell was about the streets soliciting alms and by the practice was making a nuisance of himself.

Four men, all strangers in New London, were arrested late this afternoon by Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan and Augustus Ray charged with intoxication and vagrancy. All were locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

RICHARD WOODS ESCAPES— IS FOUND BY PROVOST GUARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13—Richard Woods, a sailor aboard the United States revenue cutter Beale, stationed at the local seation base, state pier, who was a prisoner aboard the cutter awaiting a court martial, made his escape this afternoon, but was captured a short time later and returned to the craft.

Woods, who had been a prisoner aboard the Beale but a few days, watched his opportunity to make his escape and shortly after 1:30 o'clock succeeded in eluding the guards and walked from the cutter. Wood's escape was not discovered until about 3 o'clock. The police were notified and the naval authorities dispatched a provost guard to scour the city for Woods. The escaped prisoner was finally located in one of his places of resort, and was taken into custody and escorted back to the Beale.

LOOK FOR BOOTLEGGER WHO SHOT POLICEMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13—The New London police this evening were requested to be on the lookout for the driver of a Hudson touring car, bearing Connecticut registration, 38-151 and should the car be located to arrest the driver, who is wanted for shooting and probably fatally injuring a policeman. The driver of the car is alleged to be a bootlegger who shot the police officer when the latter attempted to hold up the car on one of the streets of New Haven.

G. CURTIS MORGAN'S DOGS MUST CEASE TO BARK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13—Complaints continue to come into the police station because of the acts of the police dogs owned by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan, corner of Broad and Channing streets. Attorney Morgan this afternoon was threatened with prosecution unless he caused the dogs to be restrained. Late this afternoon Former City Treasurer William A. Mercer, of Channing street, together with residents of that vicinity, complained to the authorities of the dogs being an annoyance and a nuisance to residents of the neighborhood. The alleged nuisance is because of the animals barking and howling at all hours of the night. A written notice was issued by the police and given to Dog Warden John Sweezy to serve, advising Attorney Morgan of the complaints and instructing the owner of the dogs that, should the nuisance complained of not be abated, Attorney Morgan would be subject to prosecution under Section 28, General Statutes, Public Acts of 1925.

Get the Whip Hand of That Stubborn Cough

without Using Cod Liver Oil

If cod liver oil is distasteful to you—if you hate the fishy smell and taste of it—don't for one minute think that there is nothing equally as good, or better, for an obstinate cough or bad cold.

ALLEN'S MULSICOF

(Formerly Known as Allen's Lung Healer)

—is an emulsion altogether free from cod liver oil and other distasteful ingredients, yet remarkably effective for coughs and colds. It acts as a stomach tonic, too, building up the body. Splendid for children, being perfectly safe and harmless for the smallest child.

Thousands of parents in New England have used Allen's Mulsicof for their children, in many cases with surprisingly quick results. Read the experience of Mrs. J. C. Rogers of 22 Grove St., Lynn, Mass.:

"My one-year-old baby had been suffering from a severe cold in the head and chest. There was considerable congestion, her cough was deep and croupy and we feared pneumonia. Allen's Mulsicof worked on her like magic. In less than a week she was completely well again."

Get a bottle of ALLEN'S MULSICOF today at your druggist's. Your money back if not satisfied. 60c and $1.00 a bottle.

Stop That Throat Tickle.

It is published by the Old Farmer's Almanac, Inc., Boston.

Heading Feature For Finn Theatre

Manager Thomas Barnett, of the Finn theatre, Jewett City, was able to close bookings Tuesday, for six new topliners for the near future. Mary Pickford in Annie Rooney, Douglas Fairbanks in Don "Q", Charlie Chaplin in The Gold Rush, Sally of the Saw-Dust, Rudolph Valentino in The Eagle, and "Biff" Hart in Tumbleweed.

Breed Theatre

Seldom, if ever, has a picture created such a big sensation as "The Merry Widow", which has been to crowded houses since it opened its engagement at the Breed Theatre last Sunday. This glittering film masterpiece has proved to be so popular that wherever one goes it is the topic of conversation. The crowds that stormed the Breed Theatre to see have been so great that hundreds were turned away at each performance. To accomodate those who were unable to gain admission the management of this popular playhouse has made arrangements to hold The Merry Widow over for the remainder of the week ending its engagement Saturday night.

It is a neat and valuable compilation.

Broadway Theatre

Everything is set for the big time at the Broadway theatre starting today, Let's go, Norwich!

New England's champion fiddler, "Uncle Joe" Shippee, heads the programme with his own company of eight dancers, in old fashioned dances, real old-time prompter, with his own pianist, Mrs. Otto Opperman. Never was there so much talk about any attraction as this novelty is getting. It sure is a treat—have no regrets later—see it today.

Other Keith headlines include: Mack & Lee in "Milk & Melody"; Primo Velly and his Italian Wonder Dog, in their latest creation; Josie St. Clair & Boys, in a melange of song, dance and music, and Kelly & Pollock, the old timers in a new comedy offering.

The photoplay is one of thrills and comedy combined with Herbert Rawlinson, Grace Darmond and Chester Conklin in The Great Jewel Robbery.

The management has also arranged to take care of out of town patrons by having a bus leave Norwich for Plainfield, at 9:45 p. m., Thursday.

Connecticut College Concert

The Kansas City Times, comments on The Elshuco Trio which will appear at Bulkeley auditorium, in New London, Monday night, Jan. 18, in the following manner:

"The Trio must have felt the Brahms deeply, because it told a whole story to the audience through it. Chamber music does not often move a mixed audience as the first trio did yesterday. The three men seemed perfectly in touch with one another and the resulting perfection of ansemble was remarkable. Through it all the leadership of Willem Willeke, known to all musical people through his association with Kneisel quartet, could be felt."

The Kansas City Journal, commenting on the same performance, speaks in this manner:

"The outstanding feature of the concert was the masterful reading of Brahms' "Trio in B. Major." The players apparently have an almost perfect conception of the classic style. Their interpretation was distinguished by its elegance, finesse of detail and delicate graduations of tone, as well as the loftiness and fervor in its spirit."

Tickets are now on sale at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, New London.

Hogs higher.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices failed today to break out of the narrow trading area within which they have been fluctuating for the last week or more, but bullish operations were successfully conducted in a limited numerous of industrial specialties and there was a revival of activity in several of the so-called southwestern "merger rails." While there was a fair investment demand for some of the high grade issues, the bulk of the day's trading, which ran around 1,700,000 shares, was a the hands of professional operators.

The day's news was largely favorable. Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent., but a large supply of funds was available below that figure in the "outside market." A large number of increased and extra dividends was announced during the day, the list including F. W. Woolworth and Continental Can. The weekly steel trade reviews reported that mill operations were continuing at a high rate and the United States Steel Corporation announced that it would offer 100,000 shares of common stock to employes under the annual stock subscription plan for $136 a share of $11 above the subscription price last year. The stock closed at 135 5-8, a net loss of 1-4 on the day, after touching 137 in the early trading.

Commodity markets were irregular. Wheat futures showed moderate recessions on selling inspired by the poor export business. Cotton options eased 2 to 6 points in quiet trading. Coffee closed 13 to 20 points net higher on reflection of an improved spot demand and on covering by shorts in near month positions. Raw sugar declined 1-32 of a cent a pound.

The recent tendency toward the recapitalization of high priced issues through stock split-ups accounted for the strength of such issues as Foundation Company, Pullman, National Lead, United Drug and International Telephone. General Electric attained a new record high at 347 1-2, and then eased to 341 for a loss of 5-8 on the day. Nash responded to the declaration of a 900 per cent. stock dividend by touching a new peak at 519, but later collapsed to 500 and then rallied to 510, off 7 points on the day.

Nearly a score of industrial issues sold at their highest prices in a year or more, including Burns Brothers "A", Public Service of New Jersey, Corn Products, South Porto Rican Sugar, Tobacco Products, "A," Reynolds Tobacco, Consolidated Cigar preferred and United Paper Board, new gains of 2 to 5 points also were recorded by American Can, American Smelting, Cuban American Sugar, Sears Roebuck, A. B. Byers, California Packing, International Business Machines and United States Realty.

Revival of activity and strength in the Pan-American issues, which advanced about 2 points on reports that recent Mexican developments would stimulate the development of its Venezuelan properties, was the only feature in the oil group. Barnsdall issues were heavy.

Buying of rails centered largely in such issues as Rock Island common, Missouri Pacific common and preferred "Katy" common and Texas and Pacific common, all of which closed 2 to 3 1-2 points higher. Atchison, New Haven, Chesapeak and Ohio, Western Maryland, and Chicago and Northwestern also showed moderate gains.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling advanced 1-4 of a cent to $4.85 3-16, and French francs held firm around 3.76 cents. Japanese yen advanced 1-4 of a cent to 44 cents, the highest price since the collapse following the 1923 earthquake.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Knowles and son of Norwich avenue are to move to a house on South Third avenue.

John K. Baker of Providence, R. I., was a business caller in the village Wednesday.

The Knights and Esquires of Castle Perilous K. O. K. A. held a conclave Wednesday evening to make arrangements for a February ceremonial. There was a full attendance.

Taftville people learned with regret of the death of Mrs. Maria Pomeroy at the Sheltering Arms in Norwich this week. Mrs. Pomeroy was for many years a resident of Norwich avenue and an attendant at the Taftville Congregational church.

Wilfred Privé of South A street has resigned his position with the weaving department of Ponemah mills.

The Taftville Loomfixers Union held a business meeting Wednesday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall.

The regular weekly business meeting of St. Veronica's T. A. & B. society was held Wednesday evening at the society's rooms on Providence street. After the business was transacted there was a social hour.

Mrs. Charles Lang of Springfield, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Levi Leonard and her sister, Miss Isabel Leonard of South Second avenue.

James Stearns of Norwich was a caller in the village Wednesday.

Miss Eglantine Picard has been confined to her home by illness.

Miss Alice Nygren of Lisbon has been a recent guest of relatives in Plainfield.

Measurement of ice on the local streams Tuesday showed it to be tween 9 and 10 inches thick.

Homer Peltier has returned to his home in Natick, R. I., after spending the past week with relatives in town.

The next meeting of the Thimble club is to be with Mrs. George Helmboldt at her home in Lisbon.

It is interesting to note that it is just 50 years ago that the Sacred Heart parish acquired the land where the Parish hall now stands, at the corner of Merchants avenue and School street. At that time the Roman Catholics were holding services in the school house, and the parish was attached to the Jewett City church. Later the building which is now used as a hall was built and used for purposes of worship until the erection of the present church.

GRACE CHURCH EXTENDS CALL TO REV. R. B. DAY

At the annual parish meeting of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, held on Monday evening it was voted to extend a unanimous call to Rev. Robert B. Day to return to the church as rector. This action came after Walter G. Mitchell had read a cablegram from Rev. Mr. Day, who is in England, in which Rev. Mr. Day stated that he was returning to America soon and would like to return to Grace Episcopal church.

At the business session Herbert M. Hitchcock and C. Edward Carpenter were elected wardens. C. P. J. Vanderwaart, Herman J. Gibbs, Edward Snow Charles D. Carpenter, Raymond V. Comstock, Walter G. Hitchcock, E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. William E. Manning, Miss Mary E. John Rudd, Miss Agnes Thorp, Miss Rose Matassa were elected members of the vestry. E. Allen Bidwell was elected clerk and treasurer. The financial condition of the parish was reported to be excellent.

Rev. Mr. Day formerly was the rector of the church, but left here in September, 1923, to enter mission work in England.

ELISHA WATERMAN APPOINTED TO COUNTY COMMISSIONER VACANCY

HARTFORD, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Elisha Waterman, of Lebanon, was appointed county commissioner of New London county today by Governor Trumbull to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Commissioner George E. Fellows, of Norwich. The appointment is until the third Wednesday of the next general assembly and is the third vacancy among county commissioners to be filled by the governor's appointment since the past session of the legislature. The other vacancies occurred in Windham and Tolland counties.

Mr. Waterman, who is 50, lives on the Waterman homestead, Goshen, Lebanon, where he was born. He is a prominent raiser of cattle, having one of the finest Holstein herds in the county.

For many years he has been chairman of the republican town committee, in 1909 he was representative from his town and in 1919 senator from the so-called Shoe-string district. He is a member of the Congregational church and is affiliated with Wooster lodge, No. 10, F. and A. M.

OPEN SHOP MEETING AT WEST SIDE SILK MILL

Wednesday at noon the local Young Mens Christian Association inaugurated another shop meeting, at the West Side silk mill.

There was a splendid audience of the employes assembled in the attractive recreation hall provided by the plant.

Several selections were rendered by the orchestra consisting of John M. Swahn, cornetist, Frederick Geer, pianist, and Ralph Marsh, violinist. Two songs were sung by the audience, Lewis Aldrich acting as song leader. Rev. E. C. Dunbar was the speaker of the occasion, and his brief talk greatly pleased all present. Mr. Dunbar spoke in part as follows: "It is interesting to note what precautions are taken to protect the bodily health of the people. Our reservoirs have usually a wire fence around them to protect from pollution there are all sorts of laws for safety purposes, and the various kinds of insurance are indirectly at least intended to care for the body. We should at least have as much protection for our soul life as for our bodies. We need to care for our hearts; they should be guarded at all times. Sometime since I was going to live in a certain town, and we went to look at a house where we expected to make our home, and because of the fact that it had been empty for some time, the dust was thick on floor and mantles; the reason was that no one was there to guard or to keep the house clean. We need to keep our hearts clean and pure. We must put into our hearts a strong purpose for something high and noble. Then we should have strong and virile friendships to help us. I remember in the army, when I was on night guard duty. We had been told to watch closely for Germans who were expected to appear by way of submarine in Virginia. It was about three o'clock in the morning, as I walked to and fro; it was terribly lonely. Suddenly I saw something move just ahead of me, and I stopped and waited; then I called twice, "who goes there" but there was no answer; I waited for a while, and finally found that what I thought was a German was but a bush which I had passed many times that night. I was alone: no friend was near me. Unless one has strong friendships he often feels lonely in his life. Let us then guard our hearts, have a real purpose and cultivate true friendships as we live our lives.

The music and the speaker were applauded. Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. said a few words, expressing his pleasure that the "Y" had the privilege of bringing to the employes a helpful innovation. The employes expressed their hearty desire that the meetings be continued each week.

23 NAMES THIS WEEK ON WET DRIVERS' LIST

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are twenty-three names on the list. Three were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advises people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The following is the list:

Quieti Alexander, Derby; Stanley Beaudry, Stafford; Benjamin Bennett, Hartford; Mitro Bodyk, Seymour; Stanley Castor, Southington; Phillas Clairmont, Somers; Frank J. Drake, New Preston; Frank Dziob, Newington Junction; Edward Fitzerald, South Manchester; Francis Fitzgerald, South Manchester; Fred W. Jr. Johnson, Hartford; James Edw. Knoche, Ridgefield; William Mulhern, Thomaston; Joseph F. McNally, Hartford; Caesar G. Owen, Waterbury; Hubert L Richard, Stafford Springs; Richard H. Robertson, Simsbury; Joseph Schaffer, Sound Beach; William Trowbridge, Wingdale, N. Y.; Carmilla Vendrilla, Berlin; Leo Wallace, Waterbury; Benjamin Williams, Hartford; Charles Fuks, Stratford.

MISS DOROTHY GILDERSLEEVE ILL AT CHARLESTON, S. C.

Mrs. A. M. Gildersleeve, of East Woodstock, who, although 87 has been very active, broke her hip in a fall recently, in the yard at her home. She was brought to the residence of her son, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, on Lincoln avenue, Norwich. This week a Hartford specialist has put the broken limb in a plaster cast and Wednesday the patient was quite as comfortable as is possible in her condition.

Much sympathy is expressed by their friends for Dr. and Mrs. Gildersleeve, who, while worried about the former's mother received a message from their daughter, Miss Dorothy Gildersleeve that she was suffering from a case of acute appendicitis. The young lady is a student at Ashley Hall, Charleston, S. C. News came Wednesday that Miss Gildersleeve had undergone a successful operation Tuesday morning, and that all seems favorable for her rapid and complete recovery.

Already she has received messages from friends, addressed to her at Baker Sanitarium, Ashley avenue, Charleston.

THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL WORKERS COMING TO NORWICH

The Hartford Theological School is engaged in an experiment in sending out to the churches of the state in groups of three or more, men and women who have lived and worked in foreign countries and are now on furlough.

One of these teams which is doing especially interesting educational work is the African team. They sing the native folk songs, display and describe native curios and give a sketch of native African life.

This team will be in Norwich on next Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. The members of the team are Rev. J. Henry Erickson, Miss Everett and Mrs. Longworth.

MEN STUDY BIBLE IN MEETING AT Y. M. C. A.

The interest in the Men's Bible study group was all that could be expected Wednesday evening when the usual good number of men met at supper time in the "Y" dining room. The topic of the study and discussion was "Overconfidence followed by failure in a crisis," and the scripture used was Mark the 14th chapter and verses 27 to 42 inclusive. Among other points the following were brought out in the discussion: Over confidence has its dangers, it entails lack of preparedness; one is likely to forget his weakness. While neither over confidence or under confidence are desirable, the former is preferable, for one who lacks confidence will seldom attempt to accomplish things worth while. Peter's strongest characteristic was impulsiveness; he had to a large degree the quality of leadership. Peter, James and John had rather have had a more active duty than just to watch, but that was the thing required of them in this crisis, but they failed miserably. The average man does not care much for unnoticed service. Speaking of watching, every man should watch carefully his words, his acts, his thoughts and even his very looks. When a man's professed friendship fails in a crisis, it gindicates that it was never quite what it should have been. Their sin was a sin of omission, a failure that we usually forget, but Jesus classed it as sin. Jesus was passing through a most terrible test; he was facing death on the cross, and desired to escape it if possible, but even so, he surrendered his own will to the will of his Father. How unlike us, we seem to want to do our own sweet will. The main reason why men fail in the great moral crisis of life is that they have too much confidence in themselves and too little confidence in God, and they are unwilling to trust Him.

NEW HAVEN ROADS STARTING BUS LINES

The New England Transportation company, the subsidiary of the New Haven railroad organized for the purpose of operating highway motor coaches, expects to begin service on fourteen additional lines next Sunday. These new lines include Danbury-South Norwalk; Hartford-Suffield; Willimantic-Woonsocket; Willimantic-North Grosvenordale; New Haven-Hartford; Hartford-Broad Brook; Willimantic-Norwich; New London-Norwich; Fall River-Taunton; Fitchburg-Worcester; Providence-Plainfield; Providence-Bristol, R. I.; Providence-Worcester; and Canton Junction-Stoughton.

At the same time an extensive revision of the New Haven Railroad's timetables will go into effect, it was announced at the company's offices Wednesday. The changes are brought about chiefly through the coordination of the express train schedules with the supplementary and amplified motor coach service, and in many instances the inception of the motor coach service means more frequent service and better connections with express trains.

Whenever the motor coach service is put in effect local and interline tickets of the New Haven Railroad are good on the motor coaches, so that the passengers may use the train for one part of the journey and the motor for the rest. Practically the same fares apply on the motor coaches as on the railroad.

Police Dog Given Blind Man

A benevolent English woman who recently came to Norwich has given George Bemount, of 53 Franklin street, who is blind, a seven months' old German police dog. The animal is strong and intelligent and will prove a valuable guide to George as he makes his way about the streets. In spite of his affliction Mr. Bemount keeps cheerful and is very industrious, trying in many ways to be self-supporting.

DIED IN THE NIGHT WHILE HE SLEPT

Wednesday morning John H. Moore was found dead in bed at his room in the Commercial Hotel. Mr. Moore was a native of Franklin and was born about 60 years ago. He was the son of the late Thomas and Ellen Moore and was a decorator and painter by occupation. Death was the result of a shock.

Mr. Moore was a devout member of St. Patrick's parish. He did not hold membership in any fraternal organizations. Surviving are two brothers, James E. Moore, local real estate dealer and Thomas W. Moore of New London.

PARTNER OF DIAMONDS, PATANO, MUST DIE

Because Morris Diamond served a term in Brooklyn, Conn., jail for beating up a Woodstock farmer, there is interest in the following from Albany, N. Y.: By a vote of four to three, the judges of the court of appeals Tuesday determined that Anthony Joseph Pantano of Brooklyn, must die for the part he played in the killing of two messengers of the West End bank in Brooklyn, Nov. 14, 1923.

Pantano will be the fourth man to pay the death penalty for the shooting of William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, the bank's messengers. The others were Morris Diamond, his brother, Joseph Diamond, and John Farini. A fifth man, referred to as George Desaro, is now under arrest in Italy.

It was charged that Pantano gave the information upon which the men planned the hold-up of the bank messengers.

CONNECTICUT MANUFACTURERS MET PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

H. B. Curtis of the Bridgeport Hardware company and Dudley Harmon, representing the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, were members of a delegation representing industrial interests that met with President Coolidge at the White House Monday. The delegation presented to the president suggestions for strengthening the clauses having to do with protection of the public interests against interruption of commerce by railroad labor troubles, contained in the bill intended to replace the railroad labor board, which is now pending in congress. The bill was framed jointly by the railway executives and the railroad labor union, whose representatives called upon the president last week and informed him that in their opinion the two groups had succeeded in taking an important step forward in the direction of the peaceful settlement of labor disputes and the avoidance of strikes. John E. Edgerton, president, and James A. Emory, counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers presented the views of the delegation. The other New England states were represented by E. J. Rich, general counsel of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

GOVERNOR IS SATISFIED WITH COAL SITUATION

Governor Trumbull expressed himself Wednesday as being generally well satisfied with the coal situation in Connecticut and the progress of the educational campaign directed to teach the people how to use low-volatile semi-bituminous coal. He did, however, reiterate the caution contained in his general statement that in ordering, purchasers should specify "semi-bituminous low-volatile, smokeless coal."

"I am informed," said Governor Trumbull, "that a few dealers have been selling high-volatile gas coal. Of course the householder when making the purchase does not know the difference. The best low-volatile semi-bituminous coal has no luster, is unattractive in appearance and crumbles easily. Some of the poorest qualities of bituminous coal have a luster resembling anthracite. Such coal is not only poorer in quality but often dangerous to use."

POETRY

Do You Remember, Lafayette?

Oh, in that far-off Land of Dreams,
Where earth life but a vision seems,
And days pass by so wondrous fair
That lost is thought of pain or care,
Do you, sometimes, your Home Land see,
Dear Lafayette, in fantasy?
And does the flag of la belle France
Still bring your tears with it advance?
With early morning dew drops wet
Does faintly scented mignonette
Call back the days of long ago,
Your time of struggle, triumph, woe,
For King and Queen whose sun had set?
Do you remember, Lafayette?

And when our land across the sea
Faced Death for glorious Liberty,
And Washington's proud star arose
To shine, effulgent, o'er his foes,
While you, with boyish grace and charm,
Defended us with hero arm,—
Is that life blotted from your page,
Or do you, sometimes, pensive, wage
The old-time struggles Fate had set
To pay a weary world its debt?
Does joy light on your golden shore
Blot out those days forever more,
Or does your heart remember yet,
And, knowing, love us, Lafayette?

Some subtle thought of yours, it seems,
Has drifted from your Land of Dreams,
So that again you seem to be
The guardian of our Liberty!
We greet you from the days gone by,
We think of you with smile and sigh,
We know that you as well as we
Have known Love's pain, Joy's ecstacy;
But somehow, on your Golden Shore,
You seem far nearer than of yore;
Sweet mignonette with dew drops wet
Tells of your France we ne'er forget,
And all the grace and charm of you
Endears still more our flag so true;
Say—in that land we yearn for yet,
Do you remember, Lafayette?
—Elizabeth Minot.

It Singeth Low in Every Heart

It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast;
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened agony's frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When we are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
They cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore,
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides,
Our God, forever more!
—John W. Chadwick.

SCALE COMMITTEE UPHOLDS ACTION OF MINERS' LEADERS

Reaffirms "to the World" Its Sanction, Approval and Support of Policies of the Union Leaders—President Lewis Addressed a Crowd of Idle Miners at the Altamont Hotel, Hazleton, Pa.—Pennsylvania Assembly in Extra Session Balks on Changing Legislation Regulating the Coal Industry.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The scale committee of the anthracite miners representing every local union in the hard coal fields today adopted a resolution reaffirming "to the world our sanction, approval and support of the plans and policies" of the union leaders.

This was summed up in a long resolution approving every action so far taken by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, and other leaders in conducting the hard coal strike now in its fifth month.

The scale committee, called to hear the reports of its sub-committee which carried on the negotiations in New York with the operators, also adopted a resolution thanking the American Federation of Labor for its appeal for funds in behalf of the striking Mine Workers, and commended the movement in the Pennsylvania legislature for the repeal of the miners' certificate law.

In connection with the attempted repeal of the law, President Lewis read to the scale committee a telegram from international representatives of the union at McAlester, Okla. stating that the explosion at Wilburton where nearly one hundred miners were killed was said to have been "caused by green, inexperienced men."

The miners' certificate law provides that no man can work in an anthracite mine without having had two years' experience as a miners' laborer and pass an examination.

Prior to the meeting of the scale committee, which was created by a convention of miners last July and has the power to make a wage contract subject to the approval of another miners' convention or a referendum of the anthracite membership, President Lewis addressed a crowd of idle workers in the Altamont hotel.

PENN. ASSEMBLY CALLS ON COAL LEGISLATION

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Prospects of early action on measures to regulate the anthracite mining industry, presented in the Pennsylvania general assembly yesterday, faded with the adjournment of the legislature today until next week.

Three of four bills introduced, rested in the hands of committees with no likelihood of immediate action. These included the two backed by Governor Pinchot for control of mining as a public utility and for the formation on state contracts, and one proposing repeal of the state anthracite tax. The fourth bill, which would repeal the miners certificate law, was reported by the senate committee on mines but it is expected to go back to that committee for public hearing.

Slight chance of passage of any of the measures was seen today either by administration or organized legislators. Bills to make mining a public utility and to repeal the tax and miners certificate law have appeared in previous sessions and made little progress.

Repeal of the tax, state officials estimated today would reduce the state's revenue by more than $9,000,000 in a year of normal production. The law provides a tax of one and one-half per cent. on the value of anthracite prepared for market and the 1925 revenue amounted to $9,436,553.

TO CEASE WRITING BURGLARY POLICIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Because there are too many burglaries here, real and faked, the National Surety Company has decided that underwriting burglary policies for the metropolitan area is too risky. Withdrawal of its resources from that field was announced tonight by the New York Casualty Company, the subsidiary of the National Surety Company which specializes in burglary risks.

Policies have been served to burglary policy holders that their policies will be cancelled January 17th. A. H. Robinson, treasurer of the New York Casualty Company explained that the company has lost much money on hundreds of thousands of dollars underwritten for them in the last three years, and hereafter will accept no policies not underwritten at the main office where restrictions will be rigid.

Officials of the company tonight admitted the cancellations were partly the results of the increase of thefts in the metropolitan area and partly because of the generally inferior type of policy holder encountered here. It was said policy holders outside the metropolitan area are far less likely to fake burglaries than those in this area.

TO LIMIT MEMBERSHIP OF CRIME COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Determination as to the character and limitation of numbers in the membership of the National Crime commission, organized to consider ways to diminish crime, will be definitely reached by a special committee soon, F. Trubee Davison, chairman of the commission said today. Membership in the commission has not been enlarged so far beyond the small group of original organizers at the last meeting of the executive committee the matter of new members and of a more formal organization generally was left to a special committee to be appointed by the chairman. At the same time, the committee on local organization, of which Richard Washburn Child is chairman, is expected to make a report.

The policy of the commission will be to co-operate with existing unofficial agencies actively engaged in the work of reducing crime, to avoid duplication of effort and to stimulate the formation of similar bodies in every place where there is no existing state organization.

SLAYER OF POLICEMAN WAS SUBJECT TO FITS

WATERBURY, Jan. 14.—(AP)—That Ernest Bercier, on trial for the murder last May 2, of Patrolman William J. Stokes, was subject to epileptic fits and that he suffered such a fit at the time of the Stokes shooting was testified to in superior court this afternoon before Judge Newell Jennings, and a jury. Mrs Alida Bercier, mother of the accused, and Dr. Charles A. Farrell, recently acquitted of perjury during the James Gizzi murder trial, were important witnesses for the defense.

Dr. Farrell recounted an instance when he had been called to attend Bercier as he was recovering from such a fit. Mrs. Bercier told of several occasions when the accused suffered epileptic attacks. She also described her version of Officer Stokes' struggle with Bercier, as she stood nearby in the hall.

EXPANDS HOLDINGS OF RUBBER GROWING LANDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—In pursuance of its policy to produce a substantial proportion of its crude rubber requirements, C. B. Seger, president of the United States Rubber company, announced today the company had extended its holdings of rubber growing lands in the Far East with acquisition of 5,700 additional acres, approximately nine square miles. Negotiations are in progress for other areas aggregating 12,500 acres, or about 20 square miles. Both of these properties are near the company's largest plantation in Sumatra, Dutch East Indies. Last July the company bought 6,300 acres in Kuala, Malaya.

MEXICAN BANDITS DECLARE THEY ARE REVOLUTIONISTS

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Bandits who killed the soldier guard and crew of a passenger train between Guadalajara and Mexico City last Saturday told George Zapp an American passenger on the train that a new revolution in Mexico "has just started."

Zapp who lives at Globe, Arizona made this statement upon his arrival today from Mexico.

"The chief of the bandit gang said to me 'the revolution down here has just started,'" Zapp related.

He asserted bandits got quite a little stake out of the robbery of the express car for it carried a large amount in bullion and cash," he added. "There were eight of us. Americans on the train, five men and three women. We were ordered off the pullman and took refuge in an abandoned hotel building in Hurecuargo where the train had been fired.

"The bandits had stationed men in the town before we arrived and a number were passengers. The chief sat in the back part of the first car and as we neared the town he arose, walking to the front end, whirled and the soldiers were surrounded and overpowered before they had a chance to shoot.

"Nobody will ever know how many were killed because the train and bodies were burned, but I saw the whole end of a car piled with the bodies of soldiers. Two women were shot, but accidentally, I think.

"I have been working on a railway construction gang about 100 miles from Guadalajara. Men come to work with a gun and two rows of cartridges in their belts."

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO RUN NEW HAVEN-HARTFORD BUSSES

HARTFORD, Jan. 14.—(AP) — The most important motor concession granted the "New Haven' road in Connecticut, through its subsidiary, the New England Transportation company was given a decision today by the public utilities commission allowing the company to operate busses between Hartford and New Haven. The motor transportation service, according to the company's present plans, will be local between various stations along the main highway, superseding local train stops that have been announced and others under contemplation.

Schedules of busses, according to the franchise certificate, will be hourly between the various points and practically the same fares as now in operation on the steam lines will be maintained.

Besides directly or indirectly affecting Hartford and New Haven, the proposed substitution of busses for local train service at various points between the cities will affect such populous centers as Meriden, Berlin and Wallingford.

According to the plans outlined to the commission, such local stops as Parkville, Elmwood, Newington, Yalesville, Wallingford, Quinnipiac, and North Haven might be affected by substitution of motor busses for local passenger train service. Definite plans for this substitution, however, have not been made by the road or its subsidiary.

ACQUITED ON CHARGE OF ASSAULTING DETECTIVE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 14.—(AP) — So slender ad small she looked lost withslender and small of an ordinary swivel chair in the criminal court of common pleas, Mrs. Emily Menard, proprietor of a rooming house at 258 Courtland street, went to trial this afternoon, charged with having assaulted a robust detective sergeant of the police department. A jury promptly declared she was not guilty.

Mrs. Menard was arrested last August on the allegation that she struck Detective Sergeant Robert McCullough, ripping one of his ears bloodily with a ring, and ordered him from her home after he had been summoned there because of a misunderstanding between two young men roomers and herself.

Cardinal Mercier Very Enfeebled

BRUSSELS, Jan. 14—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier continues in a very enfeebled condition. After a consultation of the attending physicians this evening, no bulletin was issued, which is interpreted as an unfavorable sign. There appears to be no doubt about the gravity of the case, but the Associated Press correspondent is informed that there is no immediate danger.

SENATE RUSHES WORK ON THE TAX REDUCTION BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.——An offer to set February 10 or earlier as a date for a final vote on passage of the tax reduction bill was made to the senate today by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, spokesman for the democratic members of the finance committee, which is considering the measure.

The proposal met with approval from Chairman Smoot of the committee, and Senator Simmons said he would put his proposition up to the senate after debate on the bill had started.

The North Carolina senator, who is ranking democrat on the committee, told the senate he made this offer to stop "this cowardly propaganda emanating from administration sources and papers that the determination of democrats to remedy the bill by proposing their substitute would delay reduction beyond March 15, when first income tax installments are due."

Agreement for a vote on the date named would continue the revenue bill on the record breaking course set by its speedy passage in the house, and would assure application of tax reduction by March 15.

Rushing its consideration of the bill, the finance committee today acted upon several controversial items, including the provision repealing the law allowing publication of amounts of income-tax returns. No record was taken on approval of this proposition but Senator Simmons was said to have reserved the right to present an amendment proposing continuance of publicity.

The committee also accepted the following provisions of the house bill.

Repeal of the stamp taxes on conveyances in deeds, instruments or writing.

Repeal of the stamp taxes on proxies for voting and grants of power of attorney.

Reduction of alcohol tax of $2.50 a gallon to $1.65 after January 1 1927, and to $1.10 after January 1, 1928.

Creation of a tax of one cent a gallon on cereal beverages to give the prohibition bureau the right to inspect breweries.

In addition, the committee also voted for repeal of the stamp taxes on custom house entries and withdrawals and on steamship passages tickets, which were not touched by the house.

Reduction of the alcohol levy had been strenously opposed by drug manufacturers on the ground that it would stimulate bootlegging and patent medicine manufacturing. But the house provision was retained by a vote of 7 to 6.

PROPOSALS DISCUSSED FOR FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The controverted question of how to treat the farm surplus angle of farm relief legislation was revived today in two of three separate quarters where agricultural proposals were discussed, with various farm leaders declaring for non-interference by the government in any plan for handling crops for export.

Although three formal addresses were on the program of the fourth national co-operative marketing conference, including one by Secretary Jardine, only one, that of Carl Williams, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman and member of the executive committee of the co-operatives' national council, was devoted to the surplus crop problem, which has split the conference into two groups.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

World court debate went forward in the senate.

Secretary Jardine endorsed the Haugen co-operative marketing bill.

Another investigation of aviation was ordered by the house military committee.

The house naval committee continued inquiry as the replacement of the Shenandoah.

The senate finance committee approved the house action in banning income tax pjublicity.

Passage of the new railroad labor bill was urged before the senate interstate commerce committee.

A favorable trade balance for the United States of $684,517,397 was shown in commerce department figures.

PLANS FOR STABILIZATION OF THE SUGAR INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Plans for stabilization of the sugar industry, possibly through new arrangements to finance the movement of the crop and through new groupings of some of the producing companies, were reported today to be under consideration by Wall street banking interests prominently identified with the sugar trade.

Bankers indicated that any steps for the stabilization of the industry probably would take the form of improving the position of the various companies rather than through any attempt to control price movements.

TWO MEN PERISHED IN FIRE AT ONAWAY, MICH.

ONAWAY, Mich., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two men lost their lives and two others are missing in the fire that destroyed the American Wood Rim Co. plant here today. The estimated loss is $1,000,000.

Large quantities of manufactured articles and raw material consumed by the fire are given as the reason for the great loss.

The fire started early in the morning in the sterling wheel department and was not brought under control until after noon, a blizzard handicapping the fire fighters.

U. S. Foreign Trade Greatest in History

Total of $4,908,743 Regarded as F... High Deg... rity.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The foreign trade of the United States for 1925 was the greatest of any year in history, in volume though not in value, Secretary Hoover announced today, holding that the totlas were evidence of a degree of prosperity higher than before experienced.

The year's exports were valued at $4,908,743,259 and the imports at $4,224,225,963, leaving a favorable commodity trade balance of $684,517,297. For 1925, exports were valued at $4,590,983,845, and imports of $981,021,266. Figures on the volume were not available, the record being calculated on the basis of annual price fluctuations.

Mr. Hoover explained that in 1919 and 1920, foreign trade figures had reached higher totals than in 1925, but that the war-inflated level of prices then prevailing had caused these totals, the volume of the trade being much lower than that of last year.

"It was the greatest trade record for five years as to monetary value," he said, "and the greatest as to quantity ever experienced in our history. It illustrates the ability of the United States to absorb without difficulty to its industrial establishment an immense volume of imports from abroad, and it likewise illustrates the abilities of our own industries to meet competition abroad and dispose of their own products.

REQUEST CONN. ACCOUNTANTS IN GILPATRIC INVESTIGATION

HARTFORD, Jan. 14—(AP)—Notwithstanding the announced decision of the special committee on investigation of G. Harold Gilpatric's transactions as state treasurer, to engage public accountants from outside the state, both Governor Trumbull and Ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, chairman of the special committee, are receiving letters in behalf of various Connecticut accountants.

Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National bank of Putnam, which was wrecked by Gilpatric's defalcations as its cashier, has written Chairman Holcomb at his home in Southington, urging the appointment of Hadfield, Rothwell and Soule, of this city for the search of the accounts, in view of the work already done on the books of the bank by Frank E. Soule, of that firm.

Mr. Soule has spent several months in Putnam delving into the complicated records left by the defaulting cashier, not to mention those handled by former Assistant Cashier Guy L. Baker, self-confessed embezzler of $16,30 of the funds at the bank.

Receiver Coffin takes the view that much of the work on the books done by Soule up to now will have to be duplicated in the new investigation if other auditors are engaged by the state.

The statement of the governor's committee, as given out by Secretary Charles G. Morris after the meeting of Monday, said that the committee was unanimous in its decision to go outside for accountants, in order to avoid the selection of any firm which might be prejudiced in the Gilpatric case.

PROPOSAL MADE TO BRING GILPATRIC TO HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Jan. 14—(AP)—A proposal to bring former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric to Hartford, from the Atlanta penitentiary, to be available for questioning by various officials engaged in the effort to fathom his transactions as cashier of the First National bank, of Putnam, and as state treasurer, has been made to the department of justice in Washington.

Inquiry as to the procedure that would have to be followed to bring about the arrangement was made of the department of justice by Assistan U. S. District Attorney George H. Cohen. United States Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Berman said tonight that he understood Mr. Cohen had received a reply from the department of justice saying that the department would not object to the plan and outlining the method that would have to be followed to carry it out.

AIRPLANE BRAKE TO STOP SHIP AFTER LANDING

DAYTON, O., Jan. 14.—(AP)—First test of an airplane brake designed to stop the ship within a short distance after landing were made by army air pilots at McCook Field here today. One of the advantages of brakes on a plane which operates similar to brakes on an automobile, is that it will enable fliers to make emergency landings on small fields.

The plane must have lost nearly all of its flying speed, which settles the tail of the ship firmly on the ground, before the brake can be applied. When it is, the plane can be stopped quickly. If applied too soon, the plane will "nose over."

HUNTER INJURED BY THE DISCHARGE OF HIS GUN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—The accidental discharge of his shotgun as he was embarking on a duck hunting trip with a friend at Morgan Point, near Lighthouse, today caused severe injuries to Albert Wilkinson, 38, of 16 West avenue, Stratford. He was taken to the New Haven hospital where it was said tonight that his condition was critical.

When a short distance from shore in a small boat, the waves became choppy and Wilkinson lost his balance. It is believed that he touched he trigger of the gun. The discharge wounded him in the right side of the chest.

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TO BROADCAST 12 CONCERTS

BOSTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—For the first time in its history the Boston Symphony orchestra will broadcast its regular series of twelve winter concerts, it was announced today. The complete orchestra will go on the air from station WEEI on January 23, and every Saturday evening thereafter until the end of the session.

The fact that season ticket holders have completely filled Symphony hall for the past two seasons to the exclusion of the general public was a determining factor in the action of the trustees to authorize the broadcast.

Ponzi Representative Arrested in Boston

Charged With Violation of the Blue Sky Law in Florida Real Estate Project.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Caledonia Alviti, Boston representative of Charles Ponzi, in his new Florida real estate development project, was arrested here today on a charge of violating the blue sky law. Alviti, specifically charged with selling securities without being registered in the state as a broker or salesman, was arraigned in municipal court and required to furnish $1,000 bail. His case will come up for hearing next week.

Ponzi's last financial venture in Boston involved postal reply coupons, and a 50 per cent. profit in 45 days was advertised. He was declared insolvent after transactions running into millions, and served three and one-half years on a federal sentence for using the mails to defraud. He is under sentence of seven to nine years in Massachusetts after conviction as "a common and notorious thief," is out on bail and has carried exceptions to the supreme court.

Investigation has been conducted recently by Attorney General Jay R. Benton in the Charpon Land Syndicate operated by Ponzi and the arrest of Alviti today resulted. The local branch of the Ponzi Syndicate advertised a probable profit of 200 per cent. in sixty days. A state detective applied for the warrant on which Alviti was arrested.

The complaint charges Alviti with selling securities to Kenneth B. Backman of Cambridge. Backman is associated with the Boston Better Business Commission which complained several days ago against the syndicate to the district attorney of Suffolk county.

Ponzi's syndicate offers the sale of lots near Jacksonville. "Certificates of indebtedness" at $10 each issued to purchaser are redeemable in land or money at three times their cost, or in three lots of land.

WOULD BUILD NEW RAILROAD ACROSS PENNSYLVANIA

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago railroad's application, backed by L. F. Loree and the Harriman estate to build a new East-West line across Pennsylvania, as a link in a projected new transcontinental system, was put upon final argument today before the Interstate commerce commission.

Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state, defended the applicant, while the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and other eastern lines fighting the proposal were represented by Henry Wolf Likle.

Mr. Hughes recited the plan of Loree and the late E. H. Harriman to provide an entirely new Chicago-New York trunk line, of which the proposed Pennsylvania construction is a vital link. Existing roads in the east and west will be, in the design of the promoters, attached to it to make a through route. Unless the commission granted the application, the right of way might be lost, by appropriation to other public use, Mr. Hughes' argued, and added that the commerce commission "could not afford to indulge the notion that this country will be served indefinitely into the future by only the existing railroad systems."

Attacking the project, Mr. Likle said it would cost $300,000,000 or nearly $750,000 a mile, and that in the end would be "in the air" without reaching its objectives. The country could best be served by expanding the facilities of the existing lines, he said, and these would be threatened with a loss of earnings if the new construction should draw traffic away from them.

RIVERS ARE FROZEN IN CENTRAL PART OF FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 14—(AP)—From Paris to the sunny Riviera, through the central part of France, the rivers are frozen; the Marseilles-Perpignon air postal service has been interrupted, storms forcing down the planes; in the Jura valleys the mercury has fallen as low as 22 below zero Fahrenheit, and a tempest rages in the Mediterranean.

France is undergoing another period of unusual weather, with reports of a train wreck and five deaths directly due to the cold at various points. The Mediterranean storm forced the hospital stip Circassie, transporting wounded from Morocco to Toulon, to change her course and seek shelter in a port on the Spanish coast. An Italian twomaster was wrecked near Salins D'Hyeres, but the crew were saved.

WOMEN VOTERS TO BACK BRITISH LABOR PARTY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 14—(AP)—Women voters will be the strongest factor behind the British labor party, declared Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton former editor of the British Review of Reviews, in an address before the Radcliffe School of Politics here tonight.

The woman voter is important because she is compelling candidates and parties to make politics a human concern, she said. The women voters represent a tendency to move politics toward choosing candidates by the kind of work they do and this frees the labor party from being a class party and so strengthens it.

RELIEF FOR GERMAN AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

BERLIN, Jan. 14—(AP)—The financial relief for which German agricultural interests have been clamoring for several months will now be afforded through a cooperative arrangement arrived at by the reichsbank, the gold discount bank and the Renten Kreditanstalt, the national Agrarian Financial institution.

Although the initiative for this arrangement was taken by the reichsbank, that institution will be only indirectly concerned in its execution, which is to be carried out entirely by the Renten Kredit Anstalt.

16 MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE IN WEST VIRGINIA

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 14—(AP)—Sixteen men, possibly more, are believed to have been entombed in the number 8 mine of the Jamieson Coal and Coke company by explosion which occurred shortly before midnight.

Rescue workers from all over this region have been called to Farmington, where the mine is located. District Mine Inspector W. J. Riggleman is directing rescue work at the mine.

FRENCH PREMIER TO FORCE VOTE ON FINANCIAL ISSUE

M. Briand Declares He Will Demand Vote in Chamber of Deputies Rather Than Allow the Finance Committee to Force Resignation of the Cabinet—Left Coalition is Endeavoring to Have Former Premier Herriot Resume That Portfolio.

PARIS, Jan. 14—(AP)—M. Herriot's opening speech as president of the chamber of deputies this afternoon furnished an occasion for the coalition of the left to give him another ovation. Immediately afterward the finance committee rejected M. Doumer's stamp tax on business transactions.

The political situation can be judged by these acts. The left coalition is pressing its campaign against Finance Minister Doumer and Premier Briand, while putting former Premier Herriot forward at every opportunity and making no secret of its intention to force him back into the premiership.

It is admitted by M. Briand's friends now that his government can be saved from disaster only the votes of the moderate conservative opposition. M. Briand says nevertheless he will insist on a public debate rather than allow the action of the finance committee, which has already rejected three important provisions of M. Doumer's bill, to force the resignation of the minister of the cabinet without a discussion in the open chamber.

The premier may force the question to an issue tomorrow unless the finance committee withdraws some of its decisions, which now appears impossible. The moderates and conservatives, to whom M. Briand must look for his majority to defeat the campaign of the coalition remain hesitant.

Several of the leaders of the groups of the right declare that they would permit themselves to be duped if they aided the Briand cabinet now, as the premier was one of the first to break the "sacred union" of the parties that existed throughout the war, and that even if saved by the conservative votes, he would again cast his lot in with the coalition of the left.

The committee, after examining the Cartel counter-project, decided to present its report to the chamber Saturday, after which the debate on the floor of the house will be begun, with a vote likely on Sunday.

WARNING TO OPPONENTS IN SENATE OF WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Senate opponents of America adhesion to the world court were shown today that they must either talk or vote.

After the resolution of adhesion had been debated for more than four hours, Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, in charge of the fight for ratification, insisted that the senate remain in session, remarking that the proponents had been "very lenient."

This move apparently took the opposition by surprise. Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, who in a short time before had made a second argument against the ratification resolution, announced that he would take the floor again, and after some hesitation suggested the absence of a quorum.

Upon the conclusion of the call of the senate, Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, spoke for half an hour against the resolution, and then a recess was taken until tomorrow. In concluding his remarks, the South Carolina senator said he was "a good soldier and obeyed orders," and added that he "might find it necessary to speak again on this subject."

Senator Lenroot said privately that he had served notice on Senator Borah that in the future the opponents must carry the burden of debate unless they are ready for the issue to come to a vote. He added that a vote on the adhesion resolution was not imminent today, since this would have to be preceded by a reading of the protocol and disposition of the various reservations which individual senators have proposed.

MAN PICKED UP ON DORY THIRTY MILES AT SEA

CAPE MAY, N. J., Jan. 14—(AP)—A man who gives his name as John Mitchell was picked up in an open fishing dory thirty miles east of Absecon Light today by CG-292 in command of Captain C. H. Martlett.

Mitchell was found rowing about within hailing distance of a rum running schooner, which would have been his only source of protection should he have met with trouble.

Mitchell stated that he had shipped aboard the fishing schooner Allen, out of Boston and Newport, three days ago and when the ship reached this section of the coast he was put afloat in a dory to fix a buoy. He said that while he was trying to find the buoy his ship sailed without picking him up again.

According to officials at the coast guard base, a suspicion that Mitchell had been put afloat by the rum schooner to make a contact with the mainland is very strong.

FIRE DAMAGED CHATEAU FRONTENAC HOTEL, QUEBEC

QUEBEC, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The old wing of the Chateau Frontenac Hotel, constructed in the French baronial style, was destroyed by fire tonight. The fires started in the old tower facing on Dufferin Terrace, and the St. Lawrence River, and spread to other part of the structure. The upper part of the rotunda was totally demolished, while the roof of the old wing fell in.

This wing contained very few guest rooms, having been in large measure superseded by letter additions to the building.

CROWN PRINCE OF SWEDEN TO VISIT BOSTON IN MAY

BOSTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Gustaf Adolf, crown prince of Sweden is expected to visit Boston next May, it was said today by President W. L. Terhune of the Boston Square and Compass club. The club, through Carl W. Johansson, Swedish consul, has invited him to be its guest on his trip to this country to unveil a monument to John Erickson, inventor and designer of the civil war vessel Monitor. The crown prince is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

FAILED TO GIVE RIGHT OF WAY TO FIRE APPARATUS

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Convicted in the criminal court of common pleas this afternoon of violating a city ordinance in that he failed to give right of way to fire apparatus responding to an alarm, Arthur Oldroyd, 41, Benson road, Fairfield, was fined $50 and costs by Judge John J. Walsh.

TWO NAVAL MEN KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE FELL 1,000 FEET

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Lieutenant Frederick G. Kahn and Seaman first class B. L. Law, United States navy airmen, detached to the battleship West Virginia, met death here today when the airplane in which they were flying, fell 1,000 feet into San Diego Bay.

HOUSE DEBATED ITALIAN WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—The house continued its debate over the Italian war debt settlement throughout today's session, with leaders unable to bring about an agreement for a vote. They were hopeful that a vote could be reached before adjournment tomorrow.

Again assailing the proposed settlement as amounting to virtual cancellation of the obligation, opponents today drew a warm reply from those friendly to the agreement.

Opening debate Representative Hull, democrat, Tennessee, asserted that the settlement called for a cancellation of so large a part of the amount due that its acceptance was unfair to American taxpayers. He said the settlement exceeded the point where generosity to Italy ends and fairness to Americans begins, adding that he would defend Italy against any "imputation" that she would repudiate the debt, if an agreement were postponed.

Representative Rathbone, republican, Illinois, declared Italy entered the World war because it was a "good gamble", and predicted that if the settlement were rejected Premier Mussolini would be "through" and thereby make "room for liberty" in Italy.

Defending the settlement, Representative Madden, republican, Illinois, declared it represented the best terms Italy could get. When you have a "bankrupt" to deal with, he said, the best thing to do it to get "what you can."

Representative Abernethy, democrat, North Carolina, opposed the settlement, declaring "the crowd running the Italian government never will pay anything they don't have to."

Representative Boylen, democrat, New York, contended it was not a question of Mussolini, but one of helping the Italian people, and held that the good will of Italy was worth more than any concessions granted.

ITALY IN EXPERIENCING EXTREMES IN WEATHER

ROME, Jan. 14—(AP)—Winds from the ice-capped Alps and from the sun-baked Sahara fought a drawn battle over Italy today.

Rome sweltered under a hot sirocco blown across the Mediterranean, while Venice was swept by such frigid blasts that a large section of its lagoons and canals were frozen solid, cutting off the city's milk and meat supplies.

Tuscany, including Florence, was covered with snow and held in the grip of a cold wind from the northern mountains, but Rome, only a few miles away, was experiencing a sticky heat like that of late spring.

All of north Italy has been hard hit by snow and freezing weather, which continues at Milan, Genoa, Trieste and Turin. A number of deaths from the severe conditions and scores of minor injuries are reported. The lowest temperature was recorded near Belluno on the River Piave, where it was 13 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Venice is entirely blanketed by snow. Part of its surrounding waters are frozen over and the rest have been whipped into choppy seas dangerous to sailing craft.

Similar conditions are reported from the Dalmatian and Albanian coasts.

GIFT OF PUMPS TO STATE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

HARTFORD, Jan. 14——(AP)—A gift to the state forestry department of 100 double forester pumps by James L Goodwin, of Hartford, secretary and treasurer of the Talcott Mountain Forest Protective association, was announced today by State Forester Austin F. Hawes at the annual meeting of the association. The gifts amounts to about $1,750 and will be of inestimable value, Forester Hawes said, as it will allow the equipping of each district fire warden territory with at least one pump.

The association, the activities of which concern forest areas in Avon, Bloomfield, Farmington, Simsbury and West Hartford, re-elected officers at the meeting. Former Mayor Newton C. Brainard is president; Sherman Eddy, of Simsbury, vice president, and Mr. Goodwin, secretary and treasurer.

Reports for the year showed that 11,200 acres are overspread by the association in the five towns, the total wooded areas of which amounts to 34,000 acres. There were nine fires during the year, burning sixty-four acres, or about .17 of 1 per cent. of the total acreage in the towns.

$1,571,752 CATTLE, $1,842,428 SWINE IN U. S. ON JAN. 1, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The department of commerce made public preliminary estimates today showing there were $1,571,752 cattle and $1,842,428 swine on the farms of the United States, January 1, 1925.

The figures, based on dairy cows was estimated at 17,760,851, a decrease of 10 per cent. from the 1920 figures. Beef cows number 15,066,795, a decline of 19.3 per cent.

PRIZES AWARDED AT DOG SHOW THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 14—Hundreds of fanciers continued to show their interest in the poultry and small stock show being staged this week at the state armory on Pleasant street. Although the attendance during the day is somewhat light principally due to the fact that Willimantic is an industrial city, crowds gather in the evening. The opening was attended by over 600 people.

F. O. Grasbeck, of Hartford, who was in charge of the judging in the sporting dog class Wednesday, made the following awards:

English setter puppies—Mohawk Nellie, first; Chief, second; Flapper, third; Countess, fourth; and Paddy fifth, all owned by Edward Belek of North Windham.

Novice dogs—Count, first, J. T. Nichols of this city; Dash, second, J. T. Nichols; Mohawk Prince, third, Edward Belek; and Tony Mohawk, fourth, Edward Belek.

Novice bitches—Mohawk Queenie, first; Lady Scissors, second; both owned by Mr. Belek. Count owned by J. T. Nichols of this city was selected as the best setter in the show and in the novice Irish setters, Mordan D. Baker's Beauty De Sorel was given first prize.

Cocker spaniel puppies—Nomid Wady, first, Edward Belek, owner.

Cocker spaniel novice dogs—Nomid Letter, 3rd, first prize and Nomid Jerry, second, owned by Edward Belek. Cocker spaniel limit dogs—Nomid Black Jim, first, and Cocker spaniel limit bitches—Nomid Egypt, first, and Cocker spaniel open dogs—Nomid Lottery 4th, all owned by Edward Belek.

Cocker spaniel limit bitches part colored—Nomid Tan, first, Edward Belek, owner. In the cocker spaniel division the champion dog selected was Nomid Lottery 4th, and the champion bitch, Nomid Glory 2nd. Nomid Lottery 4th was the best cocker spaniel in the show.

Fox hounds—Spot, Alma Robinson of North Coventry, owner, first; New England Major, Hugh T. Bromley, Storrs, second; Spot was declared the best fox hound. All of the prizes in the fox hound puppy class were captured by four puppies owned by Arthur Hall.

Miss Ramona Knapp of Stafford Springs was in charge of the big division of the show Thursday when various of police dogs and Scotch collies were exhibited. The non-sporting and toy dogs will be exhibited Friday in charge of Miss Mary Twomey of this city and Miss Evelyn.

Thomas Kennedy and his trained bears from Connecticut Agricultural college won much applause at the show Thursday evening. Two distinguished poultry men who visited the show Thursday were S. B. Twining of Yardley, Pa., one of the oldest fanciers in the country and S. B. Spooner of Providence, R. I. and Dighton, Mass., who is one of the largest individual exhibitors at the show. Mr. Spooner has about 150 pigeons of wide variety on exhibition. Among some of the birds is the beautiful Jacobins which draws its feathered hood about its head much like a woman draws up her fur collar; the Russian Trumpeter with its heavy boots; the dainty Frill-back which appears to have been made with white tissue paper; the priest and nun and archangels, old breeds from France; the wise looking English owls; the tall hen pigeons, bred by crossing a pigeon and hanty hen and the rare chocolate spangled priest pigeon which is now of very few in existence. Among a variety of hens which Mr. Spooner is exhibiting are the silken Japanese hen, which is covered with a fur-like feather and the Japanese Phoenix long tails. Of the latter breed the only place where they can be seen besides at the show is at the New York Zoo where they are considered a great variety. Mr. Spooner has also entered two Blue Homers and one tri-colored Merle in the pigeon show division. On Saturday, Mr. Spooner will release a band of his Homer pigeons and allow them to return over the 70 mile journey to Dighton, Mass., by the unaided air route. One of the Homer pigeons which Mr. Spooner is exhibiting flew directly back home from Buffalo, N. Y., over 400 miles some time ago.

About six o'clock Thursday evening the much advertised "turk-hens," which were being anxiously awaited, arrived by express and immediately commanded attraction. There are two of this variety and both are freak fowls between a turkey and a hen. The male of the pair is nearly the size of a female turkey. It has a turkey body and turkey neck but a genuine hen's head. The other has a normal size hen's body, a chicken neck and a turkey head which is decidedly out of proportion to the rest of the make-up.

Others challenges for old-fashion championships were forthcoming here Thursday when John B. Ethridge of Hartford, who drives a mail coach from that town to North Windham, with occasion trips to this city, announced that he had a team of four couples whom he would pit against all comers for an old-fashioned square dance championship of New England. He doesn't care a great deal whether the dance comes from as long as they play the old familiar tunes for quadrilles, lancers, etc., but he would prefer a fiddler who knows the same and his first choice in this light is Jonathan F. Stafford, his fellow townsman, who is now playing an engagement at a Boston theatre.

Long John Collins, 60, of South Chaplin came through with a challenge Thursday to play anyone to a knockout for fun, money or marbles in a New England harmonica championship contest. Long John states that he cannot travel far from home but he is willing to meet all aspirants. During the Civil War Collins was billed at variety theatres as The Windham Phenomenon, World's Champion Harmonica Player and as far as he knows he still retains the championship of the universe.

Samuel Mullen died at the U. S. Naval hospital at Brooklyn, N. Y., Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. He leaves two brothers, Theodore Mullen of South Windham and Arthur D. Mullen of Woonsocket, R. I.; one sister, Miss Celina M. Mullen of Woonsocket; and several nieces and nephews. The deceased was a former resident of this city and a Spanish War veteran having been affiliated with A. C. Tyler Camp, No. 8, U. S. W. V. of this city. He was also a member of San Jose Council No. 14, Knights of Columbus.

Two aliens, Peter Sank and Fres Shuba, Chaplin farmers, were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Charles H. Huss of the Chaplin town court Wednesday evening, charged with violation of the state statute prohibiting possession of firearms by aliens. Deputy Warden John Brecks of Chaplin received the complaints in the case and made a report to State Wardens Buck of Meriden and Watson of New London, who conducted an investigation. Grand Juror F. W. Landon prosecuted the case. Sank and Shuba both pleaded guilty to the charge and the nominal fine of $1.00 and costs amounting to $10 was imposed and paid in each case. At the suggestion of the court and wardens Sank and Shuba signified that they would soon make application for citizenship papers.

The concluding stanza of the work of painting the interior of the town building was started this week when the board of selectmen voted to have the corridor of the High street entrance and the corridor, walls and side rooms adjoining the main auditorium repainted. It is also possible that the auditorium proper will be done over and this will complete the work. During the past two years all other rooms in the building were redecorated at various times.

Mrs. Christopher C. Case was hostess at a luncheon and bridge party at her home Wednesday afternoon in honor of her cousin, Mrs. W. R. L. McBee. Decorations of pink carnations and white paper narcissus were used. Three tables of auctions were in play, Mrs. Homer M. Harrington winning first prize and Mrs. Stanley J. Sumner, consolation. Mrs. W. H. Hall of South Willington and Mrs. F. Russell Smith of Norwich, mother and sister respectively of Mrs. McBee were among the out-of-town guests.

Joseph Bousa, employed by the Bousa Motor Sales company, was painfully injured last Tuesday and narrowly escaped losing the sight of both eyes when a hydrometer, which he was using to test a battery, exploded and the acid sprayed into his face. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital and treated by Dr. Hendry. His condition was much improved Thursday.

Hundreds of children are using the designated hills in the city for coasting purposes. The inclines are heavily dotted with every description of sliding vehicle during the noon hour and after the closing of the schools. Mayor John C. Tracy and Chief of Police Allan McArthur met and eliminated Mansfield avenue for coasting, changing it to Windham street.

Archibald W. Buchanan, Sr., of Mansfield Center, agent for the state board of education, met four children between the ages of 14 and 16 years Thursday and gave them the required examinations for employment certificates.

"Charlie" Esker was back among his friends on the street Thursday for the first time in over a week. He recently injured his foot when he stepped on a nail, which protruded through his shoe and into the flesh of his heel, causing an infection.

Some twenty-five women met at the Nurses' Home, Wednesday, and assisted the committee which is arranging for a fancy goods booth for the coming carnival of the St. Joseph's Hospital auxiliary.

Officer Robert Burnes of the Stafford Springs barracks was kept unusually busy Thursday, considering the time of the year, in meeting with applicants for motor vehicle drivers' licenses. He was at the police headquarters from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

A social afternoon is to be held in St. Joseph's hall this Friday afternoon by the Catholic Women's Welfare council. Cards will be played.

Brief Notes

HEAR ABOUT STATE HIGHWAY DEVELOPMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—With Commissioner John A. MacDonald and Clifton Nichols of the state highway department, members of the Rotary club and about 20 others, as guests of the Willimantic Exchange club, were entertained in royal manner in the Windham Center school auditorium Wednesday evening. Covers were laid for about 35 and a delightful chicken dinner was served by the ladies of Windham. President Egbert A. Case of the Exchange club, presided over the session and welcomed the visitors. The meeting opened at 6:30 o'clock and a rapid series of speeches, songs and feature acts enlivened the gathering until 9:30 o'clock, when adjournment was taken. The first speaker was John F. Ahern, president of the Rotary, who proffered the gratitude of the Rotarians for the invitation to the meeting. Chairman Case then introduced the gentleman from Keith's, that great satellite of old time fiddlers and favorite of Henry Ford, Mellie Dunham, who was Albert O'Neill, of this city, disguised to carry the part. Mellie's act was cleverly carried out and brought much applause. As quiet began to settle over the audience Alfred P. Abbe, in the role of a police officer, pounded through the door escorting Robert E. Mitchell, city engineer of Willimantic. Edwin J. Donnelly was called as judge and the case was tried on the platform. The tender secrets of Willimantic's liquid situation were aired and the man under arrest proved his innocence.

George Stiles, chairman of the speaker's committee, then introduced John MacDonald, state highway commissioner. The latter gave interesting data on the highway problem, pointing out three periods of progress since the inception of the department in 1895, and giving figures showing the growing construction of roads since that date and the increasing cost. Within the next eight years he said, 14,000 more miles of highway should be constructed or rebuilt at an approximate cost of $70,000,000. He told of the importance of highways to prosperity. Traffic in this state is increasing at the rate of 20 per cent. a year. Mr. Nichols, of Hartford, favored with brief remarks. Dr. R. Bullock Jones, who was pianist for the evening, and Albert O'Neill, violinist, rendered favorite selections.

At an unexpected moment, Red Grange, the football star of Illinois, in full gridiron regalia and carrying ice tongs, representative of his work before fortune favored, dashed into the room, proclaiming that his father was old Joe Peck, of Wheaton, Ills. Red spoke from the shoulder and told how he became prominent. At the close of his talk the pigskin warrior suddenly denied that he was Red Grange. He donned a pair of tortoise shell glasses and made known his identity as Harold Lloyd. Edwin L. Donnelly was the impersonator of the duo characters. More songs followed including Old MacDonald Had a Farm, in honor of Commissioner MacDonald. Harry W. Standish was song leader and committed himself in a most able manner. Excellent dinner music was furnished by the youthful Melody Boys' orchestra. Other than the speakers and members of the Rotary club, the guests included: Albert O'Neill, Charles F. Curran, William E. Jackson, Dr. Charles Lamoure, of Mansfield; John F. Collins, Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro, Selectman Charles Larrabee, H. Clinton Latirop, Clinton C. Wood, Dr. C. M. Scripture, Charles Larcomb, Albert Welch, Rev. Henry E. Quinn, Rev. Charles M. Kelley, Clifford J. Alpaugh, William S. Maine, Arthur L. Clerk, Daniel Flaherty, of Storrs; Judge L. J. Storrs, of Storrs; Jay E. Grant, Cassius Barstow, of Windham; Walter Parsons, of Windham; Isaac Johnson, J. L. Hypes, of Storrs; James H. Johnson, of Scotland; Ernest R. Bottomley, Roy McBee and Sydney B. Alling.

Engine company, No. 1, was called out by a still alarm at 2:50 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, to a chimney fire at 20 Pearl street, in a residence occupied by George K. Allen and others, and owned by Edward Latham. Three gallons of chemical were used.

FRANK W. BANCROFT'S FUNERAL HELD THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 14—The funeral services of Frank W. Bancroft were held Thursday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, in Pachaug.

Rev. J. W. Crater, pastor of the Methodist church in Jewett City, was the officiating clergyman. During the service, which was largely attended, Mrs. George H. Prior, sang Saved by Grace, and Tennyson's Crossing the Bar.

Many beautiful flowers, evidenced the tender memories of relatives and friends, who were present from Worcester, New York, New Haven, Willington, and Hartford.

Home friends were the bearers, including, Arba Browning, James Crary, Frank Morgan, W. A. Edmond, Andrew Chesbro, Jacob Goldstein. Burial was in the Pachaug cemetery.

A meeting of unusual interest was held at the home of Mrs. G. H. Jennings Wednesday afternoon when Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R. entertained the state regent, Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissell, of Southington. It was regretted that Vice State Regent, Miss Katharine Arnold Nettleton, who was also to have been a guest was detained on account of illness. That the chapter appreciated the visit from the state regent was evidenced by the large attendance, only three resident members being absent.

The regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, presided over the business meeting, at which time the chapter voted to pay its quota toward the Memorial Continial Hall Library fund, the publication of the Manual for Immigrants and the International college at Springfield, Mass.

The following alternates to the D. A. R. congress were elected: Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, Miss M. Adelaide Burdick, Mrs. H. E. Olson, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Mrs. C. T. Armstrong, Mrs. F. C. Whiting, Miss Idella Young, Mrs. Eva Burdick and Mrs. B. C. Bliss. This chapter is entitled to but one delegate and the regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, serves in this capacity.

The musical program was in charge of Miss Ida I. Foster. Mrs. George H. Prior, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ellen R. Prior, sang My Little House, by Rohrer and as an encore, The Hoot Owl, by Shirley Dean Nevin. Mrs. Prior and her daughter sang as a duet, I would That My Love, by Mendelsshon and Like a Lark, by Abt, as an encore.

The feature of the afternoon was an address by the state regent, Mrs. Bissell spoke of the manual which the society publishes for immigrants. It is now published in 14 languages besides English and the society places copies in the hands of immigrants coming to our shores. This little book which describes our American ideals, institutions and laws, is doing much to combat the radical literature so prolific in these days. This manual originated with Connecticut Daughters.

Connecticut Daughters have also paid $3,500 for one of a chime of 13 bells to be dedicated at Valley Forge July 4th of this year. These chimes represent and are given by the Daughters of the 13 original colonies.

Mrs. Bissell spoke of the proposed New Auditorium to be built in Washington, D. C., on property owned by the National society. The growth of the society has been rapid, there now being 152,000 active members, that the auditorium in Memorial Continental Hall is not large enough to accommodate the present number of delegates to the Continental Congress held in April each year. This New Auditorium is to cost $1,825,000 and is to be financed mainly by an issue of 6 per cent coupon bonds to mature in 20 years. Connecticut Daughters' quota of $62,000, based on $10 per members, has already been oversubscribed to the amount of $88,000. Miss Ida I. Foster is the bond chairman for this chapter.

In closing Mrs. Bissell said that the Daughters of the American Revolution is a working and no a social organization. Mrs. Bissell then reminded those present of the aims and objects of the society, "To perpetuate the memory and the spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence. To hersih, maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom, to foster truep atriotism and love of country and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessinss of liberty."

During the social hour gifts for the immigrants at Ellis Island were opened, bouquets were presented to Mrs. Bissell and Mrs. Prior by the chapter. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Arthur M. Brown.

Emery Campbell, who has been ill for some time, went to Backus hospital for an operation on Thursday.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church met at the home of Mrs. G. H. Jennings Thursday afternoon. Mrs. F. E. Robinson, president, presided. The annual reports were given. The apportionment of $174, was raised, besides other sums, and there is $27 in the treasury. A barrel is to be packed to be sent to Marian, Alabama, and a box of silks, cottons, hooks, etc., to go to Marquez, New Mexico. A program on different branches of the Mission work in the country was most instructive. Mrs. Jennings served cocoa and wafers.

Miss Helen Hull and Mrs. Harry Carlson have been in Boston for a few days.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, acid fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Excessive hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. This acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis, accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bisurated Magnesia and only will the pain vanish but the meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to take, is cost a trifle and is not an ad-

A Record of Consistency

From its first appearance eighteen years ago to the present, the Velie car has consistently maintained a reputation for Value—for the finest Value to be obtained at the price. That reputation was its original aim and, achieved at the very start, has always been jealously guarded. That it has remained untouched and has, in fact, been steadily increased, is a record that not many have equalled and one of which the Velie Corporation is justly proud.

Today, with new resources permitting ever more progressive policies behind the Velie, it is our intention to enhance that reputation still further—to maintain the thought that Velie and Value are almost interchangeable words.

DANIELSON

TWO SIDES TO PARKING SITUATION IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—Once more the matter of parking in Main street comes up for a round or two of pulling and hauling. Renewed interest in the subject follows this week's action of the court of burgesses in approving a plan to allow unrestricted parking for a period of sixty minutes in that section of Main street between the Exchange block on one side of the street, and the Brooklyn Savings bank on the other side southward to the railroad crossing.

This has been a no-parking area both sides of the street, for a number of years. It was made so to avoid a complete blockade of the street by parked cars and trolley cars at such times as a trolley car came along and made the Danielson Center car stop to discharge and receive passengers. Now that the trolley cars have passed out of the picture, pressure has been exerted to lift the ban against parking in this area and the borough fathers have acquiesced. The new arrangement will become effective in about a month.

In considering parking regulations here, as in every other town that has a traffic problem, it has been said many times before that no parking rules can be set down that will be 100 per cent. pleasing to everyone. That is beyond the bounds of possibility. The best that can be hoped for is an approximately satisfactory set of regulations.

The ban about to be lifted on parking in the area referred of is to be removed at the behest of business concerns in the affected zone. These concerns believe there is to be benefit for them and convenience for their patrons in the privileges of parking at their doors, and there probably is something in that viewpoint. These houses are pleased at the concession made them and which places them on a par with other business houses along the street.

The other side is equally interesting. The Connecticut company's motor coaches have replaced that corporation's trolley cars through this territory. The coaches continue to make the Danielson center stop as did the trolleys, and have found the no-parking area convenient for pulling up to the curb for brief stops to discharge and receive passengers. With this privilege removed, as it will be except for hit or miss traffic density, the coaches will be obligated to stop practically in the center of the street and passengers will have to run the gauntlet of moving machines in getting from the sidewalk to the coach or vice versa. It may be argued as to this that the thing is done at other stops, but the point is that the Danielson Center stop has been the important one here for years and people have long since come into the habit of waiting there for transportation and in getting off there making the stops longer than at other points in the business section. Incidentally, the Connecticut company's representatives are not saying anything about the matter, but there is reason to believe they are doing a lot of thinking. The action does not seem to fit in at all with a Chamber of Commerce plan to develop Danielson as an important coach line center. The action concededly is going to handicap the Connecticut company and obstruct its efforts to give Danielson a very adequate coach service, every convenience of the public considered.

Discussion of the matter, pro and con, Thursday developed the fact that there are business houses south of the railroad crossing that will gladly make every effort to secure from the court of burgesses a no-parking concession in front of the buildings they occupy if the Connecticut company will agree to change its Danielson Center stop from where it now is, to locations in front of their business places. Down in that section the idea seems to be somewhat along the line of reasoning that there is a better prospect of getting business out of a coach load of passengers let off at their doors than there is from the owner of a private car, who may leave his machine standing in the street for an hour and yet spend no money at all in the immediate vicinity.

Newly elected directors of the Danielson Rod and Gun club are: Harold Attwood, Richard D. Banigan, F. E. Bitgood, L. S. Ingalls, William M. Franklin, Charles Franklin, Armand Henesault, Ira A. Warren, Henry E. Magoon, William Nuttall, Francis E. Storer. Officers of the organization are to be elected at the next meeting of the board of directors. Annual reports of the organization show that its funds were practically doubled during 1925. The organization has 208 paid up members. Nearly 250 persons came out Wednesday evening for the meeting of the organization, with a special showing of wild life pictures, at the Majestic theatre. During the past year activities of the club have included the release of thousands of trout in streams within a few miles of Danielson; the release of bass in Old Killingly pond, release of pheasants, feeding of wild game birds during the winter season and holding of trap shooting contests at the traps of the club in the Allen hill section. The club plans to be very active during 1926, and to carry on its program of restocking of brooks and fields with fish and game.

For a date during the coming week, the S. N. E. Telephone company has arranged a demonstration, to which the public will be bidden, at which the workings of a modern switchboard will be shown by expert demonstrators. This demonstration will let those interested see how calls are handled and the different operations performed an operator in putting through a subscriber's call. The demonstration will be enlivened by humorous skits, having to do with everyday happenings in handling the calls of an exchange. The demonstration is to be held in some hall in the borough.

Assessors of the town of Killingly have a final meeting scheduled before they release a tabulation of their figures showing the newly completed grand list of the town. While no definite statement may be made at this time as to what the new list will show, it is understood that the figures will show a very substantial increase in the assessed valuation of the town over the figures of a year ago.

Goodyear people are interested in the proposal of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce for the improvement of the highway between Danielson and Goodyear via North and Maple streets. This is the short route to Goodyear and would come into much more general use if it were in good condition. They feel that a good gravel road would probably serve all purposes very well.

Two things that have claimed general public attention this winter are not operating to the benefit of railroad men. One of these things is the coal strike, the other is the development of the motor coach service. The strike has meant a reduction of the number of freight trains operating over the New Haven and the introduction of motor coaches is bringing a drastic reduction in the number of passenger trains on the system. Both of these things mean less work for railroad men, and in this section of eastern Connecticut it is discussed at length by this class of workers.

When spring comes there will be an opportunity to make certain street improvements that have sort of gone by default for several years. Removal of trolley rails in Cottage street between Furnace and Water streets and removal of the rails in Furnace street will allow of repairing these streets so that they will not be in the more or less dangerous condition for travel that they have been for a long time. This is particularly true under the railroad bridge over Cottage street. The re-arrangement that is to be looked for will allow of using the full width of the street at this point, something hardly possible with the trolley track in place.

The first session of the town court in a number of days was held Thursday morning, when a case of minor importance was heard and disposed of by Judge W. Fenner Woodward.

Some of the members of the Putnam Golf club, residents here, are keeping in trim and form at an indoor club in the Pellett building.

Danielson attorneys will be at Putnam February 1, to attend memorial services arranged by the Windham county bar for Hon. Charles E. Searls and also to attend a complimentary dinner to be given in honor of Judge George A. Hinman, soon to take his place in the supreme court.

Harry F. Boyd, of the West Side, town of Brooklyn, has been nominated by Congressman Richard P. Freeman, of this district, as principal to take entrance examinations for the United States Military academy at West Point.

Announcement has been received of the marriage, on January 3, of Miss Allison Adams, of Danielson, and Ralph E. Brearley, of Dayville.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Carroll, of East Killingly, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruby, and Howard Soule.

William Norton, of North Sterling, is recovering from injuries sustained some time since, when a tree fell upon him while he was chopping.

Chile's Volunteer Firemen in 1860

Chile's "fire fans" are unlike those in the United States. Nowhere in North America does one find volunteer fire departments that purchase high-priced motor equipment and dig into their own pockets when necessary to make up deficits in operating expenses. Nor does one find volunteer fire companies purchasing the properties wherein their equipment is housed or taking turns on duty. Yet all of these interesting details are to be found in every Chilean city, large or small.

The origin of the Chilean system is interesting. According to the accepted version a fire broke out in one of Santiago's churches in the 60's and hundreds of lives were lost. A group of the leading citizens of Santiago met and voted to organize a fire company and equip it with proper apparatus. The first company outfitted itself with ladders, pails, hatchets and axes. It was made up of members of the first families, who went in for snappy uniforms, and a certain social prestige was thus established. It remains to this day, especially in Santiago and Valparaiso.

The idea of volunteer fire companies spread, the national capital having set the fashion. There probably has never been a fire department in the United States having such expensive and showy uniforms as one sees in Chile on fiestas and holiday occasions.

The man who makes a fortune in the coal business is likely to give it all a weigh.

After Sickness Get Strong Quick

New Pleasant Way to Take Cod Liver Oil—Puts On Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 Tablets—60 cents.

PUTNAM

CLAIM BAKER'S WIFE CARES FOR ANOTHER MAN NOW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14—Accustomed to sensations growing out of the wrecking of the First National Bank, Putnam's sophisticated citizens gasped again when they read the story in a newspaper that Mrs. Guy L. Baker, wife of the former assistant cashier of the bank, had been on "friendly terms" with "another man" while living in a small hotel at St. Petersburg, Fla., that she is now working in a cafeteria there and seemed unconcerned about the news from Putnam.

Mrs. Baker was Miss Ruth Galvin of South Braintree, Mass., where she was married in June, 1921. She is attractive looking, was popular here and entertained on what was thought to be a lavish scale, considering the income that her husband was supposed to have.

Mr. Baker's salary at the bank was $2,500; his chief, J. Harold Gilpatric, being state treasurer had to call on him to perform part of his duties, so paid him an additional $1,000. He is also said to have received an additional $1,000 for acting as treasurer and financial agent for the Howe-Marot school, a total of $4,500 a year. For a childless young couple in a small city this was considered a fair income, but it was not large enough to meet their expenses.

It is known that a few weeks ago Mr. Baker presented a bill to the school for salary from January 1, 1924 to August 1, 1924, at the rate of $1,000 a year. This bill has not been paid.

A special from St. Petersburg reads as follows:

"Once the wife of a Connecticut banker with a monthly allowance of $400 Mrs. Ruth Baker, wife of Guy L. Baker, of Putnam, Conn., who has confessed in Connecticut to the embezzlement of $16,300 from the First National Bank of Putnam, is waiting on tables in a cafeteria here, trying to make ends meet.

"Indifferent to the position of her husband the pretty wife is facing poverty. She has only a part time job in the cafeteria, but still she is unconcerned. Up to a short while ago when she was on friendly terms with "another man" she lived in a small hotel. A reporter who was directed to the hotel by Mrs. Baker's former landlady, found that she had taken leave of the hotel.

"Mrs. Baker seemed to be at ease about her situation, when a reporter succeeded in locating her, but she refused to discuss the affairs of her husband.

"I don't care to talk about him, she said, and made good her statement."

ROUND-UP OF FIDDLERS IN COUNTY PROJECTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14—Joe Shippee of Plainfield is not the only old fiddler in Windham County and the Sol Amusement is planning a contest to bring all players into prominence and to determine if the Plainfield man hasn't some rivals here at home.

Any fiddler, not violinist, in Putnam or surrounding towns, is eligible to take part.

Besides Mr. Shippee, there are three well known fiddlers in the county, all of whom are expected to contest in the same kind of an entertainment that proved so popular at Providence. One of these is Gus Tetreault of Putnam who is among those who contended for the honor that went to Mr. Shippee. He is a real artist with the bow although the fact was known to but a few here until his name and picture appeared in the Providence lineup. He has declared his intention of appearing in the Bradley theatre contest and he knows of two other Putnam men who think they are his superior, but he is prepared to meet them at any time.

The winner of second honors at Providence was Henry Fray, 63, of Baltouville, and another of the contestants was Jonathan Whitford, 72, of Eastford.

George Oscar Rose is another fiddler who has signified his intention of contending for the prize. If his health will permit R. L. Bullard of Killingly avenue will be much in evidence when the honors are distributed. His sight is almost gone, but this is no impediment as these fiddlers do not use a written score. Prior to ten years ago Mr. Bullard was known all over the country as a fiddler for dances.

If they can be induced to take part, there are a score in the county who can play the old time tunes.

There are a dozen eligibles here in Putnam and all of them are growing interested. It is difficult for a real fiddler to keep his arms and feet still when the music begins.

POMFRET SCHOOL DECISION—COUNSEL TAKES APPEAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14—John F. Carpenter, one of the attorneys for the Pomfret school, has filed an appeal from the decision of the supreme court which held that the property of the school was not exempt from taxation by the town of Pomfret.

FLORIDA THE PLACE TO SELL AUTOMOBILES AND LAND

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14—E. C. Rogers and Frank S. Whitman, left here on Thursday by automobile for Ft. Myers, Florida. Mr. Rogers owns 1,200 acres of valuable land in that vicinity. Six weeks ago he drove down in his own car, a Cadillac limousine. He was called back unexpectedly to take care of a business matter and as he had to make the return trip by rail he looked around for a place in which he could leave his car for a few weeks. While making inquiries he was offered three times the price at which he could have sold his car here, and immediately accepted the offer.

To make the second trip he Mr Whitman bought a limousine that has been but little used and it is very probable that that also will be sold in Florida. There is a freight embargo, due to congested freight conditions, that prevents automobiles from being shipped into that state by freight, so a good machine commands an exceptional price.

Esther Antikol, six year old daughter of Samuel Antikol, dealer in old iron and junk, was struck by an automobile driven by Otto Smith substitute at the Putnam High school late Wednesday afternoon. Mr Smith had just started from the High school building and was about a square away from on School street when he had to pull his car, a Ford coupe, sharply to one side to avoid collision with a heavy truck. As he did so the little girl ran from in front of her home out into the street and was knocked down by the rear fender of his car. Mr. Smith picked the child up and placed her in his car and after notifying her family of what had happened took her to the Day Kimball hospital. She was kept over night under observation. Thursday morning the doctors decided that she had not been injured, aside from slight bruises.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce directors, the first step was taken toward an attempt to work out a plan for the revaluation of taxable property in the town of Putnam, on just and equitable lines. A committee of three from the Chamber of Commerce will be named to confer with three members of the Rotary club, the three assessors of the town, the three members of the board of relief, the three selectmen and three members of the city council. Thomas deCoudres, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was authorized and directed to arrange a conference of these men to consider the matter of revaluation with a view to devising a plan or plans for carrying it out.

These recommendations will be reported to a meeting of the organizations that they represent, or to a citizens' meeting, for suggestions or revising preliminary to their adoption or rejection.

As the necessity for a revision of taxation values is admitted by everyone who has given it thought, it is believed that this plan will meet with general approval. People differ as to how the revision should be done, but it is believed all agree that it is an imperative necessity.

The Putnam Rotary club has gone on record as favoring revaluation, the chamber of commerce has done the same. Among the directors of the latter are two members of the finance committee of the city council, who strongly favor it. The selectmen are understood to be in favor of it and the assessors and the board of relief, who are more thoroughly acquainted with the inequalities that exist than anyone else, strongly indorse any practical plan that promises equitable relief.

Two of the town assessors were present as guests of the chamber of commerce at their meeting. They stated that there were glaring instances of inequalities—that there was a considerable proportion of local property that was down on the grand list for 75 per cent of its real value, that there was a considerable proportion that was down for 25 per cent., and the remainder ranged between these two figures.

The difficulty of devising a practical plan and the obstacles that may be encountered in the carrying out of the project were talked of frankly. But it was pointed out that other towns had solved the same problem—Middletown, Conn., was referred to as the latest—and that Putnam with its 33 mill rate, which, it has been stated, will be higher this year, can no longer afford to evade the proposition.

Members of the New Industries committee of the chamber of commerce repeated what they had stated before, that representatives of manufacturing concerns that had considered locating in Putnam lost all interest when informed of the rate of taxation.

Mr. deCoudres will take immediate steps to get in touch with the representatives of the different organizations named above and arrange for a joint meeting. It is hoped that it will be the initial step toward a long needed reform.

The annual open meeting this week of Elizabeth Lester Putnam chapter, D. A. R., was one of the largest in the history of the chapter, nearly 200 members and guests being present. With the exception of the reports of the secretary and the historian, business was suspended and Mrs. Charles Hopkins, chairman of the program committee, presented Miss Esther Rouse, who played two violin solos, Hungarian Dance, by Bohm and Shubert's Ave Marie. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Annie Ash.

The speaker of the afternoon, Miss Mary L. Paradee took her hearers with her in imagination on "A Shopping Tour Around the World." Japan and India were the chief tarrying places of the journey. Miss Paradee's exhibit of oriental costumes, basketry, beads and handiwork of various sorts was an unusual one. During the social hour the tables holding it were surrounded by members and guests who took the opportunity to examine it carefully.

Miss Paradee considers Tokio, Hong Kong and Cairo the great shopping centers of her trip. Mrs. George S. Bradley was chairman of the hostesses for the afternoon.

E. C. Rogers and Frank Whitman left early Thursday morning by automobile for Florida. Mr. Rogers owns a large tract of land near Fort Myers which has become quite valuable within the last two years.

Mrs. Charles Jacobson and children of Norwich, are visiting Mrs. Jacobson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Diamond of Grove street. Mr. Jacobson spent the week end here.

Miss Minnie Wells of South Woodstock is the guest for a few days of Mrs. Agnes Wood of Pleasant street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. P. Hayne are entertaining Mrs. Julia Landrie and daughter, Mrs. Claire Stein, of Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Henry Young of Woodstock has gone to Milford, Conn., to visit friends and relatives for a month.

Judge and Mrs. F. F. Russell and daughter, Miss Constance Russell, leave in a few days for the west coast of Florida where they expect to spend a month.

The mixed train which has been leaving Willimantic for Putnam at 5:30 a. m. has been discontinued. A new train from Willimantic to Boston will leave the former place at 3.15 p. m.

At Putnam High school gym Wednesday night the basketball team of the school beat the Trade School 32 to 13.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich, is to hold his monthly clinic at the Day Kimball hospital Tuesday, January 19.

Putnam High school basketball team is to play the 43rd division headquarters team this (Friday) evening.

The 43rd division headquarters company basketball team played the Woodstock academy team at Woodstock Tuesday evening and won, 46 to 44.

Mr. and Mrs. David Flagg, who went to Pawtucket and with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flagg of that city went to Boston, to attend a loan exhibit of early American furniture in the Park Square building. The exhibit was for the benefit of the Women's Free Hospital. Boston. George Dressler of Putnam also attended the exhibit.

The January meeting of the physicians of the vicinity was held on Tuesday evening at Day Kimball hospital. Those present were Drs. Bullard, Overlock, Perry, Todd and Pike.

ATTENDANCE INCREASING AT AUTOMOBILE SHOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—With the national automobile show nearing its close the daily attendance which registered about 50,000 today, continues to increase.

Today was army and navy day and officers and men from both branches of the service were prominent among the spectators.

Outstanding among the day's developments were the announcements of $100 price increases on some Hupmobile models and reductions of $100 in the prices of some Studebaker models.

Most of the new headlights are shaped like eggs while more luxurious fittings seems to be the scheme in most of the new cars.

Order may be heaven's first law, but it is earth's last realization.

MINE DISASTERS

As is customary the mine explosion at Wilburton, Okla., will be followed by an investigation. An endeavor will be made to determine the exact cause, whether there was any laxity in observing mine regulations and safety precautions and what should be done in the future to prevent a repetition of the disaster.

The effort to rescue the men who were in the mine must go along as rapidly as possible and unobstructed. There will be time enough after such work has been completed to set on foot any exhaustive inquiry. But there cannot be piled up any too much evidence as to what actually caused the explosion, or what should be done to prevent more trouble of the same kind.

Not all such explosions occur in Oklahoma. They occur periodically in all sections where there is coal mining. The dangers of the business have been studied and there are safety requirements which are expected to be observed. There is responsibility placed upon the mine owners and upon the miners. It is conceivable even with a careful observance of all rules that accidents will happen. They do in all other lines of endeavor and there is nothing unusual about the fact that they do in mining. But it is highly desirable that the things which are known to prevent explosions should be carefully observed.

Much has been said of late of the benefits attached to the rock dusting of mines as a prevention of explosions. At Wilburton one explanation of the explosion is that it occurred in a large accumulation of coal dust. That would seem to have been the very place where rock dusting should have been employed for the purpose of protecting the lives of men and avoiding the destruction of mine property and the interruption of production.

This is apparently one of the matters that must come in for consideration when those who undertake the examination into the cause of the destruction get busy about their work. Mine disasters come too frequently and everything possible to prevent them should be employed.

BOLIVIA INTERESTED

On more than one occasion reference has been made to the desirability of ending the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru by selling the provinces to Bolivia. Thus when the new president of Bolivia, Hernando Siles, is quoted as being in favor of such a move it does not necessarily mean that any serious effort is going to be made in that direction, or that it would succeed if it were attempted, but there are reasons for believing that such a solution would prove the best possible solution, all things considered, and would do the most for the establishment of permanent peace there.

At the present time Bolivia is a country without a seacoast, its outlet to the sea is through Arica and while it may never be shut off it naturally has ambitions to develop, and should it acquire the provinces they would serve as a buffer between Chile and Peru.

When such action has been suggested it has never been felt that Bolivia was in a position financially to make such a purchase, but different minds see new possibilities and take a different view of problems.

In view of the feeling which has prevailed between Chile and Peru over things promised and the attitude that is being taken by them relative to the plebiscite, even though both have agreed to accept it and abide by it, what is going to be the feeling after the final decision is rendered? Is each one going to bury the hatchet and live as a peaceful neighbor ever after, or is the loser going to nurse a grievance and use it as the reason for maintaining a spirit of ill will for years to come?

Purchase by Bolivia would still make it necessary to divide the proceeds over which they might be as much dispute as there is concerning the ownership of the territory, but even though it would seem to be an excellent solution, from the standpoint of Bolivia there seems to be no possibility that it will be adopted. Bolivia of course could try to buy after the adjustment now under way is made.

MEXICO AND BANDITS

Mexico had good reason to believe that the slaughter by the bandits of passengers on the train headed for Mexico City would result in a demand for punishment of the guilty. Even though care was taken to skip the foreigners the slendish acts demanded prompt breaking up of such a band of criminals, and the Mexican government has fashioned for its use, that is recognized it.

The latest depredatory could have resulted only from permitting [illegible] to go unpunished.

given to revolutionists, and greater recognition has been given to the rights of the subjects of other countries. The government has been taking a different attitude towards conditions so that it was to be expected that it would act without delay in bringing to justice those who were responsible for the horrible.

Having been put to such a test it is gratifying to note that the troops that were sent to break up the gang succeeded in doing so. Being told to bring the bandits in dead or alive they obeyed. Whether any got away is not disclosed but it is known that some were killed in the fighting and others were captured and quickly despatched. They got quick Mexican justice.

That may not serve to increase confidence in the safety of travel in Mexico, but it certainly does not offer any great encouragement for others to engage in such banditry. The Mexican government has indicated its attitude and made it plain that others can expect nothing different.

While it may be possible to point to certain laxity in regard to Mexico it certainly cannot be done in connection with the administration of punishment in this instance, and it has been made certain that those who participated in that holdup and slaughter of human beings are not going to be paroled after a short while to resume former activities and jeopardize the lives of others. Mexico has clearly indicated its disposition toward bandits.

SERVING LAKEPORTS

In connection with the proposal to develop the St. Lawrence river as a waterway that will accommodate ocean liners and make it possible for them to reach lake ports, it has always been recognized that much depends upon the attitude of Canada. The plan is supposed to be participated in jointly by both countries for the general benefit of all who may make use of the increased advantages.

While there are those who have been very enthusiastic about the possibilities there are those who are quite as much opposed, and there has always been a lukewarmness on the part of Canadians concerning it, even though it means much for the St. Lawrence valley.

It is a development that lies some distance in the future if it is ever undertaken, but just now the opposition that is being displayed in Montreal and vicinity to the project has resulted in a strengthening of sentiment toward the development of the canal line across New York state for the purpose of providing this waterway service for which the lakeports have long been clamoring.

The present canal may not be fully employed for such service as it can render, but it would offer a path for crossing the state by a much greater canal and thus keep such ocean going traffic within the country instead of sending it through Canada via the St. Lawrence, a requirement which has been opposed by many on this side of the border.

It is inevitable that there should be talk of this kind in anticipation of any development along the lines proposed, but discussion doesn't mean decision or the beginning of operations.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

For years campaign has succeeded campaign for the reduction of industrial accidents. Safety devices have been employed, greater care has been urged upon workers and guards to keep the careless away from dangerous places have been established.

The fight has been and is being carried on for the purpose of stopping that great and in many instances needless waste which comes from accidents. Prevention is far better than cure and acting upon such a principle the movement for greater safety has accomplished great good. It hasn't done away with the accidents, or the fatalities, but it has resulted in a decrease.

Figures for the different years vary quite the same as conditions vary, but there cannot fail to be satisfaction over the fact that the death rate per 100,000 in industrial accident was but 34.4 in 1924 while it was 39.6 in 1912 and rose as high as 45.7 in 1913.

This doesn't mean that such results have been attained that there can be slackening of effort in this direction. On the other hand it displays the results of efforts put forth in an excellent cause and urges their continuance. If through steady pressure it is possible to bring a greater concentration of thought upon this subject and to get the cooperation of all concerned, including those who are directly concerned still greater results are to be expected in the future. It is through constant presentation of the merits of such a movement that goals are reached. The decrease in accidents justifies the effort for further reductions, many of which are utterly needless.

CHERRY PIE DRAMA

"I'm going to have the cherry pie," the little stenographer smiled across the restaurant table at the bookkeeper who had brought her lunch. They worked in the same office, but one has small opportunity to smile in an office without being observed. "Cherry pie makes me think of the country."

"The city's always been my home; I don't know much about the country," her escort replied, looking out across the street at the blur of traffic but seeking something very far away. "I've always thought I'd like to have a farm."

"My uncle's farm is what cherry pie makes me think of," enlarged the little stenographer. "One afternoon in particular. It was when I was about 12. A rainy June day. We were driving out to my uncle's place—we lived in a town near there—and while it was still raining the sun came out and made the most gorgeous rainbow.

"It arched across the whole sky in front of us and seemed to move forward as we drove on. The trees and grass and fields had an unearthly bright look.

"By the time we reached my uncle's it had stopped raining and the sun was ready to set. The family, I remember, went into the house, but I spied a ladder against a cherry tree and made a bee line for it. I shall never forget that tree and those cherries and the sunset."

"I suppose you fell and broke your arm, or ate so much you were ill."

"It was my arm, how'd you guess?"

"I figured you were probably reaching too high and not watching."

"The ladder was slippery and not securely propped, and I was feeling the cool drops of water shower all over me from the wet tree with every branch I touched, instead of feeling for the next rung in the ladder—and the first thing I knew everybody was around me where I had hit the ground and somebody was being sent for a doctor.

"But that's neither here nor there. My arm mended; and I still have the vision from that cherry tree—the sun itself gone down, leaving a mammoth splash of gold and purple and lavender with a clear open space of clear sky, blue like a huge elongated lake filled with fairy sailboats.

"Below this brilliant sweep was a silhouette of trees that looked black, almost, against it, and between that and my tree was the broad expanse of softly moving wheat fields. I remember I was undecided which I'd rather be looking at, the sunset beyond, or the clusters of cherries overhead washed such a bright beautiful red."

"Is your uncle's farm anywhere near here?" inquired the young man, duplicating her order for cherry pie. "We might get an early start some Sunday morning and run out there with the bunch for a picnic."

"My uncle died," the little stenographer's face saddened. "He left it to my mother and after she was gone there was nobody to inherit it but me, and I haven't any idea what to do with a farm. One couldn't sit always in a cherry tree looking at sunsets."

"Is it near here?"

"Over in Michigan. Why?

"I just wondered. I'm going to tell you something. I haven't told anybody because the fellows would kid me if they knew—but I've been taking a correspondence course in agriculture, so if ever I had a chance to take up farming I'd know a little something about it."

"You—why Mr. Smithereens — a bookkeeper loving to farm!"

"Not only that, but I have a mother who was raised on a ranch and she'd live ten years longer if she could get back to the country."

"I have a bright idea," said the little stenographer in a whisper. "I'm just realizing the farm's mine and I ought to have somebody on it. Would you and your mother like to go over and take charge?"

The young man almost dropped his fork.

"Let's hurry back to the office," smiled the little stenographer when she had finished the last bit of cherry pie and had stood up in a restrained flurry of excitement, "before the hour's up I want to write my lawyer and have him get things ready for you."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, who with the Crown Princess Louise is to visit America this spring, is one of the most popular as well as one of the most democratic of royalties, and it is said he likes nothing better than to mix with his people, incognito, and overhear their usual conversation without the embarrassment they would have if they knew their future King was among them. He is known for his great tact and his knack of turning awkward questions. He was once asked what his opinion was of socialists and the democratic movement generally. "Well," he answered, "in other countries I am very much in favor of socialism and democratic ideas, but you can hardly blame me for feeling a little royalist in Sweden." The Crown Prince is the fifth in descent of the Bernadottes who have ruled over Sweden since 1818.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Another Answer to Prayer

Mr. Editor: We read all through the Bible God's great answers to faith and prayer. Daniel in the lion's den, the 3 worthies in the fiery furnace, Paul and Silas in jail, and Peter being led out of prison by answer to faith and prayer, etc. I'm going to tell of one case that came under my own observation while I was up at our Salvation Army camp meeting at Old Orchard, Maine, August, 1924. We was holding a prayer, testimony and praise meeting that Sunday morning in the tabernacle. Major Main was leading it and in his remarks, he said a woman asked him if we would all pray for her husband, an old backslider. They were living in Portland, ten miles above. Earnest beseeching prayers were offered in that meeting for the Lord to send that wife's husband to Old Orchard that day and for his conversion. We left it right there. After the preaching service in the evening one of those who went to the penitent form was this same husband, for whom he got up to give his testimony, he said, I once was a Christian but I wandered away. I stopped praying, left off reading the Bible, stopped going to church, made it miserable for my wife, got so Sunday was no more than any other day to me. My wife asked me if I wouldn't go to Old Orchard with her to the meetings and I told her, "no I hadn't got time for any foolishness." He had got to pick those apples, and it was Sunday. He said, this afternoon while he was on the ladder picking apples, it came over him all at once for him to drop everything and go to Old Orchard, and he said, "I did. I dropped everything and started just as I was on the next car. And here I am with my working clothes on, and from now on I am going with my wife the Christian way." The Bible says, There is rejoicing in Heaven over one sinner that repents, and surely there was in that grove that evening. Friends, another direct answer to prayer.

EMERY F. CAMPBELL.
Jewett City, Jan. 14, 1926.

Mr. Boardman's View

Mr. Editor: Mr. Troland admits, in today's letter, that the "Gods many and Lords many" of the heathen were invented by them. Ignorant credulous men invented "Gods many." Mr. Troland may not be ignorant, but is evidently credulous.

God is not a known or provable fact. If there is an intelligent First Cause, He has not thought it necessary to reveal Himself to us. My only knowledge of God is what others have told me, and they have no more knowledge of God than I have. This "First Cause" if there is such a thing, has evidently set the universe at work under laws, the nature of which we may, and are learning. Prayer is on the whole futile. Knowledge and intelligent action most important. As the slater realized, who while sliding down the roof, cried, "Lord 'elps us! Lord 'elps us," but when he reached the edge remarked, "Well, 'ere's for a 'ell of a drop." If you are on a sinking ship the place to pray is at the pumps.

Where did Mr. Troland study science to find matter inert, hence subject to some ulterior, exterior power? Matter is not inert, but on the whole in constant motion, attracting and repelling other particles of matter.

Physical attraction as Force of Gravity. Chemical affinity creating new compounds. Matter, in its nature is in constant motion, ever changing in form. Matter is everywhere. We do not know, and cannot conceive, of an empty space. "Nature abhors a vacuum." Matter is non-creative, indestructible, has always existed, and always will exist in some form or other.

How then does the invention of a God to create matter explain anything? If it was necessary to have some intelligence create and direct matter how are you to explain the origin of this greater thing?

ALBERT BOARDMAN.

From Small Beginnings

Edward Blyden, Noted Scholar and Educator

A 12-year-old negro boy who had just come down the gangplank of a steamer from the West Indies put down his heavy traveling bag, drew a long breath, and looked around him. At last he had arrived in the United States. For many months "Ned" Blyden in his home on the island of St. Thomas, had looked ahead to this moment—to the time when he could begin, with certainty, that upward career that he had planned. He had always wished to be different from the other negro boys whom he knew—they had been willing to go without education, but Ned liked books from the very first time when he heard stories read to him.

The day he landed was therefore a great day for him. The days that followed were altogether different from what he had expected. The young negro found life harder than he had anticipated. All doors did not open to him, in spite of the intense work that he did. Still looking for a land where he might develop to the full, in the way he wished, he set off for Liberia in Africa, where he could live among people of his own kind, and meet all on equal grounds. He arrived there a youth. He lived until 1912, when he died at the advanced age of 80, one of the most noted men who ever represented Liberia. He had achieved the great struggle into which he had entered as a boy. He had met the world squarely, had worked hard, and had succeeded. First, he had gained a high education, making himself a master in many subjects, even in Arabic and Hebrew. He studied everything, and studied every subject minutely. He traveled in Europe and in Palestine as well as in Africa.

Once he was sent to Europe as the diplomatic representative of his chosen country. He became one of the intellectual leaders in Liberia, speaking frequently in public, and moulding public thought. As president of a college he stimulated other young men to study as he studied, and to lift themselves in life. As a preacher he made inspiring addresses that led people to spiritual thinking. All in all, the negro, Edward Blyden, was one of the most remarkable men the negro race has ever produced. All honor to his ambition!

Indians Increasing

Contrary to widely circulated reports that the "American Indian is dying off at an alarming rate in the great Southwest," the Pueblos and other Indian populations are holding their own and increasing at a rate nearly as high as that shown by census figures for the white population. Dr. Edgar L. Hewett, director of the School for American Research of the Archaeological Institute of America, at Santa Fe, N. Mex., has transmitted to the American Association for the Advancement of Science a report of a census just made that shows that in the last decade the population of Pueblo villages has increased 22.3 per cent, and now totals 10,565. Only one Pueblo village showed a decrease and that was due to an influenza epidemic a few years ago.

During the same period the entire population of the United States increased 39 per cent part of which was due to immigration. These figures, Dr. Hewett considers adequate refutation of the general idea that there has been a "startling decrease in our primitive population."

"On the question of the Indian ceremonies, also, much emotion has been wasted," Dr. Hewett said. "They are vital in the life of the Indians. They are highly esthetic in character, and are not attended by as immoral consequences as are the social dances of the whites. Nor are the ceremonies dying out, nor are they likely to. On the contrary, ceremonies that had disappeared are being revived every year and the Indians are preserving their own self-respect by cherishing their native culture which has in it nobility worthy of any race. There is no religious persecution of the Pueblos, no effort is being made to suppress their dances unless pernicious features crop out, and in such cases the Indians are more amenable to advice than are the youth of our own race."

STATE SALARIES FOR VOCATIONAL TEACHERS

Vocational and educational guidance is prompted in New York by a state quota to towns employing qualified teachers. A special quota of two-thirds the salary of the first teacher and one-half the salary of each additional teacher of vocational and educational guidance is allowed with a maximum of $1,000 on the salary of any one teacher. A pro rata apportionment is made for teachers who devote half their time to this work. State aid also to the amount of $1,000 is granted communities employing a full-time medical inspector, and 12 cities and villages are able to qualify for this assistance in their health work.

MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY GROWING IN GERMANY

Impoverished outcasts of the German middle classes have been driven into the ranks of the proletariat. But only in one respect is the employment outlook improved—in motor cars. Many Germans drive their own cars even when they employ chauffeurs, and the number of motor taxicabs is increasing rapidly. But taxi drivers are particularly in demand as private chauffeurs. Eighty per cent of the old taxi drivers now drive private cars. Their places are being filled, to a great extent, from the impoverished middle class. Of the 700 chauffeurs who have left the "schools" since January 1, 90 per cent were bourgeois, and included "doctors" of all kinds, engineers, merchants, students, bank employes and former professional officers. The school teachers consider these bourgeois their best pupils. "We don't make much," one of them said, "but the human experience of a modern taxi chauffeur is immense."

The William Wrigley, Jr., company has purchased a site in London, England, for the construction of a plant to cost between $500,000 and $1,000,000. This will make the third plant to be built in Europe, the others being in Germany and Austria.

Stories That Recall Others

In the Wrong Pew

Even experienced women sometimes miss a trick and give critical masculinity a chance to say, "just like a woman." When a woman failed to appear to preside over a meeting she had called the group that sat waiting her arrival passed through all the stages of impatience, wonder and finally fear for her safety.

"She's driving," said one, "and the roads are terrible." "Never late in her life," said another. "It must be something terrible or she would telephone," offered a third. Finally the suspense became too great and her home was telephoned without result. Deeper gloom. The luncheon hour passed and members straggled back to see if anything had been heard. There had—Mrs. X had been sitting calmly in another room in the building, confident that she was in the right place and impatiently waiting her committee members.

Danger Flag Transferred

Generation after generation of children have coasted down the hill in the winter months, and through the year the poorest drivel of snow has been excuse enough for the children to bring out their sleds. By special care each year, early in the spring, the rude scars made by the sled runners when the ground was soft and the snow light have been healed or at least concealed of how to keep the children off the hill, after 30 years of study of the problem of how to keep the children of the hill when the conditions were harmful, and yet not discourage their participation in the winter sport by harsh orders, experimented with a new scheme this year.

On the top of the hill he erected a flag pole. When the red flag is flown, he reasoned, the children will know there is danger of damaging the sod and will not slide; when the white flag is flying they will know there is plenty of snow and they are welcome to bring out their sleds.

What was his chagrin, therefore, when he returned home one evening and little snow on the ground, to find the red flag whipping the breeze on the mast at the helm of a large sled crowded with proud youngsters.

Mrs. Andrew E. Baldwin

The death of Catherine Hedrick, 65, wife of the late Andrew Emerson Baldwin, occurred Thursday noon at the home of her son, William H. Baldwin, 21 Russell road. Mrs. Baldwin had been ailing for the past few years, but had been seriously ill since last Sunday when she fell down and fractured her hip.

She was born in Hopewell, Penn., Oct. 4, 1839, and was the daughter of William H. and Elizabeth Karickner Hedrick. For a number of years she was a resident of Taftville and Chicago, but for the past six years she has made her home with her son in Greeneville. While in Chicago about 43 years ago, she was united in marriage with Andrew Emerson Baldwin, who died in 1894. She also lived in Shrewsbury, Penn., and was a member of the Methodist church of that place.

She is survived by a son, William H. Baldwin of 21 Russell road, two daughters, Mrs. M. V. Paisley of Connellsville, Penn., and Mrs. Charles Wilcox of Chicago, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Bond and Mrs. Mary Nace, both of York, Penn., and two brothers, J. W. Hedrick of Glen Rock, Penn., and Samuel Hedrick of Baltimore, Maryland. She also leaves eleven grand children.

Mrs. Evelyn Mecan

Mary Ann Mecan, 57, widow of Evelyn Mecan, died Tuesday night at the home of her niece, Mrs. Charles W. Birdsey, of 25 Durant street, Middletown, Mrs. Mecan was in her usual good health during the day, but suffered a shock during the early evening. Mrs. Mecan was for many years a resident of Norwich. She went to Middletown about a year ago, following the death of her husband, to make her home with Mrs. Birdsey. Besides Mrs. Birdsey she is survived by a niece, Miss Annie Pope, and two nephews Charles and Arthur Pope both of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

FUNERALS

Funeral services for Mrs. John Mellor were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home No. 48 Otis street, with many relatives and friends attending, from Boston, Baltimore, Springfield, Danielson, Waterbury, Pawtucket, Providence, Deerfield, Mass., and other places. There was a profusion of floral pieces, loving tributes from her many friends.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church conducted the service and read several lines from Whittier and Tennyson's Crossing the Bar.

The body was placed in the receiving vault at Maplewood cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Ricketts read the committal service. Burial is to take place in the spring at the convenience of the family. The bearers were five sons, John, J. Albert, Benjamin, Walter and Ralph Mellor and a nephew, Charles Niles. Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

WEDDING.

Robinson-Varley

At the Congregational church in Portland, Conn., Saturday afternoon, Miss Caroline Varley, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Varley, formerly of Taftville, and Allyn Robinson, also of Portland, were married by the bride's father. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Varley. The best man was Clifford Robinson, brother of the bridegroom. The flower girl was Harriet Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson. The bridesmaids were Miss Buelah Robinson, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Fuller of Boston, Miss Smith of Norwich and Miss Rosins of Wethersfield and the ushers were Arnold Smith of Norwich, Fred Erickson of Portland, Clifton Cramer of New London, Alfred Willoughby, and Ray Whittles of Portland. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony. About 70 relatives and friends attended. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will live in Detroit, Mich.

MOTION TO ERASE VERDICT AGAINST BERKER

A motion to erase and set aside the verdict of guilty in the case of Gabriel C. Berker, the former brokerage office manager found guilty of embezzlement, is to be argued in the superior court here this (Friday) morning before Judge Allyn L. Brown.

Berker, against whom a jury on Wednesday returned a verdict of guilty, was to have been sentenced Thursday morning, but when his attorneys, Earl Mathewson and Thomas M. Shields, gave notice Thursday morning of their intention to file the motions named Judge Brown set Friday morning as the time for hearing the arguments on the motions.

Berker is still held in the Norwich jail in default of $25,000 bonds. Lawrence Dewire of Torrington, who was formerly on Berker's bond for $20,000, declined to furnish the bonds of $25,000 which was set by Judge Brown after the verdict of guilty was returned by the jury.

APPROVES BOARD BILL AT NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

HARTFORD, Jan. 14—(AP)—The state board of control today approved the settlement of the state's claim against the estate of Frank C. Dixon for a board bill at the Norwich State hospital. The settlement was for $418.48, the amount of the estate, while the bill was for care during a period of about three years when Mr. Dixon was at the hospital.

Twenty minutes have been added to the length of the day, the intervening morning hours, twenty-six minutes.

DENIES MOTION TO DISMISS IN YOUTH'S TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

John Burns, 23, a native of Jewett City, went on trial in the superior court here Thursday morning on the charge of manslaughter in having caused the death on June 14, 1925, of Albert Pajak at Jewett City by beating, striking and kicking him so as to giv Pajak a ruptured gall bladder and a punctured lung, which caused the death of Pajak. The trial is before Judge Allyn L. Brown without a jury.

When all the testimony for the state was in Thursday afternoon, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for Burns, moved to dismiss the complaint, but Judge Brown denied the motion and the defense side of the case went on. It is expected the trial will be concluded this (Friday) morning.

Medical Examiner Testifies.

Dr. George H. Jennings, of Jewett City, medical examiner, was the first witness called by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown in opening the case. Dr. Jennings testified that Pajak died while the doctor was at the man's house to which he had been called at about 10.30 on the night of June 14, finding Pajak on a mattress in great distress. An autopsy showed various injuries, some of which a rupture of the gall bladder, discoloration and puncture of the lungs, fractured seventh rib and this rib had penetrated the lung, all of which the doctor says could have caused death. The man was partly intoxicated, coupled with his injuries and a shock caused his death.

On cross examination the doctor admitted that the injuries could have been caused by a fall, and not necessarily by a human hand. Pneumonia and alcoholism were given on the death certificate as contributing to Pajak's death.

Mrs. Pajak, of Jewett City, widow of Albert, through an interpreter, stated that her husband was about 42 years of age when he died. She married him 12 years ago and they had four children. Her husband was never sick and worked every day in the mill.

On the morning of June 14, 1925, he went to church, came home at noon, and later went out with the small boy to Ashland, but her husband did not tell her where he went. The boy came home before her husband. Her husband came home, fed the chickens, worked around the house, and did not seem to be intoxicated. He told her that he was going down to the store to get some tobacco, after being in conference with several men at their fence.

Mrs. Pajak was in the bed when he got home, and upon hearing him holler, she went down stairs and found him sitting on the sofa. He wanted to lie on the floor and was hollering for air, wanting all of the windows open.

She declared that he said: "My God, I will never live until morning, my dear children, I am going to die." He also said there was something the matter with him but she did not hear what it was.

Mrs. Pajak told of her daughter going to Dr. McLaughlin's and bringing back some pills, which Pajak refused to take. The daughter then went and got Dr. Jennings.

Helen Pajak, the man's step-daughter testified that he said Jack Burns punched him in the chest. He was short of breath and wanted the windows open, and kept repeating that he was going to die.

Michael Nowokowski, a next door neighbor, said that he was called to the Pajak house and heard Pajak say that Jack Burns hit him in the chest.

Judge Brown denied Attorney Shields' motion to have the testimony of these two witnesses stricken out.

John Shiski testified that he was at Pajak's home when he died but he didn't hear anything said about Jack Burns. The witness said he had been sitting on a bench with Pajak near the bridge about 7 o'clock.

The state claims that it was near this bench that the alleged assault was made upon Pajak by Burns.

Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher explained a plan and pictures of bridge and the location where the state claims the attack was made.

Albert Duda told of being with Pajak at a picnic on June 14, and coming home with him about 7 o'clock, while Frank Minski said Pajak was at his store between 8 and 9 o'clock that evening, had been drinking, but was sober.

Gustave Conrad of Jewett City who gave his testimony through Mr. Malinowsky as interpreter, said he was sitting on a bench with John Smiski, when Pajak came along and sat down with them. Both Conrad and Smiski went away and left Pajak sitting on the bench.

Patsy Faber of Jewett City, testified that on the night Pajak died he saw Burns at the Polish hall between 5 and 6 o'clock. He told of other men who were there and said the party had a half pink. The witness saw Burns again about 11 o'clock in the lunch cart. Burns was sober then. Helen Pajak came by and told the witness his father was dying, but she didn't say anything about Burns. The witness denied that he had told County Investigator Lewis that he had seen Burns and Laliberte at 4 o'clock and 11 o'clock, both under the influence of liquor.

Alphonse Parkeau testified that he was also at the Polish hall with three or four other young men, including Burns, Faber and Laliberte. They were drinking but were not under the influence of liquor. They were drinking moonshine when Foley, who is now dead, had.

William Laliberte of Jewett City testified he being at the Polish hall with the party of young men. They had been drinking moonshine and drinking. He said he was with Burns up to about 9 o'clock and went with Burns to the bench near Slater's Bridge. Two men were sitting on the bench and Burns asked one of them for a drink. The man said he didn't have any. Laliberte said he went along and when he looked back from the bridge, he saw one of the men on the bench get up and fall down again. The witness did not see Burns hit him. He said he did not know whether one of the men was Pajak. The came along and caught up with the witness on the other side of the big bridge. Later the two went back to the Polish hall. There was no one on the bench when they went by this time.

Officer Henry R. Veghard of Jewett City, night policeman there, testified to seeing Pajak at the police station about 9.45 where Pajak wanted two fellows arrested. As a result the officer arrested Jack Burns and William Laliberte.

On cross examination, the officer said that Pajak didn't tell who beat him. He said it was a "short" French fellow and a tall Irish fellow, this information coming through an interpreter named Savage. The interpreter said he guessed the men were Burns and Laliberte.

Joseph Minarski said he was sitting in a swing with Helen Pajak when Pajak went by about 10 o'clock on the night in question. Pajak was doubled over and had his hand on his stomach. At Helen's request the witness got Dr. McLaughlin. Later he saw Burns and another fellow near the restaurant and Burns and Cobb were accusing each other of robbing and beating a guy. The witness said he accused Burns of beating Helen Pajak's father, to which Burns laughed. Both men acted as if they were drunk.

Heard What Burns Said

Officer John T. Dolan of Jewett City, a deputy sheriff, testified he saw Burns and the rest of the crowd near the Jewett City restaurant about 11 o'clock. The officer said he heard Burns telling the crowd how he had hit a Polack over at Slater's and how nice he had put him away. The witness said that he didn't know of the death of Pajak at that time. The witness said Burns looked as if he had been drinking and he heard Burns say "Cheese it, here comes Dolan." Burns walked away quickly toward his home.

The state rested at this point and Attorney Shields made a motion to dismiss the complaint against Burns.

After arguments had been made by Attorney Shields and State Attorney Brown, a recess was declared by Judge Brown upon the conclusion of which he denied the defense attorney's motion and Attorney Shields began the presentation of the case for Burns by calling Civil Engineer Pitcher to the stand.

Defense Begins

He questioned Mr. Pitcher as to tests made by Burns and Laliberte in walking from the bench to the point where Burns overtook Laliberte. The time taken by Laliberte was 1 minute, 16 seconds, and by Burns 38 seconds, both at about the gait they used on the night in question. From this he deduced that 38 seconds was the time Burns had been at the bench.

Burns was called to the stand in his own defense. He graduated from the Jewett City grammar school four years ago and since then had worked in the mill and the restaurant. The witness told of the group of fellows buying liquor from Foley on the afternoon of the day in question. They sat on a grass plot and drank the liquor and sung until the party separated, Cobb and a fellow known as Stanley Piccolo went off ahead of Laliberte and the witness towards the bench. When the witness reached the bench he saw two men on it. He thought one was Joe Foley. The witness said he spoke and said, "Hello," one of the men got up, made a pass at the witness and fell down. The witness said the man fell face forward and as the witness was walking away he saw the man get up.

The witness then told substantially what Laliberte had testified to as to going back towards the lunch cart. The witness said he was talking with Cobb and Faber when Sheriff Dolan came, and he did not say anything about hitting anyone. Burns said he had no fit will against Pajak and never had had any trouble with him. The witness said he could not say whether it was Pajak on the bench that night or not.

State Attorney Brown conducted a cross examination and after he had concluded Judge Brown asked the witness a number of questions as to what happened at the bench. The judge had the witness illustrate how the man on the bench made a pass at the witness.

Stephen J. Faber, who said he was a close neighbor of Albert Pajak, said he was the interpreter for Officer Veigard and he testified that Pajak said he had been robbed of money and keys by a big fellow and a little fellow. Pajak said he didn't know the names but somebody else named Savage said he thought Pajak meant Burns and Laliberte.

DID'NT KNOW ORRIN'S FRONT TELEPHONE NUMBER

Uncle Joe Shippee was not the only old timer from the great open spaces that furnished a little amusement for the city chaps on Thursday evening. While Uncle Joe was fiddling away in the opryy house, as the old folks call it, another elderly country gentleman, who had come to town to hear the renowned fiddler and tap his cowhide boot on the floor in time with the music, had occasion to call up a neighbor up in the neck o' woods where he came from.

Some one told the gentleman that he could use the phone at the police headquarters, so there he went. On gaining permission from the officer at the desk, he went to the police telephone and took down the receiver.

"What number, please?" asked the operator.

"Gimme Orrin on the line," said the rustic.

The operator, thinking the man had asked for 23, gave him that line. In a few seconds someone answered.

"Hey, is that you Orrin?" asked the man. Evidently it was not Orrin who answered for the man hung up the receiver in a hurried and much disturbed manner.

"Guess Eunista got the wrong number," remarked the old codger. One of the officers seeing that the man was evidently a little confused, asked who he wished to call and when told the office referred to the directory.

"The number you want is 2594-23," the officer told him.

"Wal, by Gosh, that's the first time I knew what Orrin's front number was," said the old gentleman with much relief.

It seems that the old gentleman had a phone in his own home and about the only one whom he called was Orrin who happened to be on the same line.

The blue-coated preservers of law and order left the quiet sigle all to themselves.

STATE GRANGE MEETINGS SNAPPY AND PRACTICAL

The Bulletin's Mystic correspondent writes:

The 41st annual meeting of Connecticut state grange opened in Foot Guard hall, Hartford, Tuesday forenoon at 11:30 in the sixth degree. After roll call of officers and granges, many items of business were transacted, closing at 12:30.

At 2 o'clock, in the banquet room of Hotel Garde the annual address of Master Allen B. Cook was given. He had many good suggestions to offer and declared that in general our agricultural conditions are encouraging. "After reviewing in a general way conditions in the west," he said, "I am satisfied that here in New England, we are better off than many of us realize.

"We would place particular stress upon the enforcement of all laws relating to the eighteenth amendment we would also urge congress to provide all means necessary for this enforcement. The national grange experienced an expansion with a gain in membership in nearly every state. Some granges have increased in membership, while some are struggling along and show a small decrease.

"The national grange is to call a conference of the executive committees of all dues paying farm organizations in the U. S. to initiate a constructive, nation-wide agricultural program of definite farm leadership."

Rev. J. H. Hoyt, chaplain, gave a short talk. Among other things he said life is not a game of chance—a ship sent forth only to founder in the unknown depths.

At the same time a lecturers' conference held in the dining room at the Bond hotel was conducted by Charles A. Wheeler state lecturer. A set of questions was discussed that had been sent in by different subordinate lecturers. It was a live meeting and the room was crowded. Pomona lecturers and subordinate lecturers received prizes. Mrs. R. J. Whitham of Groton received second in Pomona and John B. Perry of North Stonington third. Secretary Ard Welton reported a gain of 1,500 and the total membership Jan. 1 was 17,000. There are 10 pomonas and 145 subordinate granges. Treasurer D. A. St. John reported the balance on hand a year ago $3,524.36, receipts $9,958.18 total $13,482.54. Disbursements, $9,368.62 leaving a balance of $4,113.92.

Twenty-one granges have given $375.45 toward the Storrs church and community house fund. Reports were given by General Deputy F. H. Peet and the 19 pomona deputies. A letter was read from National Master Louis T. Taber, of Ohio.

In the evening the sixth degree was conferred on a class of 247, just one more than last year. The work and the settings was the most beautiful ever put on in the state. The state master, C. Palmer Chapman, of Rhode Island was present; he is chairman of the board of managers of the National Grange monthly, and spoke of the need of Connecticut doing her share toward making it an asset instead of a liability. Already several states have ratified the act of the national grange of 1924 to add one cent per month to the dues of every member thereby putting it into every member's home.

State Master John E. Abbott, of Maine, in a clear ringing voice told Connecticut to send 2,500 to Portland, Maine next November and with 7,500 from the other New England states have over 10,000 take the seventh degree and thus surpass the meeting when it met in Boston and 9,287 took the degree. Portland can accommodate them all and give side trips in the state worth seeing. Special trains will be furnished.

State Steward L. G. Tolles gave whistling solos, Miss Marie Barry reading and Miss Hines four selections on the xylophone that won hearty applause.

Wednesday morning business and reports and election of officers took all the forenoon; the election was continued during the afternoon. There were several changes in officers, Overseer Minor Ives being elected master and Louis G. Tolles overseer from the office of steward. Lecturer C. A. Wheeler declined to serve again and it required at least four ballots to decide it. Mrs. Lenny Whitham received the greatest number, the other most popular candidate was Mrs. Blakeman of Stratford, while a few cast ballots for Mr. Wheeler each time. He has served eight years. For steward, Frank H. Kent, assistant steward, Charles M. Adams, (re-elected), chaplain, Rev. J. H. Hoyt receiving all but one vote; treasurer, Darius St. John; secretary Ard Wilton, elected without any contest, as was also gate-keeper, William F. Clark, who has served ten years; Ceres, Mrs. Grace Hines; Pomona, Miss Jennie Hilton; Flora, Edna Kretzmer; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Alice F. Corbit. The last four officers required several ballots to decide, so many candidates were nominated.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the deputies marching to Master Cook's desk and presenting him a set of gold cuff links. Reports completed the business of the afternoon. Lecturer Wheler announced the next New England lecturers' conference, to be held at the University of Maine in August.

The evening session was opened by a song service conducted by Lecturer Wheeler singing from the song sheet printed for the annual meeting and the new songs proved popular all through the sessions.

George B. Chandler who was expected to be present was called away and sent the assistant secretary of the state Chamber of Commerce to take his place. He announced the program of the state meeting at the Griswold in June, when Gov. Trumbull, Senator Bingham, and a member of President Coolidge's cabinet will be present with others of prominence.

The evening's address was by State Librarian George S. Godard whose father was first state master and had more to do with shaping the destiny of the grange in the state in the seventies and the years following than any other man at that time. His talk on Early Reminiscenses was listened to with interest and reverence. The history of grange doings are in the library and he had some of the books to show, also the manual that was his parents' and a few other curios of the grange.

Solos and recitations were given by members closing the evening's entertainment.

Thursday forenoon was devoted to committee reports and business followed in the afternoon, by the installation of officers by Charles M. Gardner of Massachusetts, high priest of Demeter, who is considered the best grange orator in the country. Delegates and members were present from all over the state and among them were many who read the Norwich Bulletin daily.

MAKES COMPLETE RECOVERY FROM FRACTURED SKULL

John Dodge has returned from Cambridge, Mass., with his mother, Mrs. Ozias Dodge to their home here after hospital treatment in Cambridge for a fractured skull which young Dodge sustained several weeks ago when hit by an automobile while riding his bicycle.

It will be good news to friends of the young man and his mother to know that he has apparently made a complete recovery, both physically and mentally.

ST. MARY'S MEN HAVE ENTHUSIASTIC MID-YEAR RALLY

An attendance of over 400 men, largely composed of members of the Holy Name society, made the annual mid-year rally for the men of St. Mary's parish a great success Thursday evening in the hall of St. Mary's Memorial church, where they were welcomed by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Keefe, as he opened the programme shortly after 8 o'clock.

In his welcoming remarks he emphasized the importance of monthly holy communion and said that now that his building programme was completed he intended to give more attention to these men's meetings. He thanked the men for their attendance and then passed the cigars himself and invited the men to enjoy the evening to the utmost.

Father Keefe was followed by Rev. F. M. Coholan, who spoke upon the value of the work done by the diocesan bureau of social service and urged the men to give it their substantial support by taking membership therein.

Father Coholan then delighted his audience with a piano solo, for which an encore was demanded, and there were excellent vocal numbers by the St. Mary's Trio, consisting of Edward T. Connelly, Horace F. Corning and Nicholas Spolman. They were called on for encores for their trio, duet and solo numbers.

Dr. E. J. Brophy was introduced by Father Keefe for an address along health lines, which the physician made especially instructive.

Dr. Brophy devoted his talk to a warning about disease carriers, from which he said no person was free and germs and organisms are carried in the mouth, throat, nose and teeth, which can be absorbed in the blood stream and will be accountable for heart, kidney, stomach and other troubles. The time to attend to trouble, he said, was as soon as you know it exists, for prevention of trouble will add years to your life. Dr. Brophy spoke also of diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever carriers and the protection that can be afforded against diphtheria by toxin-anti-toxin and against scarlet fever by toxin. The doctor also spoke of the great blessing that it has been to have the tuberculosis sanatorium established here, with the result that there has been a tremendous reduction in the number of new cases occurring in families. Dr. Brophy concluded with the warning by all means to use preventive measures against disease because damage once done can never be repaired.

John McCoole charmed his audience with several baritone solos, rendering Irish ballads that won him much applause. His selections were Dear Old County Down, Typical Tipperrary, and A Little Bit of Heaven.

Enthusiastic applause was given for selections by Mr. Connelly, who sang At the End of the Road, Mr. Corning, who rendered When The Evening Sun is Low, and Mr. Spelman who sang Oh How I Miss You Tonight.

The final speaker was Rev. John J. Reilly of St. Patrick's church, who gave an inspiring address upon the great service for the cause of Christ which is rendered by Catholic laymen's societies, which are organised to put Christ in his proper place in the hearts of men. At the bottom of the unrest and the trouble in the world today, said Father Reilly, was the fact that there was too little of Christ in the hearts of men, too little of the spiritual in the world today. Clear thinking men see all this and realize that Christ alone can heal the sores that are troubling the world today. He urged that the individual life give more of loyalty and service to the Master and make the cause of Christ triumphant.

The evening closed with a clever exhibition of sleight of hand by Professor Banfield who had his audience mystified and entertained as long as he held the stage.

UNCLE JOE'S FIDDLE SETS FEET GOING

Uncle Joe Shippee of Plainfield, proclaimed champion fiddler of all New England, made his first public appearance in Norwich Thursday evening when he fiddled old dance numbers for a crowded house at the Broadway theatre. Uncle Joe who became "champion" over night when he entered the fiddling contest held the first of this month at Providence, was given a hearty welcome by the standing room only when he was introduced at the Broadway theatre Thursday evening. The announcement that Uncle Joe was to appear as a feature attraction at the local theatre brought people from practically all sections of New London and Windham counties to Norwich and a general rush for tickets and seats started in as soon as the doors were opened. By seven o'clock there was hardly a seat left and shortly afterwards not only were all seats taken but standing room was at a premium.

Friends and neighbors of the champion in Plainfield and surrounding villages came down in a body to attend their favorite's first appearance here. Uncle Joe brought his own company with him to assist in the programme and the four couples staged several square dances that made a hit with the audience.

The "champ" made his appearance on the stage about 9 o'clock and for the next half hour he entertained the audience with old time square dance numbers, accompanied on the piano by his daughter, Mrs. Otto Opperman of Plainfield. His opening number was the Arkansas Traveler, one of the selections he played in the contest at Providence. As the strains of the "Traveler" floated over the theatre the audience became so enthusiastic that hundreds of feet were keeping time with the music.

As his next number Uncle Joe played Turkey in the Straw while the audience applauded. To vary the program there was an exhibition square dance by the Shippee Old Time Dancers, four couples from Plainfield and Sterling with Irving E. Frink of Sterling prompting.

The Pictown Fling and Oyster River were the next solo numbers by Uncle Joe and he concluded his program with a quadrille danced by the Shippee Dancers. Throughout his program Mr. Shippee was warmly applauded by the audience who were delighted with the unique entertainment.

The Plainfield fiddler is booked to appear at the theatre this (Friday) evening and Saturday. He will have a different program for each performance and this (Friday) evening his numbers will include that old time favorite, Pop Goes the Weasel, and a quadrille featuring the "Wild Irishman."

The members of the Shippee Old Time Dancers are Mrs. Fred Shippee of Sterling, Mrs. Dewey Shippee, Mrs. Stanton R. Vallette and Mrs. H. R. Barstow all of Plainfield, Dewey Shippee, Harold R. Barstow of Plainfield, L. O. McMahon, Sterling, Stanton R. Vallette of Plainfield and Irving E. Frink of Sterling.

William A. Geer Leaves Hospital.

William Allyn Geer, son of Mrs. William H. Geer, of Washington street, Norwich, who was operated upon Saturday at New Haven hospital, was able to leave the hospital Thursday and to go to his room at Yale. Mr. Geer is a freshman at the university, having entered Yale in September, after two years' preparatory study at Phillips Andover, Mass. In communication with his home Thursday the young man seemed very cheerful and hopeful of his steady recovery.

TEX RICKARD PICKS LEADERS IN ALL DIVISIONS OF BOXING GAME

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—The "complimentary" ranking of Jack Dempsey at the head of the heavyweight division and relegation of two other world's champions, Rocky Kansas and Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, to subordinate positions in their classes, feature the 1925 international boxing ranking list selected by Tex Rickard.

The famous promoter, in a copyrighted story for the January issue of The Ring, boxing publication, names his world's selections for the first fifteen ranking positions in each of the nine pugilistic divisions "based entirely on what was done in 1925" and "regardless of the ownership of titles."

In spite of his continued inactivity, Dempsey is placed at the head of the class because of lack of accomplishment of any other heavyweight sufficient to dislodge the champion. At the same time the promoter rates Harry Wills at No. 2, the position of leading contender, with Gene Tunney third and predicts that Dempsey will meet these two rivals this year.

"There are many who believe that Dempsey will not box again," says Rickard, "but I am firm in the belief that he will go through with his announced program for this year and that the east will be the scene of his endeavors.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Wills is the best contender and that Dempsey must meet the negro before he boxes anyone else and that must be this year unless he is to resign his title."

Title-holders occupy the top-ranking positions in all but the bantam and lightweight classes. Among the bantams, Rickard ranks Chick Suggs, negro battler of New Bedford, Mass., in first place on the strength of his excellent 1925 record, with Rosenberg, the champion, fourth. Bachey Graham of Utica, N. Y., and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., also are ranked above the title holder.

Kansas, veteran Buffalo Italian who dislodged Jimmy Goodrich from the lightweight throne, is ranked No. 8 in his division, in which Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., is accorded first place and Sid Terris, shifty New Yorker, second position.

In the light heavyweight ranks, led by Champion Paul Berlenbach and his most dangerous rival, Jack Delaney, third position goes to Mike McTigue and fourth to Young Stribling, although the Georgia youngster convinced boxing critics of his superiority over the Irishman in their last meeting.

The middleweight ranking shows Dave Shade listed ahead of Tiger Flowers in the positions following Harry Greb, the champion. Shade is not ranked as a welterweight in spite of his great battle with the title-holder in that division, Mickey Walker.

Ascension of six new title-holders stood out during the past year, other features of which, as listed by Rickard, included Shade's knockout of Jimmy Slattery, Gene Tunney's development as a serious heavyweight factor through his knockout of Tom Gibbons, the rise of two champions on the coast in Fidel LaBarba and Tod Morgan, the retirement of Benny Leonard, the pegging of Johnny Dundee, as a major ring figure, Dempsey's continued inactivity, the development of such European boxers as Tommy Milligan and Paolino, and the continued durability of Harry Greb.

Rickard's ranking list, with the boxers listed in their selected order in each class follow:

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA IS SCHEDULED FOR JUNE 28

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Invitations to seven institutions outside the membership of the intercollegiate Rowing association to compete in the 1926 Poughkeepsie Regatta were authorized today by the board of stewards after tentatively fixing Monday, June 28, as the date for the annual rowing championships on the Hudson river.

The invitations, according to Maxwell Stevenson of Columbia, chairman of the board, will go to the universities of Wisconsin, Washington, California and Stanford, Princeton, the Naval academy and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Two of these institutions, Washington and the Navy, have dominated the varsity race on the Hudson for the past five years and both are expected to compete again. Washington's entry, however, is likely to depend upon the outcome of its annual contest for Pacific coast supremacy with California, in addition to which Stanford reported as ready to resume rowing also may be a factor.

Wisconsin also is expected to enter again but Princeton is not likely to accept an invitation unless the Tigers alter their present policy of not rowing distances over two miles. M. I. T. is a doubtful competitor, although this New England college has made such rapid strides under Coach William Haines that it may decide to accept the issue this year.

The distance of the varsity race, as forecast recently, again will be over a four-mile course, to which the event was restored last year after a nine-year lapse. It will be preceded by the customary tests for the freshman and junior varsity crews.

The date for the regatta, which is three days after the Harvard-Yale classic at New London, Conn., is subject to change if tidal conditions on the Hudson prove to be unsuitable for the time now fixed but the stewards do not expect a shift.

Mr. Stevenson was re-elected chairman for another term by his associate stewards, Charles E. Treman of Cornell, John Arthur Browp of Pennsylvania, and Claud Fisher of Syracuse, representing the complete membership of the board.

AGGIES CLASH WITH TUFTS ON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 14—What promises to be one of the season's best small college basketball games will be played at Storrs Saturday night, when the Connecticut Aggies and Tufts meet on the Hawley Armory court. Preliminary to the varsity contest, the freshmen teams of the two colleges will play. Dancing will be in order after the varsity contest.

Coach Dole has been working his team hard in preperation for the Tufts contest, which shapes up as a real threat to the Aggie record. Wesleyan fell before the Bay Staters at Middletown last Saturday, and any team that can turn back the Red and Black on its home court is a foe worthy of respect.

Work with the Aggies this week has been planned accordingly, and the final workout was held this afternoon. The team will be given a layoff tomorrow, that they may have a good rest before the game. Allard, who plays a strong game at guard, has been in the college infirmary the last two days, warding off an attack of grippe. He returned to the squad today, however, and it is expected that he will be able to play Saturday.

Two Meriden boys will make the trip to Storrs as members of the Tufts squad, though they are not slated to start against the Aggies. They are H. J. Robison, forward, and W. A. Weisleder, guard.

Coach Alexander's freshman team will open its season Saturday in a game preliminary to the varsity contest. From a large squad of candidates, Alexander has selected a small group, which has been practicing daily. Much progress has been made by the yearlings, and they should be represented by a strong team. No announcement of the freshman starting lineup will be made until after practice tomorrow night.

DELANEY FIGHTS IN HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Turned back in his quest of light-heavyweight honors by a recent defeat the hands of Champion Paul Berlenbach, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., will make a fresh start in a new and heavier division tomorrow night when he opposes Young Bob Fitzsimmons of Nutley, N. J., son of the former heavyweight champion, at Madison Square Garden.

The contest, marking Delaney's debut as a heavyweight against an opponent who is expected to outweight him by twenty pounds, will be the main event of a card of three ten-round matches.

Mickey Travers of New Haven, Conn., and Andy De Voti of New York will open the show in a six round bout.

WHITE SOX BUYING MANY NEW PITCHERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox have been specializing in pitchers in this winter's trading season, both buying and selling, with a couple of infielders picked up between deals for new boxmen.

In obtaining Alphonse Thomas from Baltimore, the brightest star among the league twirlers the Sox put over one of the shrewdest trades of the winter. Last year they gave Manager Dunn of Baltimore Outfielder Maurice Archdeacon, in return for first pick on the Orioles squad at the end of the season. Originally the Sox had paid Dunn more than $50,000 for archdeacon and Dunn figured that the Sox would want Joe Boley, shortstop, for whom many majors bid high last winter, but not high enough for Dunn.

Instead Owner Comiskey picked Thomas, who won thirty games and lost 11 in the International League last year, putting one over on Dunn who holds most of the records for high priced player sales to the major leagues. Dunn had figured on getting over $100,000 for Thomas.

With old Chief Bender as a pitching coach, Manager Eddie Collins has high hopes of finding the material he needs, either from the five new hurlers drawn from the minors, or the five recalled for further test. Two of the new ones are also Indians, Earl McBee, a southpaw, and Bill Carney. Carney came from the Ardmore, Okla. Western Association club, while from the Muskogee team the Sox bought Jim Carroll, who struck out 238 batsmen last season.

The first Mexican in the major leagues will be Lee Alanis whom Collins hopes to develop into a regular shortstop. Playing with Okmulgee in the Western Association last year, he hit .353 and bagged 34 home runs. Another infield prospect is Moe Berg, former captain of the Princeton University nine. The Sox obtained him from Reading, Pa. Ray Morehart, recalled from Witchita, is the third shortstop prospect.

The Sox need some one ready for that post if Ike Davis fails to recover from his injured knee. The first ball of the city series last fall split his knee cap. Collins himself may need some capable relieving, although his base-stealing record of last year goes not indicate he is slowing up.

Ray Schalk will open his fourteenth year behind the bat for the Sox, while his major league game record is approaching 1,660.

Willie Kamm, the $100,000 purchase of a few years ago, and Earl Sheely, will again be at the third and first corners, with four veterans and three youngsters ready for the outfield.

WORLD'S POLE VAULT MARK IS BROKEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Sabin W. Carr, of Dubuque, Iowa, bettered the world's indoor pole vault record today in the Yale-Williamsbrook trials with a mark of 13 feet 1 inch. The record, 13 feet, is held by H. R. Sherrill, of the University of Pennsylvania, and was made in the N. Y. A. C. games last year. Carr is a sophomore at Yale university.

THUNBERG BEATEN BY MOORE AND GORMAN BUT BREAKS TWO-MILE MARK

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Joe Moore, of New York, world indoor champion and Charley Gorman, Canadian king, left Clas Thunberg, Olympic titleholder, far behind in a three mile skating race at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Moore, leaping out in front after 36 rounds of the 42 lap event had been covered, led easily to the finish to flash across the line in 9.25 1-5 with Gorman 10 yards behind. Thunberg wiped out the two mile indoor record by 3 4-5 seconds, his time at that point was 6.19 4-5.

The Olympic champion had great difficulty in negotiating the numerous turns going out of stride except in one instance early in the race. On the 30th lap he lost his balance but managed to recover and gain the lead.

When Moore leaped ahead after 3 1-2 miles with Gorman on his heels, Thunberg made no attempt to catch them, retaining the same stride that had broken the two mile mark. He undoubtedly was hampered by the heat of the garden for he was perspiring before the race started.

Thunberg, the third of Finland's great athletes to participate in American indoor competition in two seasons, failed to match the debut of Paavo Nurmi by winning his race but skating authorities regarded his performance as creditable.

"I knew that I was in a race," Moore said in his dressing room. "Thunberg certainly carried us along for a couple of miles but we knew that we had him on the turns."

"I am satisfied," Thunberg said, "the turns came too often for me and I need practice on them."

BALTIC TO PLAY CRESCENTS OF SO. MANCHESTER TONIGHT

The Baltic Five clashes with its old rivals from the Silk City, the So. Manchester Crescents, at St. Jean's hall, Baltic this evening. Baltic and So. Manchester have engaged in basketball rivalry for the past few years with the honors being about evenly divided. Tonight's game will be no exception to the rule of fast and hard playing which has predominated all contests between these clubs.

So. Manchester's lineup includes some of the best men in the Silk City and the majority of them are no strangers to local fans. The Crescents will bring the following men to Baltic: Mullen, Dietz, Stowe, R. Cervini and Edgar. All are fast men and Baltic will have a busy evening in holding these basketeers.

Baltic will put the same team on the floor that has made such a good showing during the earlier part of the season, namely, W. Robertaille and R. Robertaille, Red Charron, Gauthier, Coady and Eccleston. There will also be a fast preliminary game.

NUTMEGS PREPARE FOR TOUGH GAME TONIGHT

This evening at the Armory local basketball fans will have an opportunity to see a fast and hard-fought game when the Nutmegs clash with the Ponemah Wheel club five of Taftville. The Nutmegs, with five victories out of six starts are making a strong bid for championship honors and will be out from the beginning to take the visitors into camp.

Little was known of the visitors lineup at a late hour but it is expected that a strong aggregation will make the journey down to the Armory intent on administering the first defeat on their home floor to the Nutmegs.

The Nutmegs will lineup as follows: Brauman, center; Berberich and Capt. Segal, forwards; Goodrow, J. Burns, Carden and Burgeron guards.

The game is scheduled to get underway at 8.00 p. m. sharp.

ROSS YOUNG WINS MEDAL IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Three professionals and three amateurs divided honors in the baseball event at the opening of the Texas open tournament here today, each taking a 68. The propessionals Phil Hessler of Tulsa; John Golden of Patterson, N. J., and Al Espinosa, Chicago, split the first professional prize at $75 each, while the amateurs, Captain A. M. Post and F. M. Lewis of San Antonio and Ross Young, right fielder of the New York National Baseball Club, won medals.

The excellent tee shots of John Rogers of Pittsburgh carried off the first prize of $50 in the driving contest. He gathered 51 points against 48 for William Mehlhorn, of Chicago and 40 for Abe Espinosa of San Francisco.

The championship play proper will start at 8 a. m. tomorrow, 18 holes to be played in the morning and 18 in the afternoon.

SMITH'S ASHES TO BE SCATTERED IN STADIUM

BERKELEY, Calif. Jan. 14.—(AP)—Andy Smith's last wish is to be fulfilled and his ashes will flutter from the sky to find a permanent resting place in California Memorial Stadium, scene of his triumphs as football coach for the University of California. Dean Frank H. Prober, in charge of the public funeral ritual, made this known upon arrival of Smith's body from Philadelphia yesterday.

Services will begin at the north gate of the stadium on Friday between the hours of 11 and 12. All activities at the university will be silenced for the 60 minutes out of respect for the memory of the football leader. At noon, an army airplane, piloted by Lieutenant John R. Glascock, former California football player under Smith, will fly above the stadium and scatter the ashes over the field.

PAOLINO HITS HARDER THAN DEMPSEY SAYS CARPENTIER

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Paolino, Spanish heavyweight, has a more powerful punch in his left hand than Dempsey possesses, Georges Carpentier of France, former light heavyweight champion, said today.

"I have faced them both," Carpentier said. "Dempsey knocked me out in Jersey City but not for long. Paolino hit me once in a training bout and I didn't recover my senses for two hours."

The Frenchman said that for him the visit to the United States is a vacation the first since he started boxing at the age of 13. He will go to California in two weeks and will fulfull a contract to box Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul in about four weeks for the coast promoters insist upon it.

"I will see Promoter Tex Rickard tomorrow but only as a social call," he concluded. "After I get through in California I intend to visit this Florida that I have heard so much about. I probably will stay in the United States two months.

PRINCETON COURT CAPTAIN OUT OF GAME FOR SEASON

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Announcement was made today that James Eben, captain and guard, of the Princeton basketball team, would be out of the game for the rest of the season and that Carl Loeb would take his place.

Eben's last game was the contest with Columbia on January 9. He has been in poor health and is suffering from water on the knee.

Loeb formerly played forward. He was shifted to guard last night and scored 14 of the 28 points which defeated the University of Pennsylvania.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

More than 500 names will appear on the program for the Fordham university track games in New York Saturday night, the first major meet of the season.

Babe Ruth, minus several pounds plans to start for Florida February 8 to indulge in golf until the New York Yankees arrive to practice baseball.

George Goodwin, Kneland's great walker, has received permission from the British authorities to appear in the Millrose A. A. track in New York in February. The permit applies only to this particular competition.

Loucks of Syracuse and Hillman of Maine, second and third respectively in the intercollegiate cross-country championships, have entered for the two-mile event in the Millrose meet. Tibbetts of Harvard, winner of the cross country, has been invited.

Columbia wrestlers defeated Pennsylvania yesterday by 19 points to 8.

Georges Carpentier her on business for the Spanish heavyweight, Paolino, admits that he brought his fighting togs and would consider a bout with a leading light heavyweight, Stribbling, Berlenbach and Delaney being among those mentioned.

Frank Marshall, United States champion, has returned from two months abroad, during which he competed in the Moscow tournament. He says that chess is making great strides in Russia.

Sten Peterson, hurdling and sprint champion of Sweden may join the European invading forces before the track season in New York ends.

John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants says that he will trade anybody on his club anytime he can foresee improvement by the change.

NORWICH MAN HELD UNDER $15,000 BONDS

William Dwojakowski of this city, known locally as Crookneck, was held under bonds of $15,000 by the New Haven police Thursday on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Dwojakowski is one of three men arrested late Wednesday by the New Haven police in connection with the shooting of Officer William Dietrick of the New Haven police department. Crookneck is the man who was arrested here some time ago in connection with a shooting case one Saturday night at the Lisbon club and he was also charged locally with writing a blackmail letter to a prominent citizen of this city. When arrested in New Haven the Norwich man gave the name of Dwyer.

A New Haven version of the shooting affray in that city follows:

Only the hand of Providence reached out to save William Dietrick a policeman connected with the Grand avenue station, when a man opened fire at him from an automobile at St. John and Hamilton streets, shortly after 3.30 Wednesday afternoon. The bullet passed through Dietrick's thumb then through his belt and clothing finally coming to the ground after grazing his side.

The driver of the machine which was later found to be a stolen car, as well as two other occupants of the machine were later apprehended by police from the Grand avenue station and held without bonds on technical charges of breach of the peace. Those arrested were William Dwojakowski, 27, giving several aliases and claiming to have been an inmate at the Norwich insane asylum; Richard Moylan or Noylan, 18, giving his address as 348 State street; and Stanley Meyers or Meljuski, 19, giving an address at 183 Jubilee street, New Britain.

The trouble originated at Grand avenue and Hamilton street, where Policeman Dietrick was doing traffic duty. Dietrick had stopped traffic along Hamilton street, in order to allow three school children to cross the street. The Hudson sedan, driven by Dwojakowski failed to stop on signal, narrowly missed hitting the children. He later backed the machine from the walk.

Dietrick then went over to the driver, and asked for his operator's license and certificate of registration, neither of which could be produced. He then told Dwojakowski to drive to the Grand avenue station, Dwojakowski started up the machine at such a fast rate that he was unable to turn into Grand avenue and on the policeman's advice continued to go through Hamilton street to St. John.

At St. John street, the policeman, who was riding on the running board of the car, ordered the driver to turn left into St. John street but the driver turned right and stopped the car. He then pushed Dietrick from the running board and as Dietrick got up to seize him, he whipped out a 38 calibre automatic shootin steel-jacketed bullets and shot the policeman.

The bullet passed right through Dietrick's gloved thumb and continuing through his heavy belt and clothing, just grazed the side of his body, inflicting an ugly bruise on his side. In spite of his injured thumb Dietrick fired a shot which became lodged in the rear of the machine.

As Dietrick fell to the ground, the machine sped away in the direction of Water street. On reaching Water street the driver was unable to make the turn and after crashing into a lumber truck shot up on to Waterside Park coming to a stop.

In the meantime Dietrick had commandeered a machine which to drove him to the Grand Ave. station, where he reported the incident and left for St. Raphael's hospital. After treatment there he was discharged.

An alarm was spread by Captain John Carton and policemen were dispatched to the scene. Policemen D. Cashman, J. O'Donnell, and Peter Reynolds pursued Moylan and Meyers through Waterside park, finally apprehending them near a lumber yard.

The driver calmly abandoned the machine, and walked in the opposite direction, telling a policeman at the next block that there had been an accident and that the two men in the car had fled the scene. After the policeman had left his station on the corner, Dwojakowski dashed through the Sargent companies grounds and finally hid in a covered lumber shed.

Policemen William Franks and D. Cashman started in pursuit and searched the Sargent factory in vain. As they were about to give up the search, Policeman Franks had a hunch that the man might be concealed in the lumber shed.

With great daring, and knowing that the man was armed, Franks entered the place and climbing to the top of the lumber pile, covered Dwojakowski with his gun, and after disarming him took him to the station.

A checking up showed that the Hudson car had been stolen in Hartford on January 8, and that it was the property of H. Weyross Mills, of 30 Farmington avenue, Hartford. The markers on the car, however, were from a Chevrolet car which had been stolen in Jewett City, owned by James E. Smith of 66 Slater street.

When Dwojakowski was brought to the station he admitted the shooting, saying that if he had another gun he would shoot up the whole station. Besides the five bullets found in the gun, 22 more were found wrapped in a handkerchief in his pocket. He stated that he was a "Big Bill Anderson," a friend of Gerald Chapman, and that he was recruiting a gang to go to Wethersfield to free Chapman.

He also wildly told of various incidents connected with his life which were all impossible and said that he had stolen a machine in Hartford and another in New York.

The other two, on being grilled by detectives, refused to tell a coherent story, although each one stated that Dwojakowski had shot the policeman. Noylan said that he was employed at Fogg's store in Hartford, and that he had been picked up on the Hartford turnpike by Dwojakowski whom he had never seen before. He knew nothing, he said about the stolen car.

In substance Meyers told the same story, saying that he had been picked up on the turnpike by Dwojakowski and Noylan, about five miles outside of Hartford. He also refused to give a good account of himself and answered questions put to him with reluctance.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION IN STATE SHOWS GAIN

All but six towns in the state have made their school enumeration returns to the state comptroller for the year 1925. The delinquent towns are Griswold, Sprague, Waterford, Brooklyn, Clinton and Hebron. If these towns break even, or do not show big drops, the total gain in the number of school children in the state for the year will be close to 7,000.

The net gain in the 163 towns which have reported is 7,840 and it seems probable that there will be a slight gain in the total enumeration of the six missing towns. The total enumeration for the year 1924 was 362,250. Should the increase for the year 1925 be 7,000, the total enumeration for 1925, including the delinquent towns, will be 370,176. This indicates a total population for the state of 1,636,230, or a gain for the year 1925 of 32,785. This result is arrived at by taking the federal census figures of 1920 and using the figures 4.16 as a multiple. This basis of estimating the population of the state has been used for a number of years and the results have been satisfactory. The school age is from four to sixteen years of age.

The enumeration was as of the first week in September, 1925, and the law requires that the returns of enumeration from all of the towns in the state shall be in the hands of the state officials in the first week of the following December. The state grants are payable to the towns on March 1, 1926. It must be said that, on the whole, the towns have been more punctual in sending in their returns of the enumeration for 1925. The delinquent towns would, by greater punctuality, avoid the penalty which may be imposed for delinquency. The figures of the enumeration so far as they have been reported in New London and Windham and Tolland counties are as follows:

New London County

	For 1925	For 1924
New London	6,003	5,928
Norwich	7,491	7,456
Bozrah	226	224
Colchester	698	726
East Lyme	500	493
Franklin	146	134
Griswold	1,123	1,113
Groton	1,722	1,823
Lebanon	401	414
Ledyard	395	382
Lisbon	251	245
Lyme	128	130

WESTERLY

FIRES SEEN TO BE FOLLOWING THIS MAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 14—Morris Stelman, local business man, seems to be having hard luck with fires lately. His store at 58 West Broad street, in the Frank N. Wilcox building, was recently burned and he moved to 54 West Broad street, but here again he had trouble. When Mr. Stelman started a fire in the stove Thursday morning trouble began. First the chimney was so filled with soot that smoke poured out into the renovated store from the chimney which failed to function next the wooden partition around the stove, smoke pipe caught fire and then Mr. Stelman turned in the Pawcatuck fire alarm. Cattle alarm from Box No. 16, West Broad street, near Pawcatuck river bridge.

Engineer Pierce Morrison and the truck of the P. S. Barber Hose company started for the scene but extinguishing work was not required, and the truck returned to the hose house on Liberty street, almost as soon as it had left. The offending pipe was pulled from the partition and the blaze was soon out.

One of Pawcatuck's fire wardens, Albert G. Martin, was on the scene early and gave directions for the cleaning of old fashioned two-flue chimneys, which was started immediately. This building is one of the oldest on West Broad Street and is owned by Julius Gordon and has been occupied by plumbing shops of Fred Harvey and Andrew Jordan. Older residents recall a time when clothing for men could be procured there from Charles Perkin, tailor.

Rev. Byron D. Hatfield, of West Mystic, pastor of the First Baptist church of Westerly, was elected president of the Westerly Ministerial association at the annual meeting held on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Westerly Memorial and public library building on Broad street. Other officers elected were: Secretary, Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, and treasurer, Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. Other business transacted was the arrangement of a union meeting at the Methodist church next Sunday evening by the pastors in cooperation with the W. C. T. U., in observance of the sixth anniversary of the prohibition amendment, which became operative at midnight on Jan. 16, 1920.

In the Rhode Island legislature on Wednesday, the senate took action on a number of appointments of interest to South of Washington county residents. Some of them are as follows: Michael H. Scanlon, M. D., of Westerly, medical examiner for district 1, of the county of Washington, town of Westerly, for the term ending Jan. 31, 1932, confirmed; Thomas E. Robinson of Westerly, as member of the state board of veterinarians, for the term ending Jan. 31, 1931, confirmed; Edwin J. Sherr, M. D., of Hope Valley, medical examiner for district 2 of the county of Washington, town of Hopkinton, for the term ending Jan. 31, 1932, confirmed; John Barlow, of South Kingstown, Washington county, as member of the commissioners of birds for the term ending January 31, 1929, confirmed.

The annual ladies' night of the Westerly Cycle club, one of the oldest social organizations in Westerly, for which plans have been made by the committee in charge to be held this (Friday) evening, promises to be a gala affair. Elaborate preparations have been made for the dance and social, which will be held in Mechanics' hall. The clubrooms in the Briggs building also will be kept open.

Largely attended on Wednesday, as well as the previous night, was the presentation of the two-act comedy, "Mr. Bob," by an amateur cast, trained by Mrs. Bessie K. Morrill, in the vestry of the Pawcatuck Congregational church. The cast of characters made up of young people of the Christian Endeavor society, follow: Philip Revson, Ralph Christy; Robert Brown, George Williamson; Geraldine, the butler, John Thompson; Rebecca Lake, a maiden lady, Mary McKellar; Ruth Perine Bryant, Sophie Williamson; Katherine, a friend, Florence Barr; Patty, the maid, Margaret Teft.

The regular session of third district court in Westerly this (Friday) morning promises to be a busy one for last week but two criminal cases were tried and all other cases were continued.

This (Friday) evening there will be a C. E. Social in the town hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle W. Stone of Hartford spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson.

Mrs. Lillian Ouelette, 20, mother of two children, was placed under arrest Tuesday by Sheriff Allison Frink of Andover when it was found that she was implicated in thefts in that village. She was charged with breaking and entering and when taken before Judge Faulkner pleaded guilty. The young woman was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court. The theft mentioned in the warrant was committed in a house known as the Case house and recently sold to a Hartford real estate agent by the name of O. R. Lamphear. The accomplice in the theft was Henry Kelleher, alias Henry Ryan, of Andover, who was being held on the charge of theft of an automobile in Springfield, Mass. A warrant of charge of theft for the same offense as that held against the woman is held against Kelliher and will be served on him after disposition of his case in Springfield, handled by Sheriff Frink, solves the mystery of several chicken thefts in the town recently.

STONINGTON

Mrs. Mary Jane (Hancox) Cutler, 92, widow of Capt. E. F. Cutler, died Wednesday morning at the home of her daughter, Miss Frances P. Cutler, of Elm street. She was born in Stonington, July 8, 1832, the daughter of the late Benjamin and Eunice Stevens Hancox. Mrs. Cutler resided in Stonington all but twenty years of her life, these being spent in Brooklyn, N. Y. Her husband, the late Capt. E. F. Cutler, was a well known captain of the clipper ships. Mrs. Cutler was in good health until about ten or twelve days ago, when she caught a severe cold, which developed into pneumonia. She is survived by five children, Mrs. George W. King, of New Jersey, Mrs. Eugene Atwood, of New York, Miss Frances P. Cutler, of Stonington, Benjamin S. Cutler, of Stonington, and Thomas W. Cutler, of Stonington; one sister, Mrs. Ellen Babcock.

At the installation of officers of Joseph Hull Mother's Relief Monday evening a roast pork supper was served. Past President Mrs. Esther Ide, of Stonington, conducted the services. Mrs. Joseph F. Joseph was awarded a silver console set in recognition of her work as secretary of the W. R. C. for 25 years.

Following are the new officers of the Stonington Ambulance corps, elected Monday evening at Arion hall, on Center street: President, Emil Schmitz; vice president, Richard Fritz; secretary, Allan Slade; treasurer, Lawrence Brooks; commander, Dr. William L. Veal; vice commander, Dr. O. J. Dennehey; top sergeant, Isaac Gavitt; ambulance committee, William C. Brown, Raoul M. DeLagrange, Allan C. Slade; entertainment committee, Charles Killare, William O'Brien, Frank Fritz; uniform committee, W. C. Brown, H. Gavitt, John Tanner. Applications for membership to the corps closes Feb. 1, 1926, and subscriptions are now coming in.

COLUMBIA

The annual meeting of the Saxton by Mrs. Esther Andrews followed the at the library on Monday evening. Reports of the various officers were read and officers elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President, William Wolff; vice president, Howard A. Rice; secretary, Clayton E. Hunt; treasurer, Edward P. Lyman; trustee, Alonzo Little; assistant trustee, Edward P. Lyman.

The library committee for three years, Miss Eliza Hutchins and William Wolff.

The association has funds giving an income of about $200 annually. There is also a state grant of $100 of which $30 must be spent for schools, $35 for non fiction, and $35 for fiction. During the past year 68 books have been added to the library, making a total of 7512 volumes on the shelves.

The circulation for the past year of books and magazines is 4035, the total attendance at the library being 2217. There are 52 families registered, totalling about 110 readers in addition to which are about 50 of the summer residents. Fiction shows the largest circulation, with periodicals second. There are now 10 periodicals subscribed for.

An interesting fact in connection with the attendance in 1925 shows a great increase in the number of children taking out books. The schools are also drawing more heavily, the circulation among the schools being nearly twice as much as in the previous year. It is also interesting to note that 43 of the volumes in circulation among the schools in 1925 have been laid aside for repairs showing that they have had hard usage.

The Columbia Free Library association was formed in 1883 when Saxton B. Little of Meriden, a former resident of Columbia, gave $1,000 as a fund, interest to be used for books only. A library building was erected just south of Cemetery Lane, and paid for by popular subscription. Many gifts of books and furnishings were received. Mr. Little augmenting his original gift many times by adding books. In 1900 the late Joseph Hutchins proposed to erect a new building for the library. And the present library home was dedicated June 17th, 1901. Mr. Hutchins stipulated that the name should be changed to the Saxton B. Little Free library, in appreciation of Mr. Little's many gifts. Mr. Little died in 1907 at his home on Columbia St., in Meriden, said street having been so named by his influence, showing his love for his native town.

Of the 123 original members of the library association, 25 of them have died. The present treasurer, E. P. Lyman, was the first vice president. Miss Amelia Fuller has been on the library committee since the association was formed, and is the only living member of the original committee.

The present librarian is Mrs. Howard Rice, who is starting on her 18th year of service, succeeding the late Alanson Fox, who served for many years, and who was one of those always most interested in the library.

Columbia is justly proud of its library building and equipment, it being acknowledged as among the best in a town of the size of Columbia.

The Columbia Improvement association held a whist party Friday evening at the town hall. First prizes were won by Mrs. Ethel Blakely and Raymond Sauler and consolations by Mrs. Junabel Squier and Richard Dimon. Hot dogs and coffee were sold at the close of the evening.

ANTI-WORLD COURT PETITION FROM NORWICH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut, introduced the following petition in the United States senate today:

Petitions from Patrick Pearce council, American Association Recognition Irish Republic of Hartford; W. A. Harty branch, Ancient Order of Hibernians of New Britain; sundry citizens of New London, Norwich, Stonington, all in the state of Connecticut, opposing the entrance of the United States into the proposed world court as the proxy to enter into the League of Nations.

TO-DAY'S OFFER TO ALL WHO HAVE STOMACH DISTRESS

Try One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin for Indigestion or Any Stomach Trouble and If Not Delighted With the Good Results Lee & Osgood Co. or Any Reliable Druggist Will Gladly Return the Purchase Price.

Get a bottle of this grand stomach medicine today with the distinct understanding that your money will be promptly returned if it does not stop the most acute stomach distress quicker than anything you ever used.

Your stomach may be so distended with gas that you think every minute your heart will stop beating, yet with one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin that dreadful feeling of suffocation will vanish in a few minutes.

With the same speed it stops gas, belching and heartburn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of Pepsin with other good stomach invigorators—so wonderful that in one small town in New Jersey last year over 4,000 bottles were sold.

Never mind what causes your indigestion or gastritis or dyspepsia or how long you have had it, or how many other remedies you have tried, this is the one medicine that will make your old disabled stomach so strong and healthy that you can digest anything you eat without the slightest distress.

And you know that when your stomach is in fine shape, nervousness, headaches and dizziness won't bother you. Every regular druggist guarantees one bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin. Lee & Osgood Co. sells dozens of it.

STORRS HENS MAKE BEST WEEKLY RECORD

Making the best weekly record since the present contest started last November, the 1,400 pullets laid 4,198 eggs in the tenth week of competition, or approximately 43 per cent. This is a gain of 562 eggs over last week and 981 eggs more than the corresponding week a year ago. With a total of 34,345 eggs to date, this year's contest pullets have gained 3,036 eggs in the first ten weeks, as compared with the same period a year ago. White Wyandottes this year take the honor of being the breed to first pass the fifty per cent. production mark, they laying at a rate of slightly over fifty-one per cent. this week.

Nine pens appear on the honor roll for this week, indicating that competition is becoming more intense as the contest continued. Two pens of White Wyandottes, owned by B. A. Barker, of Mazon, Ill., and The Locusts of West Cornwall, Conn., and a pen of White Leghorns, entered by Dudley Poultry farm, from Webster, Mass., all tied for first place with a score of 49 eggs. The Homestead farm, White Leghorns, from Honesdale, Pa., took second place with a lay of 48 eggs, and a pen of the same breed, entered by Waldas Poultry farm, from Chester, Conn., took third place with a lay of 47 eggs. Four pens all tied for fourth place with a lay of 46 eggs each. They are the two pens of Rhode Island Reds entered by D. Hart Horton, of Farmingdale, L. I., and Deer Brook Poultry farm, of Short Falls, N. H., the White Wyandottes, entered by Obed G. Knight, of Bridgeton, R. I., and the White Leghorns, entered by Ernest H. Stott, from Unionville, Conn.

Three changes occurred among the leading pens. In the White Wyandotte class, Obed G. Knight's entry, from Bridgeton, R. I., went into first position, displacing the pen entered by Thomas H. Matteson, from Davisville, R. I. Pens entered by Edgar Stoughton, from Wapping, Conn., and Harriette Smith, from Newburyport, Mass., took the lead in the Barred Rock class, each with a lay of 333 eggs to date. These two pens were deadlocked at 280 eggs last week. In the Rhode Island Red class, the entry of E. D. Sargent, from East Ryegate, Vt., went up into second position, displacing the entry of Shell Crest Poultry farm, from Hollliston, Mass.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

SENATOR M'LEAN'S ADDRESS IN SENATE IN ADVOCACY OF PROPOSED WORLD COURT

WASHINGTOX, Jan. 16—Condemning the selfish scramble of nations for the resources of the earth, during discussion of the proposed world court in the senate Wednesday, Senator George P. McLean, of Connecticut, intimated that he would vote for participation by the United States and declared that the league of nations might some day do what the prophets foretast for it.

Senator McLean said in part: It is apparent that 'Europe wants 'peace. Whether it is a case of "When a certain gentleman was sick," and so forth we do not know. We do know that the tears of war dry quickly and the hatreds of wars live long and that seven years is a short time in the history of the fauna of a continent. The sociological skeletons of Europe testify that many times she has confessed and repented the sin and folly of war and found grace and immediately lost it. While disappointments are possible and caution is advisable it is our duty today to suspend judgment and hope for the best.

We are not popular in Europe. She knows that the war did not pay her and she is very certain that it did pay us. We point to our loss in lives and ecicasal expenditures in money. We point to the causes of the war, the inherited and chronic contagion of greed and oppression that for centuries has poisoned the political and social atmosphere of the east. We point to our refusal to snare in the spoils of victory. We suggest that our associates should consider what would have been their fate but for our timely rescue. We ask our enemies to consider their emancipation from the bondage of imperial bullitarism. We feel that all Europe should be grateful to us because we saved her from her ignorant and militant self and gave her one more chance to shut the gates of Janus and keep them shut.

While we may regret this unfriendly state of mind in Europe, we know that it is natural and persistent. We know that it is humanely impossible for a defeated nation to admit that its cause was unjust. We know that it is humanely impossible for a great and proud nation to surrender its pride to an associate in the hour of victory. We could not do it, and we are wasting time expecting it of others. So, I think, it is our duty now to give Europe full credit for what she does that we approve, and listen hopefully to what she says she is going to do. Today we have before us the Locarno promises and the Damascus performances. Up to date the league of nations has carefully and wisely, I think, ignored its obligations to employ force. It is claimed that the World Court has been trusted to settle such disputes only as would have been amicably adjusted in its absence. The disarmament program of the Geneva protocol is yet to be adopted by a single one of its 47 sponsors. The principal author of the protocol, Mr. Politis, of Greece, very recently had opportunity to observe the disinclination of his countrymen to turn their spears into plow shares. In the preamble of the treaty of Versailles we find the following declaration of purpose. "In order to render possible the initiation of a general limitation of armaments of all nations, Germany undertakes to strictly observe the military and air clauses which follow." It appears that the Allies disarmed Germany in order that all other nations, including themselves, might do likewise, and yet the record does not reveal the retirement of a single gun or gunboat except such as were retired at the invitation of the United States in a conference entirely independent of the protocol. However, the Locarno agreements promise much, and the impending disarmament conference may produce something more tangible than unfilled promises. We hope so, but we do not forget that since the days of Sully and Cruce international councils and leagues to maintain world peace by force have been advocated at the close of every war of serious impart. In 1915 a league to enforce peace was formed in this country. Among its leading promoters we find the names of Henry Cabot Lodge, Philander C. Knox, and Theodore Roosevelt. Let me quote Mr. Roosevelt's views upon this subject, published in the New York Times:

"Finally, it would be a master stroke if those great powers, honestly bent on peace, would form a league of peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent by force if necessary its being broken by others.

In view of what has occurred in this war, surely the time ought to be ripe for the nations to consider a great world agreement among all the civilized military powers to back righteousness by force. World peace will not come save in some such manner. This state of things (present conditions) can be abolished only when we put the collective armed power of civilization behind somebody who shall, with reasonable justice and equity, represent the collective administration of civilization to do what is right."

And again—

"They should, furthermore, agree not only to abide, each of them, by the decision of the court, but all of them should unite with every military force to enforce the decree of the court as against any recalcitrant member."

All this from Mr. Roosevelt in 1925

I think that President Wilson was the only great man who did not join Mr. Roosevelt's league to enforce peace. At that time the pulpit and the press were almost unanimous in their support of a league of nations. This was natural. A terrible war was devastating Europe. We did not want to get into it, and we were quick to welcome proposals that promised escape, but when the war was over and we could calmly and accurately measure the consequences of a solemn promise on our part to use force to maintain for all time existing national boundaries and protect the so-called right of self-determination, a great majority of the American people realized the folly of such an undertaking. And it strikes me now that entirely outside of the obligations contained in Article X of Mr. Wilson's league, and outside of the utterly selfish redistribution of Europe, Asia, and Africa by the three gentlemen who represented the victorious nations at Versailles, there are other important considerations which can not be ignored when we are seeking ways and means to convert the world into a mutual admiration society by force and arms, considerations which every nation on earth must face every day of its life.

Today our neighbors across the sea want peace, and so do we. But Europe wants and must have food and raiment and shelter, and so must we. Which means that all of us must have land, and gold and iron, and copper, and coal, and oil, and rubber, and a great many other things.

Every nation is busy now congratulating itself upon the superiority of its men and women and merchandise and attributing its misfortunes, if it has such, to the iniquities of its competitors in the production and distribution of these things that save the soul and sustain the body I could present many illustrations in support of this statement, but to do so would necessitate the use of names, which is to be avoided by those in search of peace and reasonable profits. What we would all like to discover is some common ground upon which we can all stand and fight crime and poverty and disease instead of each other and get rich in the undertaking.

The difficulties in the way of such a discovery are real and many. Self-praise, self-pity, and self-aggrandizement are ancient and dear companions. They are the children of a super-sovereignty as old as eternity, a sovereignty which never compromises or arbitrates and which plays no favorites. We know that we are part of a program which awards survival in this world to the fit. We know that it is a program we can not change, and that is all we know about it. Its major condition is that nothing animate can live without food. The necessity for meeting this condition has revealed to some of us the wisdom of producing a surplus of food, and to me that our adherence to the World Court is necessary to the end that in all climates raiment and shelter must be had to sustain life. Consequently the nation that produces the greatest quantity of the necessities of life at the least cost in labor and permits the least waste in their distribution and consumption will merit survival.

How far the desire for peace will be permitted to interfere with the program to which I have alluded is the problem of the future. It is clear that a wise people will give free exercise to the acquisitive instinct as long as its activities are confined to the production of a surplus of the things which men must have in order to live. Might does not make right neither does weakness. If the world is to have peace and something to eat she must put science in the saddle and that lady will pay little attention to racial conceits or national turnstiles. If a national back or front yard becomes an international nuisance it will be abated and the rights of self-determination and other domestic preferences and performances, if they are unwise, will reap what they have sown. So much for one side of the picture. There is another side and an important one.

The desire to possess can easily be overworked and misdirected. It produced food and raiment and shelter and it also produces profiteers, parasites, and profligates, both national and individual, and they are not easily eliminated. Church and state have been engaged in this endeavor for a great many years, but the late war and some other things indicate that their efforts have met with indifferent success, to say the most. Treaties and leagues and alliances, holy and otherwise, have tried and failed. As I have before hinted, we Americans think we are a little better than other folks and know how to do things in a better way; but when we ourselves come to deal with domestic matters of importance we find that the American brand of reason is still of divers and uncertain authority. Our fountain of ultimate wisdom, the supreme court, is prone to disagree upon vital questions and who can point to a time when democrats will see safety in republican laws or republicans will find reason in democratic councils. A great many good men and women in America still believe that "sifting folly through a ballot box" will produce riches and that congress and constables can keep the acquisitive instinct within proper bounds. We are at this moment looking to these instrumentalities to remove from the American corpus the desire to possess alcohol for beverage purposes. Will the experiment in its final phase convince us that we can secure temperance in the use of alcohol by the same methods that we can secure temperance in the use of our fortunes, our fists, our pretty faces, and pancakes. To wit, by rearing boys and girls with brains enough to use their money, fists, faces, and stomachs without abusing them, and who will care enough about their country and themselves to resist indulgences that will destroy and degrade both. How many more centuries will it take us to learn that the garments of good and evil are homespun, including those of peace and war, and that the fibers from which they are woven are exclusively home grown? How long before west and east will learn that leagues and courts and laws can not do what parents have left undone; that the cure for the intemperate use of powder and whisky and all the other things that hurt and destroy must be administered to the patient when he is in the cradle or soon after he leaves it, or still better, a long time, say three generations, before he gets into it.

We are the richest people on earth in material things. We think that our morals and manners are superior, and yet we know well enough that should we become involved in another war our enemies, in their opinion, would be leading the hosts of the only true God against the hosts of Satan in the person of Uncle Sam. No nation ever has or ever will in its own conceit be guilty of starting or sustaining an unjust war. So we observe that while force is a blessed thing when we see fit to use it, all forces are righteous that lead to war in the opinion of those who do the leading.

"We do not want to become entangled in the controversies of other nations." "Let the foreigner mind his business and we will mind ours." "America for Americans, and to pot with the rest of the world," are all popular slogans. But they are as easily overworked, as is the acquisitive instinct. The eagle has his faults, but our American bird has behaved pretty well. We continue to put him on our money and he has been on the fighting end of our flagstaff while we have gradually at times and rapidly at times taken possession of the garden spot of the earth. He has no apologies to offer and we have none to offer for him. But in the present world muddle I do not believe it is wise or necessary for him to act like a Shanghai rooster or an ostrich. I do not see any reason why he should run under the barn when there is a disturbance in the back yard, and I think it very unsafe and short-sighted for him to hide his head in the offensive sands of self-worship. The step from nution to cowardise is no longer than that from the sublime to the ridiculous.

We constitute about 6 per cent of the inhabitants of the earth, and it is apparent that the time may come when the ayes and nays of the other 94 per cent will be of vital consequence to us. There is a power of the right sort in wisdom and there is greater power of the wrong sort in numbers and ignorance. We are deeply interested in the year 1926. I think we ought to be interested in the year 2619 and the intervening years. I suppose they will all arrive on time. The population of the earth has about doubled since 1825. If this rate of increase continues there will be comfortable standing room in 2619, but no refreshments. If trouble comes we can hardly expect to exterminate the hungry and unruly 94 per cent. Yet something must happen. Will it be war or pestilence or fire and brimstone or common sense that will cut the population garment according to its cloth. And suppose we can do this, but our neighbors fail.

We intend to keep what we now have against all comers. If we want to live in a civilized world, I think it is high time we screwed our courage up to a point that will enable us to treat our neighbors in a civilized manner. We know that for the purposes of trade and the distribution of good and bad advice the earth today is no larger than was the District of Columbia 100 years ago. While trade may not follow the flag, we know that politics will follow trade as surely as noontime follows the dawn. With our goods in every port and our debits and credits in every court and countinghouse, we might as well try to keep the Mississippi River out of the Gulf of Mexico as try to keep politics out of our foreign relations. This is true of all nations which buy and sell.

I can see no reason why we should be afraid to join with other nations officially in an effort to maintain their social and industrial sanity by peaceful methods. Since John Hay's time we have urged that the world must have an international tribunal for the settlement of international disputes. We are told that we must not adhere to this court because obligations to use force are contained in the league covenant and the court may upon the request of the council of the league render advisory opinions. But no one can successfully contend that our adherence to the court will compel us to go near it for any purpose if we do not want to, and it is clear to me that our adherence to the court will not bring us any nearer to the League of Nations than we are now. This is written in good King's English in the statute which creates the court. And the court in its decisions already rendered has indicated its ability to read the English language.

With regard to the Monroe doctrine, the principle it embraces is dear to our hearts and properly so. It is very clear court will not affect our right to maintain it, or that our non-adherence will affect the right of other powers to question it if they see fit. Unquestionably the court will be a face saver of great price in that the gentlemen in charge of foreign affairs will be permitted to shove into its ample lap the buck of responsibility, and whether we adhere or not, the court will define the rights of neutrals and we must act accordingly or fight.

I voted for the League of Nations with the reservations eliminating the obligations to use force and upon the condition that our signature to the covenant would be affixed with the distinct understanding that American domestic and political questions would remain entirely outside its jurisdiction. If we had joined the league with the so-called Lodge reservations we would be in the same position that we are now under the Bryan peace treaties. In these treaties with 23 or more nations we agree to arbitrate all disputes which do not affect our honor, our independence, or our vital interests. As the inclusiveness of these exceptions is left to our discretion, it follows that we have agreed to arbitrate nothing. These treaties are mere salutations expressive of good will and the hope that international differences if they should arise may be amicably adjusted. So our entrance into the League of Nations with the reservations to which I have called attention would have been a mere declaration to other powers that while we intend to work our own future in our own way, absolutely free from foreign interferences, yet we were willing to join the rest of the world in its endeavor to substitute reason for force in the settlement of disputes. And further, that we are willing to discuss with them ways and means for procuring an intelligent solution of social and economic problems as they may arise, to the end that sanity and common sense may prevail whenever and wherever populations tend to press upon subsistence and ignorance and greed threaten the peace of the world.

We may admit that other peoples are selfish, ambitious, suspicious and untrustworthy and that hundreds of millions of them will be powder in the horn of the demagogue, and yet to deny that international peace is possible is to deny that civilization is possible. And suppose the possible happens. Suppose Europe should remain sane for a while and, being convinced that there is no profit in war, should seek material prosperity in peace and cooperation. Suppose the League of Nations should prove to be of real and lasting assistance in the spread of sound economics and eugenics and the world court should meet the expectation of its friends. If this should happen and Uncle Sam should officially decline to lend a helping hand or an encouraging word, he would pass from the limelight to a rear seat in the gallery, no longer the hero in the great play but a discredited prophet abroad as well as at home.

Let me close with a bit of history. In 1778 we entered into a treaty of alliance whereby the United States obligated itself to fight with France against a common foe. If was to secure a recognition of the obligation in this treaty that Citizen Genet arrived in Charleston in 1793. France assumed that whenever war broke out between England and France we were bound by the treaty of 1778 to go to her assistance, and this clearly stipulated that the United States should guarantee "from this time and forever" the possessions of France in the West Indies. England and France were at war in Europe, and Citizen Genet felt that the time had come for us to assume our obligations under the treaty. The followers of Madison and Jefferson agreed with Genet, but as the treaty specifically stated that it was a defensive alliance, Washington—then president of the United States—found no difficulty in deciding that France was waging an offensive war and accordingly he issued a proclamation of neutrality, stating that "it was to our interest to do so." The Jeffersonian party bitterly criticised the president, but the American people were with him.

Thus the father of his Country escaped the penalties of an entangling alliance, and his country stood by him. I am not one of those who believe that we should be less successful in the future should occasion arise, and it is "to our interest to do so."

SOUTH WINDHAM

The Community Men's Club of Windham and South Windham observed Ladies' Night at the School house at Windham Center, Monday evening when a large number was present from South Windham. The committee of arrangements from this place was Charles L. Crandall, Alfred E. Card and Frank Murdock. The committee selected for the next meeting is Arthur Beckwith, Henry Holden, George F. Stiles, who will serve with three men from Windham Center.

Miss M. Agnes Hathaway, for 20 years a missionary in Tokio, Japan, was the guest last week of Mrs. Joseph F. Cobb.

Mrs. George Barber, of South Coventry, was the guest Monday of her daughter, Mrs. Otis Southerland.

Arthur Slade was in Portland, Conn., Saturday to attend the wedding of Miss Caroline R. Varley and Allen C. Robinson.

Rev. Joseph F. Cobb was in Norwich Monday afternoon to officiate at the funeral of Gustave Nelson, of Willimantic.

Garritt W. Smith employed at Remington, spent the week end with his family in South Windham.

Mrs. G. L. Gardner of Providence and been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Backus.

Frank Morrison of Willimantic has entered the employ of the Smith and Winchester Mfg. Co.

Elmer Engstrom is on a business trip in the west for the Smith and Winchester Mfg. Co.

Mrs. Guilford Smith and Miss Elizabeth Abbe sailed from New York last week for a trip to the Holy Land, Egypt and Europe.

The South Windham Band observed Ladies' Night in Guilford Smith hall with music, a fine supper and card playing. Rev. Joseph F. Cobb was a guest and spoke a few words to encouragement and congratulation.

Clarence Avery was a business visitor in Norwich Tuesday.

Tuesday evening, the South Windham Branch church held its annual meeting. About 60 were present. A fine supper was served by the hospitable women of the community, under the leadership of Mrs. Walter Abbe, Jr. and Mrs. Harold Nichols. After the supper the annual roll call and business meeting was held. Rev. James G. Graham the pastor, presided. Rev. Joseph F. Cobb offered prayer. Twenty four responded to the roll. The various branches, the Ecclesiastical Society, the Sunday school, the Mission Society, and the Good Will Society, all gave very favorable reports.

The officers elected are clerk and treasurer, Charles Backus; church committee, Mrs. Anna F. Smith, Mrs. Ella Card and Arthur Sweet; auditor, Walter Abbe, Jr., deacon, Elmer Engstrom; superintendent of Sunday school, Rev. Joseph F. Cobb; assistant superintendent of Sunday school, Mrs. Joseph F. Cobb; secretary and treasurer, Miss Avis Cobb, librarian, Miss Edith Baker. A legacy of $200 from the estate of Miss Emma Babcock was received. During the year three deaths have occurred of those interested in the church, Miss Emma Babcock, Carl Johnson and Miss Susan Paine.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clinton Lathrop, Mr. and Mrs. William Maine, George Cook and Miss Marguerite Cook, Rev. and Mrs. James G. Graham represented Windham Congregational church at the annual meeting of the South Windham Branch church Tuesday evening.

To exhort the great spirit to call off "ghosts," which have been visiting death upon Indians of the Tulalip reservation, thirty miles north of Seattle, during the last few weeks, the Indian medicine men have decided on an old time tribal Tamanawels dance on January 22.

QUANTITY AND QUALITY AMBITION.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

If there is one thing on which this age plumes itself, about which it boasts most vigorously, it is the tendency to mass production with the aid of machinery.

To do big things in a big way seems to be the ambition of the time.

This, it may be remarked at the outset, is entirely different from the ambition to do good things in the right way. It is the superior character of this last-mentioned ambition that I want to talk about mostly, this morning.

Not long ago I read the proud assertion in a page advertisement that the store which was doing the advertising had 31 acres of floor-space. In a recent note from a Californian friend, he went into capital letters to express his satisfaction over having bought a share in a 17,000 acre orange grove, "through which you can drive all day and not see half of it." One farmer in Missouri wants the world to take notice that his average annual corn-field is of 30,000 acres, and that he buys his clover-seed by the car-load. Every once in a while I read of some new factory which splurges over the fact that it has more looms or spinning-frames or calendering machines than any other factory of its class in the world. Last fall somebody wrote about an Imperial Valley cantaloupe-grower who had 5,000 acres in one melon-patch.

Recalling which gloat, I have to chuckle over the skit which recently appeared in a Detroit paper's "funny column" berating "Wizard" Luther Burbank, before he retires, "to make one last supreme effort at un-crossing the pumpkin and the cantaloupe." No one who has been in the habit of buying his breakfast melons from the fruit-dealers will need any map or diagram to show the point of that joke.

Picking my way through George Saintsbury's "Scrap-Book," the other day, I came on the following bit which, also, woke in me a desire to shout "Amen:"

"What has come to—I had almost said what has become of—sausages? * * * The last sausage that I remember as worthy of its ancient popularity was produced at Sidmouth in one of the early 'eighties. * * * But their representatives today! The worst I don't believe Lamb's chimney-sweeps would have condescended to eat; the best are hopelessly degenerate—even when they are not messed up with tomatoes and when their integuments do not remind one of india-rubber. Sometimes they appear to be made of nothing but bread-crumbs and fat; very seldom do they possess any satisfactory flavoring; almost never do they suggest Pig. A good deal of this decadence may be due to the ever-present curse of factory and machinery: for the further you get from individual plain hand-work the worse everything becomes—especially everything eatable or drinkable."

There is no question that the tendency of the age toward mass-production; towards making things by machinery and in cargo lots; toward Big Things in every line,—there is no doubt that this also tends to cheapness of production, so far as price is concerned.

It also tends, with equally irresistible force, to the cheapening of quality. The first result may be desirable. But is the second?

You and I are farmers. That is, you are a farmer, and I was one in the days before the grinders became few and the keepers of the house began to tremble. We know that we can do more work in less time with out mowing-machines and reapers and silage-cutters and potato-diggers than was possible with scythes and cradles and corn-knives and potato-hooks. We also know that not one of those—or any other—machines does as good as thorough and as clean work as we used to do with hand tools.

I have one farmer neighbor who crops perhaps a hundred acres a year. On his big fields he uses a tractor drawing gang-plows, with a harrow hitched behind so as to do it all on the "once-over."

But when it comes to the garden where he wants to raise early potatoes and first-in-the-market sweet corn and June peas and July tomatoes and the like,—when he tackles that garden he gets out the steady old team and hooks off to the old hand-plow so that he can watch and control every furrow-turn. He cuts and drops and covers the potatoes by hand; he rakes and smoothes the onion-bed by hand; he plants the sweet-corn and the cucumbers and the peas and all the rest by hand.

Why?

Simply because in his fields he is seeking only commercial crops, while in his garden he wants something better.

In other words, he knows that the acre-an-hour rush of his tractor-drawn gang-plows does skimpier and less thorough work than the acre-a-day hand-plow. He knows that he can't hope for best results without the best preparation. Wherefore, in the matter which appeals to his producer's pride and to the satisfactory supply of his own table, he reverts to hand tools and hand work.

The thing works in just about the same way in all other forms of production. Men with 17,000 acres in orange trees or 3,000 acres in cantaloupes aren't raising the fruit to eat but to sell. Production costs and quality of product are both kept down to the lowest point possible without driving the market to actual revolt. That's why you get so many "pethy" oranges and pumpkin-y cantaloupes. In both cases quality is sacrificed to quantity. The object of the grower is not to see how good oranges and melons he can raise, but to see how cheaply he can rustle 'em up and how much profit he can get off them.

In the manufacturing world, the same truth governs. Once the small water-powers of New England were little mills for grinding grists, for spinning yarn, for weaving cloth. The output of each one was small. Hardly one was a "money-maker" for its owner. If it gave him a living and enabled him to lay by a competence, he was satisfied.

Now there isn't a flouring mill within the radius of my acquaintances. We buy our flour from some Minnesota mill which turns out its thousands of barrels a day. Is it as good flour as that which Miller Adams used to grind from our home-grown wheat? Not on your sweet life. It isn't it is de-vitaminised and de-glutenised and chemically bleached till it is as white as snow,—and hardly more nutritious. It has had from half to three-quarters of its life-sustaining, body-building value filched from it to attain that whiteness which has been found essential to its wildest sale. You see, the selling is the part the big millers are interested in. They make their flour to sell, not primarily to eat. They are much less interested in its food value than in its market price.

There used to be a small cloth mill about a dozen miles from where I am now writing. It employed perhaps a dozen hands at the busy season, as neighbors of the owner. One day before the outbreak of the Civil war, when I was but a very small boy, my father permitted me to accompany him on this annual trip. Father, to buy cloth for the family's yearly needs. One piece of that cloth was made into a "cape overcoat" for my older brother,—that form of construction being quite the thing, then. The brother wore it for several years, part of the time "mule-skinning" in Nebraska and Missouri. It then reverted to my father who wore it during the winters for a dozen or so years more. The coat itself finally became rather ragged. So the cape was taken off, and that my father continued to use when doing his "chores" at the barn, till he became too old even for that light work. And now I have used it for more than 30 years, the same way. It is a handy protection to throw on or off and is still, barring one trifling tear, as thick, as stout, and as warm as when made nearly 70 years ago.

D'ye s'pose any overcoat bought this winter will be, any part of it, in actual service in 1995? Such cloth as that isn't made any more. It was built of home-grown wool, sorted by an expert, spun and woven in slow but careful intexrity by workmen who felt themselves on honor in their self-chosen tasks. There was actually fully as much hand work as machine work in it.

As I think I have mentioned once before, within my own memory there were 17 small mills, of one sort and another, on the little water-powers of my own immediate neighborhood. Some of them, like the grist-mills, were one-man affairs. I don't think a single one ever had so many as a dozen hands. But they turned out better flour and yarn and cloth and leather than can be bought for love or money these days of huge factories and automatic machines.

Saintsbury's plaint about sausages recalls those which old Col. Tanner made, 50, 60, 70 years ago. He used to select his own pigs from his neighbors' sty, butcher them himself, trim and shape the hams, spareribs, etc., with his own hands, clean and cure the "casings" himself, grind and season and stuff the sausages, all by his lonesome, in his little shop. He put in nothing but the primest pork. In order to be sure of strength and purity he bought all the seasoning spices in bulk and ground them, himself. He used only the best rock salt, triturated to flour-like fineness in his own big mortar. And when he peddled those sausages, men, women and children stood at the cart with tongues hanging out in joyous anticipation. Nowadays sausages are made by the mile in big shops with whirling engines, sometimes out of hogs' ears and pork rinds ground up, sometimes out of scraps swept off the floor, sometimes with a good deal of unsalable beef mixed in, sometimes from meat so tainted as to require expert manipulation to disguise its rankness. And the flavorings are from factory produced spices, bought, not because of their freshness and purity, but because of their cheapness per hundred-weight.

In another place Saintsbury remarks upon the criticism that old folks are apt to run down the present and cry up the past. He denies that this is always so and goes on:—

"There were probably never prettier girls or kittens or roses than there are at present; I do not believe that there were ever braver men than those who fought at Ypres and Zeebrugge; and (rash as this may seem) I doubt whether there ever were greater fools than those we have with us."

That says it!

THE FARMER

A WEAKNESS

I don't care much for the human race,
And its deathly troubles me never a whit;
At the thought that it soon may fall from grace
I am not worried the slightest bit.
Mankind on the whole is a futile set,
And strychnine's my cue—
I laugh at philanthropists—and yet
I am fond of a lot of women and men.

There's a-many I love and but few I hate,
And two or three that I'all but adore;
And some I honor as good and great,
And I bow to the brains of at least a score.
And every day I may hope to meet
A winning stranger—a man so fine,
A woman so fair or a child so sweet
That life will suddenly turn divine!

Mankind's a silly and hopeless lot,
His wisdom is folly, his acts are crimes.
The things he thinks of as good are not—
The gods must laugh at such brainless mimes!
I should curse his breed and renounce his name
And denounce his deeds to the wrath above.
Except for the knowledge that, all the same,
He's produced a number of folks I love!

The Silent Watcher

Through silence secrets oft are learned,
And knowledge thus is often earned.
—Old Mother Nature.

Farmer Brown's boy knows the truth of this. Long ago he learned it through experience. So when he is in the Green Forest and he has a way of standing or sitting quietly for long periods. "Things will come to you that you cannot go to," says he, and in this he is right. He knows that often when you cannot see or hear any of the little people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows some of them may be very near. If they haven't seen you the surest way of seeing them is to keep perfectly still. Then unless they happen to get your scent, to smell you, they are almost sure to show themselves. Even when they know you are about they often will forget or think you have moved on providing you keep perfectly still.

"I believe that was Yowler the Bob Cat", thought Farmer Brown's Boy

All this Farmer Brown's boy knows. It is one reason he knows so much about his furred and feathered friends. For a long, long time he has been a silent watcher. He has found that it pays. So it was that after leaving the Deer "yard" where Lightfoot and his family were doing nicely despite the crust on the snow, he stopped every little way and stood motionless and silent while he looked and listened and waited.

At last he reached a clump of young hemlock trees, and as he peered out from the midst of these he saw or thought he saw a brownish form sneak out of sight.

"I believe that was Yowler the Bob Cat," thought Farmer Brown's boy.

"Yes, sir, I do believe it was. It isn't often I have a chance to see him in broad daylight. I don't think he saw me. He didn't act that way. I'll watch here a while and see what happens."

Nothing happened for a long time. In fact Farmer Brown's boy had about decided that waiting there was wasting time and that he would move on. But before he moved he looked carefully as far as he could see between the trees. There was Yowler returning. Farmer Brown's boy chuckled silently as he noted how Yowler sneaked along when there was no one about to see him so far as he knew. "He is a natural born sneak," thought Farmer Brown's boy. "I wonder what he is up to here?"

Yowler came sneaking along until a little way in front of where Farmer Brown's boy was standing. Then he stopped and crouched, his eyes fixed on a certain spot. His stub of a tail which is hardly enough of a tail to be called a tail, twitched. Once in a while he would turn his head to glare all around. Then he would fix his eyes on that particular spot again. Finally, very softly, he stole forward and began to scratch the crust at that point. But he didn't scratch long. Then he resumed his watching.

"That is queer," thought Farmer Brown's boy. "Why is he so interested in that particular place?"

Presently he saw Reddy Fox coming along through the Green Forest. Very handsome Reddy looked, for his coat was never finer and his tail never bigger. Yowler had disappeared just before Reddy came in sight. As Reddy drew near the place Yowler had been watching he stopped so suddenly that one black paw was held up in the air. He cocked his head to one side and listened, his black ears pricked forward. It was plain that he heard something, and as he was looking straight at the spot where Yowler had been scratching it was a safe guess that whatever he heard was under the snow right there.

He was still standing there when Yowler returned and snarled at him. Reddy waited only long enough to make sure that Yowler meant what he said. Then with a grin Reddy started on straight toward Farmer Brown's boy. Just before he reached those hemlock trees a Merry Little Breeze happened along and carried the scent of Farmer Brown's boy straight to Reddy's little black nose. Without seeming to hurry Reddy appeared to melt away, so quickly did he disappear, and he was still grinning.

UNION

Euclide Rheaune of Southbridge, Mass., who, with his son, had been employed at Leroy Allen's steam sawmill, near John Kriska's, died very suddenly last Sunday evening. The two had been to their home in Southbridge for the week end and were coming back to Union in their car. Death came to the father before reaching the mill. Medical Examiner Dr. G. P. Bard of Stafford Springs, was called and pronounced death due to acute myocarditis.

Last Saturday evening about 20 friends of Miss Julia Heck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Heck, gathered at the Town hall to give her a surprise party. Miss Heck, who is a member of the senior class in the Stafford High school, is planning to go to Springfield, Mass., to train to be a nurse. Several members of her class at Stafford Springs, also four of the faculty, with members of other classes in the school, as well as freinds from Stafford, Union and Westford were present to join in good wishes for success and happiness in her new work.

During the evening, Miss Heck was presented a beautiful gold watch, her friends hope she may find useful in her duties as nurse. Her class also gave her a large box of candy.

Cake and coffee were served and dancing enjoyed. Richard Glazier of Stafford Springs, played the saxophone and Miss Edith Turner, a teacher of S. H. S., played the piano for dancing. The party was a genuine surprise, thanks to the pains taking care of Miss Heck's friends.

A meeting of the Union Parent-Teacher association is to be held at the Town Hall on Friday evening. The speaker for the evening, E. E. Tucker, agricultural agent for Tolland county, has for his subject: "Some Advantages of Country Life, and Where Does the Joy Come In?" This is a public meeting and all who are interested are invited to attend.

Ice harvesters are busy in various parts of the town this week. Several inches of snow and near zero weather are fine for this crop.

NIANTIC

The regular monthly meeting of the Niantic Sunshine society was held Thursday afternoon in the hall room of the Morton house with an attendance of 31. The Neighborly Cheer committee reported that at the Christmas season, twelve dinner baskets were sent out, 31 baskets of fruit, 4 boxes of candy, 106 cards to adults, 51 post cards to children, and over 50 cards to the Connecticut State farm women. Two elderly men were remembered with gifts of $5 each. Another received $5 worth of clothing and $5 was spent on the children of a deserving family. The women at the State farm were remembered with appropriate gifts. The Christmas tree at the Seaside sanatorium was lighted by the society. During the past month two baskets of fruit were sent out, three people were remembered with cut flowers, a dish and bulbs were carried to a sick woman, and $18 in gold presented to a couple on their golden wedding anniversary. Voted to give a needy family a food shower this month voted to accept Mrs. Malmatt's invitation to meet at her home, Jan. 14th. to sew. A silver tea will be given by Mrs. Fred Rohemeltig at the Morton house, Jan. 21st. Two new members were received into the branch, Mrs Nancy Daniels and Mrs. E. T. Cudwell. After the business meeting an interesting talk was given by the Rev. Henry A. Link of the Lyme missions who is chaplain of the society.

Almus Dorman was in New London Saturday, attending the funeral of Albert Chesseman, who died last Wednesday at the New Haven General hospital.

Joseph Burnham is confined to his home in the grove, by illness.

The Boy Rangers of America meet this (Wednesday) afternoon, after school, at Temperance chapel. Rev. J. Edgar Montgomery will be in charge.

WILD GEESE OFF COURSE LINGER IN SCOTLAND

At Scotland six large wild geese, evidently strayed from a passing flock, have been feeding on a field of rye owned by George Perry for the last three days. They appear quite tame but seem somewhat bewildered by their present surroundings.

MRS. DOMINSKY, NEW LONDON, WARNED AGAINST ILL TREATING HER CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Money doesn't bring everything to those who possess it. That is the opinion of Virginia Dominsky and her sisters. They have learned that by experience with their mother, Nellie Dominsky, the wife of a Polish man, for the former was arraigned in the police court today for her cruel treatment of her children. It was alleged that the mother struck the children as a means of governing them and also that she deprived them of the food they should have. Mrs. Dominsky and her husband work and they edivently saved for they have accumulated $1,000 in a savings bank and they own a house in Evelyn street for which they paid $2,000 recently.

When it came to the attention of the authorities some time ago that the children claimed to be underfed and to have been beaten the state health department gave the matter attention and Agent Hyatt learned that the children did obey their mother and that they attended school as regularly as most children. Superintendent Mansfield of the Learned Mission reported that one of the children was at the mission very recently and there asked for food, saying that she did not get it at home. Mrs. Dominsky claimed that the children would not obey her and go to school and she said they were imbudent to her when she advised them. This statement was denied by Policewoman Cassidy who declared that she had made inquiry at the school where the children are pupils and learned that they were quite regular in attendance. She also informed the court that on one occasion when a district nurse went to the Dominsky house that the children were partaking of wormy oatmeal which she, the nurse, took away from them as unfit for a child to eat. The case was one of perplexity. Judge Crandall was disposed to send the woman to jail, but decided that such a course would not be the wisest to pursue in view of the fact that she was the head of a family and that there were dumb animals to be looked after. He did however, impose a jail sentence of six months upon her, though he suspended the execution of of the judgment. He gave her to understand that she was to be watched and that if she offended again she would go to jail for a long stay.

At the annual meeting of the Masonic club, held in the quarters of the club organization, Huntington street, last evening the following officers were elected: President, Edward L. Street, Jr., vice president, George S. Gadbois; secretary, John G. Arnold; treasurer, Oliver D. L. Burrows; board of governors for three years: H. P. White, William H. Cone and John T. Porter, Jr. At the conclusion of the session there was a chowder. A brief address was made by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth and James G. Hammond. During the past year the organization paid off all of its indebtedness excepting liquidating the bond issue.

Morris Chesky of Hartford, has sold a building lot on Bentley avenue, Oswegatchie Beach, to Joseph Siegel, also of Hartford.

Mrs. William Boucher and infant son, of West Hartford; Mrs. Fred Pelser, 4 High street, Groton; Doris Lubow, 226 Montauk avenue; Dorothy Foster, 856 Bank street; Harry Hyatt, 249 Huntington street; Carol Nash, 24 Ledyard street and Duncan McDonald, Noank, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The condition of Daniel H. Treland, formerly of Norwich, ill at Lawrence hospital with pneumonia, is reported this afternoon as being considerably improved.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operators' licenses of Philip Adel, 27 Denison avenue, and Armando Thomas, 26 Crescent street, suspended.

Abraham Katz, 214 Shaw street, was taken into custody this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Graham, on a charge of violation of the city's traffic ordinances. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Katz was driving a commercial car on Winthrop street and operated the machine against traffic for he drove in an easterly direction between Crystal avenue and the overhead bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and approach to the Thames river highway bridge, a section that is restricted to traffic in a westerly direction only because of the danger that exists there. Katz's car narrowly escaped collision with a machine operated by Mrs. C. B. Momsen, of 90 Thames St. Mrs. Momsen in successfully avoiding a crash was compelled to drive her machine in such a manner as to cause it to skid badly. Officer Graham observed Katz's act and took him into custody.

The fire department was called out this forenoon to subdue a threatening blaze at the residence of Mrs. Mary Sullivan, 36 Water street. The fire originated from an overheated flue. The damage resulting was not large. When the fire was discovered by Mrs. Sullivan it was burning briskly about the chimney for the overheated flue pipe had caused the pine casing of the chimney to ignite and start a hot blaze. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters. Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Nameaug Engine company responding. Chemicals were applied to the burning chimney and as the firemen were gradually getting the fire subdued, an alarm was rung in from Box 24, bringing a half dozen pieces of fire-fighting equipment to the site. With the added equipment the blaze was extinguished, the firemen combatting the blaze half an hour. The damage will amount to several hundred dollors.

The funeral of Mrs. Kate Comstock Crocker, widow of Herbert J. Crocker, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Miss Emma Douglass, 27 Brainard street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, and Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Julia A. Cone, 63, wife of James H. Cone, died this morning at her late residence, 10 Clement street, Waterford, death terminating an illness of but a few days of pneumonia. Besides her husband, Mrs. Cone is survived by two sons, James H. Cone, Jr., New York, and Bernard Cone, this city. Mrs. Cone was born at Northampton, Mass., but had resided in New London about 35 years.

The treasury of the local firemen's association was increased $50 today when Philip J. Hendel and Louis Elfenbein, owners of the three story wooden structure, Nos. 16-18 State street, which was extensively damaged by fire early last Saturday morning, tendered Fire Chief Charles Rose their check for $50 as a token of appreciation of the work of the department. The check will be deposited to the credit of the association and when a goodly sum has been obtained it will be divided among the several fire companies, which will expend its proportionate part in what ever manner the company decides. This is usually done in purchasing new furniture or needful articles for the companies.

Janice V. Gorman, 15 Fourth street, and Miss Mary Agnes Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murphy, 29 Garfield avenue, were united in marriage this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The nuptial mass was sung by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. Stephen Sullivan was best man and Miss Nellie Carver attended the bride. Following the ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs Gorman departed upon their wedding tour. Mr. Gorman is employed by the Central Vermont railroad.

Mrs. James C. Pettigrew, Ocean avenue, is spending a few days in New York.

Thornton N. M. Lathrop, Montauk avenue, and Ernest M. Cobb, School street, are in New York attending the automobile show.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. Flynn, Willetts avenue, have returned home after having spent several days in New York.

Three more submarines are to be stationed at the submarine base and will arrive on the Thames river the latter part of the present month. The unaersea craft have been stationed at Coco Solo, Panama, and are the O-1, O-2, and O-3. They are enroute to this port, where they will be permanently located. The trio of craft, which are slightly smaller than the W type of submarines, are being sent to this port to take the place of the submarines, N-1, N-2, and N-3, which departed a week ago for Philadelphia.

The United States Coast Guard cable ship Pequot has arrived in port after having been in southern waters four months making cable repairs. The craft is in command of Capt. Joseph Greenspun.

Joel Nass, a sailor, attached to the United States Coast Guard destroyer Ericsson, state pier, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan, charged with failing to obey a signal and for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Nass was operating his machine at the corner of State and Main streets and was given a signal by Officer Linehan to come to a stop in order to permit pedestrians to cross the street. Instead of stopping, Nass continued through State street. The officer, however, caused Nass to bring the car to a stop and when the former witnessed the condition of the driver, Nass was placed under arrest.

The fire loss to the Bacon block, 132-138 State street, which was attacked by fire four times within five days recently, one of the fires resulting in the complete gutting of the clothing store of Davis & Savard, has been adjusted. Representatives of the company carrying the insurance on the building above have settled with the owner for $5,328.

The annual banquet of the Konomoc Hose company occurred this evening when about 150 members and guests, the latter including members of the city council and city officials, sat down to a bountiful feast in the spacious dining hall of the Hotel Mohican. The post prandial exercises were of brief duration and were presided over by Foreman William R. Pollock. Following the speech-making the members and their guests adjourned to the company's quarters on Union street, where a musical program was rendered and where an elaborate vaudeville entertainment was provided.

Mrs. Frank Kenyon, Waterford; Charles Haskell, Ledyard, and Raymond Land, Noank, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The members of the police department have been put through another drill at revolver practice the past three days, the drill taking place in the former police station, Potter street.

The Uhrian property at 460 and 462 Bank street proves to have been sold to Mrs. Angelina Messer, wife of Arthur Messer and not to her sister, Mr. Messer will alter the building and make three stores where two are now located.

Surprise is expressed that owners of real estate that is unoccupied seem to possess a notion that the removal of snow from such premises is unnecessary. There are scores of such places in this city, the owners of which are liable to prosecution for their neglect of the safety of others. Even on the principal streets of the city, snow has been allowed to remain on the walks and where it is trampled down and is more dangerous to pedestrians than it otherwise would be.

TERHUNE'S CASE GOES OVER UNTIL MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON Jan. 14—Harold Terhune a young fellow who posed as a bond salesman in New London for a time late last summer was arraigned in the police court this morning as a fraud. He stands in that light yet for he was not put on trial as his attorney had not familiarized himself with the facts in the case. The trial was put over until Monday and Terhune was held when he could not furnish a bond for $1,000. Terbune was apprehended in Washington where it is alleged he "forgot" to pay a hotel bill with the money the government issues. His arrest there was made known to the New London authorities and State Policeman Giles Watson was sent after Terhune. He brought him back yesterday. Watson is having an unenviable honeymoon for he was married in this city a few weeks before Terhune disappeared from here. Terhune is charged specifically with defrauding Robert A. Rutherford of Old Lyme out of $25 by means of a fraudulent check. It is claimed that Terhune's father is financially able to meet all bills that his son contracted, but he is not disposed to do that. Between now and Monday Terhune is understood to have said he will be able to meet any loss involved in the check business and that he will have the means of meeting all the expenses the state has incurred to bring him to trial.

BONDED LIQUOR IN KENTUCKY TWO-THIRDS OF TOTAL IN U. S.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 14 —(AP)—Should there ever be occasion to give a "liquor party" to the one hundred and ten million inhabitants of the United States, they could all be invited to Kentucky, each given a pint of "real red," and there would still be eighteen million pints left, for within the state boundaries are stored approximately sixteen million gallons of bonded whiskey. This represents about two-thirds of the bonded whiskey in the United States, revenue authorities here say.

This whiskey is stored in sixteen warehouses, formerly the property of distillers. Of this number, eight are located in Louisville one of which contains more whiskey than any other warehouse in America. Each of them is guarded with three sets of watchmen, who receive from $100 to $125 per month. At night powerful searchlights illuminate the buildings and grounds.

The whiskey, however, pays for its own guarding, as the government gets $2.20 for each gallon removed from storage. In the last fifteen months, more than 3,000,000 gallons have been removed from Kentucky warehouses for medicinal and manufacturing purposes.

Evaporation plays a large part in helping to reduce the supply. It is estimated that one-third of the whiskey, which is in barrels, evaporates in a year's time. To remedy this much of it is being bottled, which prevents evaporation.

WIVES WHO REFUSE TO TAKE HUBBY'S NAME CAUSE GRIEF

LONDON, Jan. 14 — Modern wives who refuse to take their husbands' names have set social secretaries by the ears. Engravers have profited, however, and passport bureaus are large winners.

It is not safe now to send an invitation to Mr. and Mrs. James Battle Royal without looking into the social register. Mrs. James Battle Royal may not be Mrs. James Battle Royal at all. She may be Miss G. Alone. And that is a tragedy where engraved invitations have been carefully counted on the old-fashioned that married couples are really married in good old Victorian style.

Wives who are willing to travel on a family passport issued in the name of the head of the family are rapidly going out of fashion. Even if they do wear their husband's names they want a separate passport, and that means extra fees for visas.

"TEMPLE OF SACRIFICE" WILL BE PROVIDENCE WAR MEMORIAL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 14 (AP)—A "Temple of Sacrifice" in monumental form unlike any other World war memorial in the east, will be erected by the Providence memorial committee on a design presented by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Rising from a circular base 70 feet in diameter to a height of 270 feet will be a huge round fortress tower of brick and terra cotta on a steel frame, surmounted by a sculptured temple of sacrifice. Within will be a powerful beacon light which at night can be seen for 30 miles across Narragansett Bay. Lighted torches on the outside of the temple will add to its effectiveness.

Convicts Join in Uplift Campaign

HAVANA, Jan. 14. —(AP)—Declaring themselves fully in accord with the uplift campaign of the government, Havana jail convicts have formed a committee to urge upon the house and senate the passage of a new amnesty law in their favor.

The prisoners hold that the past should be forgotten, but in the future, should they err, justice should be dealt.

Good opportunities are lost to the lover who does not know how to embrace them.

Jones, poultry extension specialist, will talk on poultry diseases and their control as related to a county disease control programme. The meeting is open to all interested in the raising of poultry.

Broken Laws in Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

A very interesting, practical and uplifting feature moving picture will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. at 3.30 p. m. on the coming Sunday in the large gymnasium. The title of the picture is "Broken Laws," and the story is made realistic by Mrs. Wallace Reid and Percy Marmont, who take their parts with amazing naturalness. The story deals with the necessity for law observance and respect for the law, particularly as it effects children. It combines the theme of Mother Love and respect for law in a virile, dramatic story of two families of a middle west town. What lack of law observance meant to the children of those two families is told in a masterful manner. This unusual picture has been used by churches on several occasions and the lesson taught is of vital importance to all. It is expected that a large number of our people will avail themselves of this real privilege to see a picture that is calculated to make a lasting impression.

A timely address will be delivered by Rev. G. F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the picture in his usual fine manner.

Admission is free to men and women, and boys and girls fourteen and over. All under fourteen must be accompanied by adults.

Connecticut College Concert

William Kroll, violinist of the famous Elshuco Trio, which is to be heard at Bulkeley auditorium, New London next Monday night is a native of New York. He has justly earned his reputation as one of the finest violinists now performing, in the concert field.

Mr. Kroll was first introduced to the public as a sensational child prodigy. The impression he gave to music lovers at that time was that of a brilliant child prodigy. His masters, however, realizing that such an impression is not a lasting one, and wishing to further secure the musicianship of the boy, decided to withdraw young Kroll from the concert field. And the boy, himself of a very serious nature, abided by this decision, knowing that it was for his benefit. As he himself says, "It was difficult, after having tasted of fame, to confine oneself, perhaps for years, to study. But I myself felt that I lacked maturity, which would only come with further study."

Subsequently, Mr. Kroll studied at the Institute of Musical Art, and upon graduating, won first prize for violin playing.

Mr. Kroll will be remembered to music lovers, when he showed his musical versatility, by playing the viola in a special quartet last year, selected by Dr. Richard Strauss, and which also consisted of Mr. Huberman, violin; Mr. Willeke, 'cello; and Dr. Richard Strauss, himself, at the piano.

Tickets may be obtained at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, New London.

Community House.

This evening Miss Eleanor Gallivan, dramatic reader, comes to the Community house, under the auspices of Mercier Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated by those who are planning to be in the audience.

Miss Gallivan is a graduate of the Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word, of Boston, and comes to Norwich well recommended.

The numbers of the programme have been arranged in variety, to appeal to everyone.

In view of the fact that Miss Gallivan comes of one of our old Norwich families, great interest is being taken and a large welcoming audience is anticipated.

Musical numbers have been also arranged in the programme, to be given by members of Mercier Assembly.

For the convenience of those wishing to secure tickets, some have been left on sale at the stores of Cranston Co., and Mara, and will also be on sale at the door this evening.

HORSEMEAT BECOMES FRENCH LUXURY WITH RISING PRICES

PARIS, Jan. 14. —(AP)— Horsemeat formerly "the poor man's beefsteak," has become a French luxury. Scarcity of butcherable animals is given as the cause of its enormous increase in price.

One pound of choice horsemeat at the local markets recently was quoted 9.50 francs—about forty cents. Pork chops could be had for 8.50, roast beef for 9.00 and mutton for 7.50.

Besides the gradual disappearance of horses "on the hoof" available for the markets, a tax of one franc twenty-five centimes per pound placed on the meat was said to have influenced higher prices.

Horsemeat is recommended by physicians for persons suffering from tuberculosis and all diseases of anaemia of the blood. The sanatoriums of southern France have been severely hit by the rise in price.

REFUSED LIQUOR AT NINETY, SHE NOW IMBIBES FOR SPITE

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 14 (AP)—Madame Caroline Bjoernson, the "grand old woman of Norway," who has just celebrated her ninetieth birthday, a teetotaler for many years, has announced that she is going to have a drink of strong liquor now and then, "just to show her disapproval of prohibition."

"I hate interference and prohibition of any kind, and though I have never touched spirits I have made up my mind to have my schnapps from time to time, since it has been prohibited in Norway," she wrote to her son, Bjorn Bjoernson, actor-manager of the Norwegian National theater.

Madame Bjoernson is the widow of Norway's greatest national poet, Bjoernsterne Bjoernson. She is hale and hearty, and for years has taken an active interest in public affairs.

AIR MAIL TO BRING TEXAS CITIES CLOSER TO NEW YORK

DALLAS, Jan. 14—(AP)—Air mail is to bring Texas cities from 20 to 25 "mail hours" closer to New York and 15 hours closer to Chicago.

It now requires from 45 to 50 hours to send mail from here to New York and about 26 hours to reach Chicago. When the air mail becomes effective sometime this winter, the time to New York by way of Chicago will be 34 hours and that to Chicago about 11 hours.

The city has leased Love Field, a war-time training camp of 33 acres, five miles north of the city. From this landing place the mail will be brought to Dallas by trucks—about 17 minutes after landing.

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce has guaranteed 100 pounds of mail a day for six months. The air mail rate to Chicago will be about 20 cents an ounce, of which the National Air Transport company, the successful bidder, will receive three fourths.

BARTENDER SAYS TASTES FOR DRINKS CHANGE WITH MUSIC

LONDON, Jan. 14—(AP)—An audience's taste for alcoholic beverages varies acording to the kind of music it hears. This, at least, is the judgment of the bartender at Queen's hall, who has just been interviewed after 40 years of dispensing drinks at this center for London's music lovers.

He said that when a concert of Wagnerian music is presented the demand for beer is fifteen times as great as when a mixed program is given. He asserted that Johann Strauss's works create a demand for wine, while Richard Strauss causes the sale of spirits to rise. Mendelssohn concerts mean more beer and whiskey. When Mozart dominates a program very little drink is sold.

FIRE CRIPPLES TEL. SERVICE IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me. Jan. 14.—(AP)—Fire which started in Western Union Telegraph company's offices shortly before nine o'clock tonight caused complete cessation of telegraphic service through the office, which relays through virtually the entire state of Maine.

Tons of Pearls—Of a Sort

CULVER CITY, Cal., Jan. 14 (AP)—Two tons of imitation pearls were used here to fashion costumes for girls appearing before the moving picture camera in a huge "pearl ballet" dance.

There is no re-dress for the man who has but one suit of clothes.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

James Oliver Curwoods' The Ancient Highway, is certainly packed with thrills and holds the interest of the spectators from start to finish. Jack Holt has as good a role as we have seen him in in some time and Billie Dove is just as appealing as ever. The story is too well known to require any comment and to those who have read the book it is sufficient to say that it closely follows the book in detail.

A sensation was created yesterday afternoon when one of Laurello Brothers, who works with his brother in a contortionist act completely turned his head on his neck and rested his chin in between his shoulder blades. The Seven Robinsons, which were substituted for the different Revue, is a complete show in one act. Fast dancing and singing with a sprinkling of comedy. Ford and Hewitt offer a novel bit in their At the North Pole. The Ja Da Trio, as was expected, sang their way into everybodys favor and put plenty of snap into the bill. Bobson and Howard are the hokum artists on the bill and they kept everybody busy laughing. The Scarlet streak, the new chapter play starts with a bang and leaves you just where you are beginning to grip the edge of your chair. Good all around bill, and one worth seeing.

Palace Theatre.

If there are greater heights for D. W. Griffith to attain, if there are additional honors for this directorial genius to win, if there are further laurels for the old master to gather, then surely he has reached those heights, earned those honors and gained those laurels with "That Royle Girl," his latest screen creation, now showing at the Rialto theatre, coming to the Palace Sunday.

Griffith has taken Edwin Balmer's vivid, ultra-modern story of life in the Chicago jazz belt and underworld, peopled it with such fine artists as Carol Dempster, W. C. Fields, James Kirkwood, Harrison Ford and others, and made of it a heart-gripping epic picture of thrilling drama and hilarious comedy, richly woven with poignant pathos, typically American humor and a compelling love-romance.

Make it a point to see "That Royle Girl." You are sure to like it!

Breed Theatre.

Mae Murray, appearing at the Breed theatre for the last times Friday and Saturday in the title role of Erich von Stroheim's production of "The Merry Widow," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is topping her own record established as the best dressed woman on the screen.

It will be remembered that "The Merry Widow" when presented on the stage was a sensation, and the complete Merry Widow mode of dress came into vogue, most popular of all being the large sailor chapeau, called the Merry Widow hat.

The picturization of this story affords even greater opportunity to bring to the notice and fancy of the world at large unique and attractive clothes.

In the picture, Mae Murray appears, first, as the star dancer of an American troupe stranded in a small Balkan kingdom, and later, as the immensely wealthy widow of a baron in the Empire. Never has she had such opportunities to wear new and striking creations, it is said, and never has she appeared in such rare and beautiful costumes. From a simple but effectively dressed Americaine, she changes to a bizarre, ultra-smartly gowned European. And Miss Murray utilizes her knowledge of costume designing to its fullest possible effect, with surprising results, those in the know, claim.

John Gilbert, co-featured with Miss Murray in "The Merry Widow," plays the part of the dashing Prince Danilo. The supporting cast includes Roy D'Arcy, Josephine Crowell, George Fawcett, Tully Marshall, Dale Fuller, Count Conti, Sidney Bracey, Don Ryan, Hughie Mack, Edward Connelly, Geo. Nichols and Lon Poff.

"The Merry Widow" was adapted to the screen and scenarized by Erich von Stroheim and Benjamin Glazer from the famous Henry W. Savage play by Franz Lehar, Victor and Leo Stein.

WOMAN'S LECTURE FAILED TO DETER BANK ROBBERS

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A lecture on the folly of bank robbery, delivered by a young woman clerk, did not deter four men who took $8,800 from the Continental savings bank today.

"You aren't going to get anywhere by holding up this bank," Mrs. Kathryn Anderson, a stenographer, told the robbers as they herded her and other employes into a back room.

"This is just a small bank, getting well under way. It's a nice bank and it won't do you any good to hold it up. Bank robbing never did anybody any good."

The robbers didn't argue, they just took the money.

RETIRED CHIEF BOATSWAIN WINS VERDICT FOR $22,642

SACO, Me., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A verdict for $22,642 was reported late today by a supreme court jury in the suit of Owen T. Hurdle, a retired chief boatswain of the navy, against James T. Lang, a former saloon keeper in Brooklyn, N. Y., he sued for $25,000 damages. The jury was out three and a half hours.

Hurdle claimed that Lang alienated the affections of his wife, Lucinda M. Hurdle, luring her from their farm at Kittery, near the Portsmouth navy yard, where he was located before going to the Brooklyn navy yard, to the bright lights of Broadway and its "roaring forties."

He had been in the naval service 35 years and was often away from home on duty. He first met Lang in Brooklyn a score of years ago, and they had been friendly. Upon return from an Asiatic station after an absence of five years, he testified he found Lang and his wife living together in Brooklyn.

Lang testified that Hurdle's niece and father lived with them, but that the former got married and the latter died. The only presents he gave her, he said, were a necklace and fur coat at Christmas for being a good housekeeper. This was substantiated by Mrs. Hurdle, who is not 55.

Lang denied he is worth $125,000, as a witness had testified, placing the value of his assets at $40,000.

REMOVING BODIES FROM MINE IN OKLAHOMA

WILBURTON, Okla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Rescue work at the wrecked mine of the Degnan-McConnell company near here tonight had resolved into the dreary task of removing the bodies of the 91 victims.

A spark of hope flared up but quickly died today when two miners were rescued alive. After crawling on hands and knees, sometimes over the bodies of dead victims, for 23 hours, Cecil McKinney, young white miner, staggered from the shaft. His clothing was water soaked and he was exhausted.

"I crawled and crawled after the explosion, in utter blackness. There are 15 dead bodies in entry 16, case, where I was working at the time of the explosion. I do not know where I crawled, or how long I crawled, but I just squeezed through and finally found and came to the bend where you found me."

Shortly after noon a negro miner was found alive on the fourteenth level. He was too exhausted to tell his story.

The bodies of 34 men, most of them negroes, early tonight had been taken from the mine, which was damaged by a gas explosion yesterday. Six of the bodies were recovered yesterday but little headway was made because of fire in the mine and the debris which had to be cleared away.

TRIBUTE TO GENIUS OF JOHN SINGER SARGENT

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Braving the worst blizzard of the winter, great crowds today paid tribute to the genius of the late John Singer Sargent on the occasion of the first public showing of the Sargent memorial exhibit which is the greatest collection of one painter's work displayed in England for many generations.

STRENUOUS TESTS TO QAULIFY LIFE SAVERS

Swimmers who qualify as Red Cross life savers in the water safety campaign to be conducted at the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool, next week, beginning Wednesday have to pass tests that make Leander's famous swim across the Hellespont with his armor on look like a small town's contact.

Although, in this day of radio, chewing gum, one-man cars, there is no armor to impede the propective life saver, he must swim to deep water, take off the prosaic garments of today and then swim 100 yards.

If he lives through this he must swim some distance out and recover three times an object which is thrown to the bottom, and recover once a ten pound weight.

If the contestant is still able to wiggle he must go through the four "carries" by which water victims are carried to shore.

Surviving this the life-saving instructor swims with him to deep water and begins a ferocious attack which to the innocent bystander looks like a deliberate attempt to drown him. The life-saving examiner grabs his pupil around the neck with both arms. A successful contestant is equal to the occasion and by quick twist of the wrist throws off the examiner, a man perhaps much bigger than himself, and with another quick movement has the examiner under perfect control with one arm while he swims with the other.

Time and again the examiner resumes his attack grabbing the contestant's wrists and using all the other deadly grips with which a drowning man will pull the uninitiated under the water. For every grip there is a corresponding break and after a long drawn out battle the two swimmers call it a tie and return to shore.

Then follows an examination on land in the prone pressure method of resuscitation and other important phases of life-saving work.

The much envied ones who pass the rigid test are the eyesore of all neophyte eyes as they strut up the beach with chests thrown out and the coveted insignia of the American Red Cross Life-Saving corps prominently displayed on their bathing suits.

American Red Cross Methods of Water Life Saving

STOCK PRICES REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—An unexpected outbreak of selling turned the course of prices reactionary towards the close of today's tock market after an earlier period of irregularity which was featured by the spirited demand for the public utilities and a temporary outburst of strength in the motors. The general list continued to fluctuate within a relatively narrow trading area, although both the rail and industrial averages sagged to a new low level for the year.

There was a tendency in some quarters to attribute the recent decrease in public participation to the unusually large volume of new stock and bond issues put out during the last fortnight on the theory that a large volume of surplus funds apparently had been invested in these new securities. Several of the larger commission houses also are known to have recommended profit taking on the belief that the next advance in prices will start from a lower level.

Irregularity also continued in the commodity markets. Wheat futures advanced 1 5-8 to 2 3-4 cents a bushel in response to higher prices in the foreign markets. Trading in cotton was extremely quiet with net changes five points higher to one point lower. Coffee prices moved up 25 to 32 points in reflection of a firmer local spot market, and higher cost and freight offers. Raw sugar was exchanged.

In the stock market, motor shares were in supply soon after the opening as the Studebaker price cut. The selling apparently originated with bear traders who rushed to cover when strong buying support developed during the early afternoon, Hudson rising from 112 to 116 1-2 and then sagging to 115 3-8 up 1 7-8 on the day. General Motors closed nearly a point lower at 149 7-8 after selling as high as 152. Mack Trucks showed a net loss of 3-4 at 140 1-4 after having touched 145 3-4.

Revival of speculative interest in the public utilities was associated with rumors of higher dividends capital split-ups and new combinations. North American company, Philadelphia company, Montana Power, and Standard Gas and Electric all showed net gains of a point or two, but early advances in a number of others were substantially reduced in the late waves of selling.

United States Steel common was heavily sold in the final hour, showing a net loss of over a point at 134 1-2 after having sold above 136 during the morning. American Can broke 4 1-2 points to 235 and General Electric, Sears Roebuck, American Safety Razor, California Packing, General Asphalt, Mathieson Alkali, May Department Stores, Nash Motors, Remington Typewriter, Simms Sheffield Steel and Wordworth closed 2 to 5 points net lower.

Insurance company stocks were buoyant on publication of exceptionally good earnings statements. Fidelity Phoenix jumped 5 points to 195 and Continental was run up 5 1-2 to 142 1-4 and then fell back to 141. Local fractions also displayed a strong undertone on buying influenced by the belief that a compromise transit plan, agreeable to all parties, will be effected early in Mayor Walker's administration.

Rails lacked effective support and yielded readily to selling pressure. Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and Chesapeake and Ohio each broke about 2 points and Atchison, New York Central, Southern Railway, Chicago Northwestern and several others fell back a point or more. Some of the liquidation probably was influenced by the fact that freight car loadings in the first week of January were below the corresponding week last year.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent, with a plentiful supply of funds available. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Movements of sterling exchange, cables touching $4.86, the highest price since last May, featured the foreign exchange market. French francs were again heavy on selling inspired by the difficulties encountered by Finance Minister Doumer in trying to get his fiscal program adopted. Other European rates were firm. Japanese yen crossed 44 cents to the highest rate in nearly 3 years.

TAFTVILLE

The funeral of Mrs. Maria Pomeroy was held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the undertaking rooms of George G. Grant on Providence street with a large number of friends attending. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, officiated. There were many flowers. The bearers were Allan Bogle, John McCartney, John Wood and Martin Wohlleben. Burial was in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Crowdis read the committal service.

Paul Peltier of Plainfield has been a visitor in the village this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Francois Beique entertained at dinner Tuesday evening at their home on Hunters avenue, the guests including Mr. Beique's present and former employes. Covers were laid for twelve. Later in the evening, there was an hour of music, piano selections being given by Miss Mary Rose Caron, and Hawaiian guitar selections by Miss Blanche Lamoreux.

The widely circulated report of the kidnapping of a small boy named Paquette last Tuesday which caused considerable excitement throughout the town, proved to be a myth.

Mrs. Emma Dupeault, a former resident of Taftville, now of New Bedford, is spending the week end in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Farcher and family have moved to a house on South Second avenue.

Chief Ranger William Smith presided at the meeting of Court Wequenoc, No. 88, Foresters of America held Thursday evening in the court rooms in the St. Louis hall on Dion street.

Mrs. Julia Holtz, who is employed as a chambermaid at the Ponemah house, was taken to the William W. Backus hospital at Norwich Wednesday suffering from a paralytic stroke. Mrs. Holtz was overcome by smoke on the day that fire started in the basement of the hotel, and has not been feeling well since.

Henry Marland of Baltic was in town Thursday.

The Sunshine class of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal Sunday school held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Vivan Perkins of Occum, Wednesday evening. After the business session, the members sat down to a delicious chicken supper provided by the losers in a Bible reading contest. After supper, an entertainment was given by the winners. Each member came with an "auto" pinned to her dress, the person who guessed the names of the most autos was awarded the prize, Mrs. C. H. Barton was the winner. Other games were played, and prizes awarded to the victors.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue was a business caller in Putnam Thursday.

The Thursday evening basketry class met in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

THURSDAY CLUB CONTINUES ITS PLAY IN PINOCHLE

The Thursday Afternoon Pinochle club was entertained this week, by Mrs. George Brenn, at her home on Pukelius avenue. The first prize was taken by Mrs. Brenn, with a score of 5,325, the second prize going to Mrs W. S. Murray, whose score was 4,960. Mrs. Taylor, playing for Mrs. Harry Kneen, took the consolation prize with a score of 5,310. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon's play, by the hostess. Mrs. W. S. Murray is to entertain the club at their next meeting at her home on Prospect street.

Entertained at Whist

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Murphy of 74 Orchard street entertained four tables of whist Wednesday evening. The prizes were won by Mrs. John McCarthy and Eugene Cutter. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. A. Murphy and Mrs. A. McCarthy.

Oregon Yew Log Received

A large log of the famous Oregon yew has just been received by Mr Benton, from Scout Executive C. A Cook, of Medford, Oregon, for bow material. This wood is becoming scarce and is nearly as valuable as the Spanish yew of the old English archery.

FARMERS OF COUNTY ARRANGE TO FORM COW TESTING ASSOCIATION

Fifteen dairymen from various sections of New London county met Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the office of the New London County Farm Bureau, this city, to consider the advisability of organizing a cow testing association for this country. Present at the meeting were: William Babbitt, Sprague; E. A. Brown, Mystic; James Lathrop, Montville; Austin Lathrop, Montville; Charles Armstrong, Griswold; Mr. Budgett, Salem; George G. Grant, Taftville; George Lacroix, Baltic; Hugh McKenzie, Waterford; Thomas Woods, Waterford; Mr. Reeves, Montville; John Robash, Sprague; C. B. York, Stonington; E. A. Hoxie, Lebanon; Prof. J. A. Simms, Storrs; County Agent Walter T. Clark.

The details of the cow testing association were discussed by Prof. Simms and County Agent Clark and this was followed by a general discussion of the project. A vote was taken to find out how many would go into the association and ten of those present agreed to sign up for one year. There are others, unable to be present, who have stated that they are willing to join the new organization.

The purpose of the organization is to promote better breeding and selecting among those owning or interested in pure bred cattle of the four main dairy breeds. A committee was elected to work with Mr. Simms and County Agent Clark in regard to the necessary details for forming the association. This committee comprises George G. Grant, who is an Ayrshire breeder, James Lathrop, a Jersey breeder, E. A. Brown, a Guernsey breeder, and Thomas Woods, a Holstein breeder.

The committee is to meet and formulate a plan to be presented at a meeting to be held about March 1st. It was the consensus of opinion that the association should be working about April 1st. At the present time there are seventeen who have agreed to go into the new association and there is room for six or seven more. Those interested in the new association are expected to get in touch with the members of the committee or County Agent Clark.

EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE GAVE ROTARY PROGRAMME

Chairman Charles A. Saxton of the educational committee of the Norwich Rotary club had charge of the program for the luncheon on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Besides the very interesting educational programme along Rotary lines there was a very interesting talk on Radicalism that Means Real Progress, delivered by Charles F. Wells, as five-minute speaker of the day.

In developing his subject, Mr. Wells mentioned radical changes that have taken place in geography, astronomy, physiology, architecture, aviation, electrical appliances, land and water transportation, often against the bitterest opposition, when these innovations were called works of the devil, but all were kinds of radicalism that represented real progress.

In concluding Mr. Wells said that now and then we meet some courageous individual who thinks he has some new way of doing something. Let us remember the great changes which have taken place in the past generations and in recent years. Then we will be tolerant of his views. Service above self.

Chairman Saxton of the educational committee was assisted in carrying out his programme by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell who gave a brief resume of Rotarian Joe Turner's talk at the Cleveland convention, Fellowship, The Key to the Treasure House of Friendship. Through fellowship comes the friendships which mean so much in all walks of life.

George E. Johnson spoke on the cooperation of Rotary with other civic organizations in the community. He said that Rotary should endeavor to assist in all worthy objects, not as leaders but as individual workers for a general cause, and without self enrandisement.

At the business session President J. A. Harris presided and James Roantree acted as song-leader. The resignation of Joseph C. Worth, first president of the Norwich Rotary club, was received with regret and was accepted. Mr. Worth was compelled to resign because of severing his business connections with the classification under which he held membership. Alec McNicol, who was a second active member was voted a first active member under the classification left vacant by Mr. Worth. The club after accepting Mr. Worth's recognition unanimously voted him into the club again as an honorary member because of his wonderful work in organizing the club and piloting it through its first year.

Several communications were read by the secretary relative to Rotary business.

Present at the meeting was Tony Konicki of Boswell avenue, a youngster of 12 years, who a year and a half ago was almost a helpless cripple. Today Tony is sturdy looking and walks only with a slight limp. The story of Tony's recovery is this:

About 18 months ago Dr. R. R Agnew, who was at that time chairman of the Boys Work committee, came upon Tony pale and weak, struggling about on crutches. Dr. Agnew was attracted to the lad and upon making inquiries found that Tony was deserving of aid. He brought the matter before the Rotary club with the result that through the Dr. John S. Blackmar Boys Work fund Tony was sent to the Newington home for treatment.

A short time ago Tony was discharged from the home as cured. On Wednesday he came to the luncheon of the Rotary club and standing erect, his face shining with gratitude he in his bashful way thanked the Rotary club for giving him his chance to grasp a renewed interest in life. Today Tony is the picture of health, his cheery and sunny face reflecting his new interest in life. Just to glimpse Tony is reward enough for the service rendered. Tony was very sincere in his praise of the Newington Home.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

GRACE CHURCH AUXILIARY HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Grace church, Yantic, Tuesday evening, at the residence of Mrs. Grace Manning, Williams street with a large number present. Dr. Lillian Lynes was elected president to serve for the ensuing year.

The business session was in charge of the retiring president, Mrs. Charles Burbeck, during which the reports of the officers were given showing the auxiliary to be in good standing, financially as well as numerically. It was announced that the auxiliary had contributed $200 in voluntary offerings during the year for the various branches of the missionary work of the Episcopal church. Plans were discussed for the coming year, after which the following officers were elected:

President, Dr. Lillian Lynes; vice president, Mrs. Herbert Dowe; secretary, Miss Lois Manning; treasurer, Miss Annie Carpenter; thank offering treasurer, Mrs. Hermon J. Gibbs. At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

SCHOOL HOUSE BURGLARS ARE PUT ON PROBATION

Charles A. Alexander, 17, and Angelo NeSota, 16, two West Side youths, who burglarized a stamp machine at the Pearl street school Tuesday night, were put on probation for a year when they were given a hearing in chambers Wednesday morning before Judge A. F. Libby. The boys gave up a total of $10.08 which they had secured from the machine, which they smashed with an axe.

ARRANGING BUNDLE DAY FOR THE NEAR EAST

Friday, January 22nd, will be Bundle day for the Near East Relief, in Norwich. A general collection of old clothing is being arranged by the local Near East Relief committee, and the garments obtained will be shipped immediately to New York, so as to catch a boat sailing for the Near East, on February 2nd.

Charles F. Wells is the chairman in charge of the boxing of the clothing, and with Abner Schwartz, is arranging for the collection by truck on Friday afternoon. Members of the Rotary and Lions clubs will furnish the trucks.

The schools of the city will also cooperate. The pupils in the public schools will receive, on Wednesday of next week, double tags, one-half for their own family, the other half for a neighbor who has no children in school. They are to be instructed to ask their families to gather up all the old clothing possible and tie it in a bundle so that it may be brought to the school house on Friday. The collection of the clothing will begin Friday afternoon at one-thirty.

According to the urgent request for old clothing which has come to the local committee, the garments especially needed are overcoats and trousers long and short, jackets, coats, shirts woolen dresses, sweaters, warm underwear of all kinds, woolen stockings and gloves. Adults' garments are just as useful as children's.

Many of the garments will be used in the orphanages, where the older girls make over old clothing for the other children. Clothing not used in the orphanages will be distributed to refugees, especially to the old people and women and children in the refugee camps of Macedonia, and to the refugees in Syria. In Macedonia many of the people who were driven out of Asia Minor a few years ago, are still living in destitution and misery, in flimsy barracks or sometimes even in tents, with the winter temperature often far below zero.

Miss Elizabeth B Huntington is chairman of the local committee under whose auspices the clothing is being collected. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott is honorary chairman and Guy B. Dolbeare is treasurer. Other members of the committee are William A. Anderson, Miss Jennie G. Bonney, James L. Case, Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis, Mrs William H. Dawley, Nathan A. Gibbs Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Edwin Hill Miss Louise C Howe, Rev. Michael H. May, John J. O'Rourke, Mrs. Charles Henry Osgood, Sheperd B. Palmer, Robert W. Perkins, Rutherford C. Plaut, Abner Schwartz, Mrs. Clarence D. Sevin, Charles F. Wells.

FRAUD CLAIM SETTLED BY STIPULATION MADE

After a motion for non-suit had been denied in the suit for $10,000 damages brought against Meyer and Esther Bruckner, of this city, by Barnett and Yetta Cohn, in which fraud was alleged a settlement by stipulation was effected. The suit was on trial here Thursday before Judge C. L. Avery, in the superior court.

The stipulation filed was as follows: The parties to the action entitled caused hereby stipulate that the court enter judgment for the defendants without costs.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Bruckner are the defendants, judgment being entered in their favor, but it is understood that other settlement in regard to the matter was effected out of court.

It was alleged in the complaint that in September, 1924, Barnett Cohn and Bayer Bruckner were owners of real estate, situated at 25-27 Main street, this city, which was subject to mortgages aggregating $13,000.

In September, 1924, it was also alleged that the defendants were the owners of real estate at 83 Washington street, this city, which the defendant, Meyer Bruckner, represented to the plaintiffs as in good habitable and tenantable condition. The plaintiffs paid the sum of $2,500 in cash and the defendants, Meyer and Esther Bruckner, conveyed to Yetta Cohn, title to the Washington street property, according to the papers in the suit.

It was claimed by the plaintiffs that the Washington street property was not in good condition, habitable or tenantable; that a great amount of water flowed into the cellar; that the representations that the defendants made to the plaintiffs were false and fraudulent, inducing the plaintiffs to part with their property and money.

Baptist C. E. Society Elects

At the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church held Tuesday evening at the church, the following officers were elected: President, L. Browning; vice president, Miss M. Tucker; secretary, Miss E. Nielsen; treasurer, L. Rathbun; Chairmen of committees were named as follows: Prayer, Miss Tucker; missionary, Miss G. Tortoiseshell; social, Miss M. Copeland; flowers, Miss E. Snow; music, Miss M. Browning; publicity, O. Hargraves.

The election was followed by a social and refreshments.

Scout Troop at German Church

Scout Executive F. A. Benton addressed a group of boys Wednesday night, at the invitation of Rev. H. Hunsinger, pastor of the Evangelical German Lutheran church, on Franklin street.

Mr. Hunsinger and Otto Phillipp of Baltic, were present and took much interest in the question of leadership of this troop.

The method of forming a troop was explained and something of the history, extent and principles of Scouting were given by Mr. Benton, in his talk.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH — W. K. Kellogg

Eyes that betray

EYES with circles under them . . . eyes with spots before them . . . eyes that lack luster . . . eyes that betray the hateful, treacherous inroads of constipation—one of the worst diseases to afflict the human race. Fight it off before it drags you down into the valley of sickness and despair.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the safest, surest way to permanent relief from dreadful constipation—and the most pleasant! Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—or in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it travels through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it sweeps the intestines clean and drives out the vicious poisons of constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, stimulating it to healthy and normal action. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works as nature works.

Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over cereals or cook with cereals; use in soups, or make into the many recipes given on the package. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief, or your grocer refunds the purchase price.

Beware! Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure relief. Doctors recommend it. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN—a 100% bran product. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it. All grocers sell it. Buy a package today.

SPORTSMEN OF STATE MAKE PLANS FOR YEAR

Officers for the coming year were elected; reports were made by members of the state fish and game commission on what has been done to encourage the propagation of wild life in Connecticut during the past year, and what is planned for the coming year; and various other matters of interest to sportsmen throughout the state were acted upon at the annual meeting of the State Association of Fish and Game clubs at the Stratfield hotel Bridgeport, Saturday afternoon.

Robert B. Chappell of New London was re-elected president of the association; E. P. Buell of East Hampton was elected vice president; A. Joseph Williamson of Bridgeport was elected secretary and treasurer; and there was elected a legislative committee consisting of Oscar L. Dossin of Meriden, chairman, Aaron Kinne of Glastonbury, W. W. Ives of Norwich, E. L. Darbee of Danielson, and Albert J. Merritt of Bridgeport.

The association went on record as unanimously in favor of greater powers for the state fish and game commission.

Sentiment expressed at the meeting was almost unanimously in favor of a short open season on quail in 1927 and 1928, a season not more than one week in duration toward the latter part of November with a limited bag permitted, this open season, however, being adopted only if approved by the State Fish and Game Commission after an experiment has been carried out in the matter of increasing the quail in the state by snaring quail in counties where it is extremely plentiful, as in New London county, and distributing these birds in counties where there is now a noticeable absence of the quail. It was reported at the meeting that quail is now plentiful all along the coast of Long Island sound but extremely scarce in the counties in the northern part of the state.

Delegates went on record as being in favor of a policy of co-operation with the farmers and land owners of the state, that the property of farmers may be protected from foreigners ignorant of the game laws, who have antagonized many land owners not only by shooting game upon their property but by destroying fruit trees, breaking fences, and starting fires in the woods and fields. It was the spirit of the meeting that the members of the State Fish and Game association should work with the state grange and the various town grange societies, to see that the property of the farmer is protected in return for the privileges of hunting over the land owned by the farmers.

Chairman Fred Wolcott of the State Fish and Game Commission took occasion to comment upon the hearty support given constructive and progressive suggestions for the protection and propagation of fish and game in Connecticut, by the last legislature. He pointed out that at the last session of the legislature, chiefly through the efforts of the Association of Fish and Game clubs, the sum of $150,000 was appropriated for the purchase of state forests. He reported that already the agent of the state fish and game commission has acquired between 11,000 and 12,000 acres of forest land at the remarkably average low figure of $5.04 an acre. He said that it is hoped to acquire at least 25,000 acres this year, including many acres of marsh, lanes, where wild duck sanctuaries can be established, surrounded by hundreds of acres of wonderful shooting preserves. By doing this the wild fowl will have a chance to increase the multiply at the same time that splendid shooting is assured.

The chairman of the state fish and game commission also said that foxes are much too numerous in the state today and that the use of scented bait should be permitted in trapping these animals until such time as their numbers are somewhat reduced. He also told of the success that has attended the propagation of pheasants in Connecticut and said that pheasant shooting is now better than at any time in the state's history.

W. W. Ives of the legislative committe said that steps should be taken to secure federal protection for the blue fish. He said that commercial fishermen are taking thousands of "snapper" blues only two or three inches long, and unless something is done to prohibit this practice the blues will soon entirely disappear.

Wheeler Makes Report

Representative Charles E. Wheeler of Stratford reported that during the past year more and better fish than ever before have been hatched and distributed in the streams of the state. He said that the state has now acquired a total of 90 miles of fishing streams for public use and that in most cases the acquisition has amounted practically to a gift. In no case has the commission had to pay more than a dollar a mile for the public fishing privileges on these streams.

He told of the measures that are being taken to restore the shad to Connecticut, of how fifteen million yellow perch eggs were gathered along the Connecticut river last year, hatched artificially and distributed in streams throughout the state.

During the coming year more and bigger trout than ever before will be planted throughout the state he said and he summed up briefly the plans for encouraging the propagation of lobsters, tom cod, and other salt water fishes.

NEW FAIRVIEW INFIRMARY APPROACHING DEDICATION

Work on the new infirmary at Fairview, the state I. O. O. F. home in Groton, has progressed so that the grand lodge officers are considering the matter of dedication. It is likely that this will take place on the second Saturday in June, generally known as grand master's day. It was on the second Saturday of last June that the corner stone of the infirmary was laid. So rapid has been the work that this $250,000 building is about completed. What is more, the furnishings are going in. All the rooms have been taken up by various lodges and individuals of the order.

The Rebekah branch which raised $26,000, besides what it contributed toward the building fund, is doing the furnishing in general and these things will be as up-to-date as the building in general. It is expected, too, by the time the dedication is carried on that that all the outside arrangements will have been completed and the full beauty of the new building and its surroundings will be disclosed. This undertaking is one that will enable the order to care for not only those who come to the sunset of life and desire a secure haven, but also for many who are so feeble that they need hospital care. The present home accommodates about forty inmates. With the new addition at least 110 can be housed.

COUNTY FAIR RETURNS TO LABOR DAY DATE

At the first meeting of the executive committee of the New London County Agricultural Society which was held recently at the office of the secretary, 20 Shetucket street, many radical changes relating to the next fair were decided upon.

Every member of the executive committee was present at this meeting, including President Charles P. Bushnell, Vice President Simon Brewster, Treasurer Albert J. Bailey, Secretary Gilbert S. Raymond, Arthur E. Shedd of Preston, Alexander Jordan, Albert W. Lillibridge and Charles D. Greenman of Norwich, J. Lawrence Raymond of Lyme and Elisha L. Waterman of Lebanon.

It was voted to hold the 1926 fair on Labor Day, Sept. 6, 1926, and the two following days. The following admission fees were decided upon: Admission at the gate for adults reduced from 75 cents to 50 cents. Children under 12, 25 cents. Automobiles or teams, 50 cents. Automobiles inside of track, 50 cents. The prices for the grandstand and whether or not any reserved seats should be sold was not decided.

The following named officers and committees were elected: Superintendent of grounds, Charles P. Bushnell; superintendent of automobile show, Kenneth M. Webb; superintendent of main exhibition hall, Fred G. Prothero. Building committee, Charles P. Bushnell, Albert W. Lillibridge, Reuben B. S. Washburn, Gilbert S. Raymond. Finance committee, Charles P. Bushnell, Albert J. Bailey, Charles D. Greenman.

President Bushnell and Secretary Raymond were appointed a committee to have charge of the rental of the grounds and equipment during the coming year.

The secretary was authorized to hire the vaudeville acts and to sell the Midway space, privileges and ground rentals.

The matter of horsemen using the grounds, track and stables during the summer was discussed and a resolution governing such use and, if necessary, fixing a charge for same will be presented to the next meeting.

The meeting was adjourned to February 10th, next, at which time superintendents and judges will be elected.

FEWEST GRADE CROSSINGS ACCIDENTS IN RHODE ISLAND

Examination of the annual report of the interstate commerce commission for the year 1924 reveals that Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, the three states in which the New Haven railroad principally operates, had the best records in the matter of casualties in grade crossing accidents of all states in the union, ranking respectively first, second and third.

Automobile registration is the unit of measurement used in deciding the ranking, the number of casualties being divided by the number of registered cars. Rhode Island, with a registration of 95,482, had 12 killed and 6 injured, giving an average of .73 casualties per 10,000 registrations. Massachusetts, with 570,678 registrations, had 24 killed and 43 injured, or an average of 1.17. Connecticut, with 217,327 registrations, had 10 killed and 22 injured, giving an average of 1.47.

The average for the country as a whole was 4.17, there being 1,688 killed and 5,650 injured, with a total registration of 17,591,880. Alabama had the worst record of any state, with 30 killed and 114 injured out of a registration of 157,263—an average of 5.52 casualties per 10,000 registrations.

More recent statistics prepared by the Safety Department of the New Haven Railroad analyze the figures of grade crossing accidents during the twelve months ended September 30, 1925. During this period there were 171 accidents involving automobiles and trains of the New Haven in the three states mentioned, in which 33 were killed and 104 injured. Ninety-one of these accidents occurred in Connecticut, 47 in Massachusetts, and 33 in Rhode Island. In the Connecticut accidents 14 were killed and 46 injured, in Massachusetts 15 were killed and 41 injured, and in Rhode Island 4 were killed and 17 injured.

In no fewer than 43 of these accidents it was the automobile which struck the train, not the train which srtuck the automobile. In three instances autos smashed through the gates and were struck by trains, and in one instance the auto smashed through the crossing gates and struck the train.

In addition, the New Haven reports there were 277 cases of crossing gates being struck and damaged by automobiles, and 46 other cases of damage to railroad property through direct careless ness on the part of autoists, in which 6 persons were injured. In two instances railroad employes were struck by automobiles, one of them being a crossing watchman.

It is interesting to note that the responsibility for 161 of the 171 accidents rested with the automobilist, while in 9 of the remaining 10 cases, the responsibility was divided between the autoist and the railroad employe.

RESIDENT OF LYME SHARES IN BIG ESTATE

Margaret W. Folsom, daughter of the late Senator George Folsom and late aunt of Maud Christine Voorhees of Lyme, left a net estate of $1,745,523.36 when she died at the MacLean Sanitarium for the Insane at Waverly, Mass., Sept. 16, 1925, according to a transfer tax state appraisal of her property, on file in New York with Surrogate John P. O'Brien.

Because of her inability to leave a will, this passes over equally among her seven nieces: Helen S. Satterlee, Etheldred P. Helling, both of Lenox, Mass., Margaret Winthrop Pomeroy of Newport, R. I., Frances Constance Bigelow of Cohasset, Mass., Winifred Delafield of No. 933 Park avenue of New York, Georgette Fitzgibbon of No. 136 East Seventy-fifth street, New York, and Maud Christine Voorhees, who are her only surviving heirs at law. Each share approximates $248,360.

The gross value of the estate left by Miss Folsom, who has been a patient at the sanitarium since 1869 and had been blind and bed ridden for most of her later years, she having been adjudged legally incompetent and sent to the sanitarium when she was but 25 years old, amounted to $1,865,181.

George Folsom, father of the deceased was a student of technology and a historian. He was a state senator for four years and from 1850 to 1854, was charge d'affaires in the Netherlands. The daughter became insane in 1869. She suffered from hallucinations, lack of memory and was unable to recognize her relatives and those who had been her most intimate friends.

AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY STATES SEASON'S PRICING

The start of price making at this time by the American Woolen company, with mills in Norwich, Yantic and Moosup, is taken to indicate that there will be no delay in the opening of the heavyweight lines. Allowing about ten days for the completion of the process it is figured that the company will make the first offerings for the new season during the week of Jan. 25. Overcoatings, staple woolens and semi-staples, it was said this week, are likely to be shown first, with an interval of a week or so before the bulk of the worsted lines is offered. As to prices, it is believed that overcoatings and woolens generally will be about 7 to 10 per cent. lower than last year. Worsteds, having been reduced for the lightweight season, are not expected to show a great deal of change from the ones for spring, allowing for differences in weight.

TAX REDUCTION BILL TO HAVE RIGHT OF WAY IN THE SENATE

Committee Will Take Final Action on the Measure Today—Leaders of Both Parties in the Senate Have Announced They Will Press For Early Action.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Working at full speed, the senate finance committee brought its work on the house tax reduction bill up to a point today which will permit final action on it tomorrow.

Chairman Smoot ordered several approved sections of the bill sent to the printers, and announced he would attempt to have the measure presented to the senate by Wednesday and taken up on the floor a day or two later.

Leaders of both parties have given assurance that the measure will be given right of way in the senate and have announced they will press for early action to assure tax reduction by March 15, when first income tax installments are due.

Passing over the inheritance and gift taxes, the only remaining rate schedules in the bill to be considered, the committee disposed of a number of technical phases on the measure today.

Provisions of the house bill continuing the board of tax appeals with a membership of sixteen members with increased salaries was approved, but it was decided to limit the appointments to 10 years instead of 14.

Terms of the house bill requiring that appeals be filed with the board were amended to give taxpayers the alternative of filing with the board or a court. A motion to extend jurisdiction of the board to cases under the 1918 act was rejected.

The committee agreed to an amendment assuring exemption of income on profits of co-operative marketing associations when 85 per cent. of their business is transacted on behalf of members. It refused, however, to allow exemptions for co-operative apartment house organizations.

Provisions of the house bill allowing refunds of the difference between the present and new taxes toautomobile and cigar dealers for stocks on hand 30 days after the law becomes effective were approved.

House provision to create an investigating commission to study administration of the income tax law was amended to include only five members each of the house ways and means committee and of the senate finance committee on the commission. The house proposed five additional members representing the public.

THE BERLINS REMAIN IN SECLUSION IN LONDON

"LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Irving Berlin and his New York society wife, who was formerly Miss Ellin MacKay, arrived in London tonight and succeeded in evading the large army of American and British newspapermen, going at once to their rooms in a fashionable west end hotel, where they refused to see even their most intimate friends tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Berlin landed on the English coast, at Southampton, this afternoon, and immediately took the train for London. They had to run the gauntlet of American and British newspapermen, both at Cherbourg and Southampton, but to those newspapermen who eventually cornered them, they declared that they were very happy and content; that they would complete their honeymoon in England and the continent without an effort to communicate with Mrs. Berlin's father, Clarence H. MacKay.

Wrapped in a heavy fur cloak, Mrs. Berlin smilingly agreed to her husband's statement that the voyage across the Atlantic had been most enjoyable and that they planned to spend several weeks' honeymoon in England, Paris and Nice before returning to the United States and make an attempt to win parental favor by the fact of their happiness.

On the voyage from New York on the steamer Leviathan, the couple occupied their stateroom most of the time, leaving only for a brief period in the morning when they strolled the deck and once or twice in the evening in the company of friends. It became known after the Leviathan had docked that Mr. Berlin gave $100 to the steward who guarded their suite against intrusion of newspapermen and others at New York, Cherbourg and Southampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Berlin have engaged their rooms here for three days; they plan to leave for nice early next week.

MONKEY HELPED PUT ROBBERS TO FLIGHT

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 15.—(AP)—When a robber's blow laid Mrs. Nicholas Assis unconscious today, a loyal little pet monkey screaming with rage, went to the assistance of Mr. Assis and helped him drive six bandits from his home, when the robbers had attacked Mrs. Assis and demanded the cash receipts of the Assis drug store, amounting to $55.

Mr. Assis armed with a broom, tried to fight off the bandits. Rosie, South-American monkey, entered the fray, screaming, scratching and biting when the assailant of Mrs. Assis struck her down. When the robbers threatened to kill one of Mr. Assis' small children, an infant, he redoubled his efforts, broke the broom over one man's head and using the sharp ended stick as a spear, drove the robers from his home.

The screams of the monkey attracted a neighbor who summoned the police. The men aparently unarmed, had fled when the police arrived. In the height of the battle one of the thugs attempted to crush Rosie with his foot. She was too quick for him, but did lose part of her tail.

RALPH ERROLLE SMITH IN THIRD DIVORCE SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—With a chorus girl named as co-respondent, the divorce action of Mrs. Stella Wilson Smith against her husband, Ralph Errolle Smith, Metropolitan Opera Company tenor, was heard today before Supreme Court Justice Tierney, who reserved decision.

Mrs. Smith, prior to her marriage to the tenor, was a well known singer in Australia, it devoted at the hearing.

She said their martial troubles began when her husband became infatuated with a chorus girl named Mabel Woody, whom he met when they played in the same company in St. Louis. She said she found letters from the girl in his pockets and that on Thanksgiving eve she and detectives found her husband and the chorus girl in his apartment.

This is Smith's third appearance as defendant in divorce action, the evidence showed. His first wife was Marie Clark of Duluth, Minn., and the second, Ruth Coffin of Chicago.

19 MEN FOUND ALIVE IN THE JAMISON COAL MINE

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Rescue workers returning to the surface late today reported that 15 men had been found alive in the Jamison Coal and Coke company mine, No. 8 at Farmington, near here, which was wrecked by an explosion last night. Seventeen bodies were recovered during the day leaving six miners of those in the mine at the time of the blast, unaccounted for.

The rescue workers said today that they communicated with the entombed men but that they had not yet been removed from the mine.

BOWLES FAMILY TAKES OVER SPRINGFIELD UNION

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Announcement was made today by Sherman H. Bowles, general manager of the Springfield Republican, that Mr. Bowles' family has acquired majority control of the Springfield Union and that attorneys are in process of transferring the stock of The Union Newspaper Company from George Von L. Meyer to Mr. Bowles. Plans for the future operation of the Union have not been completed, Mr. Bowles announces, but will be made public. In the meantime the Union will continue publication under the editorship of M. S. Sherman without change in its policies.

Announcement was also made today that B. H. Dingley has sold his interests in the Westfield Press, inc., which publishes the Westfield Journal, to the Daily News Publishing Company of this city.

The Springfield Union was founded as an evening paper in January, 1844, by Edmund Anthony of New Bedford, who also founded the New Bedford Standard and the Taunton Gazette. The morning issue of the paper began in July, 1892, and the Sunday issue in July, 1894. Joseph L. Shipley took control of the paper in 1382 and it passed into the control of the Union Newspaper Company in 1892. George Von L. Meyer obtained control about three years ago. The price paid by Mr. Bowles for the paper has not been made public.

HOUSE APPROVES ITALIAN WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—By a vote of 257 to 133, the house today adopted a resolution o authorize acceptance of the Italian war debt settlement as recommended by the American debt commission. The resolution now goes to the senate where a similar one already has been reported by the finance committee.

Voting against the agreement which was severely attacked in the house during nearly four days of debate, were 113 democrats, 17 republicans, two independents and one socialist. Twelve were paired against the proposal, and 17 failed to vote.

The agreement provides for the funding of the obligation over a 62-year period with annual payments beginning at $5,000,000 and gradually increasing to its $80,000,000. For an original debt of $1,648,000,000 the United States will receive a total of $2,407,000,000.

ENDEAVORING TO PRODUCE AN ALUMINUM ALLOY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad is conducting experiments in an effort to produce an aluminum alloy that could be used in place of steel, and which would be both lighter and better.

This was revealed today by General W. W. Atterbury, president of the company, who said, however, that the experiments had not progressed far enough to enable him to say whether they would be successful. The experiments are being made at the Altoona works under the direction of J. C. Wallace, chief of the motive power.

"In a year from now," said General Atterbury, "I may be able to say something definite regarding our experiments, they have not yet reached a point that would warrant a statement."

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF AUTOMOBILE HOMICIDE

LITCHFIELD, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Gideon Roy, of Winsted, charged with automobile homicide, was found not guilty by the jury in the criminal side of the superior court here, today. The jury was out only half an hour.

Mr. Roy was the operator of an automobile which collided with a standing trolley car in Winsted, October 31. Louis Arbour, 39 years old and married, who was riding with Roy, was thrown from the automobile and fatally injured. Attorney F. B. Munn represented the accused and State's Attorney Walter Holcomb, the prosecution. Judge John W. Banks presided.

WAS FORCED TO SING FOR HIS MAIL IN BERLIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A special dispatch from Paris to the Brooklyn Eagle today tells how Feodor Chaliapin, the Russian singer, was forced to sing for his mail in Berlin.

His passport was in his trunk, already on the way to Leipzig, when he went to the general delivery window in Berlin, the dispatch states. The clerk declined to give him his mail. Chaliapin offered to prove he was the singer of international renown.

The clerk listened and Chaliapin sang. Long before he had come to the end of a passage from Boito's "Mefistofele" the clerk was thrusting the letters into the singer's hand.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

To Develop Electrical Energy.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 15.—(AP)—In order to provide the country with cheaper and more abundant electrical energy for light and power, it is the intention of the government to foster a great electrical scheme which will utilize the existing sources of supply by greatly enlarging them through co-ordination and standardization under a single control board. Premier Baldwin outlined the plan in a speech at political meeting here today. He pointed out that the British consumption of electrical energy was about 200 units per capita as against 900 in Canada and 600 in the United States. The great need, he said, was to reduce costs and facilitate the formation of new authorities to undertake the supply in areas not yet covered.

ATTACK MADE IN THE RAILROAD LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Watson-Parker Railroad Labor bill was attacked today before the senate interstate commerce committee by James A. Emery, generla counsel of the National Manufacturers' association, who contended that it did not properly protect the public interest.

If the bill is adopted without amendment, he declared, congress will abandon the policy of protecting the public in railroad labor disputes and step back the situation existing in 1920, when the public interest was not protected.

At previous hearings of the committee, passage of the bill had been urged by representatives of both the railroad operators and the union employes on the ground that it was an agreement recahed by the principals to settle disputes and maintain uninterrupted transportation.

Just before Mr. Emery appeared, W. N. Doak of the trainmen's brotherhood told the committee that the measure was "adequate to protect the interests of the railroads and the employes, and fully adequate to protect the public interests and to assure industrial peace on the railroad."

PROPOSALS FOR SOLUTION OF THE RUBBER PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Comprehensive proposals for immediate and permanent solution of the rubber problems were submitted to the house commerce committee today by representatives of the automobile and tire industries.

Virtual independence from foreign production by investment of American capital in plantations chiefly in foreign countries, was advocated by Harvey Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber company, of Akron, Ohio.

Utilization of wild rubber sources and promotion of conservation campaigns were urged by two directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce as safeguards against further increases in the price of rubber products.

Mr. Firestone also said it would help the situation if the government would back steps to remove laws in the Philippine Islands which he described as an effective barrier against large-scale development of plantations.

FORMER TAX COLLECTOR SENTENCED TO 18 MONTHS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 15—(AP)—Failing to fulfill his promise to make restitution, L. Anthony Sweetland, former deputy tax collector of Reading, today was sentenced to 18 months in the house of correction for larceny of $775 in tax collections. He was found guilty last month but sentence was stayed until oday on his promise to return the money.

In moving for sentence, Assistant District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell said that Sweetland had a criminal record dating back to 1909. The former tax collector, his wife, and a lodger in his home, Miss Marion C. O'Brien, were given jail sentences in the East Cambridge district court last month on charges of receiving stolen property, larceny and fraudulently concealing mortgaged property. Their cases are pending before the superior court on appeal.

DEATH OF A MEMBER OF THE "LIGHT BRIGADE."

QUINCY, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—John Harling, a member of the "Light Brigade" of the British Army famed for his charge against the Russian batteries in the Crimean War, is dead here. He was 93 years old. Death occurred last night in Quincy Hospital.

With other members of the cavalry unit immortalized in Tennyson's poem "The Charge of the Light Brigade" at Balaklava, Mr. Harling received the Victoria Cross. Queen Victoria, herself, pinned the decoration on his uniform. He was a member of the British Military and Naval Veterans' Association.

One other man who became a resident of Quincy in later years was a member of the Light Brigade. He was William Shea, father of the late Mayor William T. Shea.

URGE CARE IN THE SALE OF DENATURED ALCOHOL

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A warning to a Maine Hardware concern urging that judgment be used in the sale of denatured alcohol was sent today by Chief Arthur H. Field of the state highway police.

"Denatured alcohol should not be sold to any person who is at all under the influence of intoxicating liquor, he wrote, "or who is known as an habitual user of intoxicants.

"It is obvious that alcohol is not purchased in one half pint lots to be placed in radiators of automobiles, and that excuse should not be considered."

DOCTORS SUBPOENAED BY PROHIBITION INSPECTOR

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 15—(AP)—Eight Worcester and Worcester county doctors were notified today to appear before Chief Prohibition Inspector John B. Lord of Boston at a hearing to be held in Worcester January 20, to show cause why their license for issuing and filling prescriptions for intoxicating liquors for medicinal purposes should not be revoked.

COLD WEATHER CAUSES SUFFERING IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 15—(AP)—The extreme cold with a heavy fall of snow, which has come to France in the wake of warm weather and floods, has caused the death of a number of persons, and untold suffering to many others. The snow in general throughout the country. La Rochelle, in the southwestern part of France, for the first time in nine years is under a white blanket while Douarnenez, in the northwestern section, is covered for the first time in ten years.

German Attitude on League of Nations

Will Not Become Members Until Allied Troops Leave the Rhineland.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Until there is a complete clarification as regards the allies' policies in the Rhineland, German application for admission to the league of nations will be deferred. This appears to be the official German attitude, confirming the statement of Foreign Minister Stresemann before the Reichstag foreign affairs committee yesterday that Germany's application for membership in the league must be indefinitely postponed if the allies perished in maintaining 75,000 troops in Rhineland territory.

While no verification of the report that the council of ambassadors had decided to retain garrisons totalling 75,000 effectives has been received at government headquarters official opinion appears to assume that this is the entente's program.

The foreign relations committee of the Reichstag, adopted a resolution today urging the government to remain firm in its demand that the Rhineland occupation army be restricted to the level of the German pre-war garrisons, which number 15,000 to 50,000 men, and that the Rhineland regime in its entirety be modified so as to conform to the policies initiated with the signing of the treaties at Locarno and the verbal accords reached there.

Official quarters have intimated their suspicion that France is the chief factor in the entente's alleged disinclination to accommodate German wishes and hopes with respect to reduction of allied forces in Rhineland zones. It is pointed out that both England and Belgium have already proceeded to reduce their respective forces there.

The present impasse is much to the liking of the political opponents of the Luther-Stresemann government, as it fits into their unceasing attacks on the Dawes plan and the Locarno treaties. Thus, an early clarification of the entente's intentions is desired by the government supporters, and especially by Dr. Luther, who is anxious to appear before the Reichstag with his new cabinet unfettered by such a liability as an indefinite assurance from the allies concerning positive amelioration of conditions in the Rhineland.

PRESSING WORLD COURT ISSUE IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Proponents of the world court continued today to press this issue in the senate, but they have little hope now that vote can be obtained until well after the tax reduction bill is passed.

When the measure comes from the finance committee, it will be given right of way, but after the vote, under present plans, the court issues will be called up again and kept continuously before the senate, even ahead of the annual appropriation bills.

Opponents of the court resolution of adhesion asked today that it be laid aside owing to the absence from the chamber of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who has a slight cold. Those in charge of the fight for ratification declined to do so, however, and something in the nature of a filibuster developed.

After Senator Fernald, republican, Maine, had explained why he felt compelled to go against his party leaders on the proposition, Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, held the floor for more than two hours, reading the farewell address of Washington, and aiming his shafts at supporters of the court and many others. Senator Ferris, democrat, Michigan, speaking in favor of American adhesion declared that national isolation "is a thing of the past."

"The need for an international court seems now to be imperatively necessary," he said, "and its proper operation requires a definite code of international law, honest capable judges and the confidence of the nations."

GOUCHER COLLEGE HAS BANNED THE CHARLESTON

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Charleston today joined the radio, bare knees and cigarettes on the list of things forbidden at Goucher college. The latest ban was placed by Miss Elizabeth Mason, Midgard Hall mistress. Miss Mason followed her edict with an explanation that since the advent of the Charleston Et Goucher, Midgard Hall's plaster was being jazzed off the ceilings, and pictures, too, were tumbling down. Midgard Hall is one of the Goucher dormitories.

Radios recently were ordered silenced by President William Wesley Guth, as being responsible for that tired feeling in the morning, and bare knees and cigarettes long have been outcasts.

Coolidge Sustains Pershing's Awards

Chileans Had Appealed From the Actions of the Plebiscitary Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The interpretation placed on the Tacna-Arica arbitral award by General Pershing was sustained by President Coolidge tonight in the decision on the Chilean appeal from the actions of the plebiscitary commission, over which he presided.

The president reiterated that Chilean sovereignty was not involved in the interpretation of the award, and emphasized that both Chile and Peru had pledged themselves to use their resources and authority to bring about a fair plebiscite.

The actions of the commission, from which Chile appealed to President Coolidge as arbitrator, December 3, had to do with the determination of dates and preparations for the voting which, under his award, is to determine the sovereignty of the two provinces, long in dispute between the two nations.

The general's stand that the award gave the commission "all authority necessary for the determination of prerequisities of a fair plebiscite" was sustained by the president. The decision stated that Chile and Peru were bound by their pledge to give assistance in every way to the commission and upheld its application of the award to conditions which it justly had a right to evaluate.

The decision was handed to the Chilean and Peruvian diplomatic representative here and was cabled to General Pershing, at Arica, where the commission is sitting.

MRS. BOWDITCH HAS BEEN GRANTED A DIVORCE

BOSTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Pearmain Bowditch, socially prominent in Boston and Framingham today received a divorce decree in her suit against Manfred Bowditch a Boston manufacturer in Suffolk county probate court. She alleged cruel and abusive treatment and asked the custody of their two children, Eliza, 12, and Mary, 8, which was granted.

The Bowditches were married in 1911 while Bowditch was a senior at Harvard. They separated in 1923, following several alleged indiginities received by Mrsd Bowditch from her husband.

Mrs. Bowditch told the court her husband was "a reckless wizard of finance," spent money upon himself lavishly and had 96 varieties of cigarettes, several hundred neckties, and several expensive automobiles.

Among the cruelties alleged against Bowditch were plunging his wife's face into a dish of ice cream which she had declined to eat at a dinner party and spanking her before the guests when she refused to sit in a certain chair. Mrs. Bowditch told of being refused credit at a Boston store because her husband's credit was not good.

DENOUNCED DRUGGISTS WHO WATER THEIR WHISKEY

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Regretting that he could not find Joseph Barshov, 31, of 456 Central avenue, a Westville druggist, guilty on several accounts of violating the liquor law instead of only one and penalize him accordingly, Judge E. F. Farley, in city court today denounced the practice of druggists who "water" their whiskey which is originally intended for medicinal purposes.

Barshov was sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $200 on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. He was the third druggist to be convicted on liquor charges within the last three months.

Barshov's drug store was raided on January 12 at which time police claim they found a case of whiskey and four bottles of beer not under lock and key.

TO UNDERWRITE BURGLARY INSURANCE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Asserting that during the past six months loss ratio on burglary insurance has shown a large improvement, E. A. St. John, president of the National Surety company, denied today reports that the company intended to withdraw from the field of burglary insurance in the metropolitan area.

OBITUARY.

John M. Holcombe.

HARTFORD, Jan. 15.—(AP)—John M. Holcombe, chairman of the board of directors of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, died today after a long illness. He was 77 years old. He became assistant secretary of the company in 1874 and was an official until his death, serving as president from 1904 to 1924. He was also connected with a number of other financial institutions. Mr. Holcombe served for a number of years in the city government and as a member to several municipal commissions and with Mrs. Holcombe, who died in 1923, was a leader in the effecting of many civic improvements.

Mr. Holcombe was graduated from Yale in 1870, his alma mater in 1909 conferred upon him the honorary degree of master of arts and Trinity in 1912 made his a doctor of laws.

You Can't Stay Where You Are.

You turn through a kodak album and smile at the old style clothes. Skirts clutter the ankles—hats perched high in the air—wasp waists—awkward sleeves—odd how styles have changed!

Yet day by day your tastes change in all you wear and do. You are so used to the better, you wonder why you liked the old. Advertisements make you know the better as soon as it's proved to be better. They tell of good things accepted as good taste in the homes.

Advertisements influence so many around you, sooner or later you'll feel the change. Advertisements form a tide of taste that sweeps you forward; you can't stand still. Since you'll enjoy what they advertise anyway, why not begin enjoying now?

GOVERNMENT POWERLESS TO INTERVENE IN COAL STRIKE

Until Congress Enacts Legislation to Give Power to Act, President Coolidge is Convinced That the Government Must Refrain From Action—Bill Introduced by Senator Copeland Does Not Contain Provision Giving the President Power to Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—With members of congress continuing today to interest themselves in the anthracite situation, the White House made it clear that President Coolidge proposes to maintain his hands off policy.

While the president's position was being restated officially, Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, offered a resolution requesting the president to act and gave notice that he would call the measure up tomorrow with a view to obtaining "early action."

At the White House, it was explained that the president considered the federal government powerless to help in the situation, at least until congress enacts legislation empowering it to act in industrial disputes.

The Copeland resolution conveys no grant of power; it simply asks the president "to take whatever steps are necessary and proper to bring about an immediate resumption of anthracite coal mining."

At the outset the New York senator offered a joint resolution which would have authorized the chief executive to act, but when he found that this would of necessity have to take the usual legislative course of reference to a committee, he proposed the substitute, declaring that he wanted speedy action, as the present situation is "fraught with imminent danger to the public health."

Before Senator Copeland offered his proposal, five republican representatives from Pennsylvania districts where anthracite mining is conducted held a conference with Secretary Davis at the labor department, but did not ask any specific government action

Those attending this conference were Representatives Watres, Brumm, McGrady, Carpenter and Swartz. Mr. Watres and Mr. Carpenter said before entering the discussion that they had no plan of dealing with the suspension to suggest and that they doubted the efficacy of any federal interference.

During the day, Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, issued a formal statement saying he had received no intimation or suggestion from anbody that he should take action. He added that except to study the problem he had done "nothing, absolutely nothing."

JUDGE WOLFE DISREGARDS A YUCATAN DIVORCE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 15—(AP)—Disregarding a Yucatan divorce, obtained by Howard M. Dumbell, former minister, from Anna Sherrod Dumbell, Judge Isaac Wolfe today handed down a Connecticut divorce decree separating Mrs. Dumbell and her former husband, who is now housekeeping in Colorado Springs, Colo., with Mary Louise Smith, of Darien, whom he married after securing the Yucatan divorce.

Through many of the years Dumbell was a minister of the gospel, preaching brotherly love and the gentle, humble ethics of religion from the pulpits of churches. Howard M. Dumbell made his wife, Anna Sherrod Dumbell "very unhappy," "struck her often" and "threatened to take her life," she testified before Judge Isaac Wolfe in superior court this afternoon.

The Dumbells were married thirty-five years ago and have a family of five children. They went to Darien in 1920, where Dumbell became rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church. Although her husband "always expected me to protect him—and I spent my life doing it"—Mrs. Dumbell left him in November, 1924. She felt, she said, she could no longer face life with the minister and had "put up with" his harsh treatment of her in the past because she dreaded to bring "scandal and publicity to the church and her family."

Immediately after Mrs. Dumbell brought suit for divorce, charging intolerable cruelty, Dumbell went to Yucatan. There he obtained a document declared to be a "divorce". Then he and Miss Mary Louise Smith, Darien, thirty years younger than the sixty year old minister, eloped to Kingston, N. Y. There they were married.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW IN NEW YORK CLOSES TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The exodus of factory executives and out of town visitors who came to attend the 26th annual national automobile show began tonight, and exhibitors prepared to abandon Grand Central Palace tomorrow night when the show ends.

The numerous exhibits which make up the New York show, the largest annual automotive exhibition in the country, will either be returned to the factories or be sent to other shows throughout the country. Practically all of the exhibits of accessories and parts will be sent directly to Chicago for the show in the Coliseum. An automobile show is scheduled to open in Newark, N. J., tomorrow night, and another will open in Brooklyn next week.

Many special trains were chartered to carry the visitors back to their homes. Visiting dealers joined with factory representatives in acclaiming the 1926 show as the greatest in the automotive history.

Theatrical day at the show today attracted numerous Broadway celebrities, including many screen stars.

DEATHS IN OKLAHOMA MINE INCREASED TO 93

WILBURTON, Okla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The death list in the explosion Wednesday at the Degnen-McConnell mine No. 21, tonight aparently had been increased to 93. Relief workers late today said they had located five bodies when only three previously had been thought unrecovered. All five were negroes.

Forty-five convicts from the Oklahoma penitentiary at McAlester, nearby, today prepared most of the graves for the victims, and tonight a long row of fifty ranged side by side in a little country cemetery in a valley near the mine.

Eight more were dug at the Wilburton Catholic cemetery and three more in private burying grounds. Some of the bodies are being sent to other towns for burial.

A few funerals were held late today, but most of them will be tomorrow. Because of the inability of local ministers to meet the demands of separate services, plans for a joint service for a number of the victims were discussed but no definite decision was announced.

$100,000 FIRE ORIGINATED FROM A SHORT CIRCUIT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Thorough examination of the ruins of the Hubinger building at 840 Chapel street revealed that the fire Wednesday night originated from a short circuit in the electric system and not from the oil heaters which were recently installed, according to Fire Marshall Martin J. Fleming.

Damage to the stock of F. W. Woolworth and company, was placed at $40,000, with damage to the building estimated at a like amount. Incidental fire and water damage to adjacent structures and to the contents of offices on upper floors is expected to bring the total to at least $100,000.

DISCUSSION RESUMED OF FRENCH FINANCIAL BILL

PARIS, Jan. 15—(AP)—By permitting the introduction of certain modifications, Premier Briand and M. Doumer, the finance minister, finally succeeded in getting the finance committee of the chamber of deputies to resume discussion fo the government's financial bill. This decision came after a three-hour discussion by the committee, and some of M. Briand's followers now believe that a means of conciliation may yet be found.

Early in the evening the future of the Briand cabinet appeared extremely dark, for it was understood that the finance committee had finished its work and would distribute its reports tomorrow, recommending that the government be invited to withdraw its financial restoration measures and bring in new bills based on counter proposals of the groups of the left.

On the basis of this it was predicted that the fate of the cabinet would be decided on Tuesday in one of the most important political debates since the coalition of the left gained control in the chamber. It being said that the chamber not only would have to determine whether there would be another change in the government pilot, but whether more paper money was to be issued.

Lively discussions went on all day in the chamber lobbies. The leaders of the left groups and their "camp followers" were diligently occupied in rounding up doubtful members and bringing pressure on those suspected of leaning toward M. Briand.

The general opinion was that M. Briand had cleverly manoeuvred the groups of the left into a position that would enable him to appeal with success to the conservative opposition, but canvasses indicated that the vote would be close, even if the premier rallied the entire opposition to his support.

Representatives of chambers of commerce throughout France and the heads of various groups of businessmen meantime are assuring Premier Briand that they are ready to make the sacrifices necessary to put French finance on a sound basis if it is possible to eliminate political considerations from a solution of the problem.

The uncertain situation has produced a fresh crop of bills proposing the widest range of ideas. Many of them tend toward a nations' lottery so organized so as to wipe out the floating short-term debt in fifty to sixty years

OPPOSE LEGISLATION ON SURPLUS FARM PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The fourth national conference of the national council of farmers' cooperative marketing associations went on record at its concluding session today as opposed to any legislation at this time dealing with surplus farm products.

In adopting the report of its legislative committee, which recommended such a course, the conference upheld the views of Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, chairman of the national council and Aron Sapiro, the council's legal adviser, who had urged that the question be left to the farmers themselves to meet through extended cooperative organization. Former governor Lowden of Illinois, and other members of the group favoring legislative aid in tackling the problem, were absent from the floor when the conference took its action.

The report provided for appointment of a committee of eight to study the surplus problem and report to the council's executive committee. Its findings will be made the basis of a referendum vote among the cooperative associations, which will determine the organization's policy on the subject.

Mr. Lowden, who had sought approval by the conference of some form of legislation to take care of the surplus phase of farm relief, was understood to have remained away from the final session as a form of protest.

QUICK RESTORATION OF TELEGRAPHIC SERVICE

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Just 17 hours after cable and land line telegraphic service through Maine was paralyzed last night by fire in the basement and first floor of the Western Union office here Manager E. A. Fraser announced shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon that temporary arrangements had been effected and that complete service was being given.

Two heavy cables were carried from the basement through an alley and into a window of the second story of the building where a crew of 25 picked workmen, working feverishly overnight, installed another office, which will be occupied until a permanent establishment is perfected.

The men and equipment for the improvised office were sent from Boston immediately after the fire broke out. Partial service was re-established at midnight.

GOYER COMPANY DRIVE. GOING OVER THE TOP

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 16—The gratifying sum of $24,175 has been raised up to this evening in the $30,000 stock campaign being staged here for the Goyer Manufacturing company, by members of the Chamber of Commerce. The campaign was formally opened last Monday night but due to the inability of a majority of the 30 public spirited salesmen to devote time to the drive at this season, it was later voted to close the campaign next week. Another supper, with all the captains and their teams in attendance, will be held next Tuesday evening at 6:15 o'clock. The division led by James P. Bath was in the lead tonight according to the reports made to General Salesmanager James B. Fullerton. Mr. Bath's team reported $13,600 and J. E. Sullivan reported his division's stock sales as $10,575, with but $5,825 outstanding. It is expected that the drive will culminate by going over the top, thus upholding a remarkable record set in a series of drives representing nearly half a million dollars, which have been staged in Willimantic during the past two years.

WESTMINSTER

The text last Sunday was St. Matthew 11:28.

Mention was not made last week of the Christmas exercises of the church school for lack of space.

Grip colds are prevalent among old and young and many children could not attend Christmas night when a very informal volunteer entertainment was given.

George Myles of Plainfield served as song master and there were recitations by Arlene Green, Clara Green, Lillian Green, Anna and Olga Deiratak, these interspersed with songs by the Green trio of little girls, the Deviataks and the school. The story of the first Christmas was given including a song "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." A Christmas poem was read by Stella Rudik. The Near East Relief offering was received, which with the red-stocking and other individual gifts amounted to $7.50. After a delightful recitation by Mrs. William Davies of Elm Arch Farm entitled Santa is Here, the door opened and Santa walked in. He distributed gifts and candy, calling on John Deviatak to assist him.

Willis and Charles Bennett have been helping fill Albert Pellett's new ice house.

Gayhead school failed to resume its work, last week with the other schools of town, as its teacher, Miss Kimball was sick with scarlet fever at her home in Danielson. This week Miss Terry of Danielson has opened the school as substitute for Miss Kimball who has the sincere sympathy of all in her illness.

Oscar Olsen spent the holidays with relatives and friends in Jersey City and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moody and two children also Harry Helstrom, autoed to Noose neck hill New Years day to visit relatives, returning Saturday. Mr. Moody returned to his work in New York Monday Jan. 4th.

Mrs. R. B. Kaylor had as recent guests from Hartford and East Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cheverette, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Getty and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Vale.

William E. Davis of Raymond district, continues to gain slowly and took his first ride since his recent illness, the first of this week. A recent guest at his home was Mrs. G. A. Davis.

Arthur Green and Jake Jones were in Willimantic Monday.

The Canterbury mail carried and Mrs. Dudley Ferguson have the sympathy of their many other friends in the illness of their son.

On sixty-two of the 365 days in 1925 there was 100 per cent. sunshine, according to the annual meteorological summary, for the year compiled by Leonard M. Tarr, meteorologist at the United States weather bureau in New Haven. On 44 days there was no sunshine.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c

King, of Lebanon, Mrs. Richard Johnson of Mansfield Hollow and Mrs. David Nichols of Springfield, Mass., and her brother, is William Allen of Madison, Wis. The funeral was held in Middletown, January 8th.

COPY OF ULRICH ZWINGLI BIBLE FOUND IN LIBRARY OF SEMINARY

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 15—(AP)—A copy of one of the rarest Bibles in the world—the Ulrich Zwingli Bible—the printing of which is said to have taken four years, has been discovered in the library of the Reformed Theological Seminary here.

The Bible, according to its title page, was printed by Christopher Froschauer in 1529. Four years before that time the first section of the volume, which is in six sections, was printed. The text was compiled by Zwingli and several other preachers of Zurich who were associated with him, and a greater part of the German text was translated from the Latin by Martin Luther. The Bible, according to historians at the time of its publication corresponded to the popular priced editions of today.

Two of the features of the book are the illustrations and the arrangement of the text. For example, the Book of Acts is placed after the Epistle of St. Paul, instead of before as is the case in printing the present day Bibles. The majority of the illustrations are wood cuts and the characters are depicted in the dress of knights and monks of the fifteenth century. In but a few places are the characters pictured in Biblical dress, as is the case in illustrating the modern editions.

A copy of the second edition published in 1531, also was found in the library.

VELIE

WHAT THE VELIE HAS MEANT AND WHAT IT MEANS TODAY

A Record of Consistency

From its first appearance eighteen years ago to the present, the Velie car has consistently maintained a reputation for Value—for the finest Value to be obtained at the price. That reputation was its original aim and, achieved at the very start, has always been jealously guarded. That it has remained untouched and has, in fact, been steadily increased, is a record that not many have equalled and one of which the Velie Corporation is justly proud.

Today, with new resources permitting ever more progressive policies behind the Velie, it is our intention to enhance that reputation still further—to maintain the thought that Velie and Value are almost interchangeable words.

Put Thrift Behind Your Giving

Generous giving has a definite place in the budget of every thrifty man, but generous giving should not mean careless giving.

Plan your giving with as much care as you plan your saving and your spending. Make sure that money which you expend to help others goes to organized benevolence best prepared to see that it accomplishes real good and great good.

This is Share With Others Day—the first day of National Thrift Week. Plan now to give and to give liberally. Share with others and increase your happiness as well as theirs.

Women Lose

less time, keep charm under trying hygienic conditions. New way provides true security—discards like tissue

OLD-TIME sanitary methods bring unhappy, fretful days. Now the insecurity of the hazardous "sanitary pads" has been ended.

You wear sheerest gowns, meet every and all social or business exactments in peace of mind . . . any time, any day.

It is called "KOTEX" . . . five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . thus ending ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy simply by saying "KOTEX" at any drug or department store. Costs only a few cents. Proves old ways unnecessary risk.

DANIELSON

ANDREWS PROFESSIONAL OF PUTNAM COUNTRY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15—Announcement was made here today of the appointment of Tyler P. Andrews, of Danielson, as golf professional at the Putnam Country club, for the 1926 season. He will begin his duties April 1. Mr. Andrews will succeed Clarence Booth, who recently resigned and who served the club for several years.

Mr. Andrews, who has been a member of the Putnam Country club for some time, will have charge of the upkeep of the links and will give instruction to players that desire lessons. He will also have the golf ball and gold stick concessions at the grounds and also the concessions for supplying soda, ice cream and lunches. He has, until recently, been engaged in the restaurant business in Danielson.

Mr. Andrews is an enthusiastic golfer and has advanced his game and the perfection thereof with uncommon speed the past year. Beginning April 1, he will devote his entire time to the interests of the Country club, which has a considerable membership in Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly.

ADVISES PURCHASE OF NEW FIRE ALARM SIREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15—It is likely that the borough of Danielson will be called to pass upon at the annual meeting in April, a proposal that an appropriation be made for installing an auxiliary fire alarm siren on the roof of the central fire station in Academy street. Installation of the device, Chief A. P. Woodward estimates, would cost from $2,500 to $3,000.

The proposal to install the auxiliary fire siren is based on the fact that Danielson has but one fire siren at the present time—the one on the Main street plant of the Paco Manufacturing company. There is a bell on the central fire station, but it is practically voiceless and almost wholly toneless and can barely be heard around the corner. Should the present siren fail to function for any reason, and there is always the possibility of mechanical defects developing, Danielson might be left at a very critical moment—one might imagine such a thing happening in the late night season—with no adequate means of arousing the firemen, for Danielson has no paid department, the men sleeping at their homes.

For several years the proposal has been heard that the borough—as a matter of additional safety—install an auxiliary alarm on the central fire station. The question will be up for a vote in April. The device that Chief Woodward favors is a triple-toned siren, operated by compressed air. Included in the equipment is an electric motor for pumping air and containers for holding the same.

DEER'S VISIT DEAR TO DANIELSON MARBLE WORKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15—A crash of shattered glass, the flash of a tawny streak, another crash of glass at Love's Marble works in Center street, Friday afternoon, and a young deer had completed its bullet-like transit through a window in a rear door and a window in the front door. The animal's passage through the shop, in the opinion of H. B. Surrey, granite cutter at work there, was at the rate of around 100 miles an hour. Coming unannounced, it may be imagined that the deer's brief visit was a somewhat amazing intrusion for Mr. Surrey. Crash-flash-crash and the deer was gone. Mr. Surrey recovered from his amazement in time to see the deer was plunge madly across Center street to dash headlong against the casing of a door in the Windham county National bank building only to be hurled to the ground. Instantly up and away, the deer headed eastward along Center street and was streaking up the hill toward the graded school when last seen from the business section. There was no trace of blood about the Love plant or on the snow in Center street to indicate that the deer had been cut by its wild adventure in the heart of the borough.

The assumption is that this deer was driven into the thick of things here to escape dogs that may have been chasing it. It may be considered, too, that the deer did not regard its chances of escape being very good and decided on picking out a marker for its lasting place when it hurled through the glass of the door in the rear of the monument works. There must have been a quick change of mind, but not of pace, for the deer crossed the interior of the shop at express speed and plunged through the glass door without as much as a "Howdaya do."

Persistance is a jewel—some sort of a one, at least. Take John Smith, bearer of a traditionally great name, for instance. Mr. Smith appeared here Thursday seeking to be arrested as a vagrant. Many years have passed since Mr. Smith used to call Danielson his home and occasionally give the police a little work to do. He has wandered much since those days. He's 53 now. Chief John McFarland told him, on Thursday, to run along and get some work to do when he asked the officer to look him up. This rebuff did not discourage Mr. Smith, not in the least. An agile mind has he. At the barracks up on North Main street, the state police soon after received a visit from the determined one. He insisted that he was a vagrant and should be locked up. The state officers couldn't see it and shooed him along—or tried to. The effort was futile. Smith went out and stretched on the ground a short distance from the state officers' headquarters. Undoubtedly he would have remained there a very long time in an effort to force arrest, so eventually he was accommodated. In court Friday afternoon he pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy and Judge W. Fenner Woodward sentenced him to Brooklyn jail for 60 days. He has achieved his ambition to eat and sleep comfortably at the expense of the commonwealth until about the time that spring arrives.

Friday morning the funeral of Miss Lena Roberts was held from her home on the West Side, with a funeral mass at St. James' church. Rev. Oscar Norman, of All Hallows parish, Moosup, a relative of the deceased, was celebrant at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Gamache, Frederick Gamache, Dina Gamache, Adelard Bonneau, Adelard Boucher, Joseph Belisle, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

William W. McEwen is recovering at his home on School street, from injuries he received when a tree fell upon him while he was chopping in the woods. An oak nearly 40 feet tall unexpectedly toppled over, after it had become lodged after partly coming down and struck Mr. McEwen and hurled him to the ground. He sustained injuries to his back, but these fortunately are not as serious as it was first feared was the case.

Pleasant weather was a factor in drawing a good attendance to the quarterly poultrymen's meeting held at Grange hall, in Brooklyn, Friday, under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' organization. There were morning and afternoon sessions and a very interesting program. The attendance at the meeting was representative of several towns in the country.

For for Killingly High school Junior Prom, an outstanding social event of the year at the school, the following committees have been appointed: Music, Miss Alice Bacon; refreshments, Misses Winifred Hammett, Ruth Pepler, Florence Tomlin and Harry Pate and Charles Nellsen; program, Misses Ruth Cunneen and Beatrice Pellett, invitation, Misses Harriet Beecher and Ruh Peler and Richard Barrett; decoration, Gussie Hammond, Ralph Brennan, Miss Grace Martin, Miss Eleanor Gardner, Miss Beatrice Pellett, Miss Ruth Clarke, Gordon Cunneen, Harry Pate. The mothers of the class officers are to be patronesses.

Writing to friends here from Florence, where they are spending the winter, Mrs. John Young and daughter, Miss Elsa Young, tell of the unusually cold weather being experienced in that section of Italy.

Further progress was made Friday in filling the ice houses at Quinebaug lake, where the harvesting of the season's crop is now well advanced.

Members of the K. H. S. Alumni association and their friends had a delightful evening at the first of a series of Alumni hops held in the assembly hall at the high school Friday evening.

Arthur G. Bill was in Norwich, Friday, to represent a client at a session of the superior court in that city.

The Commonsense Road of Peace will be the subject of an address before the Men's club of Brooklyn, by Rev. James F. English, of the Second Congregational church, of Putnam.

Former Selectman George Alvord, who has been quite ill at his home in Dayville, is reported as much improved.

Having achieved something of a chorse in defeating the Service battery team, 27 to 24, the Danielson Town team is taking on Jewett City, claiming the eastern Connecticut championship, for a game here next week.

Dr. Hugh Campbell will come here next Tuesday to hold a regular monthly clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

Mrs. A. C. Greene will have members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting on Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Page have been in Hartford this week attending the sessions of the state grange.

Some Psychological Influences of the War on Education will be his subject when Rev. Leonard Richards addresses the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., when they meet at the home of Mrs. E. H. Keach on Thursday of next week.

Mrs. Walter Anderson, of Broad street, enertained the members of the Roundabout club Friday afternoon.

Members of the Men's club of St. Alban's church held a meeting at the parish house Friday evening.

Again there is vehement complaint against the careless and faulty operation of radio receiving sets. The "squealers" just ruin things for everyone who hears them and can't possibly be getting good results themselves.

PUTNAM

INCREASE IN ASSETS OF BUILDING & LOAN ASSO.

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—The Putnam Building and Loan association is ten years old. Its assets amount to $371,-650, it has never had a loss on a loan, and it has aided more than 100 people to buy or build their own homes. The annual meeting is to be held in the chamber of commerce rooms next week to hear reports, elect officers and to pass upon a proposed amendment to the by-laws.

M. H. Geissler, secretary, makes the following statement:

"Our association is ten years old. We have grown from nothing to more than a quarter of a million dollars in assets. We have assisted about one hundred people of Putnam to buy or build homes.

"Practically all of the work in building up this association has been done by a few men who have served as your officers without pay. You have had the benefit of their labor. Do you appreciate what they have done? If you do, come to the annual meeting and let them know it; take an active interest in the affairs of the association and sell a few shares to your friends and do not leave all the work of selling shares to your officers; get people interested in owning their own homes through the association, by which a person can build or buy his home and pay for it in about twelve years at a net cost of less than three per cent. per year on the money borrowed. Show that you are interested.

At the annual meeting of the Ecclesiastical society of the Second Congregational church, reports of the officers of the church were presented, leadese for the coming year were chosen and other important business matters transacted. Subbo Nokoloff was elected for a term of three years to take the place of Elbert Kinney. Chester M. Elliott was elected Clerk and treasurer, Florenus Clark, collector, Lucius P. Merriam, auditor, Ernest C. Morse was chairman of the meeting.

It was decided to hold Sunday evening services during the months of February and March of this year with special features in music, motion and stereoptican pictures.

The Methodist church has received a legacy of $100 for the use of the choir through the will of the late Jennie Simmins. The money will be invested with the conference and the income will be used for the purchase of music for the choir.

On this (Saturday) evening the Fourth quarterly conference will be held at the Methodist church parsonage when Supt. M. E. Genter of Norwich will preside. All reports of the year will be read. Next Sunday morning, Rev. M. E. Genter, the division superintendent will preach.

The report of the school nurse, Miss Viola L. Snyder, for the month of December has been submitted to the town school and is as follows:

Cases carried over, none; new cases 43; discharged cases 42; on hand 1. Accidents 16, skin diseases 11, others 16, total 43. Treatments 31, treatments 17 (excl. 5) total 69. Home calls 15.

There has been another case of scarlet fever but no contact in school. A younger child at home had it first.

On December 4 and 18 in the p. m., I attended the course for school nurses at the Willimantic Normal school. This course is to be given every two weeks until June.

On December 15, at a meeting of the Social Workers' council of New London counties, Dr. Thom spoke on "Habit Training in Childhood."

The physical examinations are completed in the parochial school.

Louis E. Battey, superintendent of the evening school, has submitted the following report to the town school committee up to Dec. 31st. Attendance Americanization department, total reg. 28, act. reg. 20, av. att. 13.9; commercial department, total reg. 48; act. reg. 28, av. att. 16.5; Totals, registered, 76; act. reg. 48, av. att. 30.4

An Americanization rally was held January 5th.

The well child conference will be held Tuesday afternoon January 19 in the high school auditorium from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Children like old folks care for sweet things during the holiday season. No doubt fond parents, aunts and uncles showered the little ones with plenty of candy during the holidays. Perhaps these have had disastrous results if the quantity was excessive. If so, parents may have learned the wisdom of providing for children the holiday sweets of a simple nature.

The candy which is rich and alluring in flavor is apt to upset the digestion of little children. Very simple candy can be made by melting sugar over low heat and pouring into a shallow pan. This is pure sugar and not harmful to children if taken in small quantities. Such candy appears also in the stores as barley candy and it is a safe kind to buy. Other sweets can be made from a mixture of finely chopped raisins, dates and figs. These may be cut into very small squares or made into small balls and given to the children as an extra sweet now and then as children can eat these safely. With its sweet taste it satisfies the child and at the same time it provides very valuable iron, which adds to its health score. Such aids as these are discussed at the monthly well child conferences.

Joseph Tetreault of Providence was here Friday to attend the funeral of Gertrude Lizotte, 12 year old daughter of Edward Lizotte of Laurel street.

Funeral services for George S. Pike, 76, were held Thursday afternoon at the home in Worcester. He was a former resident of Putnam when he was employed in the freight yard of the New Haven R. R. Co.

In the new train service schedule of the New Haven railroad, four local freight trains, which have made Putnam a terminal, have been converted into through trains. This will take four locomotives and the crews of the train away from Putnam. Other changes affecting this city are:

The train arriving from Boston, and leaving for Hartford and Waterbury at 3.41 p. m., will be discontinued.

The so-called mixed train leaving Putnam for Willimantic at 8.30 a. m. will be discontinued.

A new train will leave Boston about 12.45 a. m., arriving at Putnam at 3.17 a. m. This train will give Putnam people opportunity to attend the theatre in Boston, have time for supper following the show, and get have at this early hour.

The train leaving Putnam for Boston at 10.09 will leave at 10.38.

The 1.47 p. m. to Boston will leave ten minutes later.

The last train for Boston will leave at 7.19 p. m. instead of 8.05.

A new train will leave New Haven for Boston, via Hartford, leaving Putnam for Boston at 4.19 a. m.

The train arriving from New London at 1.37 will be discontinued.

The funeral of Gertrude Lizotte, 12 daughter of Edward Lizotte of Laurel street who died Wednesday morning, was held this morning at St. Mary's Catholic church.

LISBON

There is much interest throughout town and especially among the residents along the Newent road, from Jewett City, to Taftville, over the proposed new bus line. At the hearing held in Norwich, Tuesday, there were present from this town, Rev. W. J. Reynolds, pastor at Newent; the three selectmen, Harry L. Hull, George Bradlow and John M. Lee; Mrs. Jesse Phillips, chairman of the school board, Mrs. Albert Rist, Clarence Whitaker, Albert Bradlow, John G. Bromley, James Graham, also Charles A. Whitaker, who recently moved to Norwich.

These people represented the large number through the center of the town including high school pupils, workmen in the factories, Norwich business men living in Newent, also the general traveling and shopping public for whom no means of public transportation is provided. On the river road there is already hourly service by the Connecticut Co., busses.

Mrs. C. A. Mott and Mrs. Frank Mell attended the funeral of the former's cousin, Edwin J. Griswold, in Providence, Wednesday. Mr. Griswold was a former Lisbon resident. He is survived by his wife, a son, Edwin, a daughter-in-law and a little grandson whose father, Clarence Griswold, died four weeks ago. He leaves also, one broher, Alfred Griswold, of Providence.

The first coasting accident of the season occurred Wednesday afternoon, when Marion Hebert, 9, of 139 Sixth street, suffered a fracture of the left leg, when struck and knocked down by a sled while coasting in the New Village. An X-ray taken at Norwich revealed both bones were broken above the ankle. Members of the G. N. S. club, of which Miss Hebert is a member visited her Thursday afternoon, following the regular meeting of that group, with their leader, Miss Edith Birtinistic.

At a recent meeting of the Friendly Helpers society of the Congregational church, plans were made for a food sale. The executive board of the church school met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Carl M. Mathewson on Plainfield street, Alred Royle, superintendent of the school, presiding. The nominating committee for the officers of the new Christian Endeavor society has completed the selection of candidates and they will be announced at the re-organization meeting next Monday night. All those attending the meeting will be listed as charter members. The choir is to hold its rehearsal for the Cantata in the church next Wednesday.

MARRIAGE INDUSTRY OF CROWN POINT THRIVING

CROWN POINT, Ind., Jan. 15—(AP)—The marriage industry of this nationally renowned Mecca of quick and easy weddings is experiencing a gradually increasing growth.

Chief of the Hoosier Gretna Green is Justice of the Peace H. H. Kemp, an affable, smiling, rather short, heavyset first assistant to Dan Cupid.

His office is just across the street from the country building. It is one flight up, and signs direct the way to the marriage parlors. There is more than one, for sometimes business presses and one couple waits while Judge Kemp performs the finishing touches of the ceremony immediately in hand.

He has been in office as a magistrate for eleven or twelve years and says he has performed 30,000 marriages during that time.

This year alone has witnessed him officiating at 4,000.

In the county building at Chicago, persons may be divorced on one floor, rush down to another, obtain licenses to take new mates and be legally attached inside 30 minutes. It requires daylight hours for that, however, since the judges, clerks and bailiffs adhere rather strictly to the usual hours of a business day.

In Crown Point, where performing ceremonies has been adapted to mass production, it is different. The necessary officials here can be persuaded to open shop at almost any hour.

Hard roads run directly here from Chicago, and if two are in a hurry, even the taxicab fare is inside an ordinary week's pay.

When the Illinois divorce law was amended a year ago to permit renewed marriages of divorced persons without waiting a year, it was thought that perhaps Crown Point would lose some of its fame. However, it has not.

Wisconsin, with its law requiring a five day wait after obtaining a license and presentation by the man of a certificate showing he has passed a physical examination by a reputable physician, is ust a step farther away than Chicago, and many couples from the Badger state cement their love ties in Crown Point.

The new Michigan law requires a five-day wait between the application for a marriage license and issuance of it. Crown Point is much nearer and a gradually increasing number of automobiles with Michigan tags has been noted here.

The city is the seat of Lake county, just far enough away from adjoining states to make the motor ride a matrimonial diversion. Justice Kemp is efficient; his marriage parlors are neat and tidy. He approximates his number of weddings and points to the chief decorations of his office—baskets and boxes. The baskets are the usual wire waste paper boxes which are items of usual equipment; their contents are the boxes. Thousands of them, representing nearly every state in the union. They are small and white plush lined, and once held wedding rings.

Were Justice Kemp to trace the record of these rings to the volumes which show the contracting parties, the names of celebrities in many parts of the world would be disclosed.

Two fellow justices as assistants usually take care of criminal and civil cases. But when Justice Kemp is not available for the joining of hands, these men officiate. The number of marriages they have performed, added to the record of their chief, swells the proportions of the Crown Point market.

DESOLATE ISLAND OF WEST COAST FEARED BY YACHTSMEN

SAN PEDRO, Jan. 15—(AP)—Desolate and wind-swept San Nicolas, one of a chain of islands lying off the coast of southern California, has become a spot shunned by most yachtsmen.

Old-time mariners who gather on the docks of this harbor city to swap yarns seldom fail to speak of barren San Nicolas. It is inhabited only by a man named MacArthur and his wife, who care for 2,000 sheep owned by a cattle company which leases the island from the government.

Howling offshore winds and great seas, against which little progress can be made by small craft, often are encountered by those who try to reach the island.

Should the mariner overcome these elements, another obstacle has to be overcome before a landing can be made. Virtually impassable kelp beds almost surround the island and extend from a quarter of a mile to three miles offshore. They may be negotiated only by extremely small craft.

Twice a year a boat visits San Nicolas to load sheep, and the members of her crew sometimes are the only people seen by the MacArthurs for months at a time. They have been on the island nearly three years. Until ninety-five years ago, Indians inhabited the island.

Priests of the Santa Barbara mission tell of a woman who was abandoned on the island, in 1830, for 30 years. When the Mexican government removed the natives of San Nicolas to the mainland, the woman, in returning for a baby she had forgotten, was left. Indications that she still lived were found by men who visited the island in search of her.

Evidently fearing that they were enemies, she eluded them. Finally she was found, virtually insane. There was no trace of any other person, and it was assumed that the baby had perished.

TIPPING A CRIME IN RUSSIA BUT CONTINUES NEVERTHELESS

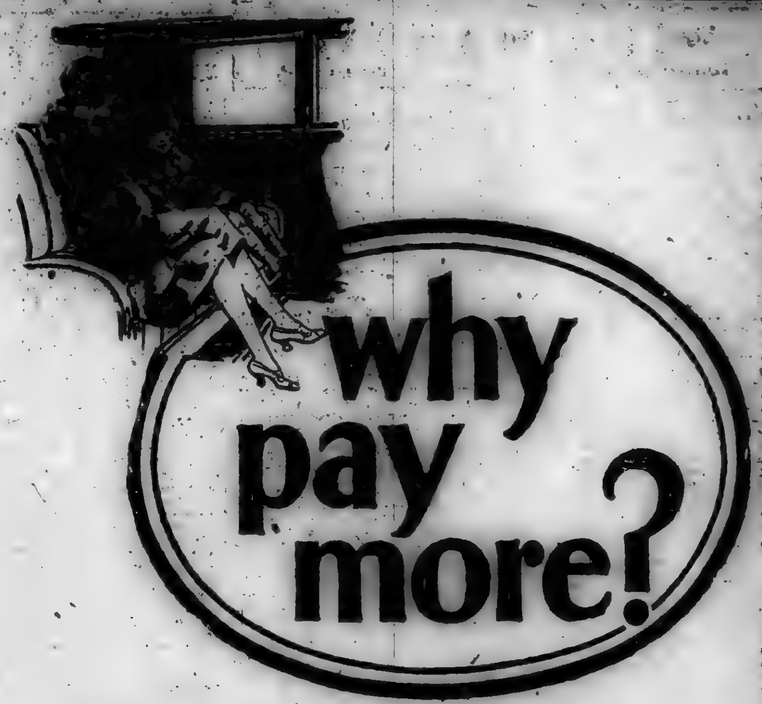
MOSCOW, Jan. 15—(AP)—Tipping in Soviet Russia is a punishable offense.

The few Americans who have found their way to this revolutionary land have been astonished to find that the Bolsheviks look upon any kind of gratuity as a "bribe."

One of the most frequent signs in the Moscow restaurants is, "Don't degrade your fellow-man by offering him a tip; tipping is a form of bribery." Another is, "A bribe is punishable as a criminal offense; therefore don't attempt to give tips."

Despite warnings, however, tourists soon find hotel employes, waiters and public servants show a surprising readiness to accept "tips," particularly if no one is looking.

As the Bolsheviks regard tipping as a species of "bribery," so they regard the white apron, laundered shirt and stiff collar usually worn by waiters as "degrading." Therefore, in order to give complete "equality" to this class of workers, they have orderd them to wear natty blue blouses, with army style collar and no tie.



Stripped of all "carrying charges", brokerage fees and unitemized additional cost of the usual time-payment procedure, the new Willys Finance Plan is a lower-cost credit accommodation, pure and simple.

Why pay more... for legitimate credit on a necessity? Investigate how little this new plan costs you in actual dollars and cents. Here is a vital element of your purchase where cold figures alone should count.

1926 PLANS FOR DANIELSON

Now that you are making your plans for bigger and better business, has it ever occurred to you that BETTER LIGHTING is both the cheapest and best way of helping you on your way?

As one of the means to this end, we are featuring the

which, in one of its forms is suitable for practically every class of commercial lighting. The Sol-Lux Luminaire will provide scientific illumination—light where it is wanted and without GLARE.

See them in our windows tonight.

The one in the right hand window is a Sol-Lux Luminaire for commercial lighting; the other, in the left hand window is a Duplex-a-lite for home lighting.

Look for more details next week.

PINCHOT'S EFFORTS

Because of the fact that the anthracite monopoly lies entirely within the state of Pennsylvania, it should be dealt with by that commonwealth. That step has been suggested time and again without any progress being made.

With the calling of the legislature of that state into special session it is not what can be considered a favorable impression which is made by Governor Pinchot when he addresses it in the manner that he did and undertook to spread the belief that the responsibility for the coal situation today rests upon the shoulders of the coal operators.

Throughout the whole controversy the operators have urged resort to arbitration and an adjustment of differences according to the facts. That has been persistently opposed by the miners, who have been willing to sanction partial arbitration only with the understanding that if there was any adjustment of the wage scale it must be upward. As between the proposition of the operators and that of the miners the only one that has given the consumer any hope for fair treatment is that of the operators, regardless of the criticism that may be offered concerning them.

Because there has been a specail session of the Pennsylvania legislature called does not mean that the coal situation is going to be properly dealt with or met at all. There are bills offered which if enacted would go far toward ending conditions concerning the anthracite situation, but getting action from a special session that bears all the earmarks of being inspired by the political ambitions of the governor cannot be regarded as promising.

Governor Pinchot has been endeavoring for a one sided settlement, a settlement that would boost the price of coal to the consumer even as it did a year ago. That being the case is there any reason to think that such legislation as he seeks will be any more fairminded? With such a prospect, combined with the political aspect, another effort at dealing with the coal situation may occupy a lot of time and get no where. Pinchot's efforts thus far have not been helpful.

GOING AT IT RIGHT

Resentment of conditions which result in an unwarranted boost in the price of rubber is natural, but that does not justify that legislation be undertaken in this country for the purpose of retaliation. Such a move would mean an endless contest.

The move which is being made for the use of American capital, something like $10,000,000 a year for the next six years, to produce sufficient rubber to take care of all the demands of this country is headed in the right direction. If such a step had been taken five years ago the present situation would not exist. By this time such development would have been contributing handsomely to the supply of raw rubber and we could disregard the sources of supply which are under severe restrictions and governed by British law.

Just where this outlay will be made will depend upon conditions. Logically it should go to the Philippines, or a goodly part of, but there is not displayed the right sort of interest in such development by the Filipinos. Their laws are against it and their attitude is one of opposition. There are nevertheless other fields which will welcome the prospect of getting such development and the attitude in the Philippines will in no way block it.

We have had numerous lessons concerning the importance of ending such dependence as we may have upon other countries for various supplies. We encountered and overcame some of them during the war. We have since come to realize our predicament concerning rubber. The decision to tackle the situation by growing our own is the right one. Some effect may be noted on other fields as the significance of this decision sinks in, quite the same as there has been from the setting forth of the situation by Secretary Hoover, but having been caught once there will be no excuse if we should get caught again. If we grow our own rubber we can establish our independence and snap our fingers at those who would exact an enormous and unreasonable price for such a commodity from us.

CHANGING CHAIRMEN

No one will envy General Lassiter his job as head of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission. He will have the benefit of the experience of General Pershing in the administration of that office during a period of five months, and can no doubt employ with good effect such report as the latter may make concerning his service.

But the situation cannot be regarded in as favorable a light as when General Pershing went to Arica. Then both Chile and Peru had agreed to abide by the decision of President Coolidge that their differences over the ownership of Tacna and Arica should be adjusted by a plebiscite, and there had not developed the annoying instances of trying to block or influence such a vote. Instead of giving help to the chairman of the commission in his endeavor to insure fairness and impartiality there has been conducted a campaign of obstruction. There has been evidence of the strong enmity that exists between the two countries.

The difficulties encountered by General Pershing in his effort to do the right thing by all concerned, handicapped by ill health, do not present a favorable outlook for his successor. They simply accentuate the task that lies before him, and yet General Lassiter is rated as being an excellent diplomat as well as a highly efficient military leader. He is credited with being a man who likes to tackle knotty problems, and it is known from past experiences how thoroughly he enters into such work.

His selection can be regarded as an excellent one. The post is one which he is well fitted for and he should prove an admirable head of the commission. His promptness in leaving for Arica will cause little delay in the preparations for the plebiscite and it is to be hoped that the change will have the effect of bringing the Chilean and Peruvian members of the commission to a recognition of their responsibilities in aiding rather than hindering an adjustment.

THE APPLE INDUSTRY

Next week apple growers from all the New England states are to gather in Boston for the purpose of developing a better movement in behalf of apples throughout all New England. This isn't the first, but at this it is hoped to agree upon a standard of grading and packing that will result in uniform legislation throughout the six states. This is regarded as a necessary step in order to enter into competition with the apple growers of other and distant states.

It is no secret that a great number of apples are brought into this state every year. They may come from New York and they may come from the Pacific coast. The same situation exists in all New England, and yet there is no good reason why the demand for apples should not be supplied for the most part at least right here in New England. We can grow just as nice looking fruit and just as nice tasting fruit as any of the other states. We can also grow more apples than we are growing, and have them of the better quality, or at least of that quality that will meet the requirements of the buyer.

The chance for the development of this industry should neither be denied nor sidetracked. It is time that Connecticut apples, or New England apples, were being raised in quantity and quality to supply the apple users. It can be done. The chance to get native fruit would be welcomed.

Along with the needed attention for providing for this situation must go better marketing, grading and packing. There is no question of the need of intensive apple culture and if the Boston meeting can speed up the progress let the good work proceed as rapidly as possible.

ANOTHER DEBT ADJUSTER

With the coming to this country of Henry Berenger as French ambassador it can be expected that there will be a resumption of efforts to complete the settlement of the war debt of that country to the United States. The new ambassador is a member of the French senate. He was a member of the debt commission that was headed by Finance Minister Caillaux, thoroughly understands the mistakes that were made at that time and has been selected because of his tact and ability to carry out successfully the mission on which he has been sent. His stay is expected to be short, so short that his seat in the senate will not be lost, and when he has accomplished his task he will immediately give way to another ambassador.

It will be noted that Ambassador Berenger does not come with the announcement that he has but a week or ten days in which to adjust the debt and he has not, so far as known, arranged for his return passage. He hasn't undertaken to display the great confidence in his ability as was noted in the case of the former finance minister. He expects to succeed but he isn't bragging about it before it is accomplished.

Ambassador Berenger has been making a special study of English in anticipation of his visit in order to better understand the situation and it must be said that such statements as he has made make a good impression of the man and the object for which he again visits this country.

It was unfortunate that the debt adjustment was not accomplished in the previous attempt, but that experience may serve as the means of hastening the result in the present one.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Pretty soft for bituminous with interest in anthracite on the wane.

The man on the corner says: Have you made all preparations for a cloudy ground hog day?

"Listen to the Mocking Bird," was once a favorite. Just now it is listen to the thermometer watcher.

Thus far no company has gone into the business of guaranteeing New Year resolutions against breakage.

Probably no one will ever be hung for dancing the Charleston but several have already suffered broken bones.

The seating of Senator Nye on the democratic side of the senate at least places him where he can be expected to vote.

While plans are being made to grow more rubber by American capital, urging economy in the use of rubber is admirable advice.

Now that the new semi rigid dirigible has been launched, Colonel Mitchell ought to reveal where its weaknesses and poor handling are to be found before something happens.

It isn't necessary for Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania to tell where the trouble lies for the anthracite deadlock. The acts and statements of the respective sides point to the one to blame.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are three classes of problems that present themselves with every new year: First, those that are entirely new; second, those that come as a heritage from the past; and third, those that continue year after year without final solution. Naturally these are the most provoking because they are apt to be of vital importance. These perennial problems are complicated and usually make a wide division in public opinion. As an illustration take prohibition that makes such a terrible rent in the nation's thought. It may be that some of its phases will be cleared up in the present year, but it is very doubtful if it becomes a settled question in 1926. We may be reasonably sure that the American people will take no backward steps and will never reverse the decision so radically taken in 1919. We have reason for believing that progress will be made in the right direction.

Whatever may be our social faults—and doubtless there are many—along some lines human society is vastly better than it was once, and not very long ago at that. It is more conspicuous for humanitarian work, such as relieving suffering and want. I wonder if we duly realize how reflective such action is. The following story, which is vouched for as true, is illustrative: Among the convicts sent on one occasion many years ago to the Siberian mines, when Russia was under the cruel reign of the czars, by some mistake two boys who were brothers of tender age were included. From the terminus of the railway was a long journey on foot. As the weather was extremely cold, the younger of the two became frost-bitten. The older brother began to rub him vigorously and found that the effort put forth in saving his brother saved himself from freezing. Now it may be that our social effort in helping others keeps ourselves alive.

Is there not very much in the sorrows and even in the sins of our fellow beings that ought to make us charitable? As we read—oh, so frequently! the sad story of wrong doing are we not called upon to determine the motive, and then pass judgment? Who of us has that acuteness of penetration to look into that awful background out of which come those forces that inspire horrible crimes? "Judgment belongeth unto God" because only infinite mind can see what is back of these terrible deeds. Here is a condition of things that statute law is powerless to remedy. Law can only inflict the penalty for disobedience: it cannot correct the cause. There is nothing but the religion of the Nazarene that can meet the emergency. The soul that is in close touch with God and follows Him, implicitly will escape these things. Nothing else will or can save him. Right here is the strongest argument why the power of the church should co-operate with the power of the state in the suppression of crime.

The above is not intended to teach that there is no place for statute law in dealing with wrong doing. It doesn't, simply because it cannot, go to the bottom of wrong doing. It is silly mawkishness to look on punishment of crime as cruelty. Were we to throw wide open all places of imprisonment, what would be the condition of human society in a very short time? The riots of the French revolution were a protest against constituted authority, and for a while everybody did as he pleased, and the outcome was the reign of terror. What happened in so-called cultured Boston a few years since, when, for only a few hours, police protection was withdrawn? Until human nature is radically changed for the better we must have the strong, stern arm of the law for general protection. At the same time we must remember that the offender is a man whom God loves.

About 60 years ago, a lady who was passing through a period of great perplexity and sorrow, asked her dear friend, Harriet Beecher Stowe, to write something in her album at the beginning of a new year, and the following is what she wrote: "When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time the tide will turn." Whether there is a very sound philosophy for such optimism or not, it certainly agrees with what we very frequently observe. "The darkest hour is just before the dawn" is a very old and very comforting expression with which all are familiar. It also very often proves true in human experience. It is very apt to be at just the moment when all human efforts are exhausted that the light seems to dawn and help arrives. Some may be disposed to call this mere coincidence, but more are inclined to call it providential care.

If the writer is not greatly mistaken it was on this very date that gold was discovered in California, in 1848 and from that hour, as there was evidence for believing that it existed in abundance, the financial security of the United States was assured. It is worthy of note that this gold was sought and sought very earnestly. The gold did not go after the man, but the man went after the gold. The possibility of getting it if he went after it was so strong that men were willing to travel the width of the continent suffering all sorts of hardships, and their faith and energy were rewarded as is usually the case. If men are willing to pay the price for treasures they can get the treasures. It is quite pertinent to ask if you are going to search for gold this year and, if so, what sort of gold. Is it going to be real gold or some cheap imitation? Is it going to be the gold of education, or character? But whatever you seek let it be golden.

A recent writer has given us a correct and vivid picture of old fashion furniture in an old fashion parlor. He has made its painful rigidity stand out clearly. This old parlor was rarely used except when the minister called or when there was a funeral. All houses in the past that is not so very remote had such a useless apartment as the parlor—useless because it was too nice to be used. The good housekeeper rarely let the sunshine in lest the expensive ingrain carpet should fade. It had to be dusted often and thoroughly scrubbed at least once a year. It had to be looked after just as much as the more usable rooms. Are there not lives very much like the old time parlor? They must eat, they must drink, they must be clothed, they must be sheltered, but do they pay for the keep? Are they of any visible use to human society? Do they return an adequate equivalent for the amount of work they seem to require? Do any of us carry about with us a lot of unusable trucks? If so let us cut it out.

Do we discriminate as we ought between liberty and license? We are very scrupulous in defending what we call our individual rights, but if we are pressed to define what we mean by "individual rights" we shall find perhaps in the majority of cases that it is understood to be the privilege of doing anything we want and this is a good definition of license. Now liberty is the opportunity to act within the realm of law while license is individual action running riot without regard for law. Now the two are as far apart as the poles of the earth. The one is action without trampling upon the rights of others; while the other seeks self interest without regard to the rights of others. Now as the state has a right to defend itself; it is called upon to make regulations that all must abide by. Liberty is not the power to do as one pleases.

Stories That Recall Others

Quite Right

The kindergarten teacher asked one of her pupils what the eyes were for, and the prompt answer was, "To see with."

Another was asked what the nose was for and the answer given was the right one.

Then she asked a little girl, "What are your ears for?"

The child answered: "To keep clean," and it is recorded that she was marked perfect.

Even a Joke Will Turn

A joke played with unusual seriousness often may be effective, but occasionally things creep into the scheme which were not in the original plan and make it all the more effective.

Christmas eve, a number of fellow-workers were imbued with the holiday spirit and stopped work early in the afternoon. Someone obtained a bottle of hooch and after making all arrangements with well known official placed the bottle in the coat of one of the party.

This official arrived soon after with a search warrant. He explained that he was a friend of the young men but was obliged to make the search as a matter of duty, and the search revealed the bottle in the coat hanging in the closet. The officer refused to accept the explanation that the owner knew nothing of the bottle and just as he started to leave with both the bottle and the man the son of another member of the party appeared.

"I know who put the bottle in your pocket," he said.

"Who was it?" asked the officer.

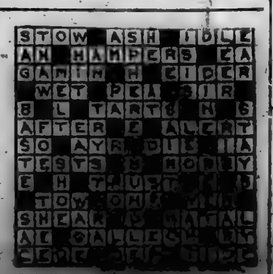
"Fred ——" was the answer.

"Well, how do you happen to know."

"My father told me."

"Well, that implicates your father. I guess I'll have to take him, too. Where is he?"

The carpenter was followed into the hallway where the officer pointed out the boy's father and asked: "Is that



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

WHY COAL INDUSTRY HAS STOPPED GROWING.

Coal—bituminous as well as anthracite—is not even holding its own in established industries, says William A. McGarry in the current issue of the Magazine of Wall Street. His claim is that the coal industry is getting a share of the annual new demand for energy, but its slight gains here are so much less than its losses in the older fields where coal was king that unless the present trend is halted the coal industry must look forward to a continued annual decrease in demand. Says Mr. McGarry:

If the years 1919 to 1922 were used for comparison it would appear that the bottom had dropped out of the coal market. But they cannot be used in fairness for the reason that the national demand for all energy fell off during the period of deflation, and when that was nearing its end, coal production was reduced by strikes.

A Serious Loss in 1923

On the business barometer, therefore, the next normal year was 1923. It was not only a year of good business comparable with that of 1918, but the coal industry was in a particularly advantageous position for a big showing by reason of the fact that stocks had been depleted by the strikes of 1922. If nothing had happened to coal, therefore, the output for 1923 should have exceeded by an easily calculated tonnage the figures for 1918. Examination of official government statistics, however, fails to reveal any such increase. On the contrary it shows a net loss of approximately twenty million tons.

Experts suggested that perhaps the time had come when the rate of industrial increase—and the consequent increase in the demand for energy—had begun to slow up to the point where in some years it would not be visible. A special study of energy demands was made by the geologic survey. In this, all the sources of power—coal, oil, natural gas and water power—were combined into a single index number, fixed at 100 to represent the total for 1918. And on that basis the heat units contributed by all these sources for 1923 was found to be 112.

In other words, there was a twelve point increase in the demand for energy in 1923 over the base year of 1918. Now if the total proportion of the energy contributed by coal in 1918 be fixed at 100, the study of the Geologic Survey shows that by 1923 coal furnished only 87 per cent of this figure—which is not to be confused with the whole index number for all fuels.

Attendant Rise in Other Fuels

On the same scale, the study shows that domestic oil rose from 100 to 205 between 1918 and 1923; natural gas from 100 to 140; imported oil from 100 to 218, and the total contribution of oil and gas to the national energy demand increased from the index of 100 to 191. In the same period water power increased from 100 to 136.

A study of all the factors involved in this development indicates that the question now before the coal industry and the investor concerns the extent to which the trend away from coal is likely to continue. Coal is still the dominating source of energy in the United States. But its domination in 1923 was just about half what it was in 1918. If this ratio of loss continues unabated, coal will be furnishing less than half the energy of the country in another five years, and the balance of power in a very real sense will lie with oil, natural gas and water power. In view of the inroads already made on the coal market the effect of this situation on the competitive position of coal is too obvious to need comment.

Inflation at Bituminous Mines

Nevertheless it may be well to point out that the industry already has been influenced by this minority competition. The row over the Jacksonville wage agreement is merely a reflection of this influence. High-cost union mines in Pennsylvania have found it more and more difficult to compete with the non-union mines of West Virginia. The industry is made more vulnerable to competition by the fact that capacity of the mines has been inflated far beyond what would have been necessary even if substitutes for coal had not cut in.

Full-time productive capacity of the industry—bituminous alone—increased by 82,000,000 tons, which compared quite well with an average annual growth of demand estimated by Professor E. E. Day of a Harvard business research committee. But in the succeeding five year period—from 1918 to 1923—while the trend away from coal was gathering impetus, the full time productive capacity increased by 254,000,000 tons, or three times normal annual estimate of increased demand, made by the Harvard committee.

All authorities are agreed that the high prices obtained during the war period and in 1920 was responsible for this increase. But now it is evident that the consumer paid these prices under protest and only as an emergency measure, for in every field where a substitute is obtainable—sometimes even at higher prices—he is turning away from coal.

Effect of the Supply Vagaries

In many industries the cost per ton is less of an item than the necessity of continuous supply. Or rather, the cost per ton during times of normal coal supply is not low enough to offset the premium price paid during strikes, and the extra charges of various kinds which always get into an emergency order. As a consequence, even where the interest charges on a change to oil burning equipment bring the unit cost to a higher figure than that of coal, the change may often be shown as an actual economy. The cost of storing coal against strike emergencies, for example, is prohibitive to some consumers and utterly beyond the range of the possible for others.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find that in 1923 oil and natural gas furnished 26 per cent of the total energy from mineral fuels, compared to 16 to 12 per cent in pre-war years, and that water power had increased from 4 to 5 per cent—a total of 31 per cent. Or to discover that even during the mild business depression of 1924, in which the index of energy stood but one point above that of 1918, the index of bituminous coal was seventeen points below and the combined index of oil and gas was eighty-nine points above. In that year—1924—the coal production was a hundred million tons below the 1918 figure. Oil and gas represented the energy equivalent of 230,000,000 tons of coal, nearly half the actual production of 480,000,000 tons of bituminous.

Substitutes

What has been said of the displacement of bituminous is even more true of anthracite. The operators have made this clear in their own statements. Even in 1922 they had become apprehensive of the invasion of substitutes, although at that time they minimized the importance of oil. In 1924 and 1925, however, the operators recognized this competition specifically in their advertisements, comparing costs of buckwheat and fuel oil for domestic heating. It is significant that the price of the 30-called domestic sizes—pea, chestnut, stove and egg—is far too high for comparison.

Government statistics on anthracite are admittedly inaccurate, but it is now generally known that production in recent years has been far above normal demand. The public has been stampeded into buying far ahead of needs by the repeated strikes and strike threats. Before every recent strike the amount of coal produced but unsold ran into large figures, often a third of the annual productive capacity. One maker of oil burning equipment operating on a national scale estimates the displacement due to that cause in the home alone at five million tons last year.

Says Mr. McGarry in conclusion: "How much further the process will go may not now be easy to forecast but it looks definitely as if the coal industry had stopped growing and that its major trend is downward."

THE BEAUTIES OF WINTER

Who can help bringing to mind the sublimities of Job and David—"The hoary frost of heaven, who hath engendered it? The waters are hid, as with a stone, and the face of the deep is frozen—By the breath of the mighty God, ice is produced, and the waters which were spread on all sides, are held in chains." The Psalmist says, "He giveth the snow, like wool. He scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes. Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." Well may poets look to the falling snow-flake for their images of purity and innocence, ere it receives the stain of earth. I know of no fitter emblem.

The winter's nights, and the skies, the skies! So resplendent in brightness are the hosts of heaven. Their numbers who can count, their twinkling beauty who can describe, as onward they roll in the deep blue of midnight? In their contemplation are inspired "thoughts that wander through eternity," with an elevation of feeling, as if we were separated from the toils and tumults of earth and exalted to a higher state of being than that in which we toiled through the day! These heavens tell us of a wisdom and power we cannot search or estimate. There we seem to stand more immediately in the veiled presence of the Infinite Majesty, who "laid the foundations of the earth, when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Boardman Answered

Mr. Editor: This writer is not desirous for the honor of crossing swords with Mr. Boardman in a religious and much less in a scientific tilt, but, as he calls in question our information, it is proper for us to satisfy your readers in regard to the authorities we rely upon for our information.

As our opponent describes himself as one who knows only what has been told him and is one of your readers, he, too, may perhaps learn something more.

The historian Gibbons has said wisely: "Every person has two educations, one he receives from others and one, more important, which he gives himself." Personally, we are graduates of this dual college; so we are not careful to hide the sources of our information. Professor Steele's Physics, is a well known text book, and we will use his definitions on matter.

1. "Whatever occupies space is called Matter. A separate portion is termed a body."

2. "The general properties of matter are 6, the fourth of which is inertia."

3. In a summary of these properties, Steele defines "Inertia is the natural laziness of matter which forbids its changing its state from motion to rest or vice verse." Professor Miller in his Romance of Astronomy writes "We know that if a body be once set in motion it will continue moving, if not brought to rest by some external force."

We certainly admit of being credulous of these authorities, because of ocular demonstrations and we have not found in any source, that matter in set forth as eternal as our opponent holds it.

La Place, a great authority on our universe, assumes a first beginning and "supposes that the first great act of creation, possibly the only one which strictly merits the name, was the calling into existence throughout the regions of space, a nebulous mass of matter such as forms comets."

Briefly, this, to quiet any doubt our opponent may entertain in regard to our information, Science and theology both teach us of infinite powers beyond our comprehension. And the latter teaches that the pre-existent has regard for the fall of a sparrow, and that the most trivial vibration of matter or spirit are not without his knowing and his energy. Also, that he reveals himself to the upright in heart, and concerns himself sensibly and consciously with such. For this reason we pray to him. For this reason, too, He who assumed our nature, in the days of His flesh, also, offered up prayers and supplication and tears to him who was able to save him from death, and was heard, in that he feared.

From Small Beginnings

Michael Davitt, a One-Armed Fighter

"Help! Help! Help!" The shriek of agony made itself heard above all the noise of the cotton factory. Whirling wheels and rattling levers would have drowned any ordinary cry. There was a rush to help the unfortunate boy who had gone too near one of the moving wheels. Someone pulled a lever and the wheels and leather bands ceased to move.

"Who is it?" said the ones who crowded in at the back of the pitying workers. "It's Mike Davitt! He caught his arm! He's killed!"

"No!" said those by the boy. "He's breathin'!"

There in that English cotton factory, at that moment, lay on the floor, covered with his blood, a poor, friendless, unknown Irish boy, Michael Davitt. He had had hard luck from his babyhood. He had been born in a crude little hut, had been initiated into a life of poverty. But before Michael Davitt died he was known in all Great Britain, in the United States, in South Africa; he had written books; he had edited papers; he had tried to set Ireland free. He died in 1906 at the age of 60, a well known man. When he recovered from the loss of his arm he found a job in a printer's and managed to set type. He read all he could. He taught himself in the evenings. He gave himself an education. Then he threw himself into the struggle to free Ireland, and was put in jail for some years. He came over to the United States and spoke with fiery oratory in favor of Ireland. He wrote for many papers, and spoke in various parts of the world. He was sincere and tremendously in earnest, and he became a man so loved by the Irish people that they offered him some of their highest offices.

Whatever else he was, Michael Davitt was a self-made man who conquered all obstacles, and by his iron will won success in the face of difficulties.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Adam Shortt, who has accepted the league of nations invitation to serve on the preparatory economic conference committee, is a Canadian economist of international reputation. Beginning in 1885 as an assistant professor of philosophy, he was for many years attached to the faculty of Queen's university. In 1908 he was appointed commissioner of the civil service of Canada. He also served on other public commissions and has been prominent in the arbitration of important industrial disputes. Professor Shortt was born in Kilworth, Ont., in 1859, and received his education at Queen's university. He is the author of several works on political economy and has been a frequent contributor to the press. Honorary degrees have been bestowed upon him by prominent universities in America and Europe.

CHICAGO FREIGHT YARDS MOVE MORE THAN 9,000 CARS DAILY

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—((AP))If all the freight cars loaded at Chicago, hub of many railroads, in one day of this record-breaking season were made up in a single train, hordes of fuming motorists would have to wait maddeningly at grade crossings until some 9,000 freight cars had rumbled past. The actual condition is hardly less spectacular and vastly more complex.

These 9,000 cars, sorted and shunted about the switching district and cultivated with hundreds from other destinations, are then sent to all points of the compass on a network of tracks. Some of them are loaded in the yards of the shipper; others at widely distributed freight stations, and these must be separated, according to destination, in the railroad yards.

At the Clearing railroad yards, thousands of these cars are pushed over track. Then by their own weight and momentum, they roll down this artificial hill and are switched to the particular track in this labyrinth of rails to join other cars bound for the same general direction or road.

The switching of outbound freight from industries or freight stations to terminals, and of inbound freight from trains and terminals, is as costly as moving cars over the road.

Despite the increased volume of freight handled, there are no car shortages such as were reported a few years ago.

Grateful and Ungrateful

That for which I'm grateful may Make you feel the other way.
—Mrs. Grouse.

Farmer Brown's Boy continued to stand motionless and silent among the young hemlock trees, watching Yowler the Bob Cat. Yowler had noticed the sudden way in which Reddy Fox had departed, and it was plain to see that Yowler was suspicious. His stub of a tail twitched and twitched as Yowler glared all about. He looked straight at Farmer Brown's Boy without seeing him. That is, if he saw him he didn't know that he did. Had Farmer Brown's Boy moved even the tiniest bit Yowler would have seen him at once. Once more Yowler crouched and resumed his watch of that place on the snow where he had been scratching. Then another Merry Little Breeze happened along and carried the scent of Farmer Brown's Boy straight to Yowler.

Reddy Fox had vanished suddenly, but it was nothing to the way in which Yowler vanished. He was there, and then he wasn't there. Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "It is of no use to stay here any longer," said he. "That bobtailed scamp knows I am here now and I won't have a chance to see him again to-day. Well, I'll have a look at that place where he was scratching. I would like to know what it was all about."

He walked over toward the place where Yowler had scratched the crust, and as he drew near he heard a faint tap, tap, tap from underneath. "Ha!" exclaimed he as he listened. "Unless I am mistaken, I know now why Yowler was so interested in that spot. He knew there was a good dinner down under there, if only he could get it. We'll see. Yes, sir, we'll see."

He noted just where Yowler had been scratching. There was now no sound of that tapping. Then at a little distance Farmer Brown's Boy began jumping up and down. That crust was strong enough to hold him when he was walking but it wasn't strong enough to keep from breaking when he jumped that way. All the time he took care not to get too close to that spot. He wanted to be sure not to break through and crush whoever might be beneath. Great cracks ran this way and that way along the crust as Farmer Brown's Boy jumped in a circle around that spot. Finally he stopped and began lifting off pieces of crust and throwing them aside. Suddenly a cloud of snow was thrown in his face and with swiftly beating wings Mrs. Grouse burst out from almost under his nose as he bent over to pick up a piece of crust. Although he was expecting something of the suddenness of it that he lost his balance and sat down so hard that he went through the crust into the soft snow beneath.

He was all smiles as he got to his feet. "Yowler the Bob Cat did you a good turn that time, Mrs. Grouse, when all the time he was thinking to do himself a good turn," said he aloud. "If it hadn't been for Yowler I wouldn't have found you. No, sir, I wouldn't have found you. There wouldn't have been a chance. So you have Yowler to thank that you are no longer a prisoner under the crust, likely to starve to death. Yes sir, you have Yowler to thank. Now I can go home in peace. I certainly should have worried if I hadn't found you, Mrs. Grouse."

He was so startled by the suddenness of it that he lost his balance

So Farmer Brown's Boy turned homeward, and for a long time Mrs. Grouse could hear his merry whistle. Very grateful was she, very grateful indeed, as she filled her empty stomach with buds, that being all there was to her just then.

But some one else listening to that merry whistle wasn't grateful at all. In fact, he was most ungrateful. It was Yowler the Bob Cat. He snarled to himself as he listened, and he felt that he hated Farmer Brown's Boy although he knew well enough that even had Farmer Brown's Boy not happened along, he, Yowler wouldn't have had Mrs. Grouse for his dinner, for he couldn't have got at her. But instead of being grateful that Farmer Brown's Boy had happened along to set Mrs. Grouse free, with the chance that sometime he might catch her in a fair hunt some day, Yowler was ungrateful. People are that way sometimes.

WOULD REMOVE PICTURES OF STATESMEN IN WOMEN'S ROOM

LONDON, Jan. 15 ((AP))—Pictures of eminent male statesmen hang on the panelled walls of the little room which is set aside for the use of the few women members of Parliament.

The women members have not made any objection to those male intruders, but women who are less busy with the affairs of state complain that stateswomen should not be forced to look at men politicians all day in the House and then compelled to look at more men when they withdraw to their private apartment to rest and look after their correspondence.

John H. Tuttle, former town treasurer of Medfield, Mass., was held for the grand jury in district court today on charges of misappropriation of town funds. Bonds were fixed at $1,000.

Your Health, Happiness and Ability are all governed by your eyesight efficiency.

Eye strains which are caused by faulty vision are a tremendous handicap to most people. By straining your eyes you strain your entire nervous system. This may cause headaches, nervousness, depression, as well as other physical discomforts.

The brain is also affected, and the power to concentrate and think quickly is lessened.

Come in and let us examine your eyes. You owe it to yourself to have this done NOW.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory for the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

STATE PUTS IN CASE AGAINST BERRY FOR SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Eugene J. Berry, 35, who, it is charged, chloroformed his two sons, 4 and 5 years old, while they were asleep in bed with him on Oct. 20, 1925 at their home at 324 Boswell avenue, was put on trial in the superior court here Friday afternoon on the charge of second degree murder for the crime. The trial is held before Judge Allyn L. Brown, without a jury, as Berry elected to be tried by the court when he was put to plea.

He is defended by Attorneys Edward G. McKay and William H. Shields, Jr., who it is understood, will make insanity the defense for Berry's act. Berry occupied a seat with his counsel during the trial and when court adjourned was taken back to jail.

The spectators' seats in the court room were all occupied during the afternoon and the standing space was also filled by an interested crowd which included many from the Boswell avenue neighborhood where the Berry family lived.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who is prosecuting the case for the state, has put in about all the evidence for the prosecution when court adjourned for the day at 4:45 to continue the trial next Tuesday morning.

Explains Plans and Pictures

In opening the case State Attorney Brown first called to the stand George E. Pitcher, the civil engineer, who explained a floor plan of the Berry tenement on the upper floor of 324 Boswell avenue, as well as two pictures of the outside of the house, two pictures of the bed in which the bodies of the children lay, a picture of a man's shirt which he found in a clothes basket and a picture of the kitchen table and chair.

Mrs. Rosanna Duhaime, who has lived for two years in the tenement adjoining the Berry tenement and on the same floor of the building testified that her family consists of her husband, herself and two children. The Berry family, she said consisted of the husband and wife and two children, Eugene and Joseph, aged 5 and 4.

About noon on Monday, Oct. 19, she heard Mr. Berry come home and heard loud talking in the Berry tenement and about 3 o'clock that afternoon she saw Mrs. Berry leave with her bag and her coat on her arm. The witness said she did not see or hear anything of Mr. Berry or the children the rest of the afternoon.

The next day about 3:30 in the afternoon she said Berry knocked on her door and asked her to call the police. She told him she couldn't do it right away and asked him if it would do later. A little after that she went and called the police and the next she saw of Berry was when the police were taking him away. He didn't tell her why he wanted the police called. Mrs. Duhaime said she didn't see the interior of the Berry department.

On cross examination Mrs. Duhaime said Berry looked pale and not a bit well when he came home at noon on October 19. The witness heard the loud talking in the Berry apartment at once, but it didn't continue very long. When Berry asked to have the police called he talked "pitiful," the witness said. When Berry was taken away by the police, she saw only his back so that she couldn't see how he looked then.

Berry and the children appeared to love each other, the witness said. He got along well with the children and they welcomed him when he came home.

Medical Examiner Testifies

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, the medical examiner, testified to being called to go to the Berry house by the chief of police on Oct. 20, there finding Sergeant Morgan and Officer Sharvan who showed him the bodies of the two Berry children in bed. The doctor said he thought the children had been dead since early morning, about 7 or 8 o'clock. The witness told of looking over the house and fastening it up, putting a chair under the knob of the door connecting with the Duhaime apartment.

Sergeant Morgan, the doctor said, handed over to him a bottle which he found and which had contained chloroform.

Dr. Gildersleeve said he then went to the hospital and saw Berry in bed in the ward. There the doctor said he asked Berry if he had chloroformed the children to which Berry admitted and said he did it about 5 o'clock in the morning. The medical examiner said he disagreed with that time. Berry was sane, the doctor said, but was reticent and slow about answering questions.

On cross examination the doctor said he made no autopsy as the symptoms shown in death by chloroforming would be the same as shown by death from several other causes. It was found out later that Berry had swallowed some turpentine, although he had denied taking anything but a little coffee. At another time in questioning Berry, the doctor said Berry stated "my wife is not in this at all." Berry was very loyal to his wife the witness said.

Berry Showed the Children

Sergeant Byron O. Morgan, 32 years on the Norwich police force, testified to going to the Berry apartment on orders from Chief Linton, accompanied by Officer Sharvan. The sergeant said Berry was sitting in a chair in the kitchen when they went in. His throat had been cut and he was pale, his throat being cut from ear to ear.

"Come get your clothes," the sergeant said to Berry.

"That's not all," Berry replied. "I will show you."

He led the officers into the back bed room, where Officer Sharvan pulled the bedclothes down and disclosed the bodies of two little boys lieing side by side. Sharvan put his hand on one of the boys. "They're cold," he said, according to the witness. "We'll rush him to the hospital."

Sergeant Morgan and Officer Sharvan took Berry in the patrol wagon to the hospital where he went on the operating table. When Berry was partly undressed, the witness said Berry suddenly started up and said: "My wife had nothing to do with this. I chloroformed those boys myself." A nurse was present at the time, the sergeant said.

The witness said he went back to the Berry house and found the chloroform bottle and a razor, both of which are exhibits in the case. The razor and bottle and a small hand mirror were found in the same room where the children were in bed dead. These articles were on the dresser with some blood stained cloths, Sergeant Morgan testified to Dr. Gildersleeve and Undertaker Cummings coming to the Berry tenement after which the officers took the several articles, locked up the tenement and left.

Officer William Sharvan, of the Norwich police force, who drove the police patrol to the Berry apartment stated that Mrs. Duhaime told them when they arrived the man next door wanted the police.

They knocked on the door of the Berry apartment and went in, when they heard a man's voice answer. Berry was sitting in a chair in the kitchen with his throat cut from ear to ear. After looking around the rooms, the witness said he told Berry they would take him to the hospital.

"Look, look," said Berry, pointing towards the back room.

"Look at what?"

"Look, look," Berry continued as he kept on pointing towards the back of the house. The officers and Berry went into the back room. There was nothing unusual to be seen, the witness said, but Berry again told them to look. Then the witness turned down the bed clothes and saw the bodies of the two boys who he thought were asleep until he touched them and found them cold.

The witness was asked if Berry said anything at the hospital. He replied that as he and Sergeant Morgan were coming away from the hospital a nurse came out after them and said the wanted to see them.

Admitted Killing Children

Officer Sharvan said he went back into the room where Dr. Varney was working on Berry.

"My wife and I are two," said Berry. "I killed them."

"Killed who," inquired the officer. "Do you know what you are saying?"

"Yes, I killed them."

Officer Sharvan said he asked Berry "Where is the wife?"

Berry's answer was: "You'll find her in some rooming house."

Dr. Fred L. Varney, who attended to Berry's wounds at the Backus hospital said the cut in Berry's throat merely broke the skin. Fourteen stitches were taken in the cut. The doctor said he didn't hear Berry say anything to the officers.

Miss L. Mary Gorton, a nurse at the Backus hospital, said she heard Berry tell Officer Sharvan in the operating room about Berry's wife and also heard Berry tell Dr. Gildersleeve in the ward that he did it to the children.

James P. Service, a Greeneville drug store proprietor testified that Berry bought the 3 ounce bottle of chloroform from him about 7 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 19. Berry appeared to be normal. He did not tell what he wanted the chloroform for. There was no conversation at the time of buying the chloroform.

The final witness called by State Attorney Brown was Charles F. Whitney, city editor of The Bulletin, who gave testimony corroborating what Dr. Gildersleeve said as to Barry admitting at the hospital that he had chloroformed the children. Mr. Whitney was at the hospital and heard the doctor's questions and Berry's answers.

State Attorney Brown told the judge that this closed the state's evidence except for the testimony of Coroner Desmond who had a written confession from Berry. The state attorney said he was willing to rest his case without the coroner's testimony and after some discussion with the attorneys for Berry it was agreed to suspend the trial at this point and to resume next Tuesday morning when the coroner may possibly be put on the stand.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE GIVEN TO BERKER

At the opening of the criminal superior court session here Friday morning, Judge Allyn L. Brown listened to the arguments in the embezzlement case of Gabriel C. Berker, the former brokerage office proprietor, whose counsel made motions to erase and set aside judgment when Berker was found guilty on Thursday.

Attorney Thomas M. Shields argued the motions on behalf of Berker, but Judge Brown overruled the motions and State Attorney Brown moved for sentence.

Before passing sentence Judge Brown asked Berker's counsel if any attempt had been made at restitution. The attorney replied that Berker had made promises but had nothing with which to make these good. The judge also asked what the accused man had been doing since that time and Attorney Shields said the accused could answer that. Berker explained that he had been endeavoring to bring about other consolidations, one of these deals entailing $35,000,000.

Berker's Sentence

In pronuncing sentence Judge Brown said in part:

"You have been found guilty by the jury and you are now here before me for sentence. While the embezzlement charge on which it was alleged you were an accessory is in the amount of about $40,000, I think in the evidence there is no question but the amount involved in this particular transaction was $14,000, which, of course, is a very different amount from the total amount which Finn admits took—something in the neighborhood of $150,000.

"I think there is a very different distinction between your case and his. He had been going on with these speculations on his own statement for a long periods of time before he ever had any dealings with you. On the other hand, of course, you as a man with the experience you had had obviously knew and must have known any substantial overdraft that he permitted you under the circumstances without approval of any superior was absolutely willing, and you joined with him in carrying those overdrafts up to $53,000. Of course, on the face of it that was unjustifiable. I think you realized that and must realize it now as he does now. You are both young men, but you are both versed in affairs of this kind. From my observation of Finn I don't think he is in any sense simple and I have no idea that you could persuade him to do anything that did not commend itself to his judgment under the circumstances.

"Whatever credit you are entitled to for that you certainly have, but the fact remains that you two joined together and defrauded a bank of at least $150,000, a bank which was capable of only twice that amount and from the beginning to the end you both understood what you were doing. Whatever sympathy the court may have for you or your family, of course, the court has no alternative but to impose what seems under the circumstances to the court a fair sentence.

"In view of the offense committed and being also inclined to take into consideration the penalty imposed in the case of Finn, the sentence of the court is that you be imprisoned in state's prison for not less than three and a half and not more than six years."

Attorney Shields inquired of Judge Brwon if he would fix the matter of a bond in case an appeal were taken to which the judge replied that he would give a hearing on that matter when the appeal is taken.

Attorneys for Berker were not able to state Friday whether an appeal would be taken.

Berker's wife and his sister, Mrs. Lillian C. Stone of Providence were at the court room Friday and Mrs. Berker was much affected at the part with her husband when he was removed to be taken to jail, where Sheriff Sidney A. Brown intends to keep him for a day or two, pending the possibility of an appeal being taken.

EPISCOPAL YOUNG PEOPLE TO MEET IN MIDDLETOWN

Episcopal parishes in Middletown and Portland are uniting in entertaining the second annual convention of the Young People's Fellowships of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut, which will open in Middletown today (Saturday) and continue its sessions throughout Sunday. Two hundred delegates from all parts of the state are expected to attend the gathering, which will be addressed by leaders in the Episcopal church. Leaders in this movement from other states will attend.

This convention will be the first since the adoption of a diocesan constuation in New Haven, Jan. 24, 1925. Stanley H. Purdy, of Middletown, was then elected first president of the diocesan organization and will preside at the convention sessions. The other officers are Miss Grace Eckle, of Stratford, Miss Elizabeth Warfel, Waterbury, and Donald Thomas, of Waterbury. Acting on the advisory board is Rev. Dr. John H. Rosebaugh, of Hartford, director of religious education in Connecticut.

The speakers will include Rev. Elmore McKee, of St. Paul's church, New Haven; Rev. John N. Lewis, of St. John's church, Waterbury, who is also chaplain of the fellowship summer school at Pomfret; Rev. Malcolm Taylor, of Boston, secretary of religious education for the Episcopal province of New England.

Sigma Sigma chapter of the Young People's fielowship, which is active in Middletown and Portland, was the first Episcopal Young People's organization in Connecticut, and was established with a constitution in 1922.

Music at Uncas-on-Thames

An excellent programme for entertainment of the patients and staff at Uncas-on-Thames was given Friday evening by D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra, Edgar Caron, leader. The orchestra selections were well chosen, given the best and rendered in popular music which gave pleasure to the audience at the sanatorium.

SPEAKER ON EGYPT AT PARISH HOUSE MEETING

The first meeting of the year for the parish house department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church, was held in the parlors of the parish house on Friday afternoon with Mrs. Frederic W. Cary presiding and leading the devotional exercises. Following the reading of the minutes by Mrs. John E. Blackmar and the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, appreciative thanks were extended to the retiring chairmen of various committees for their efficient work.

Announcement was made for a musical evening to be held on February 5th and the members of the church and congregation were reminded of the annual church supper and meeting on Thursday evening of next week.

It was voted to hold a Wayside fair next June.

Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, chairman for the parish house department, introduced Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, of New London, who read a most interesting paper on "The Personality of Egypt." As the guest for five months of relatives of Dr. LeLe, Rev. and Mrs. Harvey who, since 1855, had been with the United Presbyterian Mission at Cairo, Mrs. Lee had wonderful opportunities for becoming acquainted with all phases of life, mode of living and customs of Egypt. Through Lord Cromer came interesting experiences of official life, one of which was afternoon tea with the Empress Eugenie on a dahabiyeh on the Nile.

In vivid contrasts were descriptions of the English quarter and a visit to the palace and gardens of Fakhri Pasha, then minister of finance. A Coptic wedding at the harem of a family of wealth, gave an interesting glimpse of the decorations, the gorgeous brocades of the mother and bride and the long ceremony, at which the bridegroom is always late, when the bride and groom seated on either side of the altar, have golden crowns placed on their heads and with long chants and curling of incense, an embroidered scarf is wound around their heads, as typical of one root. Following the ceremony the women went back to the apartments of the bride where they were entertained by dancing girls. Glimpses of the life of the country people, or Fellaheen, in their mud huts showed a great contrast of life, although the women are more attractive than the women of the cities.

Reference was made to the lives of the ancient queens, when women had more opportunities for going about than now, for among the Mohammedans there is no companionship between even husbands and wives.

The paper, replete with the poesy, the atmosphere, feeling and thought and historic references was closed with translations of a funeral chant, a song of welcome, and the song of the fellaheen, "Work My Brother."

Miss Katherine B. Hempstead, accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Burgy, sang a group of four songs with pleasing interpretation and melodious voice.

Mrs. Payson announced that Dr. Frank S. Wilcox will speak at the February meeting on the work being done at the state hospital.

Lester Crowell, with violin, and Dwight Richardson at the piano will entertain with music.

Tea was served to the very large number attending by the social committee, Mrs. Hibbard R. Norman, chairman, Mrs. Harry Ruthworth, Mrs. Frank W. Crowell, Mrs. Beatrice Peterson, Mrs. Manley East Wood, Mrs. Frank W. Clapp and Mrs. Weston C. Pullen, with Mrs. William B. Birge and Miss Adelaide Butts at the tea table.

JOINT INSTALLATION FOR LEGION AND AUXILIARY

The recently elected officers of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, and the Ladies Auxiliary of the post were installed Friday evening at a joint installation held in the Legion rooms on Shetucket street. The installing officer was State Commander Harry Jackson, it was one of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held by the post and was the first joint installation in Legion history in this city.

The officers installed are as follows: Fletcher post, Commander, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar; vice commanders, Meredith Lee and Charles Olsson; adjutant, Joseph Bellefleur; treasurer, Johnathan L. Johnson.

Ladies Auxiliary, President, Mrs. William F. Bogue; first vice president, Mrs. John B. Oat; second vice president, Mrs. Leon P. Raymond; treasurer, Mrs. F. L. Kimball; secretary, Miss Evon M. Broadhurst; chaplain, Mrs. George Fraser; historian, Mrs. Alvin T. Fairbanks; sergeant at arms, Mrs. Minnie Amburn.

Following the installation there were remarks by State Commander Jackson, Past Commander Samuel Jennes, and Past Commander Webster D. Copp. D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra furnished a concert program at the close of the meeting and dancing was enjoyed by all, square dances featuring the program. At the close of the evening refreshments were served under the direction of a committee of which William M. Skelly was chairman.

GROTON D. A. R. CHAPTER ELECTS ITS DELEGATES

About 50 members attended the meeting of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Groton and Stonington at the home of Mrs. Charles F. Willard of Groton, Thursday, Miss Ellen A. Main was accepted as a member of the chapter by vote of the meeting.

Appropriations were voted as follows: Five dollars toward the Caroline Scott Harrison Memorial, which is to be a dormitory at Oxford college, O.; $3.50 towards Connecticut's quota for the library at Continental hall, Washington, D. C.

Delegates elected to attend the National D. A. R. congress in April are Mrs. Frederick P. Latimer, regent, and Miss M. Adelaide Handall, delegate. Ten alternates were elected as follows: Mrs. Sanford Meech, Mrs. George L. Bliderbeck, Miss Mabel Cassine Holman, Mrs. Charles Noyes, Miss Flora Comstock, Mrs. Roswell P. Sawyer, Mrs. John A. Irving, Miss Addie Thomas and Mrs. Delphine Fish.

Mrs. Billings Crandall and Mrs. Charles E. White were elected delegates to the state convention to be held in Stamford next March. Mrs. Andrew M. Maine and Mrs. Henry E. Marquardt were elected alternates.

Following the business meeting there was a social hour during which Miss Amy Ferguson and Mrs. Edward Calvert entertained with several songs.

CONFLICT OF DATES MAY LEAD TO A BREAK IN FRENCH AND ENGLISH TENNIS

PARIS, Jan. 15—(AP)—Helen Wills, trim, graceful and recovered from the effects of an "atrocious" Atlantic crossing, fitted through Paris today on her way to the Riviera, having landed from the liner De Grasse at Havre this morning.

America's woman tennis champion remained in cold and dreary Paris for only a few hours, but her short stay in the capital stirred French tennis circles to its depths, revealing the danger of a crisis in the tennis relations of France and England.

Carefree and happy over her departure for warmer climes, Miss Wills left for Cannes this evening blissfully unconscious that she is the innocent cause of an ultimatum sent to the British tennis authorities by the French Tennis federation today.

Immediately after her official reception was finished at the Saint Lazaire station, French tennis officials asked the American champion whether she would enter the French hard court championship tournament which will open on June 2. Miss Wills replied that she was very sorry but that she must compete in the Wightman cup competition in England. Then it dawned on the French officials that the dates for the Wightman cup play conflicted with their own hard court championships and they hurriedly called a meeting this evening to discuss the matter.

This meeting drafted a letter to the secretary of the British Tennis federation asking that the Wightman cup dates either be advanced or postponed. French officials expressed the opinion that the conflict was only the result of a misunderstanding, but added that the British federation was informed on November 23 of the dates selected for the hard court championship and only chose the Wightman dates on December 14.

"We sincerely hope that this is not a challenge thrown at French tennis," the letter said.

The younger element in the French federation wanted to threaten the British federation with the abstention of all French representatives from the British championships at Wimbledon, which this year observe their fiftieth anniversary. This element argues that with the probable absence of the Australians, Gerald Patterson, and Jean Anderson, the abstention of Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra, who have been the finalists in the British tournament for the last two years, and especially the failure of the mighty Suzanne Lenglen to appear, would put Wimbledon in a bad way.

Cooler heads prevailed, however, saying that it would be time enough to consider such a solution when there was no other way out.

The French federation today received a cablegram from Jones W. Merryman, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, promising that an American team would participate in the French hard courts tournament June 2 "unless unforeseen circumstances occur." The French are sending a team consisting of Borotra, Lacoste and Jacques Brugnon to compete in the American covered courts championships in New York February 24, to avoid the visit of the American team would return this compliment. A team match between France and the United States would be played a few days before the championships here open.

Miss Wills spent the entire afternoon in her hotel, not even visiting the shops. On account of the chill Paris weather she decided to postpone her shopping until she returns from the Riviera. She said that her only ambition just now was to get away where she could enjoy something akin to the California sunshine.

The American champion reiterated her decision not to play in any tournament for at least two weeks and it is practically certain that her first appearance will be in the Imperial club tournament at Nice February 8. Suzanne Lenglen's father is general secretary of this club.

COMMISSION APPROVES BOUT BETWEEN GEORGES AND M'TIGUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—A light-heavyweight elimination match, between Georges Carpentier and Mike McTigue, both former champions of the division, for the honor of meeting Paul Berlenbach in a title contest was proposed by Matchmaker Jess McMahon of Madison Square Garden today and approved by the state athletic commission.

McTigue already has accepted the proposal, McMahon said and negotiations will be opened with the French idol immediately. McMahon intimated that Berlenbach has agreed to meet the winner.

The commission also took steps to safeguard the coming middleweight title match between Harry Greb and Tiger Flowers when it announced that Greb has been instructed to sign no more contracts for fights between February 1 and February 26, the date of the match. It also suggested to Greb that he obtain his release from the present engagements in that period, if possible.

Correspondence between the commission and Gene Tunney relative to a match in New York, probably March 17, was turned over to McMahon and an opponent will be sought by the Garden matchmaker. Jack Sharkey of Boston has been mentioned as a probable opponent.

Pete Reilly, manager of Jack Delaney, was reinstated after an indefinite suspension lasting more than six months. Reilly drew the ban for his actions in connection with a match between Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, former bantamweight champion, and Low Perfetti, at the Queensboro A. C. last summer. Reilly formerly managed Martin.

Larry Marmuesi of Albany was reinstated after a suspension of 30 days for fouling.

Charley Murray, matchmaker of the Queensbury A. C., of Buffalo, was given permission to stage a show January 30 instead of January 15. Murray also announced that he had signed Jack Bernstein of Yonkers for a match with Luke Carr, February 1.

DANIELSON TO PLAY JEWETT CITY NEXT TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15—The first professional basketball game of the winter in this town will be staged at the town hall next Tuesday evening when the Danielson Town team meets Jewett City. Jewett City is flirting with the eastern Connecticut championship title, a little matter that Danielson will contend over, and appears to have the players with which to do it. Reeves, at left forward, was with the Connecticut Aggies last year, and rates as one of the best forwards Killingly High school has turned out in years. Blakeley, Danielson's other forward, is another former Killingly High school star, as is Stanley Keech, who will be at center for Danielson. In Godreau and Poirier, Danielson has a pair of fleet and powerful guards. In the substitute list Danielson has Mesnier, G. Reeves and Cleveland. The Jewett City team has an admittedly strong aggregation in Benjamin, Mondi Normandifi, Blake, Barry and Beniamin (sub).

Having established its class here Thursday night, by defeating the Service battery team, 27 to 24, in an exciting game, the Danielson team would appear to be sufficiently strong to challenge any claim that Jewett City may aspire to as eastern Connecticut champions. Basketball fans here expect a treat when the teams meet. A good game likely will mean a revival of interest in professional basketball in Danielson.

ALL-COLLEGIANS WIN FROM BANTAMS IN FAST GAME

In their first encounter of the year the All-Collegians were returned victors over the Baltic Bantams at Baltic by the score of 34 to 19, Friday evening.

At all stages of the game the All Collegians exhibited accurate, fast pass work and clean shooting.

At the start of the second half Leffingwell and Andrews were disqualified for unnecessary roughness.

The feature of the game was the all around playing of Brown, Yerrington and Leffingwell, the latter securing 11 points of the 34.

For the Bantams Stewart and Provencher proved the stars performers.

CARPENTIER SAYS ONE THING CURLEY ANOTHER IN INTERVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—A more accurate version of Georges Carpentier's interview with newspapermen, given after his arrival from France, came to light today—all because one of the interviewers understood French and gathered the import of remarks supposedly interpreted for newspapermen by Jack Curley, the boxer's American manager.

This is the translated version of the interview:

Curley to Carpentier: What do you want to give the boys, Georges?

Carpentier to Curley: "Tell these birds anything you want."

Curley to newspapermen: "Georges says he is very happy to be back in this country again and enjoys above all his association with the writers."

Carpentier to Curley: "Get rid of this gang as soon as possible. I've got a date at 7:30."

Curley to newspapermen: "He says he would like to fight Paul Berlenbach for the light heavyweight title and wishes you boys a Happy New Year."

PLAINFIELD WINS EASILY FROM SOUTH KINGSTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 15—Before one of the largest crowds of this season the Plainfield Town team defeated the fast South Kingston team, 31 to 5, this evening in the Plainfield Community house. The first half saw the local quintet doing all they could to pile up a score, after the first basket. They kept the crowd on its toes all during the half with wonderful long shots, overhand baskets and wonderful floor work. The half ended with the local five leading 7 to 5. The visitors shot at the basket a number of times, but could not seem to make the grade and in the second half the town team ran away with the visitors. Their passwork was superb. They broke up the visitors plays severely handicapping them. The locals worked together wonderfully, resulting in the number of baskets scored on the visitors. Morley and Martin were the big guns for the South Kingston team and the whole team was there for the locals. The score:

SMITH TURNS IN LOW CARD FOR FIRST 36 HOLES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 15—(AP)—MacDonald Smith of New York, who last year lost the Texas open golf championship to Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., by one putt, established today a claim on the 1926 title by scoring two sixty-nines in the first 36 holes of medal play on the Brackenridge Park municipal course. The eastern professional shot two under par on each round.

Smith's 138 was far better than that turned in by most of the world-renowned professionals competing but Bobby Cruickshank of Oklahoma City, turned in 141 early in the afternoon, which stood until Smith's three-some, nearly the last to finish, came in shortly before six o'clock.

George Bowden of Cincinnati, and Jack Burke, Houston, professional, tied for third place, with 142, both playing steady, par golf on each round.

The strain of winning the Los Angeles open and the intense interest of the huge gallery following him all day apparently had its effect on Harry Cooper, young Dallas flash, who tied for tenth place with three other pros, with 148.

Wesleyan Beats Williams

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 15—(AP)—Wesleyan defeated Williams here tonight 41 to 13 in the first of the little three basketball games this season. The Connecticut team led throughout. Woolston scored 21 of Wesleyan's points, ten on fouls. Jack and Umpleby each scored four field goals for Wesleyan.

College Swimming

At Boston: Syracuse 37, Boston University 20.

DELANEY BEATS FITZSIMMONS IN FIRST BOUT AS A HEAVYWEIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., outstanding challenger in the light-heavyweight division stepped into the heavyweight class tonight and outpointed Young Bob Fitzsimmons of Utley, N. J., son of the former heavyweigh champion in a 10 round match before 15,000 spectators at Madison Square Garden.

Delaney was forced to give away 17 1-4 pounds to the stalwart son of "Ruby Bob" but he won a clean cut judges' decision by his aggressiveness and hard punching. Fitzsimmons was floored by a crushing right in the fourth round and it looked for a brief period as if he would be unable to survive the ordeal, but by boxing defensively and driving into a clinch every time Delaney started his terrific right. The New Jersey man managed to remain verticle during the remaining six rounds of the fight, the knockdown was the first in Fitzsimmons' career.

In the latter rounds, Delaney began to tire under the wrestling of his heavy opponent and Fitzsimmons put in some damaging jabs which cut the inside of Delaney's mouth.

Fitzsimmons weighed 185 1-4, Delaney 168.

The best fight of the card pitted Joe Dundee of Baltimore against Jack McVey, negro welterweight of New York. The Baltimore lad won the decision in ten fast rounds by superior hitting. McVey was on the rim of a knockout on two different occasions.

In another ten rounder Frank Moody of Wales, outpointed Benny Ross, Buffalo middleweight. Moody gained the decision by his ability to get inside the Buffalo lad and score to the body.

In a preliminary match, Andy Devodi, New York lightweight, knocked out Mickey Travers of New Haven, Conn., in the third round of a six-round match. Travers received a bad lacing.

AGGIES TACKLE VETERAN TUFTS TEAM TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 15—Playing their second game of the season here tomorrow night, the Connecticut Aggies will face a strong opponent in the crack Tufts college quintet, one that has hung up four victories in six starts, in addition to this contest, which gives every indication of being one of the best small college basketball games of the season, the Aggie freshmen will open their season by playing the Tufts yearlings in a preliminary game.

In addition to defeating Wesleyan 38-29 at Middletown, Tufts defeated Northeastern 28-19, Massachusetts Tech 26-12, and the Elizabeth A. C., 27-24. No college five as yet has succeeded in lowering the Tufts colors, as the only defeats suffered were at the hands of the Newark A. C., and the Crescent A. C.

Veterans on the Tufts team are Captain Dowson at guard, and French at forward, who captained the 1924 football eleven. Other members of the team come from last year's frosh quintet.

Connecticut will start against Tufts the same lineup that overwhelm Norwich in the first game, last week. Because he was confined to the infirmary with a slight attack of the grippe, it was feared that Allard would not be able to play tomorrow, but he practised today, and will be at his guard position against Tufts.

The lineups:

Tufts, Abrams lf; French rf; Stanley c; Nussbaum lg; Dowson (Capt.) rg.

Connecticut, Schofield lf; Eddy rf; Makofski (Capt.) c; Allard lg; Bitgood rg.

COLLEGES MUST SOLVE THEIR ATHLETIC PROBLEMS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Problems in the present athletic situation must be met and solved by a college before it can lay claim to being an effective institution, Howard J. Savage, of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said today at the twelfth annual meting of the Association of American Colleges.

Mr. Savage suggested as an experiment that five or six colleges band together, discharge their professional coaches, restrict the activities of their physical directors in the training of college teams and curtail the assistance alumni might give; thereby placing the responsibility of coaching and the development of teams upon the undergraduates.

Paul D. Moody, president of Middlebury college, discussed the relation of scholarship to athletics. When scholarship, he said, is put rigorously in its place without a too pedantic conception of what scholarship is, athletics will be found to be an asset rather than a liability. Athletics properly handled, he said, improve not only the standing of the student body but, where due emphasis is placed upon scholarship, train men in wise and economical use of their time. On the other hand, he added, athletics, placed first, destroyed scholarship standards and becomes a serious detriment to the institution.

"Y" SENIORS CLASH WITH ACMY TEAM THIS EVENING

Some lively basketball is expected at the "Y" tonight when the Y. M. C. A. seniors encounter the strong Acmy team of New London. The Acmys have been organized for a number of seasons and have established an enviable reputation among the New London fans. They recently defeated the well known Sub Base quintette. The lineup for the visitors will include Kelly, whose unusual height and shooting ability have made him one of the stars of the quintette.

The Y'ers however, may be counted upon giving the visitors some strenuous opposition, for with Finlayson back in the game, and with Adnopoz, Brauman and Pineault who are also crack shots, the locals will be set when the fussle begins.

Prior to the main game, the "y" Emps will meet the Nordics of Taftville. The Emps will be represented by Falcone, Barber, Pascouche, Brown and Lambert.

SWISS SKI-JUMPER TO LEAP AT DARTMOUTH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 15—(AP)—A dark horse in the ski jumping contest at the Dartmouth winter carnival next month will be Rene Fonjallas of Lausanne, Switzerland, a special student at Harvard, who forwarded his entry to Dartmouth officials today.

Fonjallas has consistently jumped 100 feet in his own country from natural take offs, but in order to accustom himself to the tower jump at Dartmouth, he plans to go to Hanover next week to remain until the carnival.

Fonjallas, who weighs 220 pounds, was junior champion of French Switzerland for two years in the 30 meter dash, discus, shot put and javelin. He is now on leave of absence from the University of Lausanne and is studying for a career in literature. Although only 20 years old, he has written and published a book "Histoires Serieuses", and is the author of a comedy which has enjoyed considerable success at Lausanne.

NINETY-EIGHT CANDIDATES OUT FOR DARTMOUTH FOOTBALL

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 15—(AP)—Ninety-eight candidates for Dartmouth's 1926 football team today answered the first call of the year and heard Head Coach Jesse Hawley stress the necessity of early practice if the Green's standard is to be kept at the peak it reached last season.

Hawley arrived today from Chicago to attend the athletic council dinner to football letter men here tonight. Hemi Nate Parker, 1925 captain, will leave for Philadelphia tonight to represent Dartmouth at the annual dinner of the Veteran Athletes association. There Captain Parker will receive the Jolley Gold Cup, emblematic of football supremacy in 1925.

WALDEN'S HUSKIES WIN OPENING DOG RACE

POLAND SPRINGS, Me., Jan. 15—(AP)—Led by the veteran Chinook, the huskies of Arthur Walden of Wonalancet, N. H., won the opening race of the two days meet here today, covering the 18 1-2 miles in 1 hour, 48 minutes and 30 seconds elapsed time. Walden was the last to leave the starting line, the four other teams being set off at intervals of a few minutes. Miss Clara Enebuske of Cambridge, Mass., the only woman to enter, was last to finish, two of her dogs going lame after being lost on the course.

The order of finishing after Walden was: Walter Channing, Boston, 1 hour 57 minutes 10 seconds; Louis Malloy, Berlin, N. H., 2 hours 30 minutes 10 seconds; E. T. Clark, West Milan, 2 hours 53 minutes 50 seconds and Miss Enebuske, no time taken. All the dogs except the Walden team showed signs of fatigue.

When Clark left the starting line, his dogs bolted from the course and staged a lively fight. Miss Enebuske's team, getting away to a pretty start, ran into a tangle with the Clark team, but the young woman's team, though starting in rear, took the right of way within a few yards of the line.

MORE LIFE NEEDED IN SAND LOT BASEBALL

DETROIT, Jan. 15—(AP)—A federal pulmotor is needed to put new life in America's national pastime, delegates to the National Baseball Federation's convention decided today. The game, they agreed, is showing signs of dying on the sandlots in the smaller places, and is none too healthy in some of the juvenile classes of organization amateur baseball in the cities.

As a means of resuscitation the federation determined to ask the federal government to create a national recreation commission. This commission would have power to authorize state commissions which in turn would organize sub-commissions to reach into every county.

The object of the commission would be to encourage by every means possible "such admittedly beneficial games as baseball."

Suggestions of government aid ranged all the way from appointment of a "secretary of recreation" in the president's cabinet to the United States recreation commission which eventually was favored.

Clifford Martin of Cincinnati, Ohio, and G. H. Gourley of Cleveland, secretary of the National Baseball Federation were named to approach President Coolidge with a view to obtaining legislation creating the proposed commission.

TILDEN AS AN ACTOR IS NOT A CHAMPION

STAMFORD, Jan. 15—(AP)—William Tilden, 2nd, national men's singles tennis champion, made his debut on the boards of the legitimate stage here tonight at the Stamford theatre in a three-act comedy "The Kid Himself" which will play here again tomorrow and after a week's further rehearsal will open in New York. The consensus of opinion of he small audience of the curious who witnessed this tryout, indicated by their applause, or lack of it, was that Tilden is not quite in the condition to become a champion actor, and what spontaneous applause was aroused by the action of the play was given in response to the slangy phrases of William Quinn, who is co-starred with Tilden as "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Qunin.

JEWTRAW TO MEET THUNBERG IN SPECIAL RACES

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 15—(AP)—Charles Jewtraw, former international amateur outdoor skating champion, will meet Clas Thunberg, of Finland, Olympic champion, in a series of races at Lake Placid and Saranac Lake next month.

The distances will be 220 yards, 440 yards, 1-3 mile, 1-2 mile, 3-4 mile, one mile, 1 1-2 miles and three miles at both Lake Placid and Saranac Lake. Placid will be the scene of the first two days of racing on February 13 and 14 and Saranac Lake and will follow February 15 and 16.

Jewtraw is the only skater who defeated Thunberg during the Olympic events of 1924 in France, and it is his only return to competition and the only events in which he will skate anywhere, the association said.

An invitation tournament will be held on the same dates.

Sacred Heart Five Wins

The snappy Sacred Heart school five triumphed over the Plainfield school team Friday afternoon by a score of 13 to 11. Both teams played a fast game but the S. H. S. won through their wonderful passwork. The lineup for the winners was: Boucher lf, Rogers rg, Shadlack center, Martin and Durr, forwards. The Sacred Hearts would like to arrange a game with the Broadway school for any afternoon next week. Answer through the Bulletin.

Bates to Take Honors

WATERVILLE, Me., Jan. 15—(AP)—Bates won the honors of the sport meet at the carnival here today with 35 points. Main scored 21, Bowdoin 18, Colby 2. The events included ski and snow shoe races and ski jumping.

Yale Swimmers Win

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Yale swimmers decisively defeated the aquatic team of the college of the city of New York in a dual meet here tonight, 44 points to 17, winning five of the seven events in addition to a water polo match.

Amherst to Retain Hockey

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 15—(AP)—The Amherst student body voted today to retain hockey as a sport, thus rescinding its action taken last Tuesday.

GERMAN RUNNER IN AMERICA FOR INDOOR RACES

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Hubert Houben of Germany, conqueror of Loren Murchison and Charley Paddock, leading American sprinters, arrived today on the Deutschland to compete in a series of athletic meets in this country.

Houben is the second of four outstanding European athletes whose appearance here is expected to feature the indoor track season. Charles Hoff of Norway, pole vault record holder, arrived with his bride last week and is now in training. Paulen, Holland's fleet middle distance runner, and Goodwin, English walker, are due here later in the month.

The German sprinter, whose bow to an American audience has been scheduled for the Millrose A. A. games next month, is 26 years old. After racing here he expects to complete at Chicago and other cities of the west.

AMERICAN TEAM LEADS IN BERLIN BIKE RACE

BERLIN, Jan. 15—(AP)—The American team of McNamara-Horan, was leading at the end of the twenty-sixth hour of the six-day bicycle race, which started last night. They had covered 473 1-4 miles and gained 55 points. The team of Saldaw and Tonani, was second, with 44 points; Georgetti-Riegge, third with 43; and De Wolff-Stockelynch, fourth, with 40 points.

The Italian team of Georgetti-Girardengo was in the lead this afternoon, but McNamara and Horan made a great sprint tonight and forged ahead.

Girardengo and Knappe were in a serious spill tonight, both riders broke their collarbone. They were eliminated from the race, and their partners had to seek new team mates.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The 1926 Kentucky Derby will be run at Churchill Downs, on Saturday, May 15th.

Harvard was the first of the big colleges to make ice hockey a major sport.

"Stuffy" McInnis was a star player in the big leagues before he was 21 years old.

Sprague Cleghorn, known as the "Iron Man" of hockey and now star player of the Boston Bruins, is 37 years old.

Charlie Jewtraw, the great speed skater, could beat Charlie Paddock about 30 yards in a race over the 220-yard distance.

Hughey Jennings, the old pilot of the Detroit Tgers, is the only American league manager who ever won three successive pennants.

At least fourteen teams of speedy bike riders are expected to compete in Chicago's next six-day race, which will get underway February 13.

Tommy Murphy, who has been highly successful in his recent fights in the east, is a son of the noted bantamweight champion of tweny years ago.

Stanley Ketchel is generally admitted to have been the greatest middleweight champion of all time and one of the gamest fighters that ever stepped into the ring.

In practically all of the tract meets in England the runners are required to run with the right hand to the pole which is just the opposite from the American practice.

The late Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler, had a record of throwing the elder Zbyszko in less than a seconds, said to be the quickest time ever known in a contest between any two heavyweight grapplers of prominence.

William A. Meyer, catcher on the Louisville A. A. team for five years, and who is to manage the Colonels next season in succession to Joe McCarthy, who will manage the Chicago Cubs, began his professional baseball career in the Florida State league in 1909.

Ice skating has become a veritable craze in England this winter, the like of which has not been seen for many years. One of the largest rinks in existence, upon which the worlds skating championships of 1926 are to be decided, is shortly to be opened in London. This new rink will be 170 feet long and 100 feet wide. It will include luxurious lounges, a restaurant, an American bar, and dressing-rooms. Something like $125,000 is to be spent on the project. A number of prominent people are connected with the undertaking, and already many applicants for membership have been received.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ODD FELLOWS

Palmyra encampment, No. 4, installed its officers at its regular meeting Thursday night. The meeting was opened by Chief Patriarch Louis Waters and after the regular business the following officers were installed by District Deputy Grand Patriarch Chapman and suite, of Mystic: Chief Patriarch, John A. Hawker, high priest, Louis F. Waters; senior warden, Luther G. Andrews; recording scribe, John Amburn; financial scribe, James Smith; treasurer, Edward Kenney; junior warden, Clarence Amburn. The chief patriarch then appointed his officers: First Watch, Leslie W. Fowler, second watch, Herbert G. Spencer; third watch, Edward Smith; fourth watch, Harry H. Howard; inside sentinel, Hiram Amburn; outside sentinel Frank Q. Smith; guards of the tent F. Jones, W. Bliss. Remarks were made by Grand Patriarch Stephen A. Austin, District Deputy Grand Patriarch Chapman and others. Afterwards the meeting adjourned to the banquet hall where refreshments were served and a good time was enjoyed.

At the regular meeting of Shetucket Lodge, No. 27, held on Tuesday evening, the newly elected officers were installed in full form by District Deputy Grand Master Fred L. Avery and staff of Willimantic. They are: Noble Grand, Frank R. Jones; vice grand, Hazen Jones; recording secretary, S. Howard Bishop; financial secretary, Luther Andrews; treasurer, Edward F. Hinney; warden, George Faulkner; conductor, Fred Jones; chaplain, A. H. Perry; R. S. N. G., F. Q. Smith; L. S. N. G., Andrew Lerauda; R. S. V. G., John J. Parsons; L. S. V. G., Walter Kelly; R. S. S. D. Edward Smith; L. S. S., Chas. Browning; inside guard, Frank Chrest; outside guard, R. H. Donohue; organist, Milton Osborne.

A delightful social hour was spent after the meeting and refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

At the next meeting it is planned to hold an open night, to which members are privileged to bring their wives and friends. The committee has arranged an interesting program, and it is hoped by the lodge that there will be a large turnout. The committee has also arranged a surprise to be divulged at the meeting.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Mercier Council, No. 12, held its first meeting of the year with the new staff of officers. A very active year is anticipated with their guidance.

It was voted to send a letter to Cardinal Mercier of Belgium expressing the wishes of the council for his recovery. It is interesting to note that this council was named after Cardinal Mercier.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion met at Moose Home Thursday evening, with Senior Regent Mrs. Therese Watters, presiding, as well as the other new officers.

The district auditor's report for the past three years was read and accepted, which shows the chapter to be in very good financial standing and growing.

The following committees were appointed by the senior regent to serve during the year: Investigating committee, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck, Mrs. Mary LaValle, and Mrs. Mary Hunter; matron of relief, Mrs. Emma Beaver; entertainment, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck; refreshments, Mrs. Georgia Tomanio, chairman, Mrs. Martha Wunderlich and Miss Pauline Wunderlich.

Mrs. Ethel Hoelck, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported a whist and pinochle for Tuesday evening, January 19th, at Moose Home. After the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the committee.

B'NAI BRITH

Rose of New England Lodge No. 898 I. O. B. B. in conjunction with the Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 40, Independent Order of B'Nai Brith, held an installation banquet and dance at the Wauregan hotel Thursday evening. The banquet was to celebrate the fifth year of the B'nai Brith fraternal and civic activities in the city. The newly elected officers for 1926 are: Abner Schwartz, president; Josiah Greenstein, vice president; Max Hanover, recording and financial secretary; Dr. Paul A. Schwartz, treasurer; Alexander M. Pasnik, monitor; Abraham Curland and Elkin Smith, Matthew Thyne, trustees. The newly elected officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary for 1926 are: Mrs. Alexander Pasnik, president; Mrs. David Trachtenberg, vice president; Miss Ruth Clark, recording secretary; Miss Marcia Bruckner, financial secretary; Mrs. Simon Mandell, treasurer; Mrs. Elkin Smith, monitress; Mrs. Rudolph Henschel, guide; Mrs. Abraham Bruckner, sentinel; Mrs. Abraham Silverberg, guardian; Mrs. George Greenberger, Mrs. William Trachtenberg and Mrs. Max Schwartz, trustees. The honored guests of the evening were, Hon. Milo R. Waters and Mrs. Waters, Hon. Judge Joseph Shapiro of Bridgeport. There were also other guests from New London and Springfield B'nai Brith lodge.

The installing officer, Judge Joseph Shapiro is a very prominent man in the civic affairs of Bridgeport and active in the affairs of the state. He is also a member of the general committee of the B'nai Brith Grand Lodge where he has served for many years. Judge Shapiro conducted the installation ceremonies in a very able and dignified manner and his advice and admonition to the newly elected officers was given in a unique eloquent style, which brought repeated applause from the audience.

Joseph M. Lahn acted as the marshal, conducting the lodge officers to the seat of Judge Shapiro, to be installed. The number of members and guests at the tables were one hundred and twenty-eight and each person had a designated place at the table. The seating arrangements consisted of one head table, seating twenty-six officers and guests with the honorable guests in the center of the table, there were also individual tables seating six persons and great credit is due to the committee for the arrangement of the personnel so as to make a congenial and friendly atmosphere for all members and guests.

President Abner Schwartz opened the ceremonies by asking the guests to rise and sing America. He then introduced Josiah Greenstein, as master of ceremonies for the evening and Alex Pasnik as the song leader. The invocation was made by Rabbi J. N. Hosenberg, who is an honorable member of the B'nai Brith. As the banquet was drawing to conclusion, the toastmaster called upon his honor the mayor for a few words. Mayor Waters made a brief but comprehensive address, expressing his appreciation of the civic interest the local B'nai Brith lodge takes in the affairs of the city, complimenting the patriotic Americanism of the members. He also welcomed Judge Shapiro to the city in such a friendly manner, that in his address which followed the mayor's, he said, that although he, the judge, was a republican, he was glad that Norwich contributed to its people a democratic mayor—but a good one, which brought great applause. Mayor Waters received an ovation for his kind words. Judge Shapiro's address was very eloquent and instructive, showing devotion, loyalty and service to the city, state and nation. The judge was frequently interrupted with enthusiastic applause. President Abner Schwartz followed the judge with a very earnest address, in which he said in part: "Our B'nai Brith lodge is a patriotic American organization; interested in all civic work and undertakings in our beloved city of Norwich. We are always working with heart and soul, with other civic organizations for the betterment of our city, state and nation. My re-election to the office of president for 1926 is evidence of your confidence. I very sincerely thank you for your kind co-operation during the past year and I look forth for a better year, a year filled with service to our lodge and to our beloved city.

Mrs. Alexander Pasnik, president of the

THE SOCIAL CORNER

GREAT SECRETS ARE MORE EASILY KEPT THAN LITTLE ONES.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY PERFECT TRUST

My boat is on the open sea.
Which storms the tempest toss,
I know most of the ills to meet
Before I get across.

I do not know how long or short
The fitful voyage may be,
But, patient, I'll abide His time,
Who built the boat for me.

'Tis fully manned in every part,
Hope is the anchor fair;
The compass that it has is Faith,
And every oar is prayer.

Sometimes I see the breaker's might
The Ocean madly rears:
But all I do is simply this,
Bend closer to the oars.

At times the waves run Mountain high,
And threaten me to strand;
I fear not, for He holds them in
The hollow of His hand.

The fog at times obscures my course,
I see the way but dim;
But well I know I cannot drift,
Beyond the sight of Him.

I know not where the shoals may lie;
Nor where the whirlpools be,
It is enough dear Lord to feel
That they are known to Thee.

And thus content, I glide along,
If either slow or fast,
Well knowing He will bring
My safe to port at last.

These and Others

In the world where we live there are many dark days,
And trouble and grief you may see;
But to sink in despair you will find never pays,
Whatever your troubles may be.
There comes tribulations that all must endure
Things happen which make us feel blue;
Although its no cure, you may always be sure
That somebody's worse off than you.

You may want to go somewhere away from mankind,
Because of some grief of your own;
But wherever you go it is certain you'll find
Much comfort in being alone.
Whatever your trouble, don't let it appear
Nor your friends, and act cheerfully too;
You'll have joy, never fear, in bringing good cheer
To someone who is worse off than you.

Then hide your own sorrow and wear a brave face
Bring sympathy to the distressed
Offer your comfort, and with your best grace
Give greetings to all the distressed
Sad hearts will revive, with the greeting so heard
Your own heart will feel lighter, too;
If your feelings are stirred to say a kind word
To some one who is worse off than you.

Forward

Let me stand still upon the height of life;
Mine has been won, though much there is to win;
I am a little weary of the strife,
Let me stand still awhile, nor count it sin
To cool my brow, ease the travel-pain,
And then address me to the road again.
Long was the way and steep and hard the climb;
Here are my limbs, and fain I am to rest;
Behind me lie long sandy tracks of time,
Before me rises the steep mountain crest.
Let me stand still, the journey is half done,
And then how weary I will travel on.

There is no standing still! Even as I pause
The steep path shifts and I slip back a pace;
Movement was safety; by the journey lone
No help is given, no safe abiding-place,
No lifting in the pathway hard and slow;
I must go forward, or must backward go;
I will go up then, though the limbs may tire,
And though the path be doubtful and unsure
Better with the last effort to expire
Than lose the toil and struggle that have been,
And have the morning strength, the upward strain,
The distance conquered, in the end made vain.

Ah! blessed law! for rest is tempting sweet;
And we would all lie down if so we might;
And few would struggle on with bleeding feet,
And few would ever gain the higher height
Except for the stern law which bids us know
We must go forward, or must backward go.

Resignation

Ask no more that I may know
The way God has for me,
Only crave that He shall show
My duty momently.

At first I sought with restless mind
To know the entire way,
But now I am content to find
My path from day to day.

I see not life, for it seems
That much on me depends,
So fulfilling all my fondest dreams
I take what Heaven sends;

And always gladly, but resigned
I do it the Father's will,
Believing that though I am blind
He walks beside me still.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have attended the Social Corner meeting of Club No. 8 for the past two months, have enjoyed meeting the sisters, and have read the Social Corner letters in the Bulletin, and wish to become a member. I will take for my pen name JUDY ANN.

SOME GOOD HELPS

Dear Corner Sister: Happy New Year to all. I want to thank all sisters who sent me cards and also A Social Corner Member for the very pretty calendar. Just right for my desk.

I do miss the meetings very much. I used to look forward before coming to Hartford of seeing you all on the second Wednesday of the month.

There is a great deal going on here and January is a very busy month. The Ivanhoe Chapter, O. E. S. had a very pretty affair last Thursday night, the Robert O'Tyler W. R. C. last Saturday night and this week is the state grange for three days. The last week of the month will be the Grand Chapter O. E. S. and, dear sisters, lots in between. I will send just a few kitchen helps:

Tapioca soaked in water makes a harmless odorless and stainless glue for the children to play with.

After cleaning with gasoline put about one-third part of vinegar in the water with which you dampen cloth before ironing. This will remove the scent of the gasoline and will prevent circles from forming.

The inside of banana peeling rubbed on ink spots on the fingers will entirely remove the spots.

Small pieces of toilet soap can be put into boiling water and made into thick jelly which is excellent for whitening and softening the hands.

To dislodge a fishbone try sucking a lemon and swallowing the juice slowly. The citric acid in the lemon will dissolve the bone and it will slip harmlessly down the throat.

Exercising at night until physically tired is excellent to cure insomnia.

Jennie: Come again and stay longer next time.

Let us begin now to turn over a new leaf in our way of looking at life—that is if we have been in the habit of expecting unpleasant things. Say to ourselves, I believe that today is better than yesterday, and that tomorrow will be better than today, and stick to it.

Best wishes to all.

Yours for the Corner.

OLIVE.

WRITE FOR THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I hope you will not consider it too late for me to wish you all a happy New Year.

I also want to thank the editor for my yellow slip of some weeks ago and also to thank the sisters for Christmas cards, gifts and greetings and if I fail to mention any one I thank them and all who were so kind as to think of and remember me—White Clover, Theoda, Aunty No. 1, Saturday Eve, Balsam Fir, Olga, Becey, Amy, Delight, Whirlwind, Aunt Mehitabel, A Social Corner Member, Huldy and all others. I appreciate all the gifts which will be very helpful to me and the greetings all of which, helped to make Christmas brighter and more cheery. I have been having a "trying" time or should have written the Corner and my thank you letters before.

Maine Lover: My sympathy is extended to you, for I know how hard it is to learn to live without our dear ones. It is their gain, but our loss.

To all who are sick or in trouble of any kind I hope the clouds will lift after a time and the rays of sunshine in. I hope you will all soon be well or as comfortable as possible.

1926 is now of the past, and we will hope that although we may break resolutions and seemingly fall in our undertakings that we must just persevere and, as the poet says, "Keep a Going." Then maybe at the end of the year we may have made good by trying to help others even if it be only an encouraging word.

We have had some very cold weather, but no snow to make sleighing.

I give a hand of welcome to the new sisters but let the older ones still feel they have to help to keep the Corner alive and active and to do this no one can let their pins rust because they are not used. So all old and young writers write for our Corner.

Yours.

DIANA.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner Pals: I think it about time to wake up and say something.

True Blue: How is Snowball, can he shake the bell yet?

Scottie: Your card received and I thank you. It made quite a trip before it reached its destination.

Mayfayre: Could not make it Wednesday as I did not like to take Lizzie out it was so bad. The bad weather gets on her nerves.

Wetona: Had a very nice chat with you and enjoyed it very much.

Scarlet Feather and Peaceful: Glad you have joined the family circle.

Crimson Rambler: No I am not frozen but weather has been bad. Did you arrive home safely?

C. E. M. and daughter: Enjoyed your call greatly. Hope it will continue.

U. C. E.: Sorry you are one of the shutins. Hope you will soon be out.

Linnette: How are you these days? Take a run out sometime in your car.

Eca: Why so silent? Get busy. To A Social Corner Member who sent me a calendar, and all the sisters who sent me cards I thank you one and all.

That you will all have a prosperous new year is the wish of

CLUB NO. 2'S GOOD TIME

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: The weather man had a bad grouch on Wednesday Jan. 6 in the morning but it cleared up a little in the afternoon. And why shouldn't it when we had such a cheery company at Buckingham Memorial. Missed several who could not be with us on account of illness. Sorry to say our hostess Windham Bluebell was among the number, but Prudence, Elva, Calamity Jane, Trula and others served our usual nice dinner. Huckleberry pie won the approval of many.

Snowflake, Prudence, Calamity Jane and others gave humorous readings. Silver Leaf's niece favored us with music and songs which were very much appreciated. Plan on to have as our guests members of club No. 1.

Elva is to be our hostess at our next meeting.

Wish to thank a Social Corner Member for pretty calendar received. Best wishes for Social Corner Clubs.

WINDY BELLE.

SAY SOMETHING GOOD, OR NOTHING

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought I must write a few lines this bright, winter's morning. It has been rather cold for a day or two, but how good it seemed to see the sun shining once more after a very long spell! And now the days are getting a little longer for which I am very glad. I do like the good song afternoons when you feel so you can sit down a while and enjoy them. It won't be so very long before we will be out sitting in the shade. I am just looking ahead to that and thinking how nice it will seem. It seems so when it gets cold I am "frise" up. I suppose some people like the cold weather but I prefer warm every time. I think we have more cold weather than warm take it right along. I think of the ones down to Florida and how nice it must be to go out and sit on the veranda in summer clothes while we up here can hardly keep warm by the stove.

Well I had the pleasure of attending Club No. 4's meeting in Putnam and had a very nice time. And such a dinner! It was fit for a king with all the good things in abundance. I met quite a few sisters that I had never been before but it did not take long to get acquainted as they were all so very sociable. Primrose is surely a good hand to carry things along.

I want to thank the one that sent me the pretty calendar. I have it hanging up where I can see it every day. Let us start the new year by trying to help every one we meet with a kind word or smile. Remember we all have faults and if we can't say anything good about them don't say anything.

With kind regards.

RURAL AUNTY.

ICE CREAM CAKE.

Dear Cornerites: The holiday season has passed, and winter has now set in in earnest for the deepest snow of the season fell over our village last Saturday, affording us sliding down hill, and sleighing to our hearts' content. As the sun came forth on Sunday morning, it lightened the heart of every one.

So now as the days begin to lengthen and the old saying the cold begins to strengthen, we will have to devote our time to the radios, and old fashioned dances which are coming to be so popular once more. Just a word about the Square dance. Many of the younger element of today think there is nothing to it except to get through it any old way. But that is not so. There are many important steps. Just learn, and try and keep on time with both music and prompter and then you will find it is just as important and graceful a dance as any of the round ones are. Us older ones know.

Awfully glad to have the pleasure of finding a nice letter from Ma of Greene Gables in last Saturday's Corner page, also many of the other older writers.

Rural Aunty: I see you are fine and enjoying good health.

Balsam Fir: Where, oh, where are you? Hope you are not snow bound. We are not, but are enjoying good old New England weather.

Well, sister, here I have something for you; now all try it:

Ice Cream Cake: 1 cup of sugar, creamed with 1-2 cup of butter; then add 1-2 cup of milk, add a little salt, 1 1-2 cups of flour, (scant), 1 heaping teaspoon of baking powder. Take the whites of 3 eggs and beat stiff and fold in last.

Frosting: Take the 3 yolks, beat stiff, and add enough sugar to make a nice yellow frosting for the cake. It never fails.

Try the above and report.

Best wishes to all.

HOW TO CUT UP A FOWL

Dear Social Corner Friends: It's a long long trail back to where I last appeared in the Corner, but I sincerely hope I'm not forgotten. I often call to mind the faces of the members I have met and will meet again. These little touches of elbows as we pass along are most interesting and valuable to us all. We need them.

I am going to describe the easiest way to cut up a fowl. It is original and I think it understood you'll say it is the "bees knees."

After the head and legs are amputated, take off wings and things, then loosen the crop and lay the fowl head toward you with breast bone pointing, to the right.

Cut the shoulder joint by placing the knife across the joint at the softest spot which is found if your knife is most nearly parallel with the back bone. When this is cut through insert the point of knife under the ribs here and rip toward the vent right through the cartilage joinings of the ribs which are so easily cut here. Cut around the vent (this can be done at the beginning if you choose) and reverse or turn the fowl proceeding on the other side, beginning at shoulder joint as before. Since learning to bake a chicken after it is cut up and made tender, I never will bake one whole. Just put dressing in the pan and pour over it the liquid the fowl is cooked down in, laying the pieces on top and bake in oven as long as wished. It is so much easier all around and is sure to be moist and tender and tasty.

Hoping I may receive a pin will close.

FOR WINTER DISCUSSION.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Now that the holidays are well past and we are back to grim reality once more, I wonder how many of the sisters thoughts were of the idea that I believe Stanza introduced some time ago, namely, a discussion of some subject that would be instructive as well as entertaining. I think it would be nice, especially for members who are not situated so that they may attend the club meetings. It seems to me it would be especially entertaining during the winter when the roads are impassible in isolated sections.

I received a sweet calendar from some one who signed simply, A Social Corner Member. I dont know who to thank, but whoever it was I want to say how delighted I was to receive it.

Crimson Rambler: How did you enjoy Susie's description of her New Year's celebration? Ha. Ha.

Aries: Your poetry was of the best. How are things going with you?

To any of the sisters who have a sweet tooth I recommend the following. It is delicious:

Marshmallow Fudge: Three cups of brown sugar, 1 cup white sugar, 1 cup of milk or a little more, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoons Marshmallow cream, 1 tablespoon vanilla. Cook sugar, milk, butter and cocoa all together until it threads or is soft. Then add vanilla and Marshmallow cream after you take it off of stove. Beat with a spoon until very creamy, add walnut meats if desired. Pour into shallow pan and when cool mark off into squares.

This will make about two pounds.

Best of wishes to all.

SASSY.

PLIES ON PLANTS

Dear Social Corner Members: Here comes one more, who hasn't been doing her duty by the Corner. I write numerous letters but it just happens that I don't get one off to the Corner often as I feel I have so little of interest to bring to you. I wish to thank those who sent me cards during the holiday season. Some of them were surprises.

If any one having house plants troubled with the small black flies, (almost the same as fruit flies) will try Black Flag powder I think they will be pleased with results. I have beautiful begonias and they were almost alive with the flies and the leaves were covered with eggs. I gave them a good dusting with the powder, using a small bellows, so as to reach the under side of leaves, and immediately I noticed a big death rate in flies. In a few days, I used it again, and today I found no eggs on the leaves, but shall be on the watch and at the first sign of flies, again use it. As it is harmless to all but insect life, I don't feel afraid of it.

It is hard to believe so many days of our New Year are already passed. May the New Year bring many blessings and pleasures to us all, but if sorrow does come to us, may we be brave to bear it.

SOME OF THE OLD FRUIT TREES.

Dear Sisters: It is so long since I wrote to the Corner that I hardly know as I ought to be called a sister, and I feel quite guilty. My intentions are good, and week after week I have said to myself that I would surely write this week and then something would hinder and so I didn't do it. And you know the old saying, "By the road of by and by we arrive at the house of Never." When I read the letter by Mrs. A. B. C., in last Saturday's paper, about writing to old friends whom we hadn't heard from in years and renewing old acquaintances I said that was no doubt a good idea in most cases. But I could only hope that many of the sisters wouldn't have the same experience I did some years ago, when remembering two friends of my younger days, of whom I was very fond, but had somehow lost touch with as people will in the chances and changes of this life.

One don't happen to write and the other don't and so we drift apart.

Well I thought probably they might be as glad to hear from me as I should be from them so with some trouble I obtained their addresses from an aunt of theirs living in a distant town and wrote to each (they were sisters), recalling memories of the past and saying how pleased I should be to hear from them again. But did I get any answers? I did not, and as time went on I concluded that they had, as it were, risen up above their old associates and didn't care to hear from them any more. But of course those cases don't happen so very often, and one should say they are not worth minding. Still they make one feel sore at heart for a while.

To change the subject, as I read the letter from Twice Twenty some weeks ago, where a few mentioned sampling the many apples brought to the old cider mill I thought of the autumn days when I used to roam around our big orchard in dear old Westminster and sample the best looking apples till I wonder I didn't have colic, or indigestion, or something bad. And apples were so sound and smooth then, without any spraying, either. Sheppard Sweetings, which we never hear of now, and probably they have passed out of existence; big, solid Golden sweetings that were so fine to bake; pearmains, there were two kinds of them; the blue pearmain, with a thin purplish skin and tender, juicy plup, not quite sour enough to cook, but fine for eating, and the Cogswell pearmain, which we didn't have, dark, red sheep noses or gillyflowers; greenings, as big as a quart bowl, and a good many used to get badly smashed and bruised from dropping on stones under the trees. But we had so many it didn't matter. There were also the golden fall pippins, with tiny flecks of red around the stem end, the most beautiful fall apple that ever grew, both in looks and flavor, and at the lower end of the "barn lot" was a tree of so-called Spitzenbergs, though I don't know whether that was the right name for them. They made splendid apple sauce, but that was all they were good for. Also there were Baldwins and russets, early transparent, which were so delicate that very hot weather almost spoiled them on the tree and early bough sweetings. I wonder if many of the old trees are left yet? Some of them must be, and some which are old trees then are probably dead or cut down.

Thinking over the apples led me to think of some old pear trees that used to have pears like the greening apples about the size of a quart bowl, sweet and firm, which when baked for a long time in a slow oven came out rich and brown with a juice like honey around them. It seems to me they were called the bell-pears, but am not sure. One of our neighbors used to have a very early red striped apple (as I remember it) called the Mexico, but I have never seen or heard of any since.

Now I think I have discoursed on fruit long enough and will wish you all a prosperous New Year and thank the one who remembered me with calendars for mine of 1926, and sign myself, as ever,

IOLA.

ENJOYING THE RADIO.

To the Social Corner: The exquisite calendar received from "A Social Corner Member," again calls for deepest thanks. It reminds me that I have been a Corner member for five busy years. This year we joined the great radio fellowship at New Year's time, and find it full of thrills and real enjoyment. For a long time we felt we could scarcely afford a good radio, and we didn't want anything short of the best. But I began to figure just where I could cut down expenses so that we might get one, so feel that it comes as a substitute for things we can well dispense with. Husband installed it himself with meagre instructions. It was no easy task, but he accomplished it to our great satisfaction. We have a good loud speaker and the music and voices are rich and resonant like an old violin. The Morning Watch comes at breakfast time and music at noon and night with our meals does help our enjoyment of them and we have radio recipes nearly every day that are "different," and "Oh," so good. As we have to take turns tending babies at home it seems good to hear good music, lectures and sermons together.

With very best wishes to the Cornerites,

THIRTY-TWO.

DOESN'T WANT TO BE SLACKER

To the Editor and Social Corner Members: I wish to thank a Social Corner Member who sent me the pretty calendar. I was pleased to get it and will put it where I can see it every day. I have not attended the meetings very regularly in the past year but I hope I will not be called a slacker. I hope to be able to attend oftener this year. I hope the Corner will have a very prosperous year and that the sick and shut-ins will be made well and happy.

EARLY BLUE BELLS.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Have you room for another Cornerite? I attended as a guest a recent Social Corner gathering in Willimantic and enjoyed it very much.

If I may, I will consider myself a new member and my name is

BROOKIE.

KEEP NO SECRETS FROM MOTHER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Except at birthdays and Christ, those two seasons of innocent harmless secrecy, no child should have secrets from his or her mother. A girl above all should be taught to confide in mother in every thing. Often the boy prefers to ask his father. I have seen mothers who were quite surprised at the secrets their girls kept from them, but you would not be surprised. These mothers were the kind who when their children were young always said, "Run away and play, mother is busy."

No mother should ever be too busy to listen to her children when they run in from the garden with their new found treasures, or come to her for comfort when they are hurt. Inasmuch as we have listened to our children when they are very small so they will come to us when they are older. Why should they not continue as they have begun? If mother has sympathized in their childish worries how can they think she will no longer be interested in the problems as they grow older. Do not say to a child who tells a great secret: That is nothing; why do you worry me about it? Try to see from the child point of view. It may be a very great thing to a child. A child's joys and sorrows are often much bigger than we think. We may not always be able to supply a remedy but there is no reason why we should not always be sympathetic. A child should never be encouraged to sit in a corner and brood over its miseries alone. A burden which mother shares is much easier to bear. It is during the first years of a child's life that a mother should try to be a real chum with her children, intimate with them but often one is too late! The child who has not been accustomed to go to her mother every time she wanted to do so will seek a confidant elsewhere.

We all know the danger to which this may lead. Gain access to your children's heart when they are young and impressionable. It is never too early to begin. A girl should feel that something is missing if she has not confided in mother. I always like to hear a girl say: my mother, I am so glad you are at home! I have ever so much to tell you! It is easy to guess what kind of a mother she is. We can all be mothers of this sort and we will really be so if we are ever ready to turn a sympathetic ear to your children's tales whether they be of joy or sorrow. Try to be the kind of woman of whom your children will say now and all their lives: "We have no secrets from mother."

I want to thank A Social Corner member for the pretty calendar. Thanks also, to Savilla and Rosy Posy for Christmas gifts.

STARTING NEW YEAR RIGHT

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to be sure to have one letter on the Social Corner page this year so I thought I would begin early.

Twice Twenty: Your letter was very good, have read it several times. It was certainly worth waiting for. I shall be looking for another one now.

Azile: When did you say you were going to write that letter? Hope you happen along with some more of cakes the next time we have a blowout.

Lilac Lady: Glad to see your letter last Saturday. Wonder where the rest of the East Killingly-ites are?

Mary Gusta: Did I guess right? I don't see you go past my house these days. Perhaps you do go this way and I don't recognize the new car.

Votami: S. B. wants to know where all of those papers came from that he found in his chair. He says no more bishop buns allowed. Perhaps he doesn't like the taste of them.

Nelly Grey: No letter. No picnic.

Barbara: Haven't seen or heard from you since the trip to R. I. Hope you are well.

I am going to send you my drop cake recipe.

Snicker Noodles: One egg, 1 cup sugar, 1 small 1-3 cup butter, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 tea spoon soda, 1 tea spoon cream tartar, 2 cups flour. Drop on buttered tins and sift over them cinnamon and granulated sugar, just before putting into the oven. Sometimes I use cocoanut in place of the sugar or stick a raisin in the top of each one. They are good either way.

I thank all that sent me Christmas or New Year cards. I wish you all, editor included, a very happy New Year. It seems a little late but the year is new yet.

PEGGY ALDER.

ABOUT SHIRTS AND POULTRY

Dear Social Corner: The way Fred's Wife wrote concerning the remedying the shirt fronts is fine and it is certainly a satisfaction to be able to cope with such a situation. I have fixed our men's shirts that way and also have cut off the bottom of the back flap to make yokes on the top of the fronts when the shirt would not allow previous alterations. Of course I had to piece the back down. Do you ever turn the cuffs? That is a very good idea. Turn the cuffs and work your buttonholes over. When the shirt gets where it is impossible to use cut an apron from it by using the back and one of the sides. With the other side cut strings and sometimes you can manage to cut out a cap, to match the apron.

I don't know as I have ever written to the Corner concerning the help I discovered. I had several hens die and what ailed them I couldn't for the life of me determine. At last I stumbled on the following and it has proved such a help I want to pass it on.

I take equal parts powdered charcoal and sulphur stir it in their dry mash. I have had three of my hens act drooping and I gave them this tonic and they straightened right up so I decided to feed it to them right along. I mix the charcoal and the poultry panacea once a day in the laying mash and give them the sulphur twice a week in the mash and it seems to keep them healthy and wise. I don't know about wealthy on account of their not laying us the golden ege, but since we have given them hot oats every day they do lay more eggs than they did last year at this time.

ETHELYN

A NEW PLANT FOR WINDOW

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Here is a beautiful plant for your window. Please don't laugh and call me crazy until you try it.

Select a large carrot and cut it through the center. From the end the top is on scoop out half the carrot. About three quarters of an inch down, make a round hole on two or three sides. Fill this cavity you have made with sand and fill with water. Put strings through holes and hang in your window. The carrot will grow and leaves will grow upward and cover the carrot and string. Keep well watered and you will have bright green foliage in your window for weeks. In preparing the carrot try not to cut too close to the skin.

Did you ever use a large safety pin for a loop for your kitchen holder. Or anything I ever tried that certainly is the best.

A safety pin has all the good points and few if any, of the objectionable ones of the other hangers. Safety pins are easily removed from soiled holders when they are ready for the wash and pinned upon those hung up to take its place.

If you wash fruit stains in camphor before washing they will disappear. If you put melted paraffin on ink stains when you wash the garment, they will also disappear, after standing a short time.

KITTY LOU.

NEW KIND OF BROWN BREAD

Dear Editor and Sisters of Social Corner: If not too late, best wishes for a happy and prosperous year to all. I am sending a recipe for brown bread made with dried doughnuts or dried cake. I make it often as mine gets dry before we get them all eaten up. A large family doesn't have this trouble. I have given some to a neighbor and I guess the telling of it has given the wrong impression of it so am sending it in to the Corner to be printed, hoping the error will be corrected as we are fussy and like good things.

Brown Bread made with dried doughnuts or cake: Crumb 2 cups doughnuts or cake, or cookies, add 1 1-2 cups of milk, sweet or sour (it doesn't make any difference). With 1 heaping teaspoon of soda dissolved in it, 2-3 cup molasses, little salt, 1 cup raisins, stir well together, add Indian meal and little flour, mix well, steam 2 to 3 hours, or bake in oven about 45 minutes.

John's Delight Pudding: Mix two cups of bread crumbs with scant half a cup of molasses, 1 egg, 1 cup sweet milk with half a teaspoon soda dissolved in it, 1 cup of seeded raisins with mace, cloves and cinnamon. Boil for two hours. Serve with foamy sauce.

Sauce for Pudding: Beat one egg, pour over 1 cup hot milk, stir carefully and flavor ready to serve. Very nice.

Did any of the Social Corner Sisters try this, I wonder. Some time if you have some peanut butter kisses make a layer cake. When cool melt some peanut butter kisses in bowl over tea kettle, add little hot water and spread on layers. Or about ten cents worth of the old fashion chocolate creams can be melted and used as frosting. Can add a few marshmallows if liked.

Have knit over a yarn petticoat and am knitting a jacket short one. All for this time.

HEADED FOR ANNIVERSARY

Dear Editor and Social Sisters: Another year gone and we are on our way to our anniversary which will soon be here. I hope the weather man will be good to us and send fine weather.

I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for the lovely little calendar sent me. The scene is fine. It seems as though I was walking across that bridge that leads to the house.

Scottie: Where art thou? Why not at the chicken pie supper? You surely knew about it. Well, you certainly did miss something. Mr. and I have been under the weather with our colds. That was one reason I was not out at the last meeting. Am better now.

Calla Lily and Wetona: You will see me soon.

Country Sister: I thank you for the remembrance at New Year's. I still live at 618, why not try to find the number, eh?

True Blue: Had any pancakes lately?

I hope all who have been sick are improving.

Black Eyed Susie: So nice of you to write me. I enjoyed the letter, also was pleased you thought of me.

Crimson Rambler and G. E. M.: I have gone out of the pork business.

Lorna: When you come do not be in such a hurry. Mr. cannot get to the door so quickly you know. It takes him a long time.

Hoping to see you all at the next meeting. Yours for the Corner.

NECIA (Club No. 2)

QUAHAUG CHOWDER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: Thought it about time to add my bit to help fill the Corner page. I attended the meeting in Putnam and had a lovely time.

Pices: I want to thank you for the nice card. If I had your address, you would have heard from me before. I thought sure I would see you and Fan Tan at the meeting. We had to be real good for we had our minister with us. Some time when I am in Putnam I am liable to blow in on you, so watch out.

Pep, Tilda and I went together and was pleased to see so many from our place. Am sorry we did not see Buffalo, at the meeting. Long live the corner.

Lydia: You said you had been watching the Corner page for my Quahaug Chowder recipe. Well here goes:

Quahaug Chowder: Three slices fat pork, two onions, put through food chopper, fry them together and then put in kettle with two quarts of water, and cook about 20 minutes. Then add one quart of sliced potatoes and one can tomato soup cook about one hour. In the mean time I have taken two quarts of quahaugs and cut them out raw and chopped them. These I now add and let boil about one minute.

WHEN THEY MARRY

Dear Corner Sisters: It is an impossibility for a mother to forget the boy she reared, and she also finds it hard to get along without him. "Of course," as a party said "it is nature's law for the man's people, mother especially, to give him up completely, and he to turn to his wife and her family, or folks, that there might be peace in the family." It is certainly wrong. There is one thing most young wives don't seem to understand. No decent mother-in-law wants to be first. Let the wives be first, but a man is "no man that can't find time to give his mother."

Marriage is a God and man made law to keep order among mankind. It is certain that a mother who loves her boy will try to love his wife. The commandment says: "Honor thy father and mother," not forget them as soon as they marry. There is no distinction made between men and women in any commandment. They read alike for all. It is as much the son's duty to honor his mother, as it is the daughter's" and I agree with the above.

GREETINGS FROM E. M. R. C. F.

Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Am sending my best wishes to all of you, and may this new year bring you health, joy and prosperity.

Polly Peppermint: Hope you are well. Did you receive my last letter?

Pine Air: I do hope you didn't freeze up in the three snappy cold days we had recently. In the Journal of Christmas issue did you mean two windows side by side or two windows one over the other? Am wondering which.

Balsam Fir: Thanks for your lovely letter, will answer soon. You were very lucky in gifts.

Aries: Hope you received my card all right. Thanks for paper and remember me to "Adam's Eve." Hope she is! your self are enjoying yourselves together. Am inclosing "A New Year Vow." Though the poem was so pretty that I would pass it along to the sisters. Here's wishing for a larger number of sisters and may our Corner page always be full every week of the year.

E. M. R. C. P. (May 7.)

KEEPING THE CORNER PAGE FULL.

Dear Sisters: A happy New Year to all of the Social Corner members and the editor, if I am not too late.

Joan asks what will become of the Corner if we all stop writing, so I thought I would write so as to help keep the Corner page full.

First I want to thank A Corner Member for the pretty calendar, also those who sent me cards.

Meant to have been with you all at the last meeting, but was indisposed, so had to stay at home. Hope to be with you next time.

Chauffeur: I suppose you and Mr. C. went to Providence. Would like to have been with you, as I am very fond of the old times and if I had been a little bit older, I might have joined the fiddlers' contest. As it is I am not quite 80 yet.

Tell Mr. C. to take you and his Stradivarius and come down some evening. We will revive some of the old fashion melodies. I live on Fox hill across from Necia. I think my father used to know Mr. C.

Stranger in The City: What has become of you? Have you gone to Florida, too?

Linnette: Tried your recipe for Pork cake and it was fine.

Catnip: Sorry to hear of your mishap. Hope you are O. K. now.

Balsam Fir: Please excuse me for not answering your card. Will try and write to you some time.

Bee: Was it you that thought you knew me, or have I made a mistake? If not, where are you now? Please give me a clue.

Yours for the success of the Corner.

COUNTRY SISTER. (June 2.)

CHATTY LETTER FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Social Corner Pals, One and All: How does this beautiful snow appeal to you all? I wish to thank A Social Corner Member for pretty little calendar, a little beauty.

Lorna: How do you like your new home? I like over there very much as I used to live near there. Am glad to hear you are able to sit up for the pneumonia is a very serious illness. Don't be in a hurry going outdoors for a relapse is bad.

Necia: Received your card; thanks, will see that you are not forgotten when I have some.

Mayfayre: Received your card and was sorry the old weather man failed us in such a manner last time; did want to go so bad.

Black Eyed Susie: I will try and send that article to you shortly, as I want you to have it.

Maple Leaf: Was glad to see you and daughter Monday. Hope to see you again soon.

Savilla: Why so silent. Aren't you over that cold yet?

Interested Reader: Your lovely letter at hand. Will answer soon and I can tip you off on the address you ask for, so stop your guessing.

E. L. M.: If I just knew your proper address I am thinking you might receive a card or letter some time. Do you have an R. F. D.? If so, number, please?

I was glad to see so many letters the past week in the Corner page. I wish to thank all those who sent me cards at Christmas and New Years—60 in all. It would take too much space to name each one individually.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

LONG USED DISHPAN AND DIPPER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank A Social Corner Member for my little calendar, and if I am not too late I wish to thank the editor for the pin. I am not much good at writing, but talk too much, so they all say. I would like to tell the sisters how long I have had my dish pan. This spring it will be 25 years. We bought it from a man by the name of Fred Avery of Colchester and I have had a water dipper for 25 years that we bought of Disco.

We sure did have a good time at club No. 2's meeting only I did not stay long enough, but I think I can next time.

I hope we have a nice day for the next meeting. Yours as ever

WILD FLOWER

WANTS TO HEAR FROM OLD WRITERS

Dear Cornerites: It seemed rather nice to have a cackle from "Biddy" again. How I would like to see a letter from Lucy Acorn, Mayfare, Annette, Betsy Trotover, Olga, Lonesome Pine, Bachelor Maid and others of the old writers who have not written for ages.

Social Corner Members: Thanks for the very pretty calendar. I will indeed be a fortunate person if the wish on it should come to pass. I am rather late in wishing you all a happy New Year. Better late than never.

GRACE

BUSY AS USUAL.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written, so I have decided to begin the New Year right. To all of the sisters who have inquired about me I will say I am right here in the same old place by the sea, plodding away as usual, doing housework, sewing and fancy work and reading The Bulletin when its doesn't disappear before I get the chance.

O. D.: Received your card. Thanks for the same. Yes, I know Tatting quite well.

Crimson Rambler: Glad you liked the ramblers. I suppose you have received my letter by this time.

Balsam Fir: Will write you a letter soon. I think I owe you two.

Olga: You certainly have me guessing. Who is who?

Delish Deal: Thank you for the cards. Will write you a letter soon.

E. L. M.: How is this? I am not a slacker now. A pleasant afternoon. Call again.

With best wishes to all I remain,

INTERESTER READER.

CORNER LETTERS PLEASE

Dear Editor and Sisters: Many thanks to a Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar which was sent to me.

I am sort of a shut in this winter but I am well and healthy and am well supplied with everything that goes to make life happy.

I love to read the letters on the Corner page, they are so interesting and entertaining.

I was pleased to see our page rambling over week before last. Although I have not written for some time I am going to try and do better in the future.

A happy New Year to all is the sincere wish of GRANGER.

Ledyard.

"KEEP 'EM COMING."

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Brothers: Here I am again, but shall not stay long this time. I wish to thank the editor for yellow slip which was sent as a prize. I have had it cashed and shall use it as a Christmas fund for 1926. I also thank the Social Corner Member for dark calendar sent me. I am well pleased with both.

Kitty Lou: Your letter of last Saturday on dreams was the best ever, every word the truth. I am glad our Corner was full of nice letters. Keep 'em coming. We do enjoy them so much.

Wishing the Corner all success in the new year, yours as ever,

LULAH WYLIE.

GREETINGS FROM HULDY

Dear Corner Friends: First I want to thank "A Social Corner Member" for the very pretty calendar, also the sisters who sent cards. I appreciate the remembrance. I can sympathize with the shut-ins for I am one this winter and know just how lonely one can be. But we can be truly thankful that we have home and friends, when there are so many poor and unfortunate people in the world.

I extend my sympathy to all who are in sorrow, and trust that the New Year may bring peace and happiness to all.

HULDY.

STRUGGLE FOR WOMEN IS FAME OF ALETTA JACOBS

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15—(AP)—Equality of the sexes in all social aspects has been the ideal of Aletta H. Jacobs and largely through her influence Dutchwomen have acquired much greater political and economic independence in the last 30 years. Dr. Jacobs' name stands first among the prominent women of present-day Holland.

When she was born nearly 73 years ago women did not count for much except as the wives of their husbands or the daughters of their fathers. Dutch universities did not dream of admitting women to their medical schools when Aletta made up her mind to become a doctor. At 25 however, she had gained the degree of doctor of medicine from Groningen University and began practice as the first woman physician in The Netherlands.

Since then, few international women's congresses have been held without her conspicuous presence. Collaborating closely with Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and in personal contact with all the feminist movement leaders in Europe, Dr. Jacobs blazed the trail for women's rights and franchise in the face of a full blast of sex prejudice.

The noted suffrage pleader retains full possession of her old fire and spirit, despite her advanced age. The reactionary spirit which she says came all over the world in the matter of women's social position after the war, did not come unexpected to her.

"The men felt, themselves heroes and superior beings, compared with women," she told the Associated Press correspondent, "despite the fact that the war was their work and would never have happened had we lived under a world government of men and women for some decades."

The World war came as a tremendous disillusionment to Dr. Jacobs, whose firm conviction it had been that modern society had become too advanced to tolerate such a catastrophe. She threw herself heart and soul into pacifist propaganda.

Following a world tour in 1919 with Mrs. Catt, when they were acclaimed champions of their sex in many world countries, Dr. Jacobs and Jane Addams in 1915 undertook the task to urge the anti-war resolutions of The Hague International Women's Congress upon the governments of the belligerent states, the pope, and the president of the United States.

Travelling in war time and for such a purpose, was fraught with the greatest perils and all manner of difficulties, but Aletta Jacobs never faltered. She was received on September 14, 1915, by President Wilson at the White House. Her visit was a disappointment.

In 1893, Dr. Jacobs married Carl

WESTERLY

CASE OF THOMAS GOTIS CONTINUED ONE WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 15—Regular session of third district court convened in the district court room at 9:30 o'clock on Friday morning with Judge Michael J. Tirano on the bench. Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following: Civil docket, new writ entered, Thomas H. Barber vs. Edward C. Thornley. Answered specially by Attorney John J. Dunn and continued two weeks to Jan. 29th.

Old cases—Pittsburgh Plate Glass company vs. John Hazlin et al., of Mystic. Judgment of $30 and costs was entered by default.

Harry J. Haggett, of Hoxginton, R. I., vs. George Tanner and Sarah J. Tanner. An action in book account, continued one week.

M. W. Amberg company, of New York vs. Helen E. Collins. Action in book account with plea in abatement filed. Continued two weeks.

Criminal docket. The case of Thomas Gotis, proprietor of the Oaks Inn, Shore road, raided by Westerly Chief Police Thomas E. Brown and five Westerly policemen on Wednesday afternoon, when 50 bottles of alleged hard liquor were seized and brought to the Westerly police station, was called. Attorney for the defendant said that at 5:30 Thursday evening he had discovered Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., that his client was in Hartford, and would be unable to appear in court. Unable to reach the town solicitor, Chief Brown had been reached and arrangements were made for a week's continuance. The case was marked passed for one week.

Charles M. Gerver, 30, of Providence, R. I., was called to answer to a complaint of operating an automobile at an unreasonable and improper rate of speed on Dec. 14th., in the town of Hopkinton. Solicitor Ferguson said that the defendant's auto was operated at a 35 miles per hour rate. On the defendant's plea of guilty, he was fined $10 and costs which he paid and was discharged.

George Carney, was called to answer to two complaints. The first was the alleged leaving of the scene of an automobile accident, and the second a reckless driving charge, preferred by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. A plea of "nolo" was entered to the reckless driving complaint and the leaving of the scene of an accident was discontinued. Solicitor Ferguson told the court that the accident had occurred on Granite street and that the damage done to the other automobile with which the defendant was in collision was settled and that he had held an operator's license for four years. A fine of $20 and costs was imposed by Judge Turano on the reckless driving complaint.

Howard W. Swan, deputy bird commissioner of Rhode Island, vs. Alexander Habereck, of Richmond, taken into custody by the complainant on Dec. 26th., for a violation of Rhode Island state game laws, and which was tried before Judge Turano a week ago, when he withheld his decision for a week, was then taken up. Judge Turano said that he had consulted Massachusetts authorities and in a case where larceny charged in Boston, which occurred in Chelsea, the supreme court had decided that the proper location was not held as a fatal variance. All agreed that the offense, trapping with wire snare, with which Habereck was charged, had taken place in the same location although otherwise named. He adjudged the respondent guilty and imposed the minimum sentence of $50 fine and costs. Attorney Roche, appearing for the game warden said that Washington County Game Commissioner John Barlow, of Kingston, with whom he had talked, did not want a heavy fine imposed but did want a stop put to the illegal use of snares.

Through his attorney, Habereck gave notice of an appeal to Washington county superior court, which meets on the third Monday in February. Surety in the sum of $500, with his son, Frank, as bondsman, was continued for his appearance at that time. Court adjourned after a little more than a half hour's session.

In the session of grand committee of the Rhode Island legislature, lasting until 1 p. m. on Thursday night, at the state house, in Providence, five high sheriffs of various counties of the state were chosen, four superior court clerks, thirteen district court judges and twelve district court clerks, the session lasting nearly seven hours.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, of Westerly, was elected high sheriff of Washington county, the election being boycotted by the democratic minority on the grounds that republicans had violated party pledges in not having the sheriffs elected by a popular vote. Sheriff Mitchell has ably exercised the duties of his office from the time when he defeated Dept. Deputy Sheriff Phillips in the legislative election of last January and continued to fill out the unexpired term of the late Sheriff John R. Wilcox, of Kingston. There are many residents of Washington county outspoken in their statements that he would have won in a popular county election, as is the present system in Connecticut.

Judge Oliver H. Williams, of Westerly was elected judge of the third district court, it being the western half of Washington county. Judge Michael J. Turano, the present incumbent, was not a candidate for re-election and Judge Williams, who occupied the bench for 16 years, previous to Judge Turano's election two years ago, was opposed by Patrick J. Barry, of West Warwick, 83 to 33.

Herbert P. Clark was elected clerk of the third district court, when the present Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., who had declared his intention of going into grand committee to seek re-election, withdrew from the fight. Mr. Clark acted for 16 years as town sergeant of Westerly, when he declined three years ago, and was opposed in grand committee, by John T. Bannon, of Warwick, defeating him 86 to 30.

Sheriff Mitchell had been elected for a term of three years to succeed himself and Judge Williams and Clerk Clark of the third district court, have been elected for a three year term from the first of next February.

Before Judge William A. Wilcox, in a special session of Stonington town court this (Saturday) morning, at 9 o'clock, in Borough hall, Stonington, will be heard a civil suit, when a jury will be used, the first time in a Stonington town court in over two years. The case is a civil one brought by Frank T. Saunders, to collect wages alleged due from Harry R. Mitchell, of Wequetequock.

Jurymen under summons are Albert A. Haley, Old Mystic; Cornelius B. Crandall, Stonington Borough; William E. Martin, Pawcatuck; Frank W. Lanphere, Mystic; Lloyd H. Chesbrough, Wequetequock, and Mason Manning, of Mystic. The court session will be held in the large hall and the small town court room will be used for the jurymen to retire for their deliberations.

Biggest Plants Found in Sea

The largest plant and animal life is found in the sea. No land animals can compare with the whales, but it comes as a surprise to learn that the largest plant in the world is a gigantic seaweed. It beats even the giant trees of California for height and girth, frequently growing to a height of more than 400 feet.

Prepare now for Winter driving

Your car may be one of the 54 makes or 365 models that requires a Winter grade of oil. Consult the Mobiloil Chart.

Watch the Thermometer:
When it stays between 32° F. and zero consult the Chart to see if your car needs Mobiloil Arctic. Below zero ALL cars (except Fords) require Mobiloil Arctic.
FORDS: Use Mobiloil "E" at all temperatures.
30
20
10
0

OF course, you'll want to drive your car all Winter. And—with the assurance that you'll be free of these Winter troubles, caused by incorrect lubrication:

Failure of oil circulation
Scored pistons
Loss of power
Engine knocks
Hard starting
Undue strain on battery
Burned out bearings.

You can avoid these unpleasant companions of Winter driving by consulting the Mobiloil Chart of Recommendations for the correct Winter grade of Mobiloil for your car.

Mobiloil "E" (for Fords) and Mobiloil Arctic for all other cars requiring a Winter oil meet every cold weather engine requirement and—

Both flow freely at ZERO

See the dealer who displays this sign. He will drain and refill your crankcase with the correct Winter grade of Mobiloil.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The various banking institutions of Norwich held their annual meetings with elections of officers for the year 1876, a half-century ago this week. The same week Joseph J. Walt was elected eminent commander of Columbian Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, while St. James lodge, No. 28, F. and A. M., elected, as its master, S. A. Gilbert. The wood work on the roof of the then new Catholic church on Broadway (St. Patrick's), was completed just fifty years ago. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of January, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Jan. 10, 1876—We learn with regret, which will be shared by his numerous friends, that George A. Reed, late of the Chelsea Paper company, intends leaving the city for New York. Mr. Reed has been an energetic and public spirited business man here and in respect of this, as well as socially, he will be greatly missed.

The Sharps Rifle company which asked for inducements to come to this city, will be permanently located in Bridgeport February 1st. Their new armory contains 90,000 superficial feet of working room, and is located on a splendid site of 22 acres.

The wood work on the roof of the new Catholic church on Broadway was finished Saturday night.

Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1876—Twelve hacks went over to the 4.46 o'clock train yesterday afternoon and brought back one passenger, which is an average of four cents a hack. And yet people wonder why hackmen are profane.

The country roads hereabouts are in a wretched condition, and our agricultural friends come into town daily at the expense of their wagon fixings.

The friends of W. H. Hovey will learn with regret of the death of his mother, which took place in New York, Sunday. Mr. Hovey left for home yesterday.

Wednesday, Jan. 12, 1876—At the annual bank meeting held yesterday officers were elected as follows:

Thames National.

President, F. Nichols; cashier, E. N. Gibbs; teller, C. W. Gale; directors, F. Nichols, E. Learned, A. A. Young, J. L. Hubbard, I. M. Buckingham, L. F. S. Foster, J. Lloyd Greene, L. Blackstone, T. P. Norton, William G. Johnson, H. H. Osgood, John Mitchell, Chas. Bard.

Second National.

President, A. F. Smith; cashier, C. P. Cogswell; assistant cashier, E. A. Tracy; directors, A. F. Smith, E. R. Thompson, W. C. Jillson, Moses Pierce, W. R. Austin, J. M. Peckham, W. R. Burnham.

Merchants National.

President, John Brewster; cashier, J. M. Meech; assistant cashier, Charles Webb; directors, John Brewster, Dwight W. Cook, William Fitch, Wm. C. Osgood, S. F. Chapman, Gardner Thurston.

Shetucket National.

President, Charles Osgood; cashier, C. J. Fillmore; directors, Charles Osgood, D. P. Coon, C. H. Osgood, Charles Webb, F. L. Osgood.

Uncas National.

President, Jesse S. Ely; cashier, Edward H. Learned; directors, James A. Hovey, Jesse S. Ely, John T. Wait, James S. Carew, Joseph Hutchins, Lyman Gould, A. B. Burleson, R. N. Parish, F. P. Partridge.

Thursday, Jan. 13, 1876—The engine of the first Worcester train broke down yesterday morning, near Dayville, and was delayed in arriving here till afternoon.

Colchester wants a new depot on Chamberlain flats on the Air Line road, and the necessary land, $400 in money, and a quantity of lumber have been offered by residents.

The community will be pained to learn that their old friend Smith has just failed in Massachusetts. It was a bad failure and doubts are thrown on Smith's integrity. The family are quite crushed by it.

The electric clocks in the city hall, which it is thought were disabled by a heavy thunder storm last summer, have been taken down and if they cannot be replaced satisfactorily will be replaced by others.

Friday, Jan. 14, 1876—At a stated communication of St. James lodge, No. 28, F. and A. M., held last evening, P. M. St. M. Andrews installed the following officers for the ensuing year:

S. A. Gilbert, W. M.; B. W. Hyde, S. W.; George W. Miller, J. W.; A. J. Hammett, treasurer; George F. Bard, secretary; James Kirker, S. D.; G. L. Hewitt, J. D.; George Crosbie, S. S.; J. W. Comstock, J. S.; H. Clay Albro, tyler; T. L. Gardner, organist; I. W. Carpenter, P. St. M. Andrews, Joseph J. Walt, finance committee.

Brig. General W. R. Smith and Adjutant-General Trowbridge will meet the officers of the Third Regiment at the City Guard Armory in this city today for the purpose of instruction and to discuss the proposed encampment at Philadelphia next summer.

Residents on Broadway have decided, if the city authorities permit, to remove the fire-alarm telegraph poles from that avenue to Franklin street at their own expense. But then, where will the Franklin street people move them to?

Saturday, Jan. 15, 1876—At the annual assembly of Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., holden last evening, the following Sir Knights were elected as officers for the ensuing year: Joseph J. Walt, E. C.; Allen Tenny, Gen.; Isaac N. Pressey, C. G.; Charles W. Carter, prelate; A. D. Smith, S. W.; Costello Lippitt, J. W.; Austin Brewster, treasurer; Charles H. Cobb, Jr., recorder; William J. Merrill, standard bearer; William H. Hovey, sword bearer; Jas. M. Armstrong, warder; A. H. Pitcher, first guard; S. Alpheus Gilbert, second guard; John T. Brown, third guard; H. C. Albro, sentinel. The officers were installed by P. E. C., J. B. Mershon.

A large and interesting union meeting was held in the East Main street M. E. church last evening. There were a number of new requests for prayers and prayers were offered in response.

Mr. Charles Weber, costumer for the Grand Army ball, will arrive today and his costumes will be open to the public this afternoon at Grand Army hall.

The ice in the river is quite heavy and the Norwich met with considerable difficulty in reaching her wharf yesterday morning.

Break forth, break forth, O Sudbury town
And bid your yards be gay,
Up all your dusty streets and down,
For Lydia comes today!

I hear it on the wharves below;
And if I buy or sell,
The good folks as they chatterward go
Have only this to tell.

My mother, just for love of her,
Unlocks her carved drawers,
And sprigs of withered lavender,
Drop down upon the floors.

For Lydia's bed must have the sheet
Spun out of linen sheer,
And Lydia's room be passing sweet,
With odors of last year.

The violet flags are out once more
In lanes safe with the sea;
The thorn-bush at Saint Martin's door
Grows white for such as she.

So, Sudbury bid your gardens blow,
For Lydia comes today;
Of all the words that I do know,
I have but this to say.
—Lizette Woodworth Reese.

An Evening Thought

Remembering at set of sun
I sat with bended head;
The good deeds that I might have done
Kind words I might have said!
A useless sorrow, it may be,
To grieve for what has flown—
But how they would have soothed me
Now I am old and lone!

Anon, to soothe the aching smart
And stop my rising tears,
There came to cheer my lonely heart
From out the vanished years
Dear voices that were silent grey;
"Fond words," they said, "we keep
But all the rest—it passed away.
'Tis day we fell asleep."
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

X: "Is it true that poor old Bill has married again?"

Y: "Yes. He's under entirely new management."—Answers.

He (passionately): "I tell you my love for you is making me mad—mad—mad!"

She (calmly): "Well, keep quiet about it. It's had the same effect on my father."—Answers.

"Father, you bought sister a piano, you must buy me a pony."

"What for?"

"So that I can go out when she is practicing."—Nagels Lustige Welt, Berlin.

Poor Woman—"Ah, mum, you don't know what it is to have the wolf at your door."

Rich Woman—"Nor you to have a "cat" there trying to lure your cook away from you."—Exchange.

Policeman (producing notebook)—"Name please?"

Motorist: "Aloysius Alastair Cholmondeley Cyprian—"

Policeman (putting book away): "Well, don't let me catch you again."—London Punch.

Nervous Man (after jolt)—"What's the matter with you? You keep trying to run this elevator through the roof."

Elevator Boy (fresh from New York)—"Sorry, sir! You see I'm not used to these little 18-story buildings."—Boston Transcript.

"I was advised if I wished to be lucky," remarked the Elgin man, "to throw a penny over the bridge the first time the train crossed running water. I did it, but the string nearly got entangled when I was pulling it up again."—Hotel Times and Mirror.

An Englishman and an American were standing by the crater of a lively volcano in Honolulu. "You haven't anything like that in the States?" suggested the Englishman.

"Mebbe not, but we gotta fire department in Chicago that could put it out," was the retort.—Fishing Gazette.

Two of the greatest inventions of modern times, the telephone and the typewriter, made their first appearance at the centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876.

An ancestor to the straw through which we sip our sodas has been discovered in East Africa, says Popular Science Monthly. Yak trees there have cavities in their trunks in which rain water collects. The natives frequently carry "drinking sticks" two feet long and half an inch in diameter, which they use to sip the water out of the trees.

After following the Eastern Glade for 1,200 miles for many days of its voyage through the south Atlantic, a crane alighted on the bridge, assaulted and overcame Pep, the captain's dog and the pet of the crew, and took possession of the third mate's cabin. The bird was fed by the third officer, and then it practically adopted the Eastern Glade, for, despite the efforts of the crew, it refused to leave the vessel. The crane will probably be sent to one of New York's museums.

Crawling into a hollow tree lying on the ground and extinguishing the fire burning within the tree was the unusual experience of Fred Call, a fire guard on the Boise national forest in Idaho, reports the forest service, United States department of agriculture. Call was on duty when a bolt of lightning set fire to a yellow pine tree forty-two inches in diameter. This tree happened to be hollow, and Call chopped it down in order to extinguish the blaze. Even then he was unable to get to the flames, so he crawled into the trunk chipped away the burning wood with his knife and carried out with it on his shovels. He made many trips into the tree, traveling about sixty feet each round trip.

PROMINENT NEW LONDON MAN GETS CUT HEAD FROM TRAFFIC COP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—Charles E. Schall was not in condition to appear in court this morning when he was accused of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was nursing a cut head sustained when Policeman Clarence Martin used a blackjack on him. Schall did not heed the signals that Officer Martin gave to him, and drove along State street to the Union station. The officer followed him and sought an explanation, but did not receive it. Instead Schall proposed to mix things up with the policeman, becoming so demonstrative that the officer realized that Schall would have to be subdued. It was then that he tapped him on the head and opened up a cut in the scalp. Schall was arrested and then called for a doctor to administer to him. Today the doctor made a report that Schall would not be in condition to appear, so the case went over till Saturday.

Frank Cardona and his sister-in-law own a house on Vauxhall street extension, but their relations in the property are not satisfactory and they are continually quarreling as to conditions. So the former got into the police court today charged with breach of the peace. It was a difficult matter to get any information from him and there was no one to enlighten the court till a friend of the Cardonas volunteered to listen to what he said and then to interpret his language to the court. It was disclosed that Cardona was a debtor to his sister-in-law, or to some of the family, in the sum of $30, and that he had agreed to pay, but had not settled. This brought on the row for which Frank was arrested. He promised to settle as soon as he obtained work and to pay some of what he owed past Monday. The case was continued a month. The parties are to discontinue their relations as co-owners of the property.

Abraham Katz, a grocer who delivers goods by automobile didn't heed signs on Crystal avenue near the railroad bridge so that he avoided a violation of the ordinance of the city that made the highway a one-way street. When he speeded along he encountered the automobile that Mrs. Minson was operating, which was going in the direction in which the auto had the right of way. To avoid a collision with the Katz car the Minson machine was operated to the side of the highway and against an abutment of the bridge. The car was damaged and complaint was then made against Katz. He acknowledged that he was in error in going along the road as he did and agreed to pay for the damage occasioned to the Minson car. This it is claimed, will be about $25. Katz said it was a mistake that he did not see the signs directing the course for automobiles to follow.

The deed transferring the property consisting of two stores and a dwelling at Nos. 458-462 Bank street, from David Uhrman to Mrs. Angelina Messer was received for record at the office of the town clerk today. The price paid was $18,500.

Mariana and Mary Genova have sold a house and lot on the easterly side of Montauk avenue to Josephine Murphy.

James Lawson, United States Coast Guard; Raymond Coyne, Harrison's Landing, Waterford, and Miss Irma Clark, 20 Culver street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital were dismissed today.

The funeral of Mrs. Josephine St. Onge Kearns, wife of Bernard Kearns, formerly of New London, whose death occurred at her home in New York was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 43 Shipley street. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Altha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Fannie Shepard Miller, widow of Joseph B. Miller took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Stremlau, 96 Waller street, the services being conducted by Rev. Walter Heintz of Westerly. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Cavanaugh Skelskey, wife of Joseph M. Skelskey, and daughter of Mrs. Ellen Cavanaugh, of 241 Shaw street, died at New Britain General hospital shortly after 3 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Skelskey had been under treatment there less than a week for pleuro-pneumonia. Besides her mother and husband, Mrs. Skelskey is survived by two small children; four sisters, Mrs. Walter L. Bogue, Mrs. Cornelius F. Donohue and Mrs. Joseph F. Fitzpatrick, of this city, and Mrs. James Lynch, Boston, and by seven brothers, Charles E., James J., Michael F., John J., Dennis W., Thomas L., and Edward M. Cavanaugh, all of this city. Mrs. Skelskey, who had resided in New Britain ten years, was taken ill with grip the latter part of last week. Pneumonia quickly developed and last Monday the patient was transferred to the New Britain institution. Her condition gradually became worse and when the end came Mrs. Skelsky's mother and two sisters, Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Donohue were at her bedside. Mrs. Skelskey is a sister of Police Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who was married in New York last Tuesday night and who is now on his wedding trip.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operator's license of William E. Sanford, submarine base, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Charles Meyers, colored, a youth of about 19, residing on Potter street, was in the police court this morning charged with breach of the peace, but he Judge Lewis Crandall desired that the sanity of the accused be established, the case was continued until tomorrow morning. Meyers was on Green street last evening and in passing the Green cafeteria he seized an ice cream sign that was standing beside the curb and hurled it through one of the windows of the restaurant. Meyers was arrested by Patrolman John Sullivan. The accused was taken into custody last October when he engaged in a fight in a John street store and at that time it was believed that the young man's mental condition was not normal.

Joel Nass, a sailor on the United States ship Ericsson, was charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor—that of more than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content. He persisted that he was not intoxicated when put to plea, but admitted that he had drank wine. He said he had come from Rhode Island with a couple of girls and a sailor and that his machine became mixed in traffic at State and Main streets. Officer Linehan was directing traffic there and when he approached Nass, observed that he had been drinking alcoholic liquor. He ordered Nass from the car and saw that he staggered and was unsteady on his feet. That led to the arrest of Nass. Nass was fined $100, but Judge Crandall remitted $45 of that amount and Nass secured money to settle with the court.

George P. Flynn of New York, formerly of New London, at which time he was employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as a plumber, died yesterday at his home, No. 511 East 136th street. Mr. Flynn was well known here where he had many acquaintances.

Cora Evelyn, one year and eight months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Tufts, 15 Tenth street, died today following a brief illness of pneumonia.

John D. Wraff, 366 Jefferson avenue, communicated with the police late last night, asserting that an intruder had endeavored to gain access to the house by placing a ladder up to one of the rear windows. Patrolman John Sullivan and William Riordan were dispatched to the Wraff house, but no trace of the crook could be found.

Frank Marsutti was taken into custody this afternoon by Patrolman Augustus Ray, charged with being a fugitive from justice. He was later turned over to the custody of the state police, Groton barracks, as that department was seeking the apprehension of Marsutti and had offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of the fugitive.

Marsutti who formerly resided in Montville, had been placed on parole after having served a partial sentence in Connecticut State's prison. Marsutti was sent to a home near Norwich, but failed to keep the provisions of his parole. Today Patrolman Ray determined that Marsutti was employed at the plant of the New England Carpet Lining company and when the employes left the plant to partake of their noon luncheon Officer Ray laid in wait for Marsutti and as he appeared at the corner of John and North Bank street, he was placed under arrest.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McPartland of the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to W. Glendon Knight of Oxford, Mass. No date for the wedding has been set.

Harry M. Shalett, Bellevue place, has started for Kansas City, Mo., where he will spend several weeks before returning to New London.

An automobile owned and operated by Henry Smith, 2 Chester street, Norwich, in backing from the garage of Adams and Hillyer, Howard street, collided with a machine owned by William Hoffs, a sailor attached to the submarine base. Both cars were damaged.

DECLARES HIMSELF INSANE— COMMITTED TO HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—Samuel Libedeven, formerly a waiter in the Star restaurant, State street, walked into the police station this afternoon and declared himself insane and wanted protection. There was every indication in Libedeven's actions that what he said was true, so he was detained until he had been examined by a physician and was later committed to Norwich State hospital.

STATE POLICE PAID $1,200— SHARE OF LIQUOR CASE FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—Half a dozen alleged liquor law violators will come to trial in the police court tomorrow, unless they plead guilty and take the penalty that is meted out to them. There are items over from last Monday, when spotters brought some 26 cases before the court, men and women who have been doing a liquor business in their homes, on the street, or from taxicabs. The cases to be presented tomorrow were brought to the court Monday, but for one reason and another the accused asked for continuance and their request was granted. Now will come some trials. Only one of the accused has thus far escaped penalty, that being Luigi Cardello of 8 Elizabeth street. He was the only one who offered witnesses to prove that he was not guilty, as charged. In the other cases thus far, fines of $200 were imposed, or the accused were bound over to the superior court. In several of the cases the convicted parties were unable to pay and were committed to jail. One of the parties who will come to trial tomorrow has been several times convicted, so that there is a possibility that he will be held for the superior court which comes in next May. Four of the accused are taximen. The state police are responsible for these prosecutions and have already been paid more than $1,200 for their share of the fines and the costs that attach to their work. Sergeant Gorga directed the work of finding the alleged violators and his agents were George Holye and Elias Jennings, brothers-in-law, who reside at 9 Stony Hill in this city. They are now and have been boarders at the police barracks in Groton, where they will not be apt to meet any of the parties, they informed against.

FOREIGN DEMAND CREATES A MILK INDUSTRY FOR CHINA

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—(AP)—The foreign colony has given rise to a thriving industry new to China—the milk business.

Jersey cows have been imported and the water-buffalo, heretofore a mere beast of burden, has been successfully crossed with European breeds, said S. N. Au-Young, director-general of the Chinese bureau of economic information, who has been sojourning here.

Chinese children for centuries have been weaned on softened rice and even today milk is drunk only by children of the wealthy classes and butter consumed only by the foreigners.

"A large percentage of the milk used in the European concessions comes from the crossed-bred cows," Au Young declared. "It is of fine quality; high in butter-fat content. But milk is still a luxury among the Chinese."

Big Stores Stock Tobacco

As a step in increasing their sales to women, department stores in France have installed tobacco departments, where woman smokers may buy almost any kind of cigarette and smoking tobacco. It was discovered that many woman smokers dislike to patronize the regular tobacco shop used by men, and the larger department stores will try out the new idea, though there has been some opposition to it.

A stir caused some two months ago by the alleged discovery by a French government vessel that the floor of the Bay of Biscay had undergone a sudden upheaval, and that, in place of the abyss marked on the marine charts there was now a comparatively shallow plateau, seems to have been a hoax. A special survey ship of the French government, the Gaston-Riviet, was sent out to check the soundings reported, and Dr. Charcot's scientific ship, the Pourquoi-Pas collaborated in the work. After the most thorough investigation, it was found that the bottom of the Bay of Biscay had not changed in any way since the charts in general use were made.

An illustrated lecture on "Berlin and the Cities of Northern Germany," will be delivered by the pastor, H Hunsinger, in the church parlors, next Thursday night, January 21, under the auspices of the Bible class. Admission is free. A collection will be taken to pay for the pictures. All our friends are cordially invited.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

Mid-week worship, Thursday evening, 7:45. Mr. Abbott will speak on the phrase from The Lord's Prayer: "Lead us not into temptation."

The monthly meeting of the Missions department of The Guild will be held on Friday at the Community House. All who can do so are urged to attend at two o'clock to help with sewing and surgical dressings to be made for a hospital in South Carolina. Others are urged to come in when they can—early or late. A Cafeteria Supper, to which all members of the family, men and women, will be welcomed, will be served at 6:15.

Both Camp Fire groups are to hold a progressive supper on Friday evening, and all members are asked to report at the home of Mrs. A. C. Freeman, at half past five o'clock, for the first course, there to divide and follow out their separate schedules.

Broadway Theatre

A close-up glimpse of the side of college life that has nothing to do with studies, but a lot to do with the general education offered in an institution of higher learning, is shown in B. P. Schulberg's newest screen play, "The Plastic Age," which comes to the Broadway theatre Sunday, on a double feature program.

What do the students do during their spare time? This question has caused a lot of worry for interested parents. Some of the things that they might do are presented interestingly in the Schulberg picture. It is an adaptation of Percy Marks' lively novel of college life and youth in general, directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Primarily the picture is a rollicking comedy, crammed with all of the thrills that make up college life, but it also offers many dramatic moments and has much romantic interest.

Pale moon, dreamy music, warm eyes—and youth forgets convention—conscious only of the intoxicating present. Such is Clara Bow and Donald Keith in this daring, flaming picture, overflowing with truth—good and bad—about the modern girl and boy.

Leo Maloney and his pals, Bullet (the wonder dog) and Flash (the marvel horse) in the outdoor second feature, "Luck and Sand."

The music while a new comedy and An enlarged orchestra will furnish News reel complete the program, all for one price, 25 cents.

Conn. College Concert

Aurelio Giorni, the pianist of the Elshuco Trio, which is to be heard next Monday night at Bulkeley auditorium, New London is an Italian. He is a graduate with first honors from the very ancient and very famous Academy of St. Cecilia in Rome, whose standards in the art of music are hardly equally by those of any school in the world. He was but fifteen when he won his honors in Rome and then he put himself under the instruction of Busoni, his famous countryman.

Giorni studied with the great master for some years. He has concertized extensively, until he is now recognized as one of our great pianists. As a composer also he is famed, for Giorni, who has been in America now for several years, must be counted as a most prominent member of that band of young Italian composers who are accomplishing so much for the cause of their art. His compositions show an individual genius that promises to bring him into the foremost rank of the composers of our times.

Tickets on sale at Starr Bros, drug store, State street, New London.

Jodoin Theatre

The Merry Widow will be shown Sunday night. Prince Danilo and his brother, the crown prince, meet Sally O'Hara, star of a second-rate theatrical troupe from New York, at an inn in a village of Montebianco. At a performance in a Cteuje theatre, they renew their acquaintance, and the dashing Danilo defeats his elder brother and the Baron Sadoja, an aged roue who conrols the kingdom with his wealth, in an attempt to take Sally to dinner. They go to a cafe where he engages a private dining room, and is intrigued and delighted with Sally's innocent primness of conduct. But the crown prince, having been refused by Sally, is having a drunken party next door. He learns that Danilo is in the other compartment, and, with his drunken revellers, breaks in and discovers Sally and his brother in what appears to be a compromising pose. Sally weeps, and Danilo, gallant gentleman that he is, announces that they are engaged. She protests, when they are alone again, that it is impossible for him to marry her, but he discovers that he is really in love with her. See this picture at Jodoin's theatre.

Breed Theatre

The first authentic, authorized photoplay, depicting the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis is "The Midshipman," produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the supervision of the Navy Department, which is coming to the Breed theatre on Sunday.

In order that "The Midshipman," based on Casey Wilson's story, might be a faithful representation of the American nautical college, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur appointed Admiral Shoemaker, Rear Admiral Nulton and members of their official retinue to aid Director Christy Cabanne.

The choice of a suitable player for the leading role of Midshipman James Randall was left to the judgment of the Navy officials and they finally picked Ramon Novarro from a large list of popular motion picture stars submitted to them.

Upon completion of the final details of the filming, a special producing unit numbering 250 technicians, electricians and cameramen was dispatched from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City, Calif., to Annapolis to begin the preliminary work. The cast, headed by Novarro, soon followed.

During the entire five weeks that the company was engaged in the filming of "The Midshipman," the members lived at Carvel Hall, which hostelry is famous as the stopping place of George Washington and is now the center of Washington and Baltimore social activity during June Week. To reach the Academy the players just had to cross the street.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company surrounded Mr. Novarro with a cast that boasts of such lustrous names as Harriet Hammond, Wesley Barry, Margaret Seddon, Crawford Kent, Kathleen Key, Pauline Neff, Harold Goodwin, Maurice Ryan and William Boyd.

"The Midshipman" was written by Casey Wilson, directed by Christy Cabanne, scenarized by F. McGrew Willis and photographed by Oliver Marsh.

Silence is a difficult argument to beat.

Coming to the Palace

D. W. Griffith who produced, "The Birth of a Nation, Way Down East, Orphans of the Storm, Sally of the Sawdust," has scored another success in his Cosmopolitan Magazine serial story "That Royle Girl" which opens at the Palace Sunday and will be shown until Wednesday. Griffith's genius is seen throughout the production. It is a story of a jazz daughter of today and is staged in Chicago. W. C. Fields, new screen comedy genius who played in "Sally of the Sawdust", plays the comedy role in "That Royle Girl," and Carol Dempster plays the role of a 1926 flapper alluring to men and knowing it.

The keynote of the production is jazz, its background is the jazz belt of Chicago, its story treats of a vivid phase of our ultra-modern jazz life and its settings, which include several elaborate cabarets, are in harmony with the all-pervading spirit of jazz.

"That Royle Girl," was adapted by Paul Schofield from Edwin Balmer's striking Cosmopolitan Magazine serial. The distinguished cast boasts of such screen celebrities as Carol Dempster, W. C. Fields, James Kirkwood and Harrison Ford.

Al-Pierre Tabarin

Joe Roman's Pennsylvanians, a nationally known orchestral group, which is classed among the leaders in the country, will appear at the Al-Pierre Tabarin next Monday evening and play for dancing until 1 a. m. This is considered an unusual treat for this section and it is expected that several hundred will be in attendance. Edward B. Gordon, who was at one time the personal manager of Paul Specht and all of his eleven orchestras, will direct the group. The services of the Pennsylvanians were secured only after much correspondence on the part of the Al-Pierre management and there coming here is looked upon as a decided piece of good fortune.

Mr. Gordon, their director, has directed many orchestras including the Charles Kerr Famous Players, Jules Landy's Presidential Orchestra, the W. S. Blue Ribbon Band and others. He is the musical writer for Maxim's Revues, the Powder Puff Follies and the Broadway Hits. It is his claim that the Pennsylvanians are the best orchestral players he has ever handled. The rare opportunity to hear the Pennsylvanians has been given only to patrons of the leading dance halls in the east. For twenty-six weeks they appeared in Hartford and won hosts of admirers.

Palace Theatre

Today "The Ancient Highway" James Oliver Curwood's thrilling tale of Canadian lumber camps and "Scarlet Streak" a thrilling continued chapter play and five acts of Paramount Vaudeville will be shown for the last time. An exceptional entertaining troupe is the seven Robinsons who offer several cabaret numbers, fast dancing and good singing predominate. One of the Laurello Brothers has mystified the audience in the past few days with his unusual feat of completely turning his head around so that he can see down the middle of his back. He is the only man in the world who can perform this trick. The act is called "in the Devil's Garden" and some spectacular scenery effects with unusual contortionist feats are seen in this offering. The Ja De Trio who wrote and produced that popular song of the same name. Ford & Hewitt in frolics of the North Pole. Dobbs & Howard, a comedy team make up the rest of the bill. Performances are continuous today starting at 1.30.

TRICKS OF PROFESSIONAL BURGLAR ALWAYS ON TEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—In a New York laboratory, there are men continually working and studying to keep up with the tricks, old and new, of professional burglars.

There experts crack supposedly burglar-proof safety valuts, solve the mystery of electric alarm systems designed to protect buildings from thieves and open locks reputed to be unopenable without the right keys—all to beat the burglar at his own game.

When a national epidemic of burglaries became serious, it resulted in insurance companies and manufacturers authorizing the Underwriters Laboratories of various means of protection and then to test devices to see if they measured up to the provisions.

Since efficient burglars had learned how to get around or through most appliances then being used, it became necessary to evolve others. Proficient "burglars" who could be trusted were employed to see whether the devices would give the necessary protection.

One of the methods it to attempt to muffle the alarm gong or to put it out of commission. The apparatus is set up. The expert begins to work quietly, skillfully and quickly. Suddenly the gong shatters the silence. An observer remarks that 50 seconds passed before the attack was discovered and given away by the alarm.

A second attack is tried, but just as it appears the expert is about to succeed the gong clangs again. Foiled? Not yet, for the "burgler" tries a third and successful method. A confidential report containing suggestions for strengthening the device then is sent to the manufacturing company.

An invention designed to protect jewelers from thieves who crash display windows, grab jewels and other valuables and escape before officers arrive is tested. It consists of a heavy steel shutter which falls the moment the glass is cracked, often catching the entering arm.

The expert breaks one glass after another testing the device. Each time the shutter falls with a resounding crash. Every known method of making the invention fail of its purpose is tried and by the time the experts have finished nothing is left of the thing. If it has met the standard requirements approval is given. If it fails, or improvements can be made, the manufacturers are devised.

So on through the days and sometimes at night goes the work of safe-cracking, store-breaking and other burglaries. The experts refer to each other frequently as the "Omaha Kid," "Red Horan" and other like names, but they have become known as the safest and most beneficial burglars in business.

FOOTBALL PROWESS REWARDED WITH RECORD SIZE SANDWICH

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 15—(AP)—Members of the football teams of two Spokane high schools were promised that the first to make a touchdown in the annual game between the institutions would be rewarded with the "world's largest sandwich."

The rooters made good by presenting the fortunate player, Fred Hunter, fullback on the Lewis and Clark team, a sandwich five and a half feet in diameter. It contained 150 pounds of hamburger, a gallon of oysters, 10 dozen eggs and 25 pounds of butter, the last used to fry the meat and spread the "bun."

Hunter divided it with other members of the student body assembled in a special convocation to witness the presentation and to celebrate the victory.

MAKES SNAPPING TURTLE FARM SOURCE OF PROFIT

FERTILE, Iowa, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Some 20,000 snapping turtles now lie buried beneath the boggy acreage of the hill country of north Iowa, enjoying their long winter sleep, because the world war broke out in Europe in 1914.

Europe is a long way from Fertile but it is where Hans Johnson, youthful soldier, got his idea for the establishment of a turtle farm that supplies a large per cent of the turtle flesh that eventually finds its way to the dining rooms of America's foremost hotels.

Johnson was a doughboy in the 35th division of the A. E. F. In September of 1917 he obtained a leave of absence and wandered down to Monte Carlo, of gambling fame. One night a wealthy American, a steel manufacturer, invited Johnson and a number of companions to dine with him at the Grand Cafe near the Casino. Chelonia mydas broth, a soup made from the flesh of a species of West Indian turtle, was served. The check for it was large.

Johnson reasoned that if wealthy men paid without protest such high prices for mydas broth, it would pay to go into the business of supplying the market. Thus was born the idea of Fertile's turtle farm, the plans for which Johnson put into effect after he came home. Five years ago Johnson began his work by leasing ten acres of river bottom land, making a success of the venture from the start.

Mr. Johnson derives his chief revenue from the sale of eggs and choice breeding stock. He also has a good income from the sale of turtle oil, supplying many large hospitals. During the winter months he subsists a great many eastern hotels with choice table stock, fed and fattened throughout August and September on sweet potatoes and buttermilk.

The first 500 turtles were placed on the farm in 1920. They were a species known as the "snapping turtle," a reptile despised by fishermen. They were taken from the streams and lakes of north Iowa. Placed on the farm, they have been greatly improved by crossing with a species of chicken tortoise somewhat resembling the leatherback. The resulting strain is a grotesque creature resembling, in some respects, the chelydes and matamata reptiles of South America. However, their flavor is appetizing. Of the 20,000 turtles now on the farm, possibly 1,000 are of the new hybrid species.

On the farm itself there are ten low lying acres of hummocks and bog, and nothing more. There are no buildings of any kind, except three dams of stone and wastewood thrown across a rill of mound-spring water that trickles toward a larger stream skirting the south border of the farm. Wavering rows of post tops mark the underground fences encircling the three ponds formed by the stone and wood obstructions in the little stream.

UNLAWFUL TO KILL SWANS ANYWHERE IN UNITED STATES

The 10-year close season during which swans may not be hunted anywhere in the United States expires December 7, 1926. This restriction was made under the provision of article 3 of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain enacted for the protection of birds migrating between the United States and Canada. The biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, which makes this announcement, says that the federal law to enforce the treaty also prohibits the taking of migratory birds except as permitted by regulations thereunder promulgated by the president. Therefore, even with the end of the 10-year close season it will still be unlawful to kill these birds at any time until the migratory-bird treaty act regulations are amended to allow the "killing of swans" during a stated open season. An exception will be made for scientific purposes, however, under permit of the secretary of agriculture.

During a quarrel over who had the right of way in an alley between their shops Frank Fusaris, fruit store proprietor at 765 Congress avenue, New Haven, bit a goodly portion off the nose of Angelo Cavallaro, a barber at 765 Congress avenue.

PRICES DROP IN ACTIVE MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Under the persistent hammering of bear traders, stock prices today broke away on the downside from the narrow trading area within which they had been fluctuating for the last fortnight. Net declines of 1 to 5 points were registered by a long list of active issues with the final quotations generally around the lowest of the day, and the rail and industrial averages in new low ground for the year. Trading was in substantially increased volume, the day's sales running over two million shares.

The reaction took place in the face of generally favorable trade and financial news. Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent., all day, but loans below that figure were reported in the "outside market." The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve bank showed slight improvements in the credit position and the weekly mercantile reviews were optimistic. Dun's reported that "after the customary year-end contraction, business is beginning to expand again, though not yet generally." Bradstreet's states that "trade in both productive and distributive lines is holding the pace set in the first week of the year fair well," adding that "wholesalers are getting a good number of small orders for immediate delivery, particularly for clothing while spring business is beginning to come in from road men, and is ahead of a year ago."

Commodity markets continued irregular. Cotton futures showed net advances of 5 to 33 points on what appeared to be covering by near month shorts. Active wheat options showed fractional recessions with selling inspired by reports of large Australian shipments and lower prices in the Argentine. Raw sugar was unchanged. Coffee fell back 1 to 15 points on realizing.

Huge blocks of United States Steel common were pressed for sale throughout the session with the result that the stock sagged two points to 132 1-2, or 3 1-2 points below the offering price of the steel corporation to its employes in the annual stock subscription plan announced earlier in the week. Other standard industrials also were hard hit, Du Pont and United States Cast Iron Pipe breaking 6 1-2 points to 118, and 198, respectively. American Can dropping 4 to 281 and Allied Chemical, General Electric, Interborough Rapid Transit, International Combustion Engineering, National Lead, Pullman, Railway Steel Spring, Sloss Sheffield, South Porto Rico Sugar, Savage Arms, Union Bag and Paper, United States Cast Iron Pipe and United States Realty and Improvement showing net losses of 3 points or more.

Heavy selling of the motors followed the announcement that directors of the Hudson company had declared only the regular 75 cent dividend, that stock breaking to 119 and then rallying to 121 for a net loss of 1 5-8 on the day. General Motors, Chrysler and Mack Trucks, each dropped about 3 points and several others in that group yielded a point or two. Nash Motors, on the other hand, jumped 7 points to 513.

Among the few industrial issues to move against the current trend were American International corporation, Associated Oil, Case Threshing Machine, Coty, Inc., Howe Sound, Porto Rican-American Tobacco, and National Cloak and Suit. Good buying also was noted in Rock Island, Norfolk and Western and Wabash, but the other rails yielded with the industrials although the losses were not so large.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sterling exchange continued its climb toward parity today, cables crossing $4.86 to within half a cent of parity. French francs rallied over 3 points to around 3.77 1-2 cents. Japanese yen touched another new high at 44 3-8 cents in reflection of the Japanese government's plans for an early restoration of the gold standard.

TAFTVILLE

The third in a series of whists conducted by Ladies' Auxiliary Division 23, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held in their rooms Wednesday evening. The ladies prizes were awarded as follows: First, Miss Agnes Gaffney; second, Mrs. Loretta Bechard; consolation, Miss Sadie Hasler. The first prize for gentlemen went to James Garvie; the second to John Daley, and the consolation to Mr. Hafner. Refreshments of coffee and crullers were served after cards. The committee in charge included Mrs. Susie Malone, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Waldron, Miss Nora Murphy, Mrs. Tenas Breault and Mrs. Bridget Flynn.

An enjoyable whist party was given by the members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society at their rooms on Providence street Thursday evening. There were eight tables in play. The scorers were Miss Norah Murphy and Miss Agnes Murphy. Miss Anna Raymond won the first prize for ladies; the second going to Miss Mary Ward and the consolation to Miss Leona Belanger. James Murphy was awarded the first prize for gentlemen; William Smith, the second, and the consolation went to James Garvie. After the playing, home made cake and coffee were served at the tables. The committee that arranged the successful event included Mrs. Andrew Frohmader, chairman; Miss Louise White, Miss Norah Murphy and Miss Agnes Murphy.

Social Evening Enjoyed

The trustees of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) with their wives, enjoyed a pleasant social Friday evening at No. 1 Crescent street at the invitation of Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Foster.

Miss Alice Nygren of Lisbon has been spending several days with relatives in Plainfield.

Mrs. Ovila Belisle is a patient at the William W. Backus hospital.

CLOTHING BURNED IN BROADWAY RESIDENCE FIRE

At 4:15 o'clock Friday afternoon, the fire department responded to a telephone call for a small fire at the house at No. 149 Broadway owned by Joseph and Marion Rosenburg. The house was filled with smoke but occupants could not locate the source of the fire, so a call was sent in to the fire department. The firemen found that the blaze was in a closet in the apartment of Mrs. Angelina B. Stockdale and the fire was quickly extinguished with the aid of six gallons of chemical. Clothing in the closet belonging to Mrs. Stockdale's daughter, and valued at about $250, was damaged but the loss is covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Mrs. Stockdale had left the house about 2:30 o'clock on a shopping trip and on her return was informed of the fire in her apartment. It is thought that the heater may have been responsible for the blaze. Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft and Squad A responded to the call.

Universalist Ladies' Aid Meeting

The Ladies' Aid society and the Mission Circle held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Universalist church Wednesday afternoon. An "Evening in Japan" will be observed at the church on next Friday evening with Miss Agnes Hathaway of Boston as the speaker.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Large and Red. Itched Terribly. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face was disfigured with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were large and red, and itched terribly. I was ashamed to go out because my face looked so badly. The trouble lasted about three months. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using it I purchased more which completely healed me in three weeks." (Signed) Elmer S. Murray, Parish St., Needham Heights, Mass., September 23, 1925.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Talcum is unexcelled for purity.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Samples each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

WITHDRAWAL OF TRAINS LIKELY TO AFFECT MAILS AT NORWICH

Just what the effect will be of pulling off six trains running through Norwich on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, will not be known for several days. The trains to be pulled off, three northbound and three southbound, will run through Norwich for the last time today (Saturday) for the changes on the road go into effect Sunday morning.

When asked what changes there will be in the mail service in and out of Norwich, Postmaster Casper K Bailey said Friday afternoon that he could not definitely say at the present time. The railroad, he said, has not yet issued its new time tables. Postmaster Bailey said that he has taken the matter of local mails up with the railway mail service and Friday received a communication from them stating that they would arrange a satisfactory service. Whether this means that mails will be received and despatched by the motor busses to be placed on the lines by the New England Transportation company, a subsidiary of the New Haven Railroad company, or whether the mail ordinarily carried by the New Haven road trains, will be routed over the Central Vermont trains in and out of Norwich was not stated. The railway mail service had evidently not completed their service plans up to Friday.

The passenger traffic ordinarily carried on the trains to be pulled off, will it is understood, be satisfactorily taken care of by the motor busses. These new motor bus lines between Norwich and New London, will be operated on the west side of the Thames river.

The Norwich Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary, John J. O'Rourke is looking into the matter of traffic and mail service on the New Haven road in and out of Norwich, and the matter will be taken up for discussion at a meeting of the traffic bureau of the chamber, to be held next week. Mr. O'Rourke said Friday that the motor busses will operate in cooperation with the trains in that railroad and bus tickets will be interchangeable on the New Haven road trains and the New England Transportation Co. busses or coaches, as they are styled. Passengers' baggage, such as trunks, suit cases, bags, etc., that are ordinarily "checked" will be carried by trains, either preceding or following the busses, and the passengers will travel by bus, securing their baggage at the baggage room of the railroad station at their destination.

FIRST BROWNSTONE HOUSE BUILT BY NEWTON PERKINS

A New York paper of Friday had the following:

"In your article by James Young, "The Brownstone Age Is Coming to a Close," the following paragraph calls forth my reply concerning the first brownstone front residence built in New York:

'Why is it tht no historian waited upon the curb, stop-watch in hand, to register the exact hour and day that the first brownstone front reached completion? That was an occasion in the architectural annals of New York without compare, ushering in a uniformity of construction.'

The date was approximately 1840—I am not positive of the exact year The builder and owner was Newton Perkins, whose summer home was in Norwich, Conn. The address of the house was 11 West Ninth street, and the house is still standing.

It was a double house, with a covered porch, and the first residence to be built of brownstone, as it was also the first private house to have gas and water on the second story.

It is today a bourding house, and the interior has been somewhat remodeled, although the exterior is practically unchanged. The house when it was built was so far uptown as to be on a country road, and friends came on Sundays and holidays to see the adaptation of the latest modern conveniences.

I know, for the owner was my grandfather.

ELIZABETH PERKINS."

J. Newton Perkins was a New York broker, whose home later was the residence of the late E. N. Gibbs, afterwards the home of the late Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Gale on Washington street, Norwich.

NO PERMISSION FOR STICKERS ON WINDSHIELDS

A request from the Waterbury council, Boy Scouts of America, inc., asking for a ruling as to whether permission could be obtained for all registered Scout officials to affix stickers to the windshields of their automobiles during their campaign for finances to be carried on in the spring, has been determined by the commissioner of motor vehicles to the effect that the state law will not permit him to issue any definite permission.

The last session of the legislature adopted a law which provides that "no article shall be attached to any motor vehicle in such manner as to interfere with an unobstructed view of the highway upon which any person shall be operating such vehicle."

"In view of this provision," the department has informed the Waterbury organization, "I most certainly feel that I cannot countenance the affixing of any kind of sticker to the windshield or windows of a motor vehicle. A sign or notice of any kind so affixed, is bound from the very nature of it to obscure to a greater or less degree, the view of the operator and it was evidently he intention of the legislature that the practice of affixing various kinds of stickers should be prohibited."

SEVEN FATAL RESULTS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

HARTFORD, Jan. 16—(AP)—Seven deaths occurred in as many accidents in the state last week listed among the 236 automobile crashes reported to the state motor vehicle department. The fatalities were in Hartford, Newington, Woodbridge, Lakeville, New Hartford, Milford and Middletown. Fourteen cities reported 155 of the total of minor accidents.

Hartford led all cities with forty four, New Haven was second with thirty one and Bridgeport third with twenty two. Reports from other cities were as follows: Waterbury 17, New Britain 9, Meriden 8, Stamford 6, Norwich 4, Greenwich 4, Danbury 4, Middletown 3, New London 3, Norwalk 1. Report from Winsted showed that city without accidents during the period.

BRISTOL PURCHASER TO RE-OPEN BOONE WOOLEN MILL

BRISTOL, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The factory of the Daniel Boone Worsted Mills company, Baltic, which went into receivership six months ago, was sold today to Joseph T. Donovan, Bristol real estate dealer, who announced he would immediately re-open the plant. The purchase price is understood to have been in the neighborhood of $125,000. Fifteen houses used by employes of the mill were included in the sale. Four hundred persons will be employed.

The main office of the company is in Chicago. Thomas J. Spellacy, of Hartford, as receiver, made the sale. Several weeks ago the factory was placed on auction. The highest bid, which was less than $50,000 was refused by Mr. Spellacy. He was upheld by the United States district court.

HIGH GRADE STUDENTS AT ST. JOHN'S, DANVERS

At the reopening of school at St. John's, Danvers, Mass., Brother Edmund prefect of studies, announced the honors for the scholastic period just completed. Among students cited for special distinction of attaining A or B grade in all branches the Nutmeg state has one representative in Edward Lyons, of Hartford. The following were among the seven who had this grade in all but one subject: Vincent Brophy, Norwich; Paul Chagnon Montville, and John L. Sullivan, Willimantic.

You can often judge a man's character by what he thinks laughable.

DWOJAKOWSKY HAS MADE CONFESSION IN NEW HAVEN

William Dwojakowski, 30, of Norwich, has made a complete confession of the shooting of Patrolman William Dietrick, in New Haven Wednesday night, according to the police of that city.

In the confession it is alleged that Dwojakowsky stole a Hudson car in Hartford and picked up two companions in New Britain. When held up in New Haven by Dietrick, Dwojakowsky is alleged to have shot at the policeman, escaped in the car only to run the machine into a truck near Sargent's factory. The three were captured when they attempted to run away from the scene of the accident. The policeman is only slightly injured.

Dwojakowsky claimed that he goes crazy every January and was at one time confined at the Norwich State hospital It is reported that he has never been there. He claimed to have secured the revolver through a mail order house in New York.

Dwojakowsky was held under bonds of $15,000 while his companions were held under bonds of $10,000. It is expected that they will be taken to the superior court on a bench warrant.

NEIGHBORHOOD IN NEAR EAST BUNDLE DAY

Several towns in the vinicity of Norwich are planning to take part in the collection of old clothing for the Near East Relief planned by the local committee for next Friday, January 22nd.

In Fitchville Mrs. Frank Palmer will be in charge of arrangements for collection and in Hanover Mrs. William G. Park. The school houses will be used as collection centers in these other towns also, and residents will be asked to bring their bundles to the school houses on Thursday so they can be brought down to Norwich on Friday.

Arrangements are proceeding for the collection in Norwich. The firms which have donated trucks for the afternoon are the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, the O'Neill Electric Company, the Norwich Gas and Electric company, Schwartz Brothers and Hawkins, the Florist.

Old shoes and silks, satins and laces are not needed. The great demand is for warm clothing to meet the needs of winter in the Near East.

METHODIST CONFERENCE APRIL 7-12 AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

The New England Southern conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold its annual session at South Manchester, April 7 to 12. Much interest this year will center in the fact that a new superintendent is to be appointed for the Providence district, Rev. Ira W. LeBaron the present incumbent having served in this capacity six years which is now the limit allowed by the law of the church. Various speculations will be soon in progress as to whom this appointment will be given.

The presiding bishop this year will be Rev. Ernest G. Richardson, resident bishop of Atlanta, Georgia.

The new church edifice at South Manchester is being estimated as one of the finest in New England and the fact that the conference is being held within the bounds of the Norwich district after two years being held in other localities, will give added interest in the district concerning it.

ASSIGNMENTS FOR TRIAL IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

The following assignments of court cases in the superior court in this city were made Friday by Judge C. L. Avery at the short calendar session here:

Tuesday, Jan. 19th, Joseph Zdancewicz vs. Veronico S. O. Zdancewicz.

Thursday, Jan. 21st, Town of Norwich vs. Mary Donovan, et al; Nazaruk, et al, vs. Krwosnik, et al.

Friday, Jan. 22nd, short calendar, bar meeting, and assignment of cases.

Tuesday, Jan. 26th (Special), Snappy Knitwear Company, Inc., vs. Insurance Company of North America, Elizabeth P. L. Babcock vs. Horace H Babcock, George A. Garrett vs. Eleanor Coats Garrett, appeal from probate.

GIRL'S LEG CUT IN ACCIDENT WHILE COASTING

Stella Grazinski, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Piotr Grazinski of 11 Tyler Avenue, was taken to the Backus hospital late Friday afternoon by Dr. Clarence G. Thompson. The little girl was injured in a coasting accident on Watercress avenue, and as a result is suffering from a deep gash on her left leg which required 15 stitches to close. She was coasting down Watercress avenue and the sled upon which she was sliding crashed into a fence at the bottom of the hill and her leg raked along the fence boards.

SENDS CHECK FOR $10 FOR FIREMEN'S WORK

Friday Chief Edward L. Stanton received from George Scott, of No. 57 Lafayette street, a check for $10, for the firemen's pension fund, in recognition of the efficient work done by the firemen at a chimney fire at his residence. The check has been turned over to the city treasurer to be added to the fund.

The fire occurred at 5:57 o'clock Thursday evening when the department was called out by telephone. A small quantity of chemical extinguished the chimney blaze.

GRANTED DIVORCES SOUGHT BY FOUR PETITIONERS

Judge Christopher L. Avery, presiding at a short calendar session of the superior court in this city Friday morning, granted four divorces and took a fifth divorce petition under advisement. Herman J. Greiner, East Main street, this city, was given a divorce from his wife, Jessie E. Rogers Greiner, and also was granted the custody of a minor child. His divorced wife's address is unknown to the petitioner. They were married December 27, 1913 and unfaithfulness was charged from December 1, 1917 on.

On grounds of desertion three weeks after his marriage, Dr. S. Stanley Maine of North Stonington was ranted a divorce by Judge Avery from Lizzie Burdick Maine. They were married December 29, 1921 and desertion since January 21, 1922 was alleged by Doctor Maine, who is a well known cancer specialist. She was Dr. Maine's housekeeper and was 30 years younger than he. He said that about three weeks after their marriage his wife told him she was through and was going to live with another and that she thought more of his (the other's) little finger than she thought of his whole soul The other man was waiting for her outside the house in an automobile. Dr. Maine said he thought she might be living in Wakefield, R. I. Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Rood who live with Dr. Maine corroborated his testimony.

Mrs Stephanie (Enos) Marooney of New London was given a divorce from Austin J. Marooney, formerly Yellow Cab driver of New London, on grounds of adultery, with a Mrs. Edna Kenfeild. Mrs. Marooney was also given custody of a minor child. The couple were married November 14, 1922. Mrs. Marooney claimed that her husband and the Kenfield woman left New London together and have not been seen since.

Mrs. Lillian Hyde Chamberlain of New London was given a divorce from Philip J. Chamberlain on grounds of desertion and because he ran around with other women. She claimed that he was a drinking man. They were married October 18, 1920 and desertion since September 1, 1922, was alleged.

Decision was reserved in the case of Martin C. Jello of Norwich, formerly of Montville, against Gladys Bogue Jello, now of parts unknown. The decision was reserved pending the arrival of a marriage certificate from West Virginia, showing that the defendant was previously married when she married the plaintiff. Plaintiff and defendant were married December 2, 1924.

The only other case on the list was that of James Ennis vs. Emma M. Ennis and this was continued until next week.

POSTERS TEACH LESSONS IN THRIFT WEEK CAMPAIGN

Posters to the number of 500 have been received by the local committee in the Thrift Week campaign and are being distributed to the merchants with the help of the Boy Scouts. The committee is asking the merchants to receive the posters and display them in their windows in prominent places in order that the thrift idea may be brought to the attention of the public in an effective way. The posters are also being distributed in the schools.

BURNS TO JAIL FOR ASSAULT AND BATTERY

When the superior court came in here for the afternoon session, Judge Allyn L. Brown rendered his decision in the case of John Burns, 18, Jewett City, pronouncing him guilty of assault and battery in the case in which Burns had been on trial for manslaughter on the charge of having inflicted injuries upon Albert Pajak, 42, of Jewett City, from which the man died on June 14, 1925.

Judge Brown sentenced Burns to eighteen months in jail without costs.

Arguments in the case were made by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for Burns, at the morning session of court.

In pronouncing judgment, Judge Brown said that he was frank to say that the court did not take the same view of the credibility of witnesses as counsel for the accused man did. The judge said that he thought the testimony of Officer Dolan ought to be believed and when this was taken with the testimony of the accused himself it compelled the court to find that Pajak received his injuries at the hands of Burns. The court felt that Burns had not been truthful as to whom he saw sitting on the bench.

State Attorney Brown moved for sentence at once and said that he was sorry to have to state that Burns for three years had prided himself as being a tough guy. Nobody had made any more trouble for the Jewett City officials than Burns, although he came from a highly respectable family for whose members the state attorney said he had the highest esteem. Burns had recently stopped the Jewett City prosecuting attorney on the street and threatened to clean up everything, and unless Burns and the gang he travels around with realizes that this sort of thing doesn't pay they will end up in state prison. The state attorney thought Burns ought to be given the maximum penalty of a year in jail where he could have time to think things over.

Attorney Shields made a plea for probation for Burns, saying that he would be sent to his brother-in-law in Florida where he would be out of his Jewett City surroundings and would have a chance to go straight.

The state attorney opposed probation and renewed his demand for a jail sentence.

When sentence had been pronounced Burns was put in the pen and a few minutes later was taken to jail by Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main.

NORWICH TOWN

Following the mid-week prayer service of the First Congregational church Thursday evening, the annual business meeting of the church corporation took place. The clerk Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery submitted a very interesting report of the minutes of the last meeting and special meetings held during the year; as did also the treasurer, Frank S. Avery, whose report covered the income and disbursements for the year just closed showing a very substantial balance in the treasury.

The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey read the report of the Ministerial Library fund, which also showed a good balance on hand. Other reports were those of the collector, Deacon Henry F. Frazier, and Herbert L. Yerrington, the retiring chairman of the trustees. The last mentioned showed the activities of the trustees on what has been accomplished to the church property, etc.

A vote of thanks was given Deacon William R. Lathrop, for his efforts in collecting money for improvements to the chapel.

To fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Yerrington, John L. Browning was elected a member of the board of trustees for three years. The other members of the board are: Luther A. Fenton and Frederick T. Ross.

The officers re-elected for the ensuing year comprise the following: Clerk, Dwight W. Avery; treasurer, Frank S. Avery; collector, Henry T. Frazier.

Before the meeting adourned, a very unexpected surprise was given the esteemed pastor, Rev. Mr. Bailey, when in recognition of his faithful work and the wonderful service rendered in all branches of the parish, in behalf of the church, Deacon Frazier presented him a special gift of $100.

Although rather modest in accepting the gift, Rev. Mr. Bailey in his usual gracious manner, acknowledged the gift with thanks.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church was scheduled to take charge of the Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon; but as he exchanged last Sunday with Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Mr. Graham will be the officiating clergyman. Rev. Mr. Graham will be assisted by members of the choir of the Congregational church, as the choir from Trinity M. E. Church provided the musical part of the hour, last Sunday.

The executive committee of Norwich Christian Endeavor Union, will hold a meeting Monday evening at the home of George F. Hyde of Washington street.

At a recent meeting of the union, the following were appointed as publicity committee: Miss Edythe Pierce of Preston City, secretary of the union, chairman, Miss Dorothy Lee, Hanover; George F. Hyde and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, Norwich Town.

Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown, of Oneco street has returned from Hartford, where she attended the session of the Connecticut State Grange. During this week, Mrs. Brown, who is the newly elected lecturer for Norwich Grange, 173, was sent as a delegate from the local grange. While there of special interest to Mrs. Brown, was the Lecturers Conference held on Tuesday at Hotel Bond. Mrs. Alice Brinkman accompanied Mrs. Brown.

Funeral services for Mrs. Thomas Donohue, were held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late residence, 377 Washington street. In Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock, where an exceptionally large gathering of relatives, friends and neighbors assembled, the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, celebrated a requiem high mass. As usual the choir sang and at the offertory, Miss Mary Ruckley sang De Profundis. For a waiting hymn, she sang Consolation. As the body was borne from the church the choir sang Lead Kindly Light. The organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy, directed the musical part of the mass.

There was a wealth of beautiful floral pieces, loving remembrances from friends. The bearers were Prof. Frank L. Farrell of New Haven, formerly of Norwich; Thomas Donohue, Providence; Thomas Brennan, Hartford; John Lannon, Dayville; Patrick Riley Dayville and Thomas Dooley, Norwich. The body was placed in the vault in St. Mary's cemetery, Greeneville. Rev. Father McLaren of New Britain, who was seated in the sanctuary during the requiem high mass, read the committal service.

Included in the large attendance were relatives and friends from Hartford, New Haven, Providence, Dayville, New London, Jewett City and other places. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Donohue, who was a devout member of the Sacred Heart church, was a constant attendant until health and strength failed her.

In the community where she had resided so many years, she was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and neighbors. In her death Norwich Town loses a citizen who was regarded for many admiring personal qualities. Loyal to God and the dear ones who comprised the family circle, as well as to her church and fellow citizens, her quiet home life and always retiring manner will leave an indelible impression on those who knew her best.

Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue was the guest Wednesday of her sisters, Miss Annie Smith and Miss Rose Smith of Colchester.

Having been the guest for two days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Habeel Abbood of Moosup, Esse (Charlie) Costules returned Friday afternoon to Norwich Town. This was in observance of the Greek New Year which fell this week. For the Greek Christmas season, Mr. Costules also spent several days last week with his Moosup friends.

APPEAL FOR ANTHRACITE MINERS AND THIER FAMILIES

Executive Council Asserts That Men, Women and Children in the Anthracite Field Are Hungry—Not Only Need Food, But Also Clothing—Supplemental Appeal is Made to Organized Labor—Miners Are Suffering From Cold.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A supplemental appeal to organized labor to aid the anthracite miners and their families was issued here today by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

"Men, women and children in the anthracite field are hungry," the appeal said. "The intense cold of mid-winter has added to their sad plight and has intensified their suffering. Hungry children are calling to us for help. Come to their rescue.

"If they are willing to fight and suffer, let us be willing to contribute so they may have food and clothing while fighting the battles of the United Mine Workers of America."

ADDRESSES BY MINERS' OFFICIALS IN WILKES BARRE

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Delivering the first of a series of addresses in the heart of the anthracite fields today, John L. Lewis, president, and other officers of the United Mine Workers of America, justified to the striking miners themselves the conduct of the hard coal strike.

Mr. Lewis addressing more than 4,000 miners who packed the Capitol theater, struck back at the members of the operators' committee who have publicly charged him with responsibility for failure of negotiations to end the strike. That responsibility, Mr. Lewis said, rested entirely with the operators, and particularly with Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' committee.

Mr. Lewis alleged that since last July when Mr. Warriner made public the conditions on which the operators would negotiate, the chairman of the operators' committee had consistently refused to debate or discuss those conditions.

"For six months I have been seeking an opportunity to debate with Mr. Warriner, in public or in open conference, the merit of the operators' proposals," Mr Lewis said.

Whatever the apparent outward form of the proposals put forward by the operators, each and every proposal had contained the stereotyped proviso for arbitration, Mr. Lewis said, which was unacceptable to the miners. Arbitration, he said was neither necessary nor advantageous to the miners.

The majority of the anthracite coal companies were prosperous enough to warrant a resumption of operation at the old wages or a substantial increase, and still have ample margin for respectable profits, Mr. Lewis said. But these companies were held back from negotiating with the miners, he said because of a secret agreement among the operators to maintain operating costs at a low enough basis to allow a few small and inefficiently managed companies to continue to operate at a profit.

Mr. Lewis referred to the mine owners as the "striking operators," who, he said, were paralyzing the anthracite industry by refusing to give the miners an honorable working agreement from one to five years' duration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A romance began two years ago when Rudolph Raymondi fell in love with the picture of a girl on a Red Cross poster in Rome was shattered today when Raymondi, who had followed his "picture sweetheart" across the ocean, was arrested for "annoying" the goddess of his dreams.

Raymondi told detectives that as soon as he saw the poster in Rome he knew that he could never love any other girl. He sought out the artist but from him learned only that the young woman was an American.

Undaunted by the magnitude of his task Raymondi said he came to America and began his search. In newspapers, magazines, the movies and along the streets he looked always for the one and only face and finally he saw it smiling at him from the window of a photographer's shop.

He demanded the name from the photographer and after reference to a telephone book called the girl up and tried to pour out to her the story of his search. She, however, quite possibly because she was already married, was cold to the importunities of so romantic a suitor and when he persisted in calling her on the telephone she reported the affair to police. She was advised to make an appointment with Raymondi and when he arrived to keep that appointment today a detective arrested him. He was held for arraignment tomorrow. His long search ended but his dream shattered forever.

BRIDGEPORT MAN KILLED WHILE HARVESTING ICE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Frank Polaski, 1, of 844 Pembroke street, a World war veteran, was instantly killed this morning in an unusual accident at the Beardsley Park reservoir, where he was employed by the City Ice and Coal company, harvesting ice. His neck was cut fro mear to ear and the lower portion of his face mutilated when he slipped fro ma platform and fell into some gears which suspended him by his neck.

The Emergency hospital ambulance was summoned but the man was dead on arrival. Medical Examiner H. R. De Luca was notified and ordered the body removed to the city morgue pending an investigation by the police for the coroner.

$2,000,000 COMMERCE ACCOUNT AND FINANCE SCHOOL

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—New York university is to have a new $2,000,000 school of commerce account and finance, Chancellor Ellsworth Brown announced today. An 11 story building occupying an entire block in Wooster street, near the Main university building in Washington Square has been purchased for the school and will be rebuilt for use by next September.

The school already is the largest of its kind, in America, with a faculty of more than 200 members and an enrollment this year of more than 7,000 students.

BERLIN POLICE TO WEAR RUBBER-TIRED SKATES

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Police making the rounds of their beats on rubber-tired roller skates will soon be seen in Dresden. The first roller skating class of twentw police begin this week, a professional skater being employed as instructor.

Even moving target practice on skates is planned, buts as a precautionary measure officers must also acquired proficiency in taking off the skates.

The skate order has been issued to enable the police to cover more territory, the Versailles treaty having placed a limit on German police forces.

DROP IN THE PRICES OF RAW RUBBER IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Whether by reason of Herbert Hoover's campaign or because of timidity among the speculators is not quite clear, but raw rubber has has a setback to 8 shillings 6 1-4 pence per pound in Mincing Lane, the raw rubber market. This is three pence down on the week and 16 pence below the highest touched recently. The week's record in share quotations on the stock exchange has been consistently downward.

PINCHOT TO GO BEFORE THE LEGISLATURE THIS WEEK

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Governor Pinchot today began preparations to go before the Pennsylvania legislature the coming week, if possible, to urge action for control of anthracite mining.

In executive plans to deliver a message dealing entirely with this subject, which is one of eight legislative matters submitted to the legislature by him when it convened in extra session last Wednesday. If he completes the address on which he is now working he may deliver it Tuesday. In his opening message he made only a brief reference to mining.

The anthracite situation promises to assume a more important place in the legislative program during the week, although none of the four measures pending is expected to progress further than a hearing. These include two administration supported bills to control anthracite as a public utility and to regulate the production and marketing by means of state compacts, and bills to repeal the state tax on hard coal and certain provisions of the miners certificate law.

Members of the "anthracite bloc", an organization of representatives of the hard coal producing counties, are expected to determine their position this week. introduction of a resolution calling upon the legislature to take steps to end the strike, without regard for any pending legislation, is one step considered.

FIRST AUTO FATALITY OF THE YEAR IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The first auto fatality of the year here occurred at 4 o'clock this morning, when F. Harris Mason, 54, a well known character around Hillside home but of no permanent address, died at St. Vincent's hospital as a result of injuries received Saturday night when he was struck by an auto operated by Cassius W. Morvey, of 388 Stratford avenue. Morvey was arrested following the accident and held under bonds of $1,000 on a charge of reckless driving which was changed to manslaughter after Mason' death.

TAX REDUCTION BILL IN THE SENATE THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The house tax reduction bill, somewhat changed by the senate finance committee, will come up for consideration in the senate this week with the way apparently cleared for early action as a result of a compromise reached yesterday by republicans and democrats.

Leaders of both parties today endorsed the bill, which was unanimously ordered reported yesterday by the finance committee. They described it as non-partisan and predicted prompt passage by the senate.

HEAVY SNOWFALL NOW COVERS MOST OF FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A heavy snowfall covers most of France, especially in the south and east, where numerous deaths are reported from the cold. Telephone and telegraphic communication is interrupted and the roads are blocked.

In the Paris section the reavy fall of snow was succeeded by a thaw and tonight most of the streets are covered with slush, causing traffic accidents.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN TO SATIRE RUSSIAN LIFE

LENINGRAD, Russia, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Soviet state's motion picture monopoly has invited Charlie Chaplin to take part in a fil mbased on Nikolai Gogol's satire on Russian life, called "The Overcoat."

The picture experts are of the opinion that this vehicle would give Chaplin an opportunity to distinguish himself as much by his overcoat as he did by his trousers and shoes.

THREE MEN KILED ON A SPANISH STEAMER

Terrific Tornado Sweeping Jugoslavia

Public Utilities Disorganized —Losses Cannot Be Determined For Several Days.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Jan. 17—(AP)—Many lives have been lost in a terrific tornado which swept the country yesterday and today. Huge damage is reported and communications and public utilities are completely disorganized. The extent of the losses cannot be determined for several days.

Late this afternoon the storm was still raging.

PRODUCT THAT MAKES HENS LAY MORE REAL EGGS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. Jan. 17.—(AP)—A poultry dealer has found that his hens will lay more real eggs iff ed with a by-product of the new artificial egg whites developed from beef serum in the biological laboratories of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Not only that, but he reduced the death rate in his flock by 15 per cent.

This is but one of the many developments which persons engaged in various industries believe will result from the new product, it was revealed today by Professor J. W. M. Bunker, who produced it. Almost immediately after it was announced a few weeks ago that the globulin and albumen content of beef serum had been used as a substitute for whites of eggs hundreds of letters and telegrams were recevied asking for the sole rights of manufacture or distribution of the substance. Several large baking corporations, scores of small bakers as well as manufacturers and distributors of bakery supplies made inquiries. Their interest lay chiefly in the belief that the product would eliminate the widespread use of the whites of Chinese eggs, often prepared under unsanitary conditions.

Hospitals in various parts of the country have asked for information and samples, candy manufacturers want to know about its value in the making of confections and government bureaus have asked for data. Manufacturers of diabetic foods are interested in the product and agricultural experiment stations have requested scientific details as to its nutritional value. The home economics department of a large university wants samples for use in dietetic experiments.

Representatives of leather interests have visited the institute to examine the substance with a view to using it for finishing leather. A firm of engravers has started experiments to use it in coating engraving plates and a photographic chemist has an idea the powder might be applied to color photography.

While no definite announcement has been made it was understood that a large manufacturing company had built a plant to produce the food.

SAYS GEORGE WASHINGTON DRANK, CUSSED, GAMBLED

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 17.—(AP)—G. Watson James, Jr., historian for the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, admitted today that Rupert Hughes was right when he stated recently that George Washington was a "gamester, a champion cusser and a distiller of good whiskey." But Mr. James said he saw no reason for bringing out as sensational "a few natural inclinations of a great man, all of which are acknowledged by that man and by a few of his biographers."

"Of course Washington drank," Mr. James asserted. "All Virginia gentlemen did. Likewise he made his own liquor as all Virginians did. He would not have been a man if he did not enjoy a dance with a pretty woman and did not dance with her as long as he could. All Virginiawas full of pretty woman and what chance had even the father of his country against them? As for swearing and horseracing and card-playing, they were as common as taxis are today."

NEW LONDON SOLICITS NEXT Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

WATERBURY, Jan. 17—(AP)—Rev. Harold B. Camp, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, of New Haven, was the principal speaker at the afternoon session, here today, of the state Y. M. C. A. convention, today's was the final meeting. New London (Y), through A. T. Minor, invited the executive committee to consider its city for its convention.

Resolutions adopted were: To aid in every possible way, the Storrs community church; to consider an annual meeting of the state executive committee in Waterbury; to study the constitution and by-laws in reference to amending them to meet with the changes recently made in the national constitution and by-laws; to study means of financing the state "Y" organization; to form a new state boy's council; to standardize the age for admission; to record deep appreciation of the work done by Senator Edward W. Hazen, of Haddam; to endeavor to bring more people into Christian life.

OLD TIME DANCES WILL SIDETRACK THE CHARLESTON

HARTFORD, Jan. 17—(AP)—The call for old time dances, brought about by Henry Ford and the old time fiddlers, is indicative of the early demise of the Charleston, according to Joseph P. Neville, outgoing president of the Dancing Teachers' club, of Connecticut, speaking at the annual meeting of that body tonight at the Hotel Bond.

E. L. Deming, of Middletown, was elected president for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were: First vice president, Daniel C. Quilly, Bridgeport, second vice president, Sarah S. Estlow, Hartford; secretary, Walter U. Soby, Hartford; treasurer, Walter Wirtella, Manchester. There wee more than 100 present.

WIRELESS WARFARE HAS RESULTED IN LAWSUIT

HARTFORD, Jan. 17—(AP)—A story of a wireless war between John L. Reinarts, Manchester radio expert, and Lieutenant Commander Eugene F. MacDonald, Jr., of Chicago, which occurred in the Arctic circle during the MacMillan expedition last summer, came out today upon the heels of announcement that the department of justice has directed that suit be brought against MacDonald Radio corporation for the "pirating" of a wave length.

Pinchot Sends Letter To Secretary Mellon

Contends That Federal Permits Have Been Used For Diversion of Alcohol.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Governor Pinchot tonight sent a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in which he characterized as "a plain statement of plain fact." His inference in Washington yesterday that certain members of the Pennsylvania legislature are under the control of W. L. Mellon, the secretary's nephew. Secretary Mellon yesterday termed the governor's remark an "indefensible insinuation."

The governor's statement yesterday was made in a conversation with newspaper correspondents after he had held a conference with the secretary of the treasury during which a basis of cooperation between Pennsylvania authorities and federal officials for enforcement of psohibition in this state was worked out.

The governor agreed to submit evidence gathered by state officials in support of his contention that federal permits have been used for diversion of alcohol in this state and to send the secretary copies of enforcement measures now pending in the state legislature. It was in connection with this legislation that he intimated Allegheny county representatives are under "Mellon control."

"In accordance with my statement," Gov. Pinchot wrote Secretary Mellon, "I am sending you herewith copies of the dry bills that have been introduced at the special session of the legislature. These bills are sponsored and supported by all the dry forces in the state. They strike at the sources of bootleg whiskey and illicit beer.

"As head of the enforcement agency of the national government and as a Pennsylvanian in high official position, their successful passage through the legislature will naturally have a peculiar interest for you.

"I observe in this morning's newspapers that feeling which remaind unexpressed while I was with you had led you to characterize as an 'indefensible insinuation my reference to the Mellon control over certain members of the Pennsylvania legislature from Allegheny county. How a plain statement of a plain fact known to every one who knows the fundamentals of Pennsylvania politics can be called an "insinuation' is beyond my understanding. The men to whom I refer and their local leaders not only acknowledge but they openly assert and even glory in the fact of Mellon control. These men voted wet in the last two legislatures, and are expected to vote wet in the present extra session."

When Pennsylvania executive's reference to W. L. Mellon and the state legislature were brought to the secretary's attention after the meeting yesterday Mr. Mellon declared his nephew as a private citizen engaged in business in Pittsburgh "and just because he is a nephew of the secretary of the treasurer is no reason for exploiting him in that direction."

PREDICTS RADIO MOVING PICTURES IN THE HOME

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 17—(AP)—Radio reception of motion pictures in the home is a definite prospect in the near future, said Professor Edward L. Bowles of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a lecture here today. He based his prediction on the successful wireless transmission of motion pictures in silhouette.

Professor Bowles showed a photograph of a new radio projector receiving silhouette moving pictures. The apparatus, similar to a camera, is smaller than the average radio set.

The only stumbling block to the successful transmission of moving pictures by radio is speed, he declared. The same principles involved in the transmission of still photographs are employed in sending moving pictures, but it will be necessary to transmit one "still" every sixteenth of a second to produce the effection of motion.

COLUMBIA SENIOR DUE FOR A "RAZZING" TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. —(AP)—The crown of pulchritude lay heavy on the head of Allen Forsythe Maybee of Kalamazoo, Mich., today.

Although declared the handsomest senior at Columbia college by vote of his classmates, he was not happy. He kept to his room in Furnald Hall and moped. The vote, he said, had branded him. It was enough to destroy all the pleasant memories of his college years.

The brand of beauty, he feared, might even follow him back to Michigan, where he plans to take a law course in the state university.

All of that, however, was as nothing compared to the immediate disaster. For tomorrow he will have to go to class.

"And," he groaned, "what a razz I'll get."

CARDINAL MERCIER IS GROWING WEAKER

BRUSSELS, Jan. 17—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier was somewhat weaker today, gastric disturances having returned, but he was able again to hear mass in his chamber.

Despite the persistence of unfavorable symptoms the attending physicians asserted that there was no immediate danger. There is always, however, the possibility of a heart attack, from which the cardinal has suffered several times during his present illness.

TO HONOR MEMORY OF INVENTOR ELI WHITNEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Members of the New York cotton exchange have started a movement to honor the memory of Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, by placing a bust of him in the hall of fame. Richard T. Harris president of the exchange, has appointed a committee, with Herman B. Baruch, chairman, to raise a fund to defray the cost of the bust.

WORCESTER WOMAN WAS FATALLY INJURED

UPTON, Mass., Jan. 17—(AP)—Miss Arlyne Elliott, 2, of Worcester, was fatally injured and her two male companions were injured late today when an automobile in which they were riding became unmanageable and struck a tree.

STREET CAR PLUNGED FROM BRIDGE INTO THE OHIO RIVER

Three Unidentified Persons Lost Their Lives—A Score or More Are in Hospitals Suffering From Exposure and Injuries—Car Struck a Telephone Pole Between McKee's Rocks, Pa., and Neville Island.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Three unidentified persons are dead and a score or more are in hospitals suffering from exposure and injuries as the result of the plunge of a street car into the Ohio river from the Fleming Park bridge at McKees Rocks tonight. Two of the dead, a woman and a girl, succumbed after reaching a hospital and one body was found floating in the river. Whether the latter body is that of a man or woman is not known.

Whether or not there were more fatalities was not yet known.

The passengers saved were brought to shore by police and volunteer rescue workers, and then rushed to hospitals.

According to an eye witness, the car, bound for McKees Rocks from Neville Island, in the Ohio, was running at a fast rate as it came onto the bridge and left the rails. It first struck a telephone pole, the witness said, and then broke through a guard rail and plunged into the water.

Immediately after the trolley had settled to the bottom of the river, he said, there was a smashing of windows, and passengers and crew crawled out into the icy waters.

A call was sent for ambulances and police reserves and shortly a crowd of persons estimated to number 10,000 had gathered on the scene.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company emergency car was called soon on the spot and preparations were made to lift the car from the water.

DELEGATION OF WOMEN LEFT PETITION AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Armed with a petition seeking from women "the right to earn their own living in their own way, unhampered by laws which do not apply equally to their male competitors," a delegation assembled by the National Woman's party marched to the White House executive office today and left their plea with a policeman on duty there for delivery to the president.

The party's leaders, who also participated in a mass meeting today at the Belasco theatre, near the White House, have an engagement to see President Coolidge tomorrow, in furtherance of their campaign for an equal rights amendment to the constitution for "no sex in labor laws, wage legislation or other measures."

President Coolidge was in the White House when the petition was left at his office today, but his secretary, Everett Sanders, had made it clear to the party leaders that no engagements could be made with the chief executive on Sunday. The president spent a quiet day, not even following his custom of attending services at the First Congregational church.

DECLINE IN WHOLESALE PRICES DURING DECEMBER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The general level of wholesale prices declined in December, while industrial production, as a whole, was on the upgrade.

The labor department's index of wholesale prices, based on fluctuations in 404 commodities with the 1913 level considered as 100, stood at 156.3 last month, compared with 157.7 in November and 157.0 in December 1924. The decession was attributed chiefly to declines in the prices of most food items and contributed chiefly to declines in the prices of most food items and farm products such as corn, cattle, hides, eggs, and wool.

The industrial production figures, madep ublic tonight by the commerce department, showed that in December, as compared with November, there were increases in copper, zinc and pine lumber output, cotton and consumption, refinery melting of sugar, corn grinding, and the placing of concrete paving contracts and orders for steel products.

Declines were recorded in stock sales and in the letting of building contracts. In practically every line, however the December situation showed more activity than during December, 1924.

PROHIBITION NOT WORKING TO M'BRIDE'S SATISFACTION

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 17—(AP)—The cause of most of the difficulties of prohibition is the fact that the majority who enacted the Volstead law are not sufficiently organized to enforce it, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, told an audience gathered here tonight to celebrate the sixth anniversary of prohibition.

"The time has come," Mr. McBride said, "when we must drive out of public life every man who is not willing to keep his oath of office and stand by the expressed prohibition policy of our country. By organization of our prohibition friends we must back up the officers elected in doing their duty to enforce the law.

"The majority who enacted prohibition means well too feebly. The liquor interests are seeking to bring back their traffic at any cost. They are willing to sacrifice our government if only they may secure a new lease on life. This assault upon our government must be met by an organization that will establish prohibition spite of its enemies.

EXPANSION IN THE GAS MANUFACTURRING INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—A notable expansion in the gas manufacturing industry of the United States in recent years is reflected in a report of the American Gas association showing that 421,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas were sold in 1925 by various companies, an increase of 16,000,000,000 feet over 1924. Sales of gas in the last five years gained one hundred billion cubic feet and in ten years have more than doubled.

Based on the record of past demands, Harry C. Abell, president of the association, said it was conservatively estimated that the industry would require $2,000,000,000 of new money during the next ten years.

"WAIST LINE" REVIVED IN LATEST FASHIONS

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The "waist line" in dress is not only being revived for women, but mere man is adopting the idea, which up to the present has been in vogue among the most smartly dressed army officers. Youths about town are now wearing double-breasted reefer coats with a sharp waist line, and the latest dress and dinner jackets are cut on the same lines. For the men afflicted with superfluous flesh the stores are selling "obesity girdles," so that they can wear clothes giving an appearance of a "waist," while "banting" has also become popular, if the obesity girdles do not give the necessary slim appearance.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS THIS WEEK BEFORE CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—While the house is approving tomorrow the $50,000 appropriation for American participation in the Geneva preliminary disarmament conference, the senate will resume consideration of the resolution for American adherence to the world court.

Talk of invoking cloture on the court discussion so as to get this issue out of the way before the tax bill is reported has begun, but it has not yet developed into a definite movement. This may come tomorrow.

The tax bill will be ready by the end of the week, but the managers want to give senators time to study it before asking for its consideration. They believe that by taking it up early in February a vote can be had before the end of that month.

The senate aluminum investigation will be resumed this week, as will the house inquiry into the alleged British monopoly of rubber. Secretary Hoover will be heard during the week on the rubber question, while officers of the federal trade commission will be examined with respect to the governmental investigation of the Aluminum company of America, in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder.

Farm legislation, particularly the crop surplus question, will occupy the attention of the house agriculture committee. The senate committee will hear officials of the New Orleans and Chicago exchanges on the Caraway bill to prohibit speculation in cotton and grain futures.

The house naval committee will hold hearings on the proposal to replace the airship Shenandoah. At the same time time the house military committee will hear Secretary Davis of the war department, on the question of the status aircraft are to have in national refense.

HOW A DOG SAVED THE LIFE OF HIS TEAMMATE

POLAND SPRING, Me., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A story of how Chinook, veteran leader of Arthur T. Walden's famous dog team, saved the life of his son and team mate, Koltag, came to light here today. The story, as learned from Walden put a new angle on the New England sled dog club derby in which Chinook led his team to an unofficial world's record of four hours, one minute and 55 seconds for 49 miles of racing here Friday and Saturday.

Friday night Walden was awakenod by Chinook, who is allowed to sleep in his room. The dog refused to lie down and finally swept off his master's bedclothes with a giant forepaw. Divining that something was wrong, Walden dressed and followed Chinook to the dog stables, where he found Koltag slowly strangling on his lead chain.

The dog had climbed to a bale of hay and had fallen off, tangling his chain about a post in such a way that his struggles drew the chain tighter about his neck. How Chinook knew he was in trouble, Walden was unable to explain unless one of Koltag's team mates started to howl and Chinook heard the call.

Koltag will replace Chinook as lead dog in the international races at Quebec this winter. He is almost an exact duplicate of his giant father and on his fathre's side is a great great grandson of Polaris, who helped drag Peary's sled to the North Pole.

STATEMENT MADE BY MOTION PICTURE BOARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Motion picture patrons are drawn from masses that are "fundamentally healthy and should not have their entertainment medicated into proper food for the sick few by every social physician who happens to come along." The National Board of Review of motion pictures asserted in a statement tonight.

The statement was in reply to criticism of "a national board of censors" made recently in congress, which the national board assumed was intended for itself, it denied the national board was a censorship organization in the strict sense of the word and asserted that it merely reflected "public opinion of the picture-going masses as accurately as possible."

Representatives French and Taber wore quoted recently as criticising in a report of the sub-committee on the navy of the appropriations committee the work of a "national board of censors" who "must have been asleep" when some pictures containing "mostly filth" and which made them "very much disgusted" were passed.

RETIRES AS CONDUCTOR AFTER 60 YEARS OF SERVICE

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A conductor who recalls the days when he wore a high hat and Prince Albert coat as part of his uniform and hiped saw wood for the locomotive fire box between trains, retires today with a record of 60 years' service in one position with the Boston and Maine railroad. He is Amos Brown of Orange, who began his work in 1853 before many of his successive superiors were born. He has served under 11 railroad presidents, ten general superintendents and 20 division superintendents. He is 77 years old.

FINAL AWARDS MADE AT WILLIMANTIC SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—After a highly successful four-day run, the poultry, pigeon and small stock show and trade exhibit came to a close at the state armory on Pleasant street, Saturday night. During the evening Professor Roy E. Jones, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, delivered an address and gave a demonstration in poultry methods to a large and interested audience. At ten o'clock, General Manager D. D. Cavanaugh thanked the merchants, the public and the various poultry, pigeon and small stock exhibitors for their generous support. He spoke on behalf of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association which conducted the show jointly under the auspices of Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National guard. The unanimous endorsement of the first annual show was most gratifying and Mr. Cavanaugh stated that the success of the innovation was such that it has already been decided to stage a second annual show in 1927.

In thanking the various exhibitors, Manager Cavanaugh made special mention of Henry J. Spooner, of Brighton, Mass., who contributed largely to the success of the show in entering hundreds of rare pigeons, highly valuable poultry and prize winning dogs. Mr. Spooner was awarded the prize for the best display of pigeons. In the poultry division the county awards for the best displays were: William H. Dennock, Jr., Tolland county; Frank E. Fitts, New London county; L. C. Capewell, Hartford county; Innes & Jones, Fairfield county and Lester G. Loomis, Windham county. John Wood received the prize for the best poultry exhibit from Massachusetts.

Early Saturday afternoon Mr. Spooner released four of his large flock of homer pigeons. It was the first time that these particular pigeons had ever been given an opportunity to return home by the air-route but their inexplicable instinct brought them back to Dighton, Mass., 67 miles by highway, in a little more than one hour. The quartet of pigeons circled about the armory to get their bearings and then disappeared, flying side by side in the northeast direction. It is estimated that they travel about one mile a minute, or 60 miles per hour, when fully under way.

Joseph Birch, of Danielson, was judge for the toy dog class which was the final class in the dog division Prize awards were as follows: Pekingese: Puppy—Mic-o Mai, Miss Mary Twomey, of this city, first.

Novice—Mio Mai.

Limit—Glen Iris Dai Morn of Lap Sung, first; Ku-Chee, second, and Tao Tai, third.

Owned by Mrs. Emslie, of North Windham.

Limit Nannie, first.

American bred—Tu Chee, Mrs. Emslie, first.

Mrs. Emslie was awarded $2.50 in gold for the best bitch and Miss Twomey was awarded the same amount for the best puppy.

Pomeranians, local dog—Buddy, M. Llapik of this city, first.

French poodles, six-week litter, 5 babies—A Fontaine, of this city.

Eleven weeks—Fudge, Mrs. Belek, first, Kelley, Mrs. Belek, second.

Novice—Teddy, Mrs. Belek, of North Windham, first.

Eleven week bitches—Peggy, Mrs Belek, first.

Six to nine months bitches—Judy, Mrs. Belek.

Novices—Judy, Mrs. Belek.

American bred—Rags, Miss Cleora Boucher, of this city, first; Judy, Mrs Belek, second.

English pug dogs, novice bitches—Princess Mary, first; Lady Betty, second, owned by Mrs. Emslie.

American bred bitches—Princess Mary, first.

Open—Lady Betty, first.

F. O. Brusbeck, of Hartford, also awarded the following prizes:

Smooth fox terriers, State's Evidence—owned by Henry Kirkpatrick, of Storrs, first prize in the novice, limit and open classes.

Chonmeis Miss Legacy—owned by Henry Kirkpatrick, first prize in the limit and open bitch classes. Mr. Kirkpatrick took all five prizes in the puppy class and won a special prize for having the best fox terrier in the show.

Boston terriers, dog puppies—Billy, first, John Connors, of this city.

Novice dogs—Buddy, first, Austin Connors, of this city.

Limit—Buddy, first; Windham Prince second, owned by Ernest Lewis, of this city; Billy, third, owned by L. G. Bechtel, of this city; Dandy, fourth, owned by Miss Veronica McQuillan, of this city; and Ted, fifth, owned by Thomas Mullen, of this city.

Open and American bred same as in limit classes.

Novice bitch—Beauty, Austin Connors of this city, first; and Betsy, owned by Miss A. Hochberg, of this city, second.

Open—Beauty, first; and Betsey, second; Peggy, Mrs. D. P. McCarthy, of this city, third.

Buddy was selected as the best Boston terrier in the show.

Bulldogs, puppy—Buster, H. C. Wiggins of this city.

Novice—Buster, Harold C. Wiggins of this city.

Eskimo Spits, puppy—Lux, John F Keegan of this city, first.

Novice—Lux, first.

Male limit—Lux, first.

American bred—Prince, Miss R Bertrand of this city, first.

Female puppies—Fall, L. Comeau, of Storrs, first.

One of the notable features of the show, which arrived late Friday night, was a four-legged and three winged Rhode Island Red, which attracted much attention. The success of the show extended to its many phases. Besides being greatly influential in promoting an interest in high-bred animals and in poultry, one of the growing industries of this section, the show proved profitable to the many trade exhibitors, who received orders for various exhibits. This outcome of the first annual show is considered remarkable in view of the youth of the Windham County Poultry association and the novelty of the movement. Much credit for the success of the affair is given to "Dan" Cavanaugh and to President Ivan M. Johanson.

POLICE RAID CUT-RATE STORE; SEIZE LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—Arthur Gaudreault, who came here from Lowell, Mass., some months ago and purchased the former Lester Scott store on lower Main street from Fred Delude, was put under $500 bonds over Sunday for his appearance in police court this Monday morning to answer to a charge of violation of the liquor law, in a raid at his store about 7 o'clock Saturday night by Chief of Police Allan McArthur. Lieutenant Frank McLean and Officers Edward P. Leahy and Grant Bombria a total of thirty-three pints of prepared alcohol "splits" were taken from the establishment. As they were about to make the raid the officers apprehended Francis Dube, of 52 Ives street, who was coming out of the Gaudreault store. Dube had a newly purchased pint of the liquor in his possession and he was notified to appear in police court Monday. The police had little difficulty in finding the liquor. In back of a bundle of linoleum they came upon three card-board boxes. The splits were in pint bottles, newly corked and ready for the market. Gaudreault has been conducting a cut-price store to compete with local merchants in the grocery line and it appears that he has been making up the difference in illegitimate profit through his illegal sale of liquor. No stated charge has been preferred against Dube.

HOLLAND MFG. CO. EMPLOYES GIVE MINSTREL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—In the presence of the officials of the local and New York office and many guests the employes of the Holland Manufacturing company staged a delightful entertainment and dance at the town hall Saturday evening. The feature of the evening was a minstrel show the talent for which was derived from the employes and which proved a credit to their stage ability.

Among the notables present were: William J. Kenney, Sr., of New York, vice president of the company; John H. Gutterson, of New York, secretary-treasurer, Edward Kenney, local superintendent; Murray Ash, of the sales department and about twenty members of the clerical force of the home office in New York.

The program of the minstrel follows: Directed by Mrs. Eileen Racicot. Pianist, Miss Blanche Caisse. Interlocutor, Franklin Sears. Bentley, Duncan McArthur, G. K. Simmons, Wilfred Coutu, Bertha Thompson, Gerard Brooks, Nettie Richmond, Loretta Lussier, Gladys Neff and Camilla Roy. Dancing to music by the Lyric orchestra followed until midnight.

Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Herbert Ralph Chappell quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 265 Prospect street, Friday, and received many friends during the afternoon and evening. Mr. and Mrs. Chappell were married at the home of Rev. William A. Fenn, Baptist minister in this city at the time, on January 15, 1876.

Former-Mayor Chappell is now 75 years of age. He was born in Providence, R. I., December 27, 1850, son of Ralph and Marie Horton Chappell. When one and one half years of age he came to South Windham with his parents. He was one of four children. His mother died in October, 1924, at Luther's Corners, Seekonk, Mass., at the age of 109 years and seven months. At the time of her death she was the oldest person in New England. Mrs Chappell, nee Webster, is now 68 years old. She was born April 27, 1857, in Lee, Mass., the daughter of Charles H., and Emily Huyck Webster and with her parents came to Willimantic at the age of twelve. After the institution of the municipal government in Willimantic, Mr. Chappell was the first alderman to represent the first ward and he was elected as the second mayor of the city. The residence at 265 Prospect street, which Mr. and Mrs. Chappell have been occupying for the past 46 years was built by Mr. Chappell's father after the style of Philadelphia houses and stands today as one of the most pretentious buildings in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chappell have both contributed largely of their time and efforts for the betterment of this community. Since he became of age Mr. Chappell has belonged to all the local Masonic bodies, is a member of the Brotherhood of the Congregational church and the Chamber of Commerce. He was formerly active in local military circles and for seven years was captain of Company E, Third Regiment, C. N. G. He was a member of Excelsior Hook and Ladder company of the old Willimantic fire department for fifteen years. On his father's side Mr. Chappell sprang from an ancestry that laid the foundation of America. His forefathers were among the first English to settle in this country one of his ancestors being John Chappell, who came from England to Boston in 1635. The Chappels fought with Washington, Israel Putnam and other heroes of the American forces in the Revolutionary war.

Mrs. Chappell is an honorary president of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church of which she was president for fifteen years. She is present regent of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., this being her third year in office. Mrs. Chappell is a descendant of Governor John Webster, one of the founders of Hartford. Her migratory ancestor came to this country in 1636 and one of her grandfathers was a Minute Man at Lexington in the Revolutionary war.

Three children were born to them and all died in infancy.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Chappell are enjoying excellent health. Mr. Chappell is still in active business. As they received their many friends Mrs. Chappell was gowned in navy blue Canton crepe brocade. During the afternoon she was assisted in the dining room by Mrs. D. B. Clark, Mrs. Frank Larrabee and Mrs. Frank M. Smith. Miss Frances Smith and Miss Faith Webster acted as ushers. In the evening Mrs. Charles F. Risedorf and Mrs. H. L. Hunt served punch and were assisted by Mrs. A. W. Segar, Mrs. C. W. Noyes, Mrs George S Elliott and Mrs. A. C. Persons. The Misses Barbara Elliott and Margaret Persons were at the door while Miss Anna Buchanan and brother A. W. Buchanan, Jr., were ushers. Mrs. Chappell's niece, Mrs. C. L. Bennett acted as mistress of ceremonies. Among the many tokens of esteem which Mr. and Mrs. Chappell received was the sum of $152.50 in gold, from friends and neighbors, $50 in gold from the Willimantic Savings Institute and officers, $50 in gold from St. John's Commandery No. 11, Knights Templar, $50 in gold from the Willimantic Building and Loan association, $10 in gold from the Windham members of the D. A. R., $5 in gold from Mr. and Mrs. Handfield, a gold wrist watch from the local D. A. R., gold etching plate from the Willington D. A. R., gold lined silver fruit dish from Mrs. Mary J. Nye of California, fountain pen, plum pudding, a box of oranges from Florida, a linen runner, beautifully embroidered by Mrs. Angeline Avery, who is a real daughter of the American Revolution and a silver and crystal sugar and cream set from Rockville friends. They were also the recipients of many beautiful pieces of cut flowers and fernery besides a shower of greeting cards and telegrams.

Ida P. Abbe, widow of Walter Abbe Sr., died at her home in Windham Center early Sunday morning. She was born October 2, 1850 in Philadelphia, Pa., a daughter of Albert S. and Elizabeth Kennard Patton. Surviving her are two sons, Walter Abbe Jr., and Alfred P. Abbe of Windham, two daughters, Elizabeth K. Abbe of Windham and Mrs. Harriet C. Lack of New York and one sister, Mrs. Guilford Smith of South Windham and three grandchildren.

Josephine W. Chafe died at her home in North Coventry about one o'clock Saturday afternoon. She was the wife of Fred W. Chafe who survives her. The deceased was born November 9, 1859, in Westfield, N. J., a daughter of Jonathan and Mary P. Downer Osborne. Besides her husband she leaves four daughters, Mrs. Bessie Wood of Talcottville, Mrs. Helen Gildner of Bloomfield, Conn., Mrs. Mary Storrs of Coventry and Mrs. Arthur Shepard of Hamden, also one son, William R. Chafe of Hartford and one sister, Mrs Fred Ten Eyck of Westfield, N. J.

The report of Mrs. Jennie R. Bath, secretary of the Ladies' Society of the Congregational church recently submitted shows an active membership of 133 with 38 honorary members and five associate members. During all-day meetings held during the year much work has been done for the welfare of needy children, St. Joseph's hospital and the Visiting Nurse association and several barrels of clothing were sent to Atlanta university. The social service committe has brought cheer into the lives of many invalids. Six thousand dollars were pledged toward the remodeling of the church. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Bell R. Riggleman as approved by Mrs. Nettie B. Jordan, auditor, shows the balance on hand, Jan. 1, 1926 to be $213.22.

John Kingsbury, the sixteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kingsbury of South Coventry was in danger of his life for a time Friday after he had swallowed a quantity of ammonia. Dr. T. G. Sloan, of Manchester, happened to be visiting in the neighborhood and in answer to the rush call he administered an antidote and had the child taken to the Manchester hospital. There a throat specialist took charge of the case. For a time it was feared that the child would not recover but timely treatment had offset the poison and the little patient is now resting quite comfortably.

John Williams, an inmate of the Windham town farm for the past eight years died at St. Joseph's hospital Friday. The deceased came here from East Hartford. Surviving him are two daughters who reside in Hartford.

At the first of a series of entertainments for the winter months was staged by St. Jean Baptist society at the town hall last Friday evening in the form of an old fashioned dance. John B. Ethridge of Eastford and his full set of four couples of champion dancers appeared in the contra and a quadrille. As captain of the set Mr. Ethridge has issued a challenge to all comers to dance for the championship of Connecticut.

Mrs. Lottie E. Gilman, deputy grand chief acted as grand senior at the installation of officers of the lodge of Pythian Sisters at Hartford last Thursday. She was assisted by Lillian Turner and Martha Sneider as grand manager.

Chairman P. S. Hills announced Saturday that the plans for the Salvation Army campaign to be conducted here later this month are practically completed and a full list of the committees is being prepared for publication. H. C. Lathrop is treasurer of the drive.

The membership of Francis S. Long Post No. 30 Grand Army of the Republican has dropped to eleven with the advent of the year 1926. At the meetings during 1925 the average attendance was six, eight members being present on one occasion. The weekly meetings have been substituted for semi-monthly sessions and the regular meeting was to have been held Saturday afternoon but Commander A. P. Benner was the only member present. The illness of members or of members of their families were given as reasons for non-attendance.

Miss Myrtice R. Tryon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Tryon has accepted the newly created position of librarian at Windham High school. She will ente rupon her new duties today (Monday.)

Joseph LaFleur of 216 Jackson street, has resigned his position with the Willimantic Chronicle and gone to Deland, Florida, where he is connected with a newspaper as a "press" foreman. Mr. LaFleur is a World War veteran and his many friends wish him success in his new field of endeavor. He was connected with the Springfield Union for some years before returning to this city.

WESTERLY

ASK FOR MONEY TO ADVERTISE WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 17—In preparation for the annual budget meeting of the Westerly town council on Thursday evening, January 28th, in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall, a preliminary budget meeting of the council fathers, together with the department committe heads of the town was held on Friday evening. Not much progress could be made for the Westerly town tax assessors were not present, from whom could be learned the town's probable income, or was a report of the John Wall Accounting company of Providence, which would show balances remaining in the various town funds and Town Treasurer Pendleton did not know what probable interest charges or what the state tax would amount to.

A vote was passed granted the Westerly's United Theatre of America a license subject to the approval of Westerly Building Inspector George E. Egger. The fee was placed at $100 a year.

Another vote passed was the continuance of the committee of the council, Isaac G. Smith and Thomas Moore, to which was added Rogers E. Trainer, to look into the advisability of the town of Westerly adopting the proposed system set up by John Wall & Company, Providence and the employing of a town bookkeeper and auditor. This committee is to report at the next council meeting. Action in the payment of Wall & Company's bill for $665 for services in the installation of a system of town accounting, contracted for by the old town council, for a period of seven months at $95 a month, was again deferred.

Isaac G. Smith at the close of the council session devoted a considerable time to explaining the proposed system to the councilmen. They were agreed that there were elements, which request its immediate adoption or rejection. Going over the Wall contract hastily it developed that it did not call for instruction to department heads but for instructing assistant Town Treasurer Miss Quinlan. In this connection it developed that the town clerk's order for payment was not o. k'd. by the town treasurer. It is reported that Westerly town auditors have shown an unwillingness to go over town accounts as affected by the new system's adoption. Another factor that has developed is the possible requirement of state legislation to bring the Westerly Highway department and school-affairs into the new system unless there is a voluntary agreement on the part of these department. The discussion narrowed down to two questions, first, that the form of appropriation to be recommended to the town of Westerly financial meeting next February should conform with the new system, if the system was to be adopted: secondly, the question of employing a town auditor, who would exercise the duties of his office at an estimated salary of $1,800 to $2,000.

All the councilmen were present when President Nichols stated that the session was but a preliminary one to get some idea of what the various department of the town would require as running expenses for the year to come.

Thomas Perry for the school committee asked for $145,500 or an increase of $12,000 over last year. Some figures given by him were $10,400 increase in salaries; $7,000 increase in teachers tenures; $3,000 increase in salaries, beginning in September; $400 janitors; $315 dental clinic; $60 medical care and $700 transportation with $50 for high school students and $500 for evening schools a decrease from last year.

Charles F. Berry for the Westerly Highway department said that completed schedules had not been made up but that the highway department was entirely out of debt. Twenty-three thousand represented the indebtedness at the beginning of last year caused by purchasing old electric car barn, repairing Boom and Stillmanville bridges and $125,000 would be required for the year to come considering the present situation of the highways from sewerage installation.

Oliver P. Crandall, director of public aid, asked for $7,000, saying that last year about $150 of bills remained unpaid. An electric icebox, costing $250 would be a money saving investment at the Westerly town farm, and for the year to come $500 was asked for for hospital bills.

Arthur L. Perry for the Westerly Zoning board asked for $900 for secretary's salary and gave figures to show that 160 permits were granted from July 1 to December 1st while forty were refused. Much detail work requiring time and attention was needed. Later in the meeting it was recommended that his figure be put into the list for town officers.

Daniel F. Larkin for the Westerly Chamber of Commerce asked for $2,000 for town advertising, saying that Newport was the only other place in the state which had the necessary enabling legislation.

Other requirements would be $20,000 payment of bonds, $200 Memorial day observance, $175 public library books, $100 band concerts, $200 county agricultural society and $200 South County Poultry association, and many other accounts, which will be taken up in detail, at the next budget meeting.

The Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist Sabbath school held its annual meeting in the church auditorium on Saturday noon at the regular Sabbath school session. The report of Treasurer Alexander Austin was heard. Chairman John H. Austin, of the nominating committee, read the list of officers which was elected as follows: Superintendent, Samuel H. Davis; assistant superintendent and song leader, Dr. Edwin Whitford; treasurer, Alexander Austin; organist, Emma Crandall; secretary, Munson Gavitt.

Superintendent of Primary and Intermediate departments, Mrs. Alert H. Langworthy; assistant superintendent of primary and intermediate department, Ruth V. Davis; superintendent of home department, Mrs. William Grant.

Under the auspices of Pawcatuck Lodge, No. 90 F. & A. M., of Pawcatuck, an entertainment was given at the Masonic Home at Wallingford, on Saturday evening, when those who made their homes there were entertained by the members of the Grace Methodist Church Minstrel club of Westerly. Departure was taken shortly after noon from the Westerly Masonic club, when eight automobiles with masons and minstrel troupe to the number of forty-two made the trip. A presentation of a box of cigars was made to each man at the home and a box of candy to the women.

Westerly Public Library is to supply a service to out of town residents and to those in the town unable to visit the library, when, by the deposit of $1 for postage charges, books may be obtained by parcel post, which have been written or telephoned for. Books so borrowed may be kept 28 days instead of the fourteen as formerly, with the exception of new fiction. Books of nonfiction and old editions may be renewed once upon application.

For the first time in over two years in Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox on Saturday morning was held a jury trial of a civil suit brought to collect balance of wages alleged due. Frank T. Saunders, for many years a resident of Westerly, who now resides with William B. Ledward, 75 Elm street, Stonington, by whom he is employed, brought suit to collect a balance of $89.00 which he claimed was due him for his services as farm hand for Harry R. Mitchell of Wequetequock. The bill of particulars filed in common court set out that Saunders was employed at Wequetequock from Jan. 13, 1925 to Sept. 15th of the same year at the rate of $25 a month or a total of $195.00 of which $96 was paid leaving a balance of $99.00 due the plaintiff. The defendant claimed that from time to time various payments had been made the plaintiff totalling $186.50, leaving a balance due of $8.50 which he was willing to pay, the question of services rendered being not questioned by either party to the suit.

Of the six jurymen under summons, Albert A. Haley, Old Mystic; Cornelius B. Crandall, Stonington Borough; William Martin, Pawcatuck; Frank W. Lamphere, Mystic; Lloyd H. Chesebrough, Wequetequock; and Mason Manning of Mystic, Mr. Manning was reported ill and Lloyd Chesebrough, cousin of the defendant was challenged and excused. Court Officer John Jeffery of Mystic was sent out to secure additional jurymen. He secured Frank O. Grandy who was challenged and excused. When plaintiff's attorney Hewitt saw the court officer consulting with excused juror Chesebrough, he called him to the bench and the court officer was directed to secure jurors outside the building. After the court had been delayed three quarters of an hour, the officer returned with Eugene Perkins and Billings Fairbrother, the latter being secured in his shop clothes. The jury was sworn by Clerk A. G. Martin and trial began, but not until a bond of $100 as surety for costs was given with William Ledward as surety, despite Hewitt's objections.

After a lengthy hearing, a number of witnesses appeared for both sides, the jurymen left the hall for the town court room at a quarter of twelve. They were out less than fifteen minutes when they returned and Foreman Cornelius B. Crandall announced that they had arrived at a decision. Clerk Martin read the finding, which was for the plaintiff to recover $8.67 damages, without costs of court. Judge Wilcox told the jurymen that they had no jurisdiction in court costs and directed them to return to the jury room. In a few minutes the jurymen were back and announced that they had struck out of their finding, without costs of court.

Charles A. Morgan and Joseph U. McFarland returned to Westerly on Sunday afternoon from New York.

Westerly Sanitary Corps held its seventh annual meeting in the state armory on Dixon street on Friday night when after the reports of the secretary and treasurer had been read the following officers were elected for the year 1926: President, Raymond Mitchell; first vice president, Archie Meikle; second vice president, Clarence A. Stenhouse; secretary, Charles H. Davey; treasurer, Charles D. Maxson; board of governors, William A. Maxwell, Alexander Greig, J. Henry Burk, Robert Meikle and Benjamin A. Peabody, Jr.

From the beginning of the ambulance service on Dec. 17, 1919, until 1921, there were 99 cases. The present system of ambulance service subscriptions was put into effect in 1921. Prior to that time cases were paid for at the rate of 25 cents a mile, while was inadequate for the maintenance of the service. Of the 99 cases handled by the Sanitary Corps prior to 1921, 51 were paid cases which brought receipts of $937.97. The other 18 were charity, Red Cross and American Legion cases.

On Saturday afternoon 3:45 o'clock the funeral of Etta Geer Corey, wife of Horace S. Corey was held from the home of Charles H. Gavitt, 46 Granite street. Rev. Lewis A. Walker officiated. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends of the deceased. During the service Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs sang, "Shall We Meet Beyond the River?" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

"Those bilious headaches can be prevented"

"I know how agonizing they are. For years I was a chronic sufferer.

"And the headaches were not the worst part of it. The strong drugs I used to take to relieve the pain upset my stomach and slowly but surely undermined my general health.

"Finally I found out that my headaches were due to constipation. My doctor advised Nujol. After taking it regularly a few weeks the trouble disappeared.

"Since then I have never had another headache. There is no reason why I should, for the cause has been corrected."

Nujol Corrects Constipation in Nature's Way

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply softens the waste matter and thus permits regular and thorough elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is gentle, safe and natural in its action.

You can take Nujol for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

DANIELSON

McDANIEL ASS'T TREAS. GOODYEAR MILLS, INC.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—At a meeting in Akron, O., of the directors of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town Ira A. McDaniel was elected assistant treasurer of the corporation. This is pleasing news to the great many who have come to know Mr. McDaniel since he first came to this town late in January, 1920, to fill a position at the Goodyear mills.

Mr. McDaniel has been the cashier of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., for a number of years. In his new position he succeeds Herman M. Coulter, who was transferred from Danielson the past year to be the assistant treasurer of the Devon mills, owned at New Bedford by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. While Mr. Coulter has been assistant treasurer of both the Goodyear Mills, Inc., and the Devon mills the past year, Mr. McDaniel has been directing the finances at Goodyear, a duty for which he is eminently well qualified, in the great Goodyear corporation there is but one treasurer. The corporation's subsidiaries have assistant treasurers in each instance, so Mr. McDaniel's advancement is an important one. He is a resident of Danielson.

ALL DO NOT FAVOR NEW PARKING PLAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—On Saturday William S. Brown made known that he will seek to have the court of burgesses continue the no parking arrangement that has been in force for years along the frontage of the Attawaugan hotel, of which he is the owner and landlord. By vote of the borough fathers the past week the no parking arrangement in a section of Main street that the hotel fronts is to be abrogated during the coming month.

Mr. Brown is very much opposed to this arrangement, desiring that the hotel frontage be continued as a no parking area. He explains that he regards the coming change as detrimental to his interests and injurious to his business, for with a string of parked cars fronting the house all day, arriving guests traveling by motor will be put to inconvenience in leaving their cars and transferring their baggage to or from the hotel. Further, Mr. Brown regards as an advantage to his business the fact that north-bound motor coaches of the Connecticut company made their Danielson center stop to leave and take on passengers in front of the hotel. Again, he regards it as good policy for Danielson to provide adequate arrangements for the Connecticut company coaches Danielson center stop.

Mr. Brown is not concerned with the viewpoint of other business men in the immediate vicinity who feel that they want the no-parking ban on that area lifted. He is seeking only that the vote of the court of burgesses the past week be modified to allo wthe no-parking rule to stand as regards the hotel frontage. He points out that most hotel frontages the country over are kept free for the special use of guests or for the greater accommodation of the general public in preference to give the owners of private cars the right to park as they will under whatever restrictions may prevail as to time limits.

The standing committee of Westfield Congregational church for 1926 is as follows: Harry E. Back, Arthur G. Bill, Frederick A. Jacobs, Miss Louise Danielson, Sabin S. Russell, Walter Anderson, Abner H. Young, Albert Fiske, Miss Miriam Boomhower, Mrs. James H. Barnet, Irving W. Davis, Mrs. F. E. Cunneen, Mrs. William K. Litch, William E. Pike and Mrs. Albert S. Field.

To the many who have inquired about the matter, it may be related that no arrangements have been made yet for the annual charity ball of Putnam lodge of Elks. The past two years this event has been held at the state armory here. Because of the fact that repairs are underway at the armory, it is not available for such affairs during January and February. There is a possibility that the ball will be held after the Lenten season. Though a formal ball may not be held in the armory for a few weeks, dances can be held there as usual.

Rising temperature went a long way toward ruining the coasting in Danielson for the young people on Sunday. However, they have had a little more than a full week of this exhilirating outdoor sport and have made the most of their opportunities.

It would appear that Florida is not a land of milk and honey for all who go there. Two Danielson men who went south late in the fall find themselves in the promised land, but with no work to do. While seeking employment in and about marvelous Miami and living in a poorly constructed house the rental of which is $50 a month, they have ample opportunity to think of many things, not as they supposed they were, but as they are.

Frank J. G. Bailey has been elected a deacon of the Westfield Congregational church to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Theodore E. Hammett. Deacons re-elected are George Danielson and George B. Guild. Officers of the church for the ensuing year are: Clerk, Miss Marion D. Cholar; assistant clerk, Miss Caroline Danielson; treasurer, Roland H. Gray; collector, Mrs. Esther Jacobs; assistant collector, Mrs. J. H. Smith; auditor, A. M. Thompson.

At a meeting Saturday of the directors of the Windham County National bank officers who have served the bank during the past year were in each instance re-elected. These officers are Nathan D. Prince, president, Francis E. Storer, cashier and Frank J. G. Bailey, assistant cashier.

A Boston paper, publishing a photograph of the couple, tells of the marriage of Mrs. Elisabeth Matthews Richardson, a widow, 54, and Rev. Stanley W. Graf, 34, a Congregational pastor of Chicago. Mrs. Graf was a resident of Danielson a number of years while her father was filling a pastorate in Danielson and she is well remembered by many here.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church to have been held on Friday evening was deferred until Sunday evening, when reports were presented covering the activities of the past year in various departments of the church and elections made for the ensuing year.

Tenement to rent, corner of Broad and Reynolds street. Apply at 41 Main street, Danielson.—adv.

On Saturday A. A. Bonneville purchased through George Foote of Southbridge, the Dexter property on the corner of Broad and Reynolds streets, one of the finest residential locations in Danielson. Mr. Bonneville said Sunday that he purchased the property as an investment. He formerly lived in the house. He is to rent the property, retaining his present residence on Main street.

Such a very happy evening was enjoyed by those who attended the Alumni hop at the high school building Friday evening that, in response to the requests of those present, the officers and executive committee of the Alumni association have arranged to hold a Valentine dance the second week in February. Friday evening the assembly hall was decorated to represent a snow scene and the effect was very pretty.

Having purchased of Ernest R. Warren, his house on Hawkins street, the Ecclesiastical society of the Westfield Congregational church is having repairs and alternations made to, fit it for a parsonage to replace the one the society sold sometime since to Masonic bodies of Danielson for a Masonic home. The new pastor, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of New Haven, is to begin his pastorate here on the first Sunday in February.

From the state motor vehicle department come reminders that operators' licenses expire on February 28.

Danielson people are going to have an opportunity to hear the playing of "Fiddling Joe" Shippee, New England champion, this week.

Walter A. Williamson of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson over the week end.

Major E. L. Darbie, in charge of special troops of the 43rd division, has enlisted eight men who will have their headquarters at the Danielson state armory and largely engaged with clerical work, though they will be required to engage in regular drills, on Thursday evenings.

Work on harvesting the ice crop at Quinebaug lake was completed early Sunday afternoon. Approximately 4,000 tons have been placed in the four houses, which are filled to capacity. Much of the ice is 11 1-2 inches thick, two inches heavier than the first of the crop stored the early part of the week. The ice is as good as has been harvested in many years at this plant.

Thomas dry goods store—20 per cent. off on entire stock for 10 days. Call early, Jan. 15-25.—adv.

Train changes on the New Haven road through Danielson, as announced last week, are in effect today. Something for travelers to remember if they would make certain of getting away to their destination as planned.

An occasional case of scarlet fever develops in this territory, as has been the case since early fall, but the cases are not and have not been numerous.

Henry A. Pelletier of Southbridge was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

From his herd of pure-bred Holstein cattle at his Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan W. S. Brown has sold a bull to the state of Massachusetts.

After a trip to New York, Ignazio Longon has abandoned his plan for a three months' trip to Italy and has returned here.

Migrations

A quickening of the currents of migration by the repercussions of a world war is everywhere in evidence. America has enacted under a mask of numerical quotas what is in form a quantitive, but in effect a qualitative immigration-restriction measure; the center of European emigration to the United States has been shifted sharply northward and westward. But the political impetus that put this bill through congress sprang from a quantitative consideration: the labor vote wanted American jobs protected from an imminent influx of European jobfinders. South American countries on the other hand encourage immigration to make good their labor shortages. To fill their armies, European countries discourage emigration: Everywhere, quantitative considerations are uppermost and ruling. But this absorbing human question, this problem of migration, has been stripped wrong end to, immigration and emigration, except for short sharp ebbs and flows, have no quantitative bearing; the problem they present is mainly one of qualities.—Professor Ezra Bowen, of Lafayette College, in the Scientific Monthly.

DR. CATHERINE PECKHAM FALLS AND BREAKS HIP

PUTNAM, Jan. 17—Dr. Catherine Peckham, 84, fell and broke her hip last night at the home of her nephew, Whitman Danielson, at Putnam Heights. Because of her age the injury is considered very serious. In her early life she practiced medicine at Cambridge, Mass., and at Providence, R. I. For the past 30 years she has made her home with Mr. Danielson, who is prominent among business men here.

REPORT SHIPPEE GETS $400 A WEEK FROM KEITH'S

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 17—The old fiddlers' contest for the championship of Windham county is coming along at a rapid rate. Four have already "signed up". They are Gus Tetreault, of Putnam; Henry Pray, of Baileyville, George Oscar Ross, of Putnam, and Jonathan Whitford, of Eastford.

Favorable answers are expected from the following: "Billy" Smith, of Phoenixville; Eugent Cote, of Willimantic; Jerome Shippee, Vernon Warren, R. L. Bullard and George T. Whittemore, all of Putnam, and possibly "Joe" Shippee, of Plainfield, who won first honors at Providence. But as Mr. Shippee has received $375 for three nights at Keith's in Norwich, last week, and is to cover the entire Keith circuit at $400 a week, according to the statements sent out by his publicity agent, he will probably be among the missing.

A citizens' meeting has been called for Friday evening of this week at the High school auditorium to discuss the proposal to build an addition to the State Trade school. The matter has been under an investigation by a committee appointed for that purpose which will make a report at that meeting.

The Trade school has shown a steady increase in the number of its pupils since the close of the war, or at least since 1919, and has insufficient room to take care of more students. There is an evening class which meets four nights a week and there are also summer classes when other public schools are closed.

Master Joseph Epps, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Epps, of New York city, and grandson of Mrs. Ella Tatton of Lamont street, this city, is seen in a one-reel picture "Haveahcart" which has recently been shown in this vicinity. The picture was filmed at New London and Master Joseph is the only child in the cast.

The "Live Wire" Sunday school class was entertained Friday evening by Billy and Thomas Jones, Jr., at their home on Main street. The special feature of the evening was the presence of Jack Cronin, football star of Boston college, who entertained the boys with a pleasant talk. Refreshments were served by Mrs. L. Thomas Jones, mother of the Jones boys.

The police have not yet discovered who stole the Ford car from Livery street last Wednesday. The car itself was found on a little used road near Woodstock, stripped of everything of value that the thief or thieves were able to carry away.

Dr. Francis H. Olin, who died of pneumonia at his home in Southbridge on Friday, practiced his professino in Putnam for a year after graduating from the University of Michigan in 1881. He then moved to East Woodstock, where he remained for about twelve years in the practice of his profession before going to Southbridge. He has had a large practice in Southbridge and has continued to practice at Woodstock. He is survived by his wife. Burial was in Southbridge, Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Olin was a 32nd degree mason and was always prominent in the organization.

Leonard Beausoliel, U. S. N., who has been spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Beausoliel, of the Sawyer district, has returned to his duties on the U. S. S. Antares at Norfolk, Virginia, and will sail this week, on a cruise to Cuba.

Miss Helen Ryan, of Washington, D. C., has been the guest of Mrs. M. H. Delaney, on Main street.

Chandler Morse, son of Attorney and Mrs. E. C. Morse, of Seward street, is again on the baseball squad of the Amherst college team. He made his letter in his freshman and sophomore years.

Manager George B. Johnson has planned a most enjoyable evening for all who attend.

Mrs. Ellery Burdick, president of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church, planned a pleasant surprise for the members when they met for their last meeting at her home on Greenmanville avenue. They found the table in the dining room decorated and an excellent supper was served. After luncheon all had a social time and were engaged in sewing for the society.

At St. Patrick's church Sunday morning masses were celebrated at 8.30 and 10.30 o'clock. The benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the last mass.

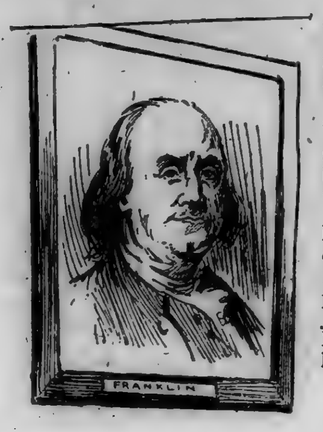
The postponed meeting of the world wide guild of the Baptist church is to be held this (Monday) evening at the home of Miss Jessie Fish on New London road. Mrs. Adella B. Gray has charge of the program and the subject is on the Philippines.

At the elections to the Sheffield Scientific school societies, at Yale University announced last Friday, included among the three Connecticut men was Stuart C. Knox, '25, elected to Chi Phi and York. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Knox, 35 High street, Mystic.

A pearl pin is to be given to the member who secures the greatest number of new members in the W. C. T. U. during the year. The pin will be presented at the state meeting next October. One member of the local union has secured six members.

Miss Sarah Smith, R. N., has gone to New York where she will be engaged at her profession.

A Day For Success and Happiness



Today is Thrift Day, the day following the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin and the second day of National Thrift Week for Success and Happiness.

Thrift is wise planning, wise saving, wise spending. Thrift is a mighty means of bringing success and happiness to you and to your family.

Decide now that Thrift will guide your course during the next year, and January 18, 1927, should see you not only more prosperous but happier and more contented. Join in the celebration of Thrift Week—follow its teachings. See for yourself how Thrift helps.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

HOME-GROWN SEED NEEDS CLEANING

Farmers in many sections of the country have been the victims of their own home-grown seed. Not that the seed was of poor quality, but because of the lack of proper cleaning he sowed as many weeds as he did grain or forage seed when he planted this home-grown seed. Home-grown seed has one great advantage—the farmer knows that it is adapted to his vicinity, but he often makes a great mistake in planting it, before it has been properly cleaned.

Experiment station and seed house laboratories often receive supplies of home-grown seed that are practically worthless because they contain as high as 50 per cent or more of weed seeds. These weed seeds have been harvested each year with the field crop and sown again until the fields have become heavily weed infested. It is in such bad shape that it would require expert recleaning to class as good second grade in the commercial way.

When the farmer has no fanning mill or other apparatus for cleaning and recleaning home-grown seed, he should send it to some of the big firms which have highly developed machinery to perform the cleaning and recleaning effectively and quickly. These plants are available in all large seed markets of the country.

The use of home-grown seeds without proper cleaning is one of the most frequent methods of distributing noxious weeds over the country that is known. One planting of seed of this quality on a farm previously clean will give the farmer several seasons of work to eradicate the pests and weeds that come in.

The necessity for recleaning of home-grown seeds cannot be too heavily emphasized. Several states have reported through their experiment stations of the heavy weed seed percentage in home-grown seed and have advised the farmers that they either should send it to some seed house for recleaning or that it should not be planted at all.

FROST FORECAST SERVICE HAS UNUSUAL APPLICATIONS

Where alfalfa is grown as a major industry it is desirable to harvest it at the latest possible time to insure full maturity of the seeds. They must not, however, encounter frost. It is the custom, therefore, in Utah and other alfalfa growing regions to keep in close touch with the local weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture as the season nears its end. A special frost-warning service is maintained where conditions warrant it. Growers in these regions have in readiness sufficient men and machinery to harvest the crop with extreme speed between the first prediction of approaching frost and the actual drop in temperature.

In a similar way in Louisiana, on the sugar-cane plantations, the Weather Bureau officials aid planters by furnishing warnings of the approach of frost in time to permit the cutting of the cane. The longer the cane can safely stand the higher the sugar content, so it is of considerable economic importance that these forecasts should be dependable.

In the Mobile district in Alabama, winter cabbage raising is a large industry. Cabbage fields may extend over areas of 400 acres or more. The cabbages are planted in loose soil, and while they are not easily injured by frost, a severe freeze would cause very great damage. Growers are given warnings in time for them to send men into the fields to turn over some of the loose soil, so that it covers and protects the growing cabbages. When the freeze is over the soil is raked off and the cabbages grow as usual.

PLANS FOR THE BREEDING SEASON

The earlier chicks are easier to breed, easier to rear, and will make better breeding stock to us the following season. Old hens for breeding should have been carefully selected in September and October, and now be recovering from their molt.

Another and final culling should take place about the first of January. All birds that are very thin in flesh, or that have not come through the molt satisfactorily, should be discarded—unless they are exceptionally high producers that laid very late.

Electric lights may be turned on the old hens the first of January if hatching eggs are wanted during the latter part of the month.

Well-matured, carefully selected pullets may be used for breeding with satisfactory results. It is more a question of the care that you use in selection, and the methods of care and management that have been practiced, than whether old hens or pullets shall be used for breeders.

Careful selection of male birds for the breeding pen is decidedly more important than the selection of females. The possibility of transmitting high or low production, favorable or unfavorable characteristics, etc., is tied up in a comparatively few individuals—and these should be the very best obtainable.

The best male birds are those which have all of the desirable characteristics that can be determined through careful inspection and handling, and, back of that, a pedigree record which shows a consistently high producing family.

The number of male birds required for any given mating varies somewhat with the breed and the strain, but in general it is safe to say that too large a number of male birds are used. Fewer male birds and better male birds will give more profitable returns. It is an accepted fact that less males are required when flocks are on range. When considering large matings, this is probably due (at least in part) to the fact that the different males have a chance to work separately, uninterrupted.

Erecting low fences or other obstructions in the breeding pen, which will allow the different males to separate with small groups of hens, will greatly improve fertility during the season of necessary confinement.

If careful attention is given to the above details, one male for each 20 hens for the Mediterranean breeds, and one male to each 15 hens with the American breeds should give satisfactory results.

MILK PLANT COURSE

A short course for beginners in milk plant operation will be given at Storrs college from Jaunary 4 to January 15, 1926. The course is limited to 15 and will be repeated from January 25 to Feburary 6 if applications warrant.

The course is primarily for beginners who need to know the best practices in milk handling and manufacturing and the reasons for such practices. It will include lectures, demonstration talks and much practice in the laboratory.

MANY SNAKES DESERVE PROTECTION

Contrary to popular belief, most common snakes are neither obnoxious nor poisonous, says the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. The prevalent dread of snakes is due largely to the fear of such venomous species as the cottonmouth moccasin, the copperhead, the rattlesnake, the massasauga, and the coral snakes. Although these poisonous snakes have no place in a settled country, and efforts should be made to eradicate them, yet most common snakes are beneficial in their food habits and should be protected.

Wherever snakes are present in abnormally large numbers there must be an abundance of living animal food in the vicinity to attract them. This food consists largely of injurious rodents and insects, pests of garden crops and stored foodstuffs. Snakes eat such small living creatures as earthworms, spiders, grasshoppers, salamanders, small frogs, mice, rats, chipmunks, and young rabbits. King snakes are able to kill rattlesnakes, and have been known to eat them. The little red-bellied snake subsists to a large extent on slugs, which are very destructive to gardens. Bull snakes and gopher snakes destroy large numbers of injurious rodents in the course of a year.

The food habits of very few snakes conflict with man's interests. Water snakes feed largely on small fish, but not as a rule on species used as food by man. The moon or queen snake eats crawfish and toads. The black snake and coach-whip snake destroy a certain number of ground-nesting birds, particularly quail and eggs in the nest, and have been known to eat young chickens and even young pheasants. Local campaigns for the destruction of these and of poisonous snakes may be desirable in many districts, and clubbing and shooting are, so far as known, the only successful methods of eradication. No successful apparatus for snaring snakes has ever been devised, and most species seem immune to poison gases.

Famed Vase Destroyed

Considerable mystery surrounds the destruction of what is known as the "Farnese vase," a famous and beautiful objet d'art that has been housed, for generations in the Naples National Museum. The vase was found lying in a hundred fragments on the floor of the museum, and the police investigation has been fruitless. The four custodians of that part of the museum have been arrested, however, on the faint suspicion that one of them may have dashed the precious relic to the floor as a protest against low wages. The Farnese vase has long been considered priceless and is irreplaceable.

Feel Splendid! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, bilious, constipated, sick!

One or two pleasant candy-like "Cascarets" taken any time will mildly stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will both look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed. Your head will be clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink and your skin rosy.

Because "Cascarets" never gripe or sicken, it has become the largest selling laxative in the world.

THRIFT WEEK

Any effort that is put forth as an aid to the individual is at least entitled to a hearing. Whatever can be done to overcome certain existing conditions ought to get a response. It has been long said that if a thing is worth having it is worth working for, and inasmuch as the product of thrift is quite generally desired the movement to such a goal should get a general participation.

This is National Thrift week and the aim is to get more people to help themselves through wise buying, systematic saving, careful planning and the avoidance of waste. In spite of all the many excellent examples that are to be found, the most difficult task may be to convince some people that such action actually pays. They have become grounded in the practice of spending without regard for the future and without much regard for value received. They have plunged whenever the lure was strong enough, been bitten and yet seem unable to resist temptation when it appears again. There are others who think that their mistakes should be made good by others. Some think that they should not work but look to others for a living and some seem to like to produce new proof that what is easily obtained is quickly spent, and then when different conditions prevail they want someone to listen to their hard luck tales.

The success creed of the thrift movement has been offered as follows: Work and earn, make a budget, record all expenditures, keep a bank account, carry life insurance, own your own home, make a will, invest in safe securities, pay bills promptly and share with others, and these are all matters which should get individual attention and respect.

There should be an abandonment of the idea that thrift means being stingy or becoming a miser. It means making the best possible use of what is at hand, looking to the future and making preparations for the rainy day that each one can anticipate. The importance of thrift should be recognized before it is too late.

THE TAX BILL

As the result of the compromise effected in the senate finance committee the tax bill will soon be before the upper house of congress. How long will be occupied in discussing it is problematical, but it ought not to be delayed. With the senate committee increasing the tax cut $22,000,000 above that of the house it is to be realized that if the provisions are adopted as reported by the committee it will be necessary to effect a reconciliation between the senate and the house bills. An increase in the cut by $22,000,000 is far different from the talk that was indulged in of making the reduction total $400,000,000 or possibly $500,000,000. An adjustment of such a difference might be quickly effected and yet if the senate waits to act upon its bill until the middle of February and the conference committee requires an unknown amount of time in coming to an understanding, it can be appreciated that it will leave a small period in which the internal revenue department must get out its blanks and arrange the details for the collection of the tax which will be due the middle of March.

The well developed effort to delay the tax bill has apparently been upset by the reaction which was shown by the country. It was a mistake to employ any such tactics in view of the results of such action in the last legislature and the public demands for a sane and sensible reduction in taxation. The attempt to bid for political preference was ill conceived and while it might have delayed action for an indefinite time it would have been the worst kind of a blunder. This has evidently been brought home to those who were leading such a movement. Early and sound action is what has been demanded throughout the country and it is what congress should hasten to give.

Even for the convenience of the taxpayer who must inform himself about such changes as will have been made in the revenue bill, final action cannot come too soon.

GERMANY'S PROTEST

It was only a short time ago that elation was being shown in Germany over the withdrawal of the allied forces from the Cologne bridgehead. It was in keeping with the agreements that had been made and was relied upon to create a better feeling between the nations that were involved in the recent war. It was a move calculated to advance the interests of a peaceful neighborhood.

But if we are to judge by the recent statement of the German foreign minister it has failed to accomplish what was expected. As the result the Locarno agreement and the retirement of the allied forces at Cologne Germany was to ask for admission to the league of nations, but now Dr. Stresemann is pointing out that the troops which were removed from Cologne have not gone home but have been transferred to another point in the Rhineland. Thus there are just as many British troops in the Rhine region as there has been since those taken from Cologne were not ordered home but shifted to another point.

With the evacuation of the Cologne sector it doesn't seem unjust to believe that Germany was justified in expecting that the British forces maintained in that region would be reduced by just that number. Certainly it cannot be expected that Germany is going to have its confidence in the allied countries increased if such a practice is to be resorted to. Any move of that character on the part of Germany to the allies would call forth just denunciation, and it is only natural that Germany should hasten to make the most of it in the way of a protest when it gets the chance.

Inasmuch as Germany had believed that it was going to get the benefit of the reduced occupational forces its decision to wait for a while before joining the league of nations is by no means strange. It will be interesting to note whether the protest bears early fruit or whether the situation is permitted to cause further friction between the European countries. There should be no thought of the latter development.

STANDING BY PERSHING

Just as it was expected that he would, President Coolidge supports the position which General Pershing has taken as chairman of the plebiscite commission at Arica. This means of course that the president does not find a just cause for the recent protest that was made by Chile and upholds the report which General Pershing has made concerning the conditions with which he has been forced to deal in attempting to settle the dispute.

While the job of peace maker is not a happy one the position of chairman of the plebiscite has apparently been made a particularly disagreeable one. Undertaking to deal fairly with a situation where there is a constant effort to obtain special advantages by foul means if not by fair is not a pleasant task. It shows slight appreciation by those directly concerned for the services that are being rendered. It is a time when every bit of assistance possible should be given to aid a fair decision, but if General Pershing felt that it was the time to talk he might disclose conditions which pointed in just the opposite direction. And it has been by no means one sided. The efforts by one side have simply served to stimulate retaliation by the other.

General Pershing is no doubt glad to leave the whole affair in the hands of another, especially since he has also been obliged to contend with poor health. It doesn't indicate a desirable job for another, but he can appreciate the fact nevertheless that he has the full backing of President Coolidge in carrying out the Pershing policies.

GREECE'S DEBT

That is an interesting contention that is put forth by the Greek government concerning the funding of the loan that was made to it by this country. Greece points out that this country agreed to loan $48,000,000 and did loan $15,000,000 but has not turned over the remaining $33,000,000 and inasmuch as it has not completed its agreement with Greece that country is not ready to promise that it will pay even the $15,000,000 that it has.

In connection with the debt funding negotiations with other countries it has been pointed out that there would be no further loans until an adjustment of the present ones was obtained. Invariably following the settlements that have been arranged loans have been floated through private sources with the approval of the government.

That, it would seem, would be the logical course for Greece to take. Certainly if it is not willing to make arrangements to pay the money that it has borrowed it cannot expect to obtain any more, and it ought to realize that it is placing itself in a weak position when it undertakes to argue that way. If it wants to get an additional amount of credit, or the remainder of the credit it sought some time ago, it should appreciate the fact that nothing helps in such a direction like the display of a willingness to pay. Greece may be willing to adjust its debt but it makes a very poor impression by insisting upon getting further into debt before ever agreeing to settle what it now owes. Greece is standing in its own light.

EDITORIAL NOTES

How far off is the day when all automobile drivers will respect laws and regulations.

We have now passed the half way point in January and can begin to think of welcoming spring.

The man on the corner says: It looks as if the ground hog would have a big gallery this year.

Monkeying with bank funds is much like monkeying with the buzz saw. Injuries are inevitable and painful.

The policeman who goes out and captures eight men singlehanded must have some sort of a zipper equipment.

It will be well to watch those Britishers. First thing we know they will be trying to take the elasticity out of rubber.

If Mexico were as eager to protect the interests of foreigners as it is to punish bandits there would be no protests forwarded.

The fact that the parsnip acreage of eastern Massachusetts is to be increased opens up an opportunity for an increased sale of butter.

It was rather tough to go to Borneo and not be able to see the eclipse but many an explorer has sought the pole without getting a glimpse of it.

Henry Ford's plan to change the highway near his Sudbury house apparently sees disadvantages in having "a house by the side of the road" under present day conditions.

The government has obtained authority through the courts to levy on property of Gerald Chapman to the extent of a million dollars and interest. But what chance is there of Chapman having anything?

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Lemons will keep and not dry up if kept in a jar of water.

Melted butter is a very good substitute for olive oil in salad dressing.

Ivory knife handles may be whitened by rubbing with half a lemon dipped in salt.

When cooking vegetables never allow the water to stop boiling while they are in the saucepan.

To remove white spots from varnished furniture hold a hot iron or plate a little above them until they disappear.

Foods that easily absorb strong orders, or foods with strong odors should be wrapped in waxed paper before being placed in the ice-box.

Boiling water is as helpful in cleaning fish as fowl. Pour boiling water over the scales of a fish until they curl. They may then be scraped off easily and will not scatter.

When lemons become dry, immerse them in cold water. They will soon become quite soft and ready to use.

When brooms become soiled they may be cleansed by dipping them into a bucket of water to which a little ammonia has been added.

If you clean brass with salt and vinegar be sure to wash the article afterward in hot water, then polish with whiting and rub well with a soft dry towel.

If your furnace fire goes out don't go to the bother of cleaning out the furnace. A fire built on the top of the ashes will burn well. When it gets a good start shake down the ashes.

A bowl placed directly on ice is likely to slip and spill the contents. To avoid this place a rubber ring, like those used on preserve jars, on the ice, then place the bow on the ring. This will prevent slipping.

A black marble clock may be polished by cleaning with cold water and soap. Then rub dry with a flannel and polish with white wax applied with a piece of flannel.

Be very careful to keep the lids of saucepans perfectly clean. The flavor of one dish may cling to a lid which has not been properly washed and spoil a second dish which is prepared in the same pan.

PROPER CARE OF WAXED FLOORS

In order to keep waxed floors in good condition, frequent dusting with only occasional washing is necessary.

If the dust is allowed to collect on the floors, it will soon be ground into the waxed surface, giving it a rough and dingy appearance. After the dirt is once firmly attached, scrubbing will be necessary to remove it, and of course the wax will be removed at the same time.

With a daily dusting, scrubbing is not needed. Instead, the floor can be cleaned by simply wiping up with a cloth wrung out of a lukewarm suds. A mild soap will not affect the waxed surface. If the floor is allowed to become very wet, of course repolishing will be necessary, but with a cloth which is only moist, the dust and dirt can be gathered up just as effectively without harming the surface.

Fresh wax need not be applied—a soft dry cloth rubbed briskly over the surface will renew the original appearance of the wax.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A few flowers growing in an open bowl of water is a helpful as well as ornamental addition to any room, as the evaporation of the water takes the dryness from the air.

Don't bite baby's nails to keep them short. Learn at the start to use the scissors on them and how to hold the little fingers safely. Biting the nails frequently means sore fingers and torn nails for baby.

If you have time for nothing else, keep the room of the invalid spotlessly clean and in perfect order. There is nothing so depressing to the sick person as an untidy room, and after all, that room is the only view he or she gets, so keep it in good condition.

The inadequate illumination provided in so many of our homes also inflicts severe strain upon the immature eyes of children. Children should not be allowed to play games, read or study on the poorly lighted floor or in dark corners of the room or by the window during twilight. Unshaded, glaring light is just as harmful as insufficient light.

SWEET-SMELLING HAIR

A dust cap of strong percale or rubber is nice to have in the kitchen to don when frying food. Hair absorbs and holds odors and the dainty woman does not care to carry around with her the smell of cooking.

INEXPENSIVE SHAWLS

The shawl, which is unquestionably the smartest evening wrap, now comes in plain colored silks of vivid hues, heavily fringed, but so reasonable in price that they are within the reach of everyone. The price depends upon the length of fringe but the most expensive is a little less than $25.

ORGANDY SPREADS

Crisp and pretty are the new bedspreads of organdy. They are being shown in colors as well as white and are made plain and fancy. Particularly pleasing are those of white organdy with tiny organdy ruffles edged with vari-colored silk ribbon.

USEFUL COOKING HINT

To remove a hot cake or pudding from a tin or mold you should turn it upside down and cover it with a cloth wrung out of cold water. The contents will slip out in a minute or two. To remove anything cold or frozen reverse the process and wring the cloth out of hot water.

SUGAR IN OIL

Two lumps of loaf sugar (to a quart) placed in olive oil will prevent it from becoming rancid. If the oil is sold in a can, empty into glass as soon as opened and add the sugar.

SALT PREVENTS CURD

A pinch of salt added to salad dressings will prevent or remove curdling caused by the addition of vinegar.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Wooden beads in long, heavy strands are being worn with filmy afternoon dresses.

Some tailored suits have a long surplice neckline, with a narrow collar of short-haired fur.

A most charming negligee of black, filmy lace, trimmed with marabou, recently has made its appearance.

Parchment is the new shade in hosiery that is expected to be much in vogue this spring. It is also shown in footwear.

Both two-piece frocks and sports coats for the south show the vogue of green in all its tones, and emphasize the chick of kasha.

Hosiery in the new shade of parchment is destined for a vogue in the coming spring and summer seasons.

A smart little close turban to be worn with a dark fur coat is made from an old piece of Paisley draped to fit the head.

Pajama sets designated for the traveler are made of gay printed silks and have knee-length coats of the same material.

Coats of quilted taffeta in white and pastel shades are shown for southern resort wear. There are hats to match of the same material.

A smart version of the popular shawl wrap has a large floral design embroidered in one corner only. It is worn so that the design comes in the center of the back.

The newest hats of felt, called the cowboy hat, are fairly large and rakish. To be really smart they must be made on the head and adjusted to the personality of the individual wearer.

Pastel colored felt hats, made by a well known English house, come in all the desired shades and have the virtue of packing flat so that any number may be tucked away in the hat box or week end case.

Dropping one's handkerchief has become a lost art, Milady now slips her dainty lace-trimmed handkerchief through a tiny strap formed of colored silk flowers on her garter.

The vogue for dyeing furs, colors to blend with the garments on which they are used for trimmings, is manifest in fox scarfs. There are very light grayish blue ones, another dyed a light jade and still others in pale peach.

GEORGETTE POPULAR FOR DANCE FROCKS.

Filmy affairs of georgette or chiffon are being worn at dancing parties by the younger girls. These are rather high waisted with full skirts billowing to the knees and completed with sleeves tight to the elbow and flaring to the wrist. One novel adornment of such frocks is a drooping bow of chiffon embroidered in rhinestones which springs from one shoulder strap.

STEEL BOUND BRIMS

Brims which have been turned up sharply for some time are now turned down, according to London milliners. The brims are not allowed to flop down, however. The fur felt sports hats are fairly high of crown and the brims are made with a steel wire edge to hold them in shape. A big bow at the back is the sole decoration of some of these hats. Others are turned up in the back and down in front.

LAUNDRY HINTS

When ironing lace a soft flannel cloth should be laid over it and a linen cloth between that and the iron.

When ironing soft collars iron on the right side first, then the wrong side. Always press toward the center to avoid wrinkling.

Do not soak clothes so long that the dirt is distributed through the fabric and gives an ugly color to the clothes. If soaking in hot water, never allow the suds to cool before washing.

Don't work with rusted or dirty flatirons; they are too easily remedied. Scour first with sand soap or cleanser. Wash and wipe dry. Heat a bit, and then wax, wiping off surplus wax with a cloth.

In ironing silks, woolens and colored materials, use medium hot irons. Iron all these materials on the wrong side, except aprons and children's dresses. Silks and woolens may be ironed on the right side if covered with a soft, dampened cloth.

MAKE CUSHIONS TO MATCH ROOM

Instead of buying cushions which are already covered, it is a good idea to buy unfinished ones. These can be covered and decorated to exactly harmonize with the general scheme of the room besides allowing ample opportunity for individuality.

In order to keep the color harmony in the room unbroken, color matching the walls is being suggested for the inside of the window shades. If the walls are yellow or if it is the predominant color, then the shades will be furnished in the same tone.

IT DEPENDS ON THE USE

Pajamas essentially for wear to sleep in are soft of texture and simple of line. Those worn in boudoir privacy to lounge in are strikingly elaborate as to material. The trousers usually are of black satin gradually tightening from knee to ankle and tops of metal brocade heavily embroidered. The coat may even be fur trimmed at collar and hem.

TO HOLD STAMPS

Paste an envelope in the top of your box of stationery to hold stamps. Then you will not have a wild search for them when someone is waiting to mail your letter.

FRESH INK STAINS

If ink is spilled on white silk and turpentine is available, saturate it with it at once and keep it wet for several hours. By then you will be able to remove the stain by rubbing the material between the fingers.

WILL SOFTEN POLISH

That hardened shoe polish will be just as good as new if you will add a little turpentine to it. The polish will soften and the turpentine mixed in will give the leather a more brilliant lustre.

CONCERNING WOMEN

BETTER SLEEPING

Don't economize on your bed fixtures. One-third of your life is spent in bed, and a good comfortable mattress, level spring and the correct coverings mean a good start toward restful sleep.

LIGHTNING WORKERS

Cook your rhubarb or fresh tomatoes in the discolored aluminum pan. They will accomplish in five minutes more than you could by scrubbing for an hour.

RECIPES

Chocolate Blanc Mange: Dissolve 1 ounces of gelatin in 1-2 pint of milk. Put in a bowl 2 ounces of cocoa or chocolate and mix it well with 1-1 cup of sugar into a paste with a little milk. Put the gelatin on the fire with the rest of the milk (1 pint in all) and when nearly boiling add the chocolate paste. Boil for 10 minutes stirring well and put into a mold.

Simple spice pudding: Take one cupful of dried bread crumbs, add one pint of hot milk, cover and let stand until the milk is absorbed. Add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a scant half cupful of molasses, one fourth teaspoonful of cinnamon, a good pinch each of cloves, nutmeg, allspice, mace and ginger, and two-thirds cupful of seeded raisins which have been steamed for five minutes. Add one well beaten egg turn into a greased pudding pan and bake in a moderate oven for nearly one hour.

From Small Beginnings

Etienne Falconet, a Great Sculptor

About 1767, in the City of St. Petersburg, in Russia, every one admired the newly erected statue of Peter the Great. There it stood, huge and impressive, representing in bronze that monarch, who was made of iron! It was Peter the Great to life! Stern, vigorous, strong, terrible a great man, able to crush or to create a man worthy of being remembered in bronze.

"Etienne Falconet made it," said one who admired it. "He is the greatest of all French sculptors.

In many places Etienne Falconet had erected memorials to his genius—for he was a born artist, full of originality and of power. What a lucky day it had been for him that day when he was only a small boy! He had tired himself out that day working for his master, the carpenter. How many times he had climbed up the ladder! How his arms had ached from driving the big nails! Neither school nor ambition was for him and he could look for no more fame than that of being an ordinarily good carpenter. He had found some clay and had amused himself molding it into little men and women. This amused the children around him.

"Make a man," they teased. He indeed made men—for as he kept up his clay he gained such skill that all the young people of the neighborhood wondered at it. Then a man went to look at the clay figures and was astonished. It happened that he knew a real sculptor and he took him also to see the carpenter boy's work. "He's a born artist!" exclaimed the sculptor. From that day good friends saw to it that the boy worked in clay instead of with nails and shingles. He was a lovable boy and people were glad to help him. In the years that passed he quickly gained high skill and then developed great originality. Soon he was working in marble and bronze, smiling and shrugging his shoulders a little, as he thought of his days as a carpenter.

If one has skill of any kind let him develop it, even if only for play.

Today's Anniversaries

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles L. McNary, who is mentioned in some quarters as a possible candidate for the republican nomination for vice president in 1928, has been one of the United States senators from Oregon since 1917. Senator McNary was born in Oregon and grew up on a farm near Salem. He got his education from private tutors and at Stanford university, and his knowledge of law which admitted him to the Oregon bar in 1898, from study with lawyers. In the course of time he won a district attorney's appointment, and in 1913 was put upon the Oregon supreme court bench, where he was sitting with distinction when named by the governor to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Lane. A year later Senator McNary was elected for the full six year term. He has had much to do with the educational, economic and financial development of the Pacific Northwest.

Stories That Recall Others

Rhummy or Whiskey.

Mary, age four, went to visit her grandmother. After a time she was at a loss to find further entertainment for herself and approaching her grandmother she said: "Grandma, let's play whiskey?"

Grandma responded, "I do not believe I know that game, Mary."

Whereupon the little girl said, "Oh, I mean rhummy."

Safety First.

A man of wealth, feeling the surge of second childhood creeping over his rheumatic limbs, ordered a pair of ice skates. But, being a prudent soul, when the skates arrived he gave them to his chauffeur saying:

"George, take these skates with you down to the pond, put them on and skate around for half an hour. And if you are not back in half an hour, I won't go skating today."

MOTHER OF EIGHT CHILDREN KEEPS THEM ALL HEALTHY

Says She Depends on Father John's Medicine for Coughs, Colds and Body Building.

A mother's anxiety is first of all for the health of her children: over that she watches with the greatest care.

When a mother of eight children tells her experience, it is something in which all other mothers are interested. That is why the following letter from Mrs. M. Stellabotte, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is of particular interest. She says: "I am a mother of eight children. Whenever they are bothered with a cough I use Father John's Medicine. The result is good, healthy children. We have never used any other cough medicine but Father John's Medicine. We recommend it."

Mrs. Stellabotte, lives at 405 19th St. Her experience is similar to that of thousands of other mothers who find that they can depend upon Father John's Medicine in the treatment of coughs, colds and as a tonic and body builder. It is safe for every member of the family to use because it is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs. It has proven its value by more than 70 years of success.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Smallest Hunter

This much to me is very clear:
The world is chiefly ruled by fear.
Old Mother Nature.

Old Mother Nature is largely right. Fear rules the actions of most of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, the Smiling Pool, the Laughing Brook, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture. And fear is not confined to the little people who wear feathers and fur. The big people often are quite as timid as the little people, and human folk also are largely ruled by fear.

But some there are who have less fear than others. Some there are even among the little people who have so much confidence in themselves that they waste no time worrying through fear. Now the reason for all this fear is that so many of the bigger people are always hunting for the little people. You see, most of the people who wear fur, and many of the people who wear feathers, are hunters. There are a few who are not. — Prickly Porky, Paddy the Beaver, Johnny Chuck—these are among those who do not hunt others. Of course, Lightfoot the Deer is another. The biggest of the hunters is Buster Bear. Buster doesn't waste much time hunting others, but he has a fondness for fresh meat when he can get it easily. The smallest of the hunters is Teeny Weeny the Common Shrew.

The smallest of the hunters is Teeny Weeny, the Common Shrew

If you should see Teeny Weeny for the first time I am sure you would never think of him as a hunter. Such a tiny fellow as he is! He weighs only about forty-five grains, which is only a little more than a tenth of an ounce. But for his size he is one of the fiercest of all the hunters. If he were as big as Buster Bear and as fierce in proportion, he would be a very terrible fellow. But, being the tiniest of all the little people who wear fur, you would think no one would be afraid of him.

But, as I said before, Teeny Weeny is a fierce hunter, and, being a fierce hunter, he is very bold and does not hesitate to fight with those much bigger than himself. When he is really hungry, and this is most of the time, he would not hesitate to attack Danny Meadow Mouse himself, and Danny is many times the weight of Teeny Weeny.

Now Teeny Weeny is not one of those who sleep through the winter. He is very much awake through the winter and very, very active, for it is harder for him to find enough to eat then and he might starve to death in half a day. So when there is no snow Teeny Weeny makes little runways under the leaves, under old logs, in the moss, and along these runways he is forever running, hunting, for insects hidden away for the winter, or for any bit of meat which some of his larger neighbors may have left. And he doesn't at all mind if he happens to meet a Mouse, for that means a fight and a feast.

Teeny Weeny's eyes are very tiny, too tiny for him to see much, for he is a lover of the dark, but his ears and his nose make up for the smallness of his eyes, and he is so wonderfully quick in his movements that he can disappear in a flash. So it is that he manages to escape those enemies who happen along his way. When there is snow on the ground he tunnels about beneath the snow. Sometimes he comes to the surface and runs about on top, and always he is hunting, hunting, hunting, for it seems as if that tiny stomach of his is no sooner full than it is empty.

"I am not afraid," says the smallest hunter, and, indeed, he isn't afraid.

First Armored Ship Found

In the process of scrapping surplus harbor craft, British naval engineers have come across the first armored war vessel built by the British admiralty. She was the Thunderbolt, constructed in 1860 and designed for use in the Crimean war, but was completed too late.

For years the low, gray hulk has been used in the Chatham shipyard as landing stage and few frequenters of the district had ever heard her history. Within a few years after this initial experiment in armored craft, such as the Thunderbolt, Britain built a fleet of armored frigates superior to anything on the seas at that time.

She Was Skinny, Weak and Nervous

The greatest strength-giver and producer of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines.

But it's nasty stuff—ill-smelling and hard to take, and usually upsets the stomach.

Thank goodness! we don't have to even smell vile nasty Cod Liver Oil any more, for now Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists are selling McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy, so that you can get the real Cod Liver Oil in condensed form.

Men and women weak, thin and nervous, are urged to put on weight and get back their health and strength with these wonderful tablets.

One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks and that's going fast enough.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and if they don't put five pounds of flesh on any thin person in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for it.

"But be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine."

Taftville Birthday Party

A very pretty birthday party was held Sunday evening in honor of Louis A. Paquette's 45th birthday at his home at 64 Merchants avenue, Taftville. Supper was served by his wife for about 20 persons, including the family, relatives and friends. Mr. Paquette received $48, besides many useful gifts, one of which was a pair of policeman's earmuffs from his little granddaughter, Louise Dugas. Games were played which afforded much amusement for the guests, who, on departing, wished Mr. Paquette many happy returns of the day.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Stephen H. Peckham.

On Saturday the life of Phebe E. Peckham, widow of Stephen H. Peckham, of Ledyard, came to a peaceful close following an illness of ten days with pneumonia. Mrs. Peckham was born Feb. 14, 1846 and all of her life had been spent in Ledyard. She experienced religion when a young woman and joined the Ledyard Baptist church. She maintained throughout her life a faith and trust in God.

All who knew her were greatly impressed by the unselfish and sacrificing spirit she manifested in her faithfulness in serving those in the home as well as to others. Whatsoever her hands found to do she did with her might. The loss of her only daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Gray, last June was a great blow to her and she realized the separation would not be for long. Surviving to mourn her loss are one son, Charles S. Peckham of this city, two grand children, Everett S. Peckham and Mrs. Charlotte E. Bjorn of this city, and four great-grandchildren. Mrs. Peckham was a devoted mother, a good neighbor and a friend to all.

Mrs. Charles W. Perkins

Following a long illness, resulting from a shock sustained on Thanksgiving day, the death of Hattie Morrison, widow of Charles W. Perkins, formerly of Norwich, occurred Sunday at her home at No. 33 Lenox street, Hartford, aged 63 years.

Mrs. Perkins was born in Thompsonville in 1862, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrison. Her girlhood was spent in that town, where she was united in marriage with Charles W. Perkins, and later came to this city about 14 years ago and about two years later she moved to Hartford with her family.

While in this city Mrs. Perkins was affiliated with the First Baptist church, being the soprano singer in the choir for a number of years. A woman of kindly and lovable qualities she has many friends in Norwich who will learn of her death with sorrow and sympathise with relatives in her death.

Mrs. Perkins is survived by three children, Mrs. Harold James of Mansfield, Miss Beatrice Perkins of Hartford and Elmer Perkins of New York; a sister, Mrs. Joseph L. Leete and a brother, George Perkins, both of Hartford; also a step-son, Charles W. Perkins, of West Main street, Norwich.

WEDDING.

Boyington-Glander

William Morton Boyington and Mrs. Anna Beckman Glander, both of Pittsfield, Mass., were married there last Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Pilgrim Memorial church by the pastor, Rev. Harold G. Vincent. The bride, who is the daughter of William Beckman, was formerly a resident of Norwich Town and Yantic.

The bride's attendant was Miss Ethel Hackebeil. Donald Harrington, August Beckman and Jase Boyington were ushers. The church was decorated with carnations, narcissus, snapdragons and ferns. Mrs Frank Palmer, organist at the church, played the wedding marches, giving several selections preceding the ceremony, and playing softly throughout the service.

The bride wore a gown of flat crepe of the color of ashes of roses, a hat in harmony, and carried white carnations. The matron of honor was attired in olive green flat crepe, a hat to match, and carried pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyington will be at home at 258 Wahconah street, Pittsfield, after February 1. Mr. Boyington is employed as an electrician at the General Electric plant.

West Side Boys Open Cottage

West Side boys celebrated the first opening of their cottage at East Great Plain Saturday. Mr. Graves, the president of the club, gave his greetings to all present, and spoke on the plans for the future, and hoped it would be a success. Refreshments were served, and vocal hits sung by Charles King. The music for the evening was furnished by Graves and Moore's jass orchestra. An exhibition Charleston dance was given by Mr. King at the close of the evening.

The house committee consists of President H. Graves, Vice President Charles King, Secretary, G. C. Moore.

Appeal Decision Not Reached

No decision has yet been reached by counsel for Gabriel C. Berker whether or not to take an appeal to the supreme court from the verdict of guilty of embezzlement which was found against him by a jury in this city last week.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

LEAVES NOTE THAT TELLS REASONS FOR ENDING HIS LIFE SUNDAY MORNING

Despondency over a love affair and over losing his employment were indicated in a rambling note left by Joseph H. Olsen, 31, whose dead body was found Sunday morning in his room at 632 Main street, East Side. A bottle that had contained carbolic acid was found and the man's mouth showed burns caused by the acid as he had swallowed it.

It was learned by the medical examiner, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who was summoned after the body had been found about 7 o'clock that Olsen had been restless all night and had been seen by neighbors out in the yard about 5 o'clock in the morning. He had a room in the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Worthington where he was found dead upon the bed.

The young man had lived in this country ever since he was about six months old, coming here from Sweden. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hans Olsen and had been employed in woolen mills.

He was unmarried and is survived by a brother, John Olsen and a sister, Mrs. Walter D. Kelly, both of Norwich. The family formerly resided at Norwich Town where Joseph was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church. He was also a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

WORLD'S GREATEST MESSAGE FR. REILLY'S SERMON THEME

In the absence of the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who is spending two weeks' vacation in the south, Rev. John J. Reilly, the junior assistant pastor read the low mass at 7.30 Sunday morning, in St. Patrick's church. Father Reilly was aided in administering holy communion by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the large number of communicants including the members of the Rosary society.

In announcing his text as the angel's salutation from Luke 2, "I bring you good tidings of great joy — for this day is born to you, a Saviour, who is Christ, the Lord," the preacher said it might seem like an aftermath of Christmas; but this was in reality the most wondrous news on which the world has ever listened in, bringing as it does the assurance, of hope and trust. Other great messages have been flashed around the globe—of persons, of places, of deeds, but no other tidings can ever transcend this.

It is recorded that the Wise Men brought great gifts to the Infant Saviour at His birth, but no one has ever told what they took away. The preacher made the telling point that while the coming of Christmas must have had its effect on the soul of every Christian, its full significance must have been lost unless it has strengthened trust and hope. The pessimist can never be a true Catholic. While each must look forward to another New Year conscious that it may mean disappointments, discouragements, uncertainties, there is always the assurance of the good tidings that Christ has been born to us, a Saviour. Without this realization life would be unendurable in its stretch of monotony. Father Reilly characterized Bethlehem and Calvary as bases of a rainbow which encircles the Christian's world, yet the route between them must be a way of crosses and hardships for those who would follow their Master, who would share in the sorrows of His Blessed Mother. He expressed the conviction, however, that his listeners would face the new year with renewed hope and trust, with determination to accept whatever of trials may come to them in the fortitude and patience and charity taught them by their divine Exemplar.

BEN COVEY MISSING FROM HOME SINCE JAN. 7

After waiting in vain to hear something from their son, William Benjamin Covey, 23, who has been missing from home since Thursday, Jan. 7, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Covey of 42 Freeman avenue have decided to appeal to the press and public in the hopes of getting some word of him. He left home in his Ford coupe, Connecticut registration 67259.

The only explanation that can be advanced for his absence from home is mental trouble that has resulted in loss of memory.

The young man, who is generally known as Ben, has been employed as pressman in The Bulletin job room. He worked Thursday morning, Jan. 7, as usual and went home to dinner. After dinner he played the piano for a while and then left the house, his family supposing that he was to return to work. He did not report at The Bulletin office and nothing has been heard of him since then.

Local and state police officials were notified by his family as soon as his absence was known but their search has not disclosed any information as to where he may be.

It has been suggested that he might have been led to go towards Providence, where he formerly attended school. He also at one time attended school at Mt. Hermon, Northfield, Mass. His family also suggests that he might have been led to drive to the Devil's Hop Yard near Hamburg, which place he liked to visit as he was a great admirer of nature and the outdoor life. State police officials have been asked to look over the locality around the Devil's Hop Yard.

Ben wore tortoiseshell glasses and was about 5 feet, 8 inches, 135 to 140 pounds, sallow complexion, brown hair and brown eyes, smooth face. He was wearing when he left home a dark overcoat, dark suit, light cap, tan woolen vest. He had a signet ring with his initials and had a Bulova watch of white gold and green gold watch chain, with a pearl handled knife on it.

It is believed he had only a small amount of money.

Ben was of quiet, studious habits and his distressed parents can advance no reason for his leaving home in this way other than that already stated.

His anxious parents would be deeply grateful to anybne who could send them any word of their son.

AUTO ACCIDENT SUIT SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Trial of the $650 damage suit, brought by Attorney Josiah Greenstein of this city, against Charles G. Nelson, of New Haven, before Judge Charles G. Waller in the court of common pleas here Saturday morning. After the trial had progressed a short while, the attorneys reached a settlement out of court.

It was alleged that on or about Sept. 8, 1925, the defendant was operating his automobile in Middletown avenue, New Haven, and negligently and carelessly drove the machine against the automobile of the attorney, causing serious damage to the latter's car and severe bodily injuries to the plaintiff.

The defendant admitted the allegations were true, but a disagreement over the amount of damages brought the case into court.

Eight Months in Jail.

A typographical error made the report of the sentence given John Burns of Jewett City in the superior court here last Friday eighteen months in jail. The sentence imposed upon Burns by Judge Allyn L. Brown was eight months in jail without costs.

Appeal to Supreme Court

An appeal to the supreme court has been perfected in the case of Ruby Parker, a Flanders store keeper, who was sent to jail on a suspended sentence for violation of the liquor law. Parker is now serving the jail sentence, following denial by Judge C. L. Avery of a writ of habeas corpus.

SPECIAL BOX CAR FOR NEAR EAST BUNDLES

A special box car is to be chartered on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad to carry the old clothing from Norwich and vicinity to the boat that will take it to the Near East orphaned refugees, it was said Sunday by members of the local Near East Relief committee. The trucks that will pick up the bundles of old clothes from the various school houses of the city will take the loads directly to the car, and all truck loads coming from out of town will take their contributions there also.

In view of the desperate need that exists for the old warm clothing in the Near East now, every effort is to be made in Norwich and vicinity to fill the car full. Housewives are urged by the committee to rummage through their garrets for any available warm cast-off garments. If Norwich should produce 5,000 pounds of clothing, it would be worth considerable money to the Near East Relief, it is said. A suit of man's clothes weighs in the neighborhood of five pounds, and a woman's coat averages 4 pounds. The average bundle weighs five pounds, and if 2,000 bundles, for example, should be contributed here, it would mean five tons, almost as much as New London gave last fall.

Additional arrangements have been made for obtaining old clothing in outlying towns, both public and parochial schools cooperating in giving tags to the children, and serving as centers for the collection of the clothing. Mrs. Charles B. Barnes is in charge of arrangements in Baltic; Mrs. Appleton Maine, in the Poquetanuck section, and Mrs. G. V. Shedd, in Preston City. Both Mrs. Maine and Mrs. Shedd are receiving contributions of clothing at their houses. Miss Eliza beth Huntington is chairman of the local committee.

In Jewett City, Frank Clement, superintendent of schools and Rev. J. J. McCabe are cooperating in the collection by offering the school houses as centers. Mrs. Walter Richardson is in charge of information regarding the collection of clothing there.

Several parochial schools of Norwich, are also distributing tags to the school houses on Friday morning, so children.

All clothing is to be brought to the that the collection can begin at 1:30 Friday afternoon.

The decision to charter a car was made Sunday after it became evident that there might be a greater supply than had been anticipated. Fred C. Crowell, of the Rotary club, had offered to box the garments, in the rear of his warehouse at 37 Water street. The use of the car, however, obviates the necessity of handling the clothing twice.

CHIMNEY FIRE AND BLAZE IN WASTE BASKET

There were two calls for the fire department over the week end. Saturday night at 7.39 o'clock the department responded to a telephone call for a chimney fire at the home of George Ayer, No. 169 Palmer street. Six gallons of chemical were used on the blaze. The house is owned by Mrs. Mary Crandall.

Sunday morning at 1.39 o'clock the department responded to a telephone call for a small fire at the Disco block. The fire was in a waste basket in the office used by Joseph Panek. A package of cigarettes was found on the desk and a lighted cigarette had probably been laid on the edge of the desk and forgotten. One edge of the telephone directory on the desk was found scorched and the cigarette had been evidently dropped into the waste basket, setting fire to the papers in the basket, in the opinion of the firemen.

ARREST CAME AFTER MAIN STREET COLLISION

After a collision on Main street near Breed hall Sunday evening about 10 o'clock in which a touring car driven by W. E. Baldwin of Taftville was run into from the rear by a sedan driven by James W. Murray, Jr., of 69 Myers avenue, the latter was placed under arrest on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. There was little damage to the two machines, both of which were proceeding westerly on the street.

The suit against Mr. Murray was made by Constable Myer Blumenthal and he was brought to police headquarters after Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officer P. Murphy had responded with the patrol wagon to a telephone call. A doctor was summoned to police headquarters at Mr. Murray's request to make an examination of him and following the doctor's report the charge was entered against Murray. It was claimed by Murray and an occupant of his machine that Mr. Baldwin failed to give a signal by putting his hand out when about to make a turn at the Washington square corner.

CONNECTICUT PER CAPITA DEBT IS SMALLEST

Connecticut, in 1924, had the smallest per capita indebtedness among the New England states, according to figures issued by the census bureau department of commerce. The per capita debt in the Nutmeg state dropped $7.97 from 1917 to 1924, and from 1923 to the latter year 27 cents.

Connecticut's per capita debt in 1924 was $3.14, as compared with $3.48 in 1923, and $10.08 in 1917. The net indebtedness in 1924 dropped $464,000.

Maine had the highest per capita debt in New England in 1924, $16.33, followed by Massachusetts with $16.33. Rhode Island was third with $15.61, Vermont next with $5.43 and New Hampshire second lowest with $4.76.

In Maine and Rhode Island the net indebtedness increased during 1924, rising from $1,143,000 and $675,000, respectively. In the other states the decreases were as follows: New Hampshire, $444,000; Vermont, $115,000, and Massachusetts, $3,218,000.

DAVID HALE FANNING RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A dispatch sent out Sunday reads: David Hale Fanning, nonagenarian president and founder of the Royal Worcester Corset Company, has sold his entire holdings of the stock of the company, constituting a majority control, to a syndicate composed of Worcester men and New York and Boston banking interests. He has resigned his office as president and director and has retired completely from the management.

Many in Norwich and Griswold will be interested in this news of Mr. Fanning's retirement from active business. He will be 92 years old on August 4th next and up to the first of the year retained control of the great plant which he had developed into a model factory. For the past few weeks he has not been up to his usual mark of good health; and doubtless this fact has influenced him in deciding to relinquish all business cares.

Mr. Fanning is a native of Jewett City, born in a plain and modest home on the site of the present St. Mary's church in that borough. At sixteen he left home to seek his fortune, his capital being $2.50 which he had accumulated by doing errands, farm chores and the like. He has long been rated in the millionaire class.

Against great odds and with many hardships he made his way upwards, finally becoming interested in the manufacture of hoopskirts, when these were fashionable. From this he branched to the manufacture of corsets and a short time ago celebrated his sixtieth anniversary in that business.

To share with his employes has always been his pleasure, so that he has made of the great plant where about 1,600 are employed a model factory, with rest and hospital room, cafeteria, recreation hall, gymnasium, et al., a fireproof structure, famed for its neatness, equipment and sanitary appointments. In some cases three generations of the same family are among the employes.

The company has a big foreign trade and it is interesting at holiday time and on his birthday to see the affectionate greetings which come to Mr. Fanning from the host of salesmen and other representatives in all the principal countries from the British Isles to Australia.

He has done much for his native town of Griswold, winning the gratitude of all residents of Jewett City. His liberality to his adopted city of Worcester is equally well known. One of his recent benefactions is a gift to Connecticut college, to help the projected Windham Hall.

The great number of his friends will agree that he has amply earned release from active work and will express the hope that his long deferred "vacation" will prove restful and happy and eminently satisfactory to the marvellous captain of industry, who, at 95, has been going to his desk every day with a regularity and devotion which has helped inspire every person in his employ.

Mr. Fanning could not be in more beautiful or congenial surroundings than in his sightly and substantial home, 150 Woodland street, Worcester, from which he has directed many of the activities of his great plant.

He has but one of his three children living, Mrs. John Lancaster, of New York, whose two sons are in business in Boston. Mrs. Lancaster's daughter, Rosamund—named for Mr. Fanning's deceased wife—married Barclay Warburton, Jr., the grandson of John Wanamaker and they have two children, their homes being in Philadelphia and New York.

When a young boy David Hale Fanning made his home in Norwich with his relatives, the Gardner family, at East Great Plain. It has always been recalled with interest by him that for a time he had the late State's Attorney Solomon Lucas, of Norwich, as his school-master in the district school there.

He has traveled abroad, is a constant reader, enjoys the fine grounds about his home and will have many pleasant ways of passing the leisure which he has decided upon, after a life-time of continuous work.

TAFTVILLE COMPANY CALLED TO FIRE AT OCCUM

Taftville fire company, No. 2, received a telephone call about 11:45 o'clock Saturday morning for a fire in the house owned by George Peltier in Occum. The call was given by Mrs. Zeb Babbitt, of Occum, who discovered the fire in the building, and upon the arrival of the firemen the blaze was found to be in the north end of the structure in a cupboard, where a quantity of paint, turpentine, etc., was stored. Ten gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze, and little damage resulted from the fire.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is believed that it was either started from a lighted cigarette in the hands of one of the painters, who were working in the building at the time, or from spontaneous combustion. The building is two stories, frame construction and 70 feet long and is better known as the old Coutier place, where, for a number of years, Mr. Coutier conducted an inn.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Lady Buckingham council, No. 14, Daughters of America, voted at its meeting last week to enter the membership drive under the auspices of the national council. There was a good attendance at the meeting at which Councillor Katharine Blanchard presided.

Mrs. Ivy Peckham, who was appointed chairman of the membership drive, in turn appointed as her following: Mrs. Mary Robl, Jewett City; Mrs. Rose Carter, Norwich Town; Mrs. Lora Buddington, Greeneville; Mrs. Mary Adams, Laurel Hill; Mrs. Carrie Howard, West Side; Mrs. Ora Spencer, city; Mrs. Ida Stewart, Thamesville.

Having out-grown the hall, where it has been meeting, the council has been compelled to change the meeting night. This takes effect on Thursday, Feb. 4, from which the meetings will be on the first and third Thursdays.

AGGIES DOWN TUFTS QUINTET IN GAME MARKED BY FAST PLAYING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 17—Connecticut Aggies defeated Tufts in basketball 38-23 here last night, turning what was expected to be a tight contest into a runaway affair. It was the second victory in as many starts for the Storrs five, and as last week against Norwich, the team made an impressive showing.

Displaying an attack that penetrated the Tufts defense, scoring consistently near the backboard and from the sidecourt, Connecticut took an early lead and held it to the end. At half time, the Aggies lead 23-8, a margin of 15 points which they held to the final whistle.

Captain Makofski led Connecticut's attack with a total of 15 points. He made 7 from the floor and 1 from the foul line, playing an excellent game the entire distance.

With but two minutes left in the first half, Coach Dole sent his second team against Tufts, repeating his stunt of last week. The seconds displayed their usual aggressive game, and held Tufts scoreless.

Tufts looked better in the second half, dividing scoring honors with Connecticut with 15 points each. This was hardly enough to overcome the Aggies lead amassed in the first half, however.

The game started off with Eddy and Makofski connecting for 6 points between them before Abrahms made 2 from the foul line for Tufts first score. From the start, the Aggies displayed a much superior attack, working the ball down the floor and into the scoring zone before Tuft's five-man defense could form. After seven minutes of play, Tufts took their first time out with Connecticut leading 10-5. With the resumption of play, French made a pretty shot from mid-court for Tufts, but with the exception of another lone basket from the foul line by the same player, this ended Tuft's scoring activities for the half. From then on it was all Connecticut. Makofski, Schofield and Eddy, Connecticut's trio of sharpshooters, all took turns cutting the net, running the count to 23, before Coach Dole sent in his second team.

Although outclassing Tufts in floor work and passing in the second half, Connecticut missed many shots and scored no more than Tufts in this session. Tufts most consistent effort at scoring came at this time, when Nausabaum, Stanley and Dowson sank three in a row.

Robeson, Tufts star forward, was unable to make a basket from the floor, so closely was he guarded. Connecticut's five-man defense was functioning perfectly, and Tufts had few chances to shoot except from well outside the scoring zone.

HEWITT'S BASKET DECIDES GAME FOR AGGIE FROSH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 17—When Bernard Hewitt, last year's Chapman Tech captain, sank a basket in the second overtime period in a game between the Connecticut Aggie freshmen and the Tufts freshmen, here last night it enabled the Storrs five to win their opening contest of the season by a 19-17 score.

Played as a preliminary to the Tufts varsity contest, the freshman game was packed with action that kept the large crowd on edge throughout the contest. It was an uphill battle for the Connecticut yearlings, who were trailing 9-5 at half time, and who seemed unable to score consistently against the rangier Tufts outfit.

Tufts had not lost a game until they played here last night, and it was the greater fight and aggressiveness of the Aggies that spelled their downfall. Tufts had the edge during the first half, but Connecticut rallied in the second, with baskets by Hewitt and White evening the count. The lead alternated in this half, and as time was called the score was deadlocked at 15 all.

Connecticut scored first in the over-time period, but Tufts also connected for one as the whistle blew and once more the score was tied, this time at 17 all. Another period was necessary, and Hewitt settled the issue with a pretty shot from the side as time was about up.

"Y" EMPS BEAT NORDICS IN EASY ENCOUNTER

The YMCA Emps came in for another win Saturday, when in a well matched game, they trimmed the Taftville Nordics 37 to 23. The Y'ers led the pace throughout the game, and both teams worked hard and exhibited good team work. Brown starred as the chief cager for the winners getting five counters to his credit, while Smith followed with a total of four for the losers. The summary:

NEW LONDON TEAM TOO STRONG FOR LOCAL "Y"

The Acmys of New London added another notch to their row of victories when they defeated the local YMCA Seniors in a hotly contested basketball game on the "Y" court Saturday night by the score of 38 to 23.

From the opening whistle, the visitors showed unusual aggressiveness, displaying fast passing and clever shooting, aided materially by Vogt, who jumped at center and seemed skilled in all departments of the game. Another feature of the visitor's game proved to be their manipulation of the five man defense which kept the Y'ers puzzled and prevented their scoring time after time.

The locals put up a lively fight, despite their loss and give promise of developing into a winning aggregation. The summary:

NEW HALL SECURED FOR WESTERLY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Jan. 17—Champlin hall, Westerly, has been secured by the Westerly Sanitary corps, on Main street, in which to play basketball games in the league contest now being conducted in Westerly. The coming week at Champlin hall, on Wednesday, the B. D. A. play the Delta Five. At Arion hall, Stonington, on Friday evening the S. A. V. A. A. play St. Michael's legion and at the state armory on Dixon street, Saturday evening, the Battery E team has for its opponent the Sanitary corps.

League Games

On Saturday evening at the state armory Battery E's basketball tossers were defeated by the Delta Five by the score of 37 to 27. The teams made a snappy appearance on the floor with their uniforms all lettered and numbered. A good crowd witnessed the contest and many came later to enjoy the dancing until midnight. For the Deltas, Capt. S. Turco led all point getters with Salemano, J. Tassone and Deltocco distant seconds. Although the Battery players show flashes of good passwork they do not seem to connect for baskets when needed, their big point getter was L. Blanchard. Substitutions were frequent.

At Stonington, Friday night, the B. D. A. basketball five, of Bradford, defeated the A. V. A. A., of that place by the score of 31 to 27. For the Dyers, Stenhouse, clever at long shots, led his teammates with eleven points, while Spencer and Ralph corralled eight each. Captain O. Foote showed clever basketball playing netting seven points, while Center Gilmore had twelve to his credit.

TO INVITE GERMAN SPEEDBOATS TO RACE HERE

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—In an effort to revive international speed boat racing for the first time since the war, the American Power Boat association today announced plans to invite Germany as well as other European countries, to send speed boats to America next August for the Carl G. Fisher one and one-half liter trophy race.

Barred for ten years after the war fro mcompetition for the Harmsworth International trophy, Germany will be eligible to race in the Fisher event against boats from England, France and Italy, if invitations from the association to these nations are accepted. The contest will be staged during the period of the Gold Cup regatta in New York waters.

AMERICAN TEAM OUT OF LEAD IN BIKE RACE

BERLIN, Jan. 17—(AP)—The American team of McNamara-Horan, which yesterday was leading in the six-day bicycle race, dropped to second place today. The Americans were penalized one lap, while penalties were also imposed on other contestants for improperly relieving each other.

At the end of the seventy-third hour Hahn and Tietz were leading with 1,183 miles, 900 yards, and 66 points, McNamara and Horan were second with 127 points; Gottfried and Bauer, third, 72 points.

HELEN AND SUZANNE HAVE A FRIENDLY CHAT

CANNES, France, Jan. 17—(AP)—Helen Wills, queen of American tennis, and Suzanne Lenglen, France's champion, met today under the sunny skies of the Riviera, not as rivals, but just as two girls interested in the game. They had a most friendly chat as they watched the players at Frank Gould's club.

Mlle. Suzanne has returned to her home in Nice, with nothing but praise for the girl who is considered her most formidable rival for world laurels.

"I admire Helen in every way; she is such a sweet child," said Suzanne intensely. "I simply love her."

The American girl treated the tennis players to a surprise, when, after watching a few sets and taking a stroll through the town and along the shore of the blue Mediterranean, she announced, contrary to all expectations, that she would take part in the Metropole Hotel tournament this week, but would enter for the singles only.

Mlle. Lenglen is not entered for the singles in the Metropole tourney, although she will play in the women's and mixed doubles. So, the long-awaited meeting between the French and American champions must be deferred. It is possible, however, Suzanne will play in the singles at the Nice tourney on February 8, and as Miss Wills plans to play there also, it is there that the first decision between them is most likely.

COLUMBIA LEADER IN EASTERN BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Columbia, with victories over Princeton, Dartmouth and Cornell, leads the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league with three wins and no defeats. Dartmouth and Princeton are tied for second with two victories and a single defeat while Pennsylvania ranks fourth with one victory in three starts. Cornell with one defeat and Yale with three setbacks in as many starts bring up at the foot of the procession.

Laub, Columbia forward, leads the league in the matter of individual scoring with 14 field goals and five accurate tosses from the free throw line for a total of 33 points, one point ahead of Loeb, of Princeton, who has scored 32. Mannheim, of Columbia and Whittaker of Dartmouth, are tied for third place with 23 points.

Columbia has shown great scoring powers in three games, having totaled 107 points to but 63 for their opponents.

The records follow:

Team	W.	L.	Pc.	Pts.	Opp. Pts.
Columbia	3	0	1.000	107	62
Dartmouth	2	1	.667	73	76
Princeton	2	1	.667	76	75
Penn.	1	2	.333	77	74
Cornell	0	1	.000	24	33
Yale	0	3	.000	43	86

MICHIGAN ONLY UNDEFEATED FIVE IN THE BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Michigan remains the only undefeated team in the big ten basketball race at the end of the third week of competition, with victories to its credit over Iowa and Northwestern.

Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio State and Purdue went into a tie for the runner-up berth with two games won and one lost a piece. Illinois, the last of the conference teams to go into action, trounced Minnesota 17 to 8 today, but was in turn humbled by Ohio State, 30 to 18, yesterday.

Purdue, following a snappy victory over Ohio State Wednesday, repeated Saturday at the expense of Northwestern in what was perhaps the fastest and hardest fought game of the week. The score was 28 to 25, and the game was saved for the Boilermakers in the last two seconds of play with a long shot from the field by Captain George Spredling.

Chicago went into the fifty-fifty division by upsetting the dope and forcing the undefeated Wisconsin five to take the short end of a 17 to 16 tally last night.

JANSEN WINS SKI-JUMPING CONTEST FOR SECOND TIME

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 17—(AP)—For the second successive year Ole Jansen of the Norsemen's Ski club, Brooklyn, today captured the metropolitan ski jumping championship on the course of the North Jersey Country club. Jansen's average score on a basis of form and distance was 19.104 meters. The longest jump of the day was 25.5 meters, made by Chris Boldahlen of the Norsemen's club.

INDIAN ATHLETE FAILS TO RETURN TO DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 17—(AP)—Darmouth is wondering what has become of its only full-blooded Indian, Russell Owen Ayers, of Oklahoma, six-foot freshman athlete, who failed to return at the close of the Christmas holidays, two weeks ago. His friends and the college authorities have been endeavoring to get in touch with him without success.

Ayers, was regarded as a promising track and football candidate.

R. I. Marksmen Win

KINGSTON, R. I., Jan. 17—(AP)—Rhode Island State college won an intercollegiate rifle shoot today with victories over North Carolina State college and South Dakota State college. Rhode Island scored 3,688 points out of a possible 4,000, North Carolina 3,073 and South Dakota 2,462.

MANY INTERNATIONAL EVENTS ARE SCHEDULED FOR WINTER SPORT SEASON

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Europe's challenge to tests of individual supremacy in almost every phase of winter sport lies at the feet of American champions tonight, with honors even in the preliminary 1926 brushes of the broad international program.

More than a score of athletic kings from the two continents stand at the gates of the arena awaiting the call to titanic struggles. The ice rinks, the tennis court, track, ring, the golf links, the billiard table, the running track and the mat hold prospect of at least twelve outstanding duels.

Skating—Clas Thunberg, Finland, vs. Joe Moore, America.

Tennis—Helen Wills, America, vs Suzanne Lenglen, France; Jean Borotra or Rene Lacoste, France, vs. William T. Tilden, America.

Wrestling—Ivan Poddubny, Russia, vs. Joe Stecher, America.

Walking—J. R. Goodwin, England, vs. Willie Plant, America.

Boxing—Paolino, Spanish heavyweight, vs. Harry Wills or Gene Tunney, America; Georges Carpentier, France, vs. Mike McTigue, America; Tommy Milligan, English welterweight vs. Mickey Walker, America.

Billiards—Eric Hagenlacher, Germany, vs. Jake Schaefer, America.

Track—Hubert Houben, Germany, vs. Loran Murchison, America; Ghet Bowman, Debart Hubbard, Charley Paddock, America; Adrian Paulen, Holland, vs. Alan Helfrich, America.

Triumphs on Florida links of Massy and Compston and sweeping hockey victories of Canadian professional and collegiate teams thus far this year have been balanced by an initial defeat of Thunberg, Olympic speed skating champion, by Moore. Recovery of the 18.2 balkline billard crown by Schaefer from Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, and failure of a vigorous foreign fistic offensive to carry invading pugilists beyond the first lines of resistance.

Although the initial reverse suffering by Thunberg was not entirely unexpected since the same fate several years ago befell the powerful striding Oscar Mathiesen, fo Norway, in his American invasion—the Olympic champion grimly announced that there might be a different story to tell later.

Thunberg meets Moore and Joe Gorman, Canadian champion, in another race tomorrow night at one and one-half miles in Madison Square Garden, and although the Finn is doubtful of his ability to outskate the North American stars on the short rink turns he asks fandom to withhold judgment until the world championships tests at St. John, New Brunswick. In the latter event, crisp air and straightaway skating are expected to give him the big chance he has been awaiting.

While Thunberg is attempting to even the score against Moore, Poddubny will seek to qualify for a chance at Stecher and the western grappler's heavyweight mat title. The Russian's most severe trial in this country, is expected here tomorrow night in a match with the powerful Polish wrestler, Wladek Zbyszko.

Ranks of invading athletes were generously swelled again last week, but messages passed indicating that the rival armies will be still further strengthened before the close of the indoor season.

Arrival of Helen Wills in France, where she hopes to cross racquets with the brilliant Suzanne Lenglen, has been accompanied by assurance to this country from French tennis officials that a team including Rene Lacoste and Jean Barotra will make a counter invasion of America in an effort to retain the national indoor crown which Borotra annexed a year ago. Tilden and Richards are both prepared to resist the attempt.

Hubert Houben, of Germany, the second of four great European athletes expected here for the indoor track season, brought with him last week promise of a renewal of international sprint rivalry, for last summer Houben conquered both Murchison and Paddock in his native land. Adrian Paulen, of Holland, with one victory over Helffrich, and the English walker, Goodwin, aiming to measure strides with Plant have aroused interest in track athletics rivaling that created by Nurmi's visit a year ago.

With Houben last week came Georges Carpentier from France, to sing pugilistic praises of the Spanish heavyweight, Paolino, who is soon to follow the former light-heavyweight titleholder across the Atlantic. Carpentier himself does not want to fight—at least he says so—but boxing men fail to see how the orchid man of France can turn down a match he has been offered with Mike McTigue, a light hitting veteran. Mike has apparently so far passed the peak of greatness as to offer no serious obstacles to the war hero's extensive social program.

MARTIN FLAHERTY LEAVES FOR BOUTS IN TORONTO

Martin Flaherty, local boxer left Sunday night for Toronto, Can., where he has several bouts scheduled during the next few weeks. Flaherty will fight in Toronto on the evening of Jan. 27th and on Feb. 5th will fight at Halifax. This is the second trip that Flaherty has made to Canada this season and the local boy is very popular there having won practically every fight in which he has engaged.

Games in Eastern Conn.

The Crescent A. C. recently organized basketball team is looking for games with teams in the eastern part of the state, especially Jewett City, Plainfield, Baltic or other fast fives. The Crescents have such men as Jimmy Murphy, Gauthier, E. Murphy, Eccleston and others. Red Burelle is the manager of the club.

BOXING GOSSIP

Babe Herman, coast featherweight and Bobby Garcia, Maryland veteran, have been matched for a ten-round bout at the Arena, Philadelphia, Jan. 25. Joey Ross, Hoboken flyweight, and Willie Davies will clash in the semi-final.

Herman also has been matched to fight Johnny Datto for ten rounds at Cleveland on Feb. 1.

Johnny Drew, New England's junior lightweight champion, and Newport Johnny Brown have been signed for a ten-round struggle at Worcester on Friday night.

A ten round bout between Allentown Johnny Leonard and Joe Malone of the Bronx will be one of the attractions at the Uptown Lenox S. C. on Jan. 25.

Jimmy Goodrich, former lightweight champion, and Solly Seeman, Harlem boxer, will clash in a ten-round battle at Milwaukee on Jan. 25.

Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight is reported in hard training for his ten round bout against Quintin Romero-Rojas, Chilean, which is to be held in St. Louis on Jan. 26.

Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, resumes ring activity on Tuesday night at Omaha, Neb., when he tackles Joe Lohman, veteran heavyweight in a ten-round bout. This bout is the first of several Greb has planned in his campaign to fight himself into shape for his meeting in New York on Feb. 26 with Tiger Flowers.

Three ten-round bouts have been arranged for the Bayonne, N. J., Casino for tonight. The principals will be Larry Estridge vs. Pal Reed, Mickey Walters vs. Herman Silvera, Harry Martone vs. Pete Hartley.

Barney Shaw and Ted Moore, rival National Guard welterweights, will be the principals in the main eight-round bout at the 102nd Engineers' Regiment Armory Tuesday night.

A ten-round bout between Sailor Bautlan and Bobby Anderson features the card arranged for the 102nd Medical Regiment Armory for Thursday night.

Whitey Ekwert, trainer of Frank Churchill's fighters, in a letter to Sol Gold in New York, disclosed that Churchill in the future plans to make his headquarters in Chicago. Ekwert and Billy Miller, managers of the Churchill stable while Church is in the Philippines, expect to reach Chicago late this month with Ted Morgan, junior lightweight champion, Peter Sarmiento and Clever Senica, Philippine fighters; Sully Montgomery, Texas heavyweight, and Doc Snell coast featherweight.

Tony Vaccarelli, having recovered from the attack of appendicitis which forced him from the ring several months ago, has resumed training for three fights for which he has been signed by his manager, Joe Malone. Vaccarelli will meet Jimmy Carney at the Columbus S. C., Yonkers, Feb. 4; Lea Kemp at the Lenox S. C. on Feb. 15, and Benny Gould at the Broadway club in Brooklyn on Feb. 22.

Frankie Gerano, former flyweight champion, has resumed training at Stillman's Gymnasium in anticipation of an active campaign.

Sam Wallach, brother-manager of the once famous Leach Cross, has followed the lead of the retired dentist-fighter and taken up law as his profession, according to announcements sent out by Wallach.

Sailor Friedman, Chicago's contender for the welterweight title, will engage Bermondsey Billy Wells of England, in the main ten round bout tonight at the Arena, Philadelphia. In the ten round semi-final Maxie Rosenberg, local middleweight, will tackle Rocky Smith, Battle Creek, Mich., lad.

A ten round bout between Morrie Schlaiffer, Omaha boxer, and Al Meilo of Boston has been closed for Tuesday night at the Suffolk A. A., Boston.

COLD WINTER BRINGS DANGER TO INLAND COAST GUARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17—(AP)—Predictions of "the coldest winter since 1918" brings no visions of cosy, ice-bound weeks to the crew of America's inland coast guard station, located on the Ohio river here. Instead, they see ahead a season of danger and struggle with the greatest of fresh-water perils—the ice gorge.

True, there are no more calls to rescue careless swimmers, but answering such calls is but a small part of the guardsman's work. He is forever on guard—two watches by day and two by night. There are a dozen drills each week. There is the eternal "policing" of quarters, equipment and clothing, including everything from scouring decks and brass to sewing on buttons.

Extra duty in bitter weather begins with chopping out the station each morning, for the big boat must not become permanently fast, or it would be lost when the gorge descends. Not every winter brings an ice gorge, but a real one is worth missing.

"Take the winter of 1918, for instance," explained W. T. Farrell, chief boatswain's mate and first in command here. "There had been nothing like it for so long nobody took the precautions they should or took shelter in the boat canal. That is the best 'ice harbor' on the Ohio, and could accomodate every boat in the river district. It was more or less an accident

"Avoidable damage from the 1918 jam ran into the millions. Many fine boats were dashed over the falls. The Princess and the Island Queen harbored up the Kentucky river. They had always been safe there, but this time a smaller gorge came down the Kentucky and pushed them out into the Ohio just in front of the big one.

"The Princess was wrecked and sunk. We got word to get a line to the Island Queen. We could never have done it, but her crew of 7 managed to get a line ashore at Eighteen Mile Island just as the gorge jammed for a few hours.

"By offering a good big sum, the boat owners persuaded Captain E. T. Slider to risk his tug Great Northern to bring in the one still afloat. In going out to the rescue, the Northern broke a passage through the ice so the rest of us could get loose, and when she came back those of us who had no power, including a big wharf-boat and the coast guard station, were ready for her to tow us into the ice harbor.

"But all of the shipping didn't get in. About 90 coal barges valued at $5,000 apiece went over the falls and only ten were saved. Besides these, dozens of shantyboats, launches and freight boats were lost. Dams and piers were all knocked out. It was bad business."

TRANSFORMATION OF ITALIAN ART PROPOSED BY MUSSOLINI

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 17 (AP)—Fascistization of Italian art, with Benito Mussolini national director, is the next step in the process of transferring Italy into a Fascist state.

Artists and intellectuals in the ranks of the dominant party, seeking for a means of reawaking the nation's moribund cultural activity and of creating a truly Fascist artistic movement have decided to entrust the task to their leader, confident he can succeed where others have failed.

A formal request to this effect has been made by the Directorate of the Corporation of Intellectual Professions and by the National Fascist Syndicate of Fine Arts.

"We desire," these artists told the Premier, "to collaborate directly with you in nourishing new forms and creating the new style of Italian beauty."

NEW LONDON BUSINESS BLOCK HAS EIGHTH FIRE; EVIDENTLY INCENDIARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—The three and one-half story wooden structure 262 Main street, occupied by stores and dwelling apartments and which has been attacked by flames three times within two months, was again visited by fire early this morning when flames, believed to have been of an incendiary nature, threatened to raze the building. The fire evidently began in the American-European bakery and caused damage estimated at $25,000. This marked the eighth fire in this same building for which the owner paid $15,000, and is said to have insurance coverage to $15,000. Eighteen persons were driven from the structure and the four families who lived there lost all their effects.

This forenoon Fire Chief Charles Rose reported his suspicion that the building was fired to the police and later Sergeant Nelson Smith apprehended Sigmund Maleshewski, a baker employed at the American-European bakery, occupants of one of the stores of the structure, suspected of having applied the torch that started a blaze that gave the department a two hours' battle to subdue, but Maleshewski was not held long for the crime, for facts did not substantiate the belief that the accused had been guilty of setting fire to the building. He was, however, held as being a deserter from the United States army and Monday Maleshewski will be delivered to the federal authorities.

The fire broke out shortly after last midnight when flames were discovered on the second floor. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and the Allen Hook & Ladder company responded. When that company reached the burning building the flames had reached such serious proportions that an alarm was sent in from Box 25, corner of Main and Federal streets. So stubborn did the flames become that every available piece of fire fighting apparatus was finally summoned to the scene of the blaze.

The fire appeared to have originated in three separate and distinct places on the second floor and during the absence from the dwelling of its occupants. The blaze made its way to the upper story and a half by means of partitions and it was not until about 2 o'clock that the fire was entirely subdued.

During the combatting of the flames trolley cars were held up an hour and a half because of lines of hose being stretched across the rails.

An automobile owned and operated by Clarence H. Brown, 10 Morgan street, Groton, in passing through Main street late this afternoon struck and felled an unidentified youth at the corner of Shapley street. Although the youngster was knocked down, he declared that he had not sustained injury and refused to reveal his name to the driver of the automobile.

Charles Meyers, colored, a youth of about 19 years, will remain in jail until next Saturday for he will not be committed to the State hospital, at least for the present, for it is not believed by examining physicians that Meyer's mental condition is of a nature that demands hospital treatment. Meyers is charged with breach of the peace in having buried an ice cream sign through a window of the Green cafeteria, Green street, last Thursday night.

Louise Brooks, alias Louise Mellotti, aged 35, residing in Westerly, was taken into custody this evening by Policewoman Jane Cassidy charged with violation of an order of the New London police court. She will be presented before Judge S. Victor Prince at the session of court Monday morning.

The Brooks woman was arrested Jan. 4th., charged with lascivious carriage and the following day she was fined $50, but the execution of the penalty was suspended conditional that the accused depart from the city. This she did, but this evening she returned to New London and visited the Catholic Diocesan Social Service bureau, 42 Jay street, where she engaged in an altercation over money matters, with an attendant at the bureau. Policewoman Cassidy was notified and placed the woman under arrest.

Abraham Gordon and Hattie Soltz have sold a house and lot on Federal street to Katherine Williams.

John Mondelci has sold to Giovanna Petrini a house and lot on Shaw street.

Frederick O. Johnson, of Mare Island, Calif., has sold to Margaret W. Mahan a tract of land on Pleasant street.

Charles F. Bradshaw has sold to Margaret C. Newman a building lot on Broad street.

Sidney M. Sulman and Abraham Rakowsky have sold to the Auto Row Corporation two parcels of land on Broad street. The price paid was $8,000. The purchasers intend to have automobile sales rooms erected on the site.

The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles has caused the operator's license of Byron C. Vine, 218 Howard street, to be suspended. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the operator's license of Michael Barka, recently suspended, returned to the owner.

Patrolman William Manice early Saturday morning reported that a Ford touring car had been parked on Jay street for four days. Later in the day Patrolman Frank Philopena found that Bertram Smith, Waterford, was the owner of the car and that the machine was parked in the highway because it had become disabled. Smith, however, stated that he would have the car transferred to a garage.

Patrolmen in making their reports at the police station Sunday morning reported two defective hatchways on the principal streets of the city. One was reported as existing in front of the Vong fruit store, State street, and the other in front of the Salvation Army building, Main street.

Nobis Ireland, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cummings, state pier; Master Philip Beers, Waterford; Louis Fonsa, McDonald street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

Constance, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong, of 104 Howard street, died Friday night at Lawrence Hospital, at which institution the child had been under treatment a long time.

The funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Cone, wife of James Cone, of 10 Clement street, Waterford, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons, with Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, deacon, and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, sub-deacon. The bearers were John Riley, Julian Rondomanski, Frank Beebe, John Riley, Jr., Frank Shea and Leo O'Connell. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Fitzsimmons.

Robert McCulloch, 31, formerly of New London, died Thursday at Colorado Springs, Col., where he had been residing some time. He is survived by his wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McCulloch, of 3 Brainard street.

Misses Theodora and Virginia Palmer, of Pequot avenue, returned recently from a trip to Bermuda.

Dr. and Mrs. Tracy Farnum, whose home is one of the most beautiful on the coast, are to leave soon for a tour abroad.

MAN ENTERS HIS HOME AND THIEF STEALS CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17.—A Buick sedan owned by Tony Caldrello, 40 Pearl street, a public service operator, was stolen from in front of the residence of the owner Saturday night. The car, a 1921 model, was parked in front of Caldrella's home, while the owner was absent about an hour. The state police at Groton and Centerbrook and the authorities at Norwich, Westerly, New Haven and Hartford were requested to maintain a lookout for the stolen car.

George B. MacGowan, 32 Prest street, a salesman in the employ of Stratton & Co., Stoughton, Mass., reported to the local police Saturday night that while his automobile was parked on State street earlier in the evening a thief visited the car and stole a sample case containing a large quantity of scarfs.

VIOLATORS OF THE LAW GET STIFF SENTENCES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17.—George W. Hoyle and Elias Jennings, young men hired by the state police to detect violators of the liquor law, finished up their work for the present, Saturday, in the police court, when half a dozen accused parties pleaded guilty or demurred to the complaints against them and were fined or imprisoned. The accusers did not appear as witnesses. There was no necessity for that. The testimony against the parties they brought to court was so positive that there was no resistance.

Rock Diptula received the severest sentence. He was fined $400 and sent to the county jail to stay nine months. He took his punishment without a murmur, for he realized that he was getting off fairly well at that, for he might have been bound over to the superior court, in which tribunal a severer penalty was recently imposed at Norwich for a less aggravated offense. Then a fellow known as "Big Dan" was sent up for not less than thirteen months and not more than two years. Diptula is no stranger to jail conditions. He has served time there on other occasions. His place is located on Main street and there he sold liquor for $2 a pint and 25 cents a drink. The price indicates what the quality of the stuff was, as prescription liquor at drug stores costs one half more than that.

Tony De Laura, a taximan, was fined $200. It was represented for him that he was at the railway station when Jennings and Hoyle appeared and asked him for liquor. He declined to serve them, but they were persistent and represented that they needed the stuff so Tony went and got some for them.

Murray Cascio also paid a fine of $200. It is claimed that Murray was not an offender before, but that he sold to the complaining witnesses after they had begged him for the liquor and made representations they were in dire need.

Enrico D'Alia of West Colt street took a chance—and lost. He was in the business for fair and had a 150-gallon still in operation at his home. He was fined $200 and his still was confiscated. That apparatus was composed of copper chiefly and heavy zinc so it is estimated that the outfit represented an outlay of nearly $1,000.

It will probably be used as a kerosene holder at the state police barracks in Groton hereafter.

Enrico Fabri, engineer at a local hotel, sought to make some money on the side. He was probably successful in that, for both he and his wife were declared to have been selling. He was fined $200 and produced it just as if he had been behind the counter in a bank.

Josephine Federici, the only woman in the lot of violators, got away with a reduced fine. She was represented by counsel who said he had doubts as to whether the evidence was sufficient to convict. He said that he had decided to demur to the complaint and to take the consequences. Judge Prince remitted $150 of the fine that the woman might pay and abandon the business. She agreed to do that.

D'Elia, was the only convicted man to appeal. It is understood that he will abandon his appeal and settle up before return day in the common pleas court.

Samuel Barnes, night watchman for many business places, informed the police by telephone early this morning that a young lady connected with the Young Women's Christian Association, corner of Church and Huntington streets, had informed him that an intruder was in the building and was on the upper floor of the house. Patrolman David Nagle and Clarence Martin were dispatched to the association's rooms and conducted a search of the building, but no trace of the supposed intruder was found.

Girolemi Girl of Shaw street says he cannot get along with his family of seven children, the oldest of them young men and women. He was arrested for a breach of the peace at midnight, Friday. Girl went home drunk and then things started. The oldest son, a young man of 21, upbraided the father for being in the room of his mother-in-law, but Girolimo had enough liquor in his stomach to resent the interference of the son. The result was that the son walloped the father and, according to his own statement, dragged him into the street. Then the police were called and Girolimi was taken into custody. He admitted all that occurred and said he got "wild" when his children found fault with him and disputed his rights in the house. He said his wife died some years ago and that since then he had provided for the house and provided well, but now he wanted to go away and get rid of it all. Judge Prince decided to take further cognizance of the case and after the court session closed, called Girl and his son to the bar and told both what was to be the order of things in the future. He regulated the manner of deportment for both and then continued the case for three months, that he might observe the conduct of Girl and his son.

Thomas Lowney, a lightship employe, was in New London Friday night. He indulged in liquor and when he went into the Capitol theatre he dropped into sleep and into snoring, also, so that he disturbed others about him. Then he was taken into custody and to the police station. He explained all in the police court and Judge Prince decided to defer passing judgment on him. So Tommy went back to his lonesome watch with the conviction that he would try some other remedy for a cold, when he came ashore again.

Walter J. Morris, son of the late Michael and Ann Morris, died Saturday morning at the residence of his sisters, Misses Elizabeth and Ida Morris, 38 Steward street, after a brief illness. Mr. Morris was formerly employed at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company.

Palace Theatre.

D. W. Griffith's latest offering, That Royle Girl, kept everybody on the edge of their seats at the Palace last night. The cyclone is one of Griffith's finest sensational touches to a picture that is just brimming over with melodramatic thrills.

That Royle Girl is Joan Daisy Royle, a jazzy, beautiful modiste's mannequin, who becomes infatuated with Fred Ketlar, famous leader of a Chicago dance hall orchestra. The latter, though married, is estranged from his wife, Adele, who has become the mistress of George Baretta, wealthy bootlegger and gang leader.

Adele is found murdered one morning. Ketlar is accused of the crime, having been seen entering her apartment. The trial is the sensation of the city. Although Calvin Clarke, the straitlaced district attorney, finds himself strangely drawn to Joan, who is a witness for the defense, he is, nevertheless, merciless in his cross-examination of her, and succeeds in convicting Ketlar.

As the day of Ketlar's execution approaches, Joan works frantically to save him. Tipped off that Baretta is the real murderer, she disguises herself and joins a party the gangster is giving at Boar's Head inn, a notorious roadhouse. She overhears Baretta admit the murder, but is discovered and forced to make a sensational escape, just as a terrific cyclone breaks in all its fury. The inn collapses, killing all the gangsters.

Clarke, who had followed Joan, arrives, and in a mad rush they reach the governor by phone and stay the execution of Ketlar. Eventually the dance leader is freed, but Joan realizes now that she never really loved him. Ketlar married a chorus girl, while Joan finds happiness with Clarke.

In addition there is good all around vaudeville bill with James Kennedy and Company in a comedy offering. The Putnman Plait Trio, another comedy trio, Julianna Trio, in a singing comedy offering, and another surprise package in Nelto.

If some people profited by their errors it would keep them busy declaring dividends.

Breed Theatre

Something new in the way of motion picture entertainment made its appearance at the Breed Theatre yesterday and stood out as prominently as a genuine vocal artist among a bunch of rank song pluggers.

That something new is "The Midshipman," a photoplay of romance and adventure born of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis and produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the supervision and with the cooperation of the Navy Department.

The story of "The Midshipman" was not fashioned to glorify anything but the art of pure pictorial entertainment. It centers around a young man, the son of a Lieut. Commander who lost his life in the war, who follows in his father's footsteps professionally. The beauty of the story is that it is dependent chiefly upon its fine and truthful detail and that one scene has to be as lustrous as the next in order to tell its plot coherently. Thus, from the very first shots showing Novarro entering the historic Gate No. 3 of the Academy to the last wherein Harriet Hammond pins on his epaulets, one is transported to Annapolis and on several occasions imagines that the Severn River is within easy walking distance of the theatre.

Besides Miss Harriet Hammond there are in Mr. Novarro's supporting cast such capable players as Wesley Barry, who after completing the picture expressed a wish to become a midshipman; Margaret Seddon, known as "the queen of mother roles"; Crawford Kent, hated for his villainies but loved for his acting; Kathleen Key, recently of the "Ben Hur" company in Rome; Pauline Neff, Maurice Ryan and William Boyd.

Conn. College Concert

The First Insect

The earliest insects on earth had six wings—one pair of wings to match each pair of legs, according to the results of the researches of Dr. Herbert Bolton, director of the Bristol (England) museum. Dr. Bolton discovered the remains of these strange creatures, the first living things that ever conquered the air, in fossil material from coal age beds. Each body segment that bore a pair of legs, he says, bore also, a pair of wings, but the foremost wings were short and apparently of less use in flight than the after two pairs, suggesting the subsequent development of the modern type of insects, which all have four wings, though in some groups one or both pairs have become much modified or reduced to two pairs of wings, also lived in the coal age. Most notable were giant dragon-flies, some of them with a wing spread of more than a foot, and innumerable cockroaches. In fact, the coal age may well be called the age of cockroaches, as far as insect life is concerned.

Just Little Gland Makes 'Em Waver

Science now professes to have traced the source of feminine "incomprehensibility," and what woman calls her inherent right to change her mind. A small gland at the base of the feminine brain is responsible for these character traits which man never has been able to explain or understand. The discovery was made by Prof. Clement Jeffery, of London, a Park Lane manipulative specialist, who caters to the socially prominent.

Lecturing before medical students and prominent doctors Prof. Jeffery said that "Woman, the incomprehensible throughout the ages," could at last be explained—in terms of glands. The womanly woman, invented during the late Georgian period, and the militant suffraget of the early Lloyd-Georgian days, differed only as a result of the secretions of certain glands. Indeed it might be held that the limiting factor of the whole feminist movement was a diminutive gland situated in the base of the brain.

While our typical masculine and feminine characteristics, both mental and physical, were due to the preponderance of the secretions of such glands, it would nevertheless be absurd, said Jeffery, to take the view that human beings were merely automatons. If our characteristics were controlled by our glands, we in turn had that power, by obeying the laws of nature, which enabled our glands to function normally.

Until recently he continued, their existence had been absolutely denied although it was now recognised that our lives were largely dominated by them. The glands required nutrition and wholesome food. Air and sunlight were also important influences on their secretions. These must be normal, both as regards quantity and quality if a healthy life was to be achieved.

When some people make up their minds they leave out a lot of important matter.

Horned Owl Bagged

With a wing spread of 40 inches and a height of over 3 feet, a horned owl recently was bagged near Ridgefield Wash., and said to be one of the finest specimens found in that part of the country in recent years. Charles M. Smythe, who shot the owl while it was disturbing chickens, has stuffed the bird. It had destroyed about $25 worth of chickens before being shot down.

The invitation committee for the luncheon consists of E. A. Prentice, Edwin Hill, Frank D. Davis, John B. Stanton, George W. Armstrong, C. M. Beebe, Mrs. Herbert Willey, Mrs. H. L. Peckham, Mrs. E. La Rue Bliven.

VERNON PATIENT SUICIDES AT MIDDLETOWN HOSPITAL

Coroner Lowndes O. Smith of Middletown, in his decision in the death of Miss Olga Rabenstein, 50, of Vernon, a patient at the state hospital at Middletown, finds that death was due to suicide and was a case of deliberate drowning. The coroner held an inquest into the death of the woman Friday afternoon. Several attendants and physicians were questioned. Miss Rabenstein escaped from the institution late Wednesday afternoon by pushing aside the caging over the window of her room and dropping eight feet to the ground. Her steps were traced to the river, Friday morning Game Warden George J. Fisher and J. Fred Collins discovered the body, caked with ice, at the river bank near the almshouse.

SAYS WOMEN BETTER THAN MEN FOR POULTRY RAISING

WELWYN, Herts, Eng., Jan. 2—(AP)—Women, because of their natural qualified than men to raise poultry, says Miss Harrison Bell, operator of the All-Women Chicken and Duck Farm.

As the name indicates all work about the farm is done by women who are studying with a view of branching out for themselves as soon as they have graduated.

Only one entry in a class can be made by an exhibitor.

All exhibits should be sent prepaid on or before January 18, 1926, to Leonard H. Healey, Garde hotel, Hartford, Conn.

CHRIST CHURCH WOMAN'S AUXILIARY ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Christ church branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Friday afternoon in the choir room of the church. The rector, Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, opened the meeting with prayer, and in the absence of the presiding officer took charge of the business meeting.

The reports of the secretary, Miss Mary H. Paddock, and of the treasurer, Miss Louise Robinson, were read and approved.

For the united thank offering Miss Mary Osgood reported that during 1925 the Christ church branch had given the sum of $135.05.

The secretary then read a memorial resolution upon the death of Miss Kate Rudd, which was unanimously passed and entered upon the records of the Auxiliary.

The nominating committee presented the following ballot for officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. Gardiner Greene; vice president, Miss Katherine Kent; secretary, Miss Ina M. Ufford; treasurer, Miss Susan Gallup; supply secretary, Mrs. William Clark; educational secretary, Miss Mary H. Paddock; united thank offering treasurer, Miss Mary Osgood; church periodical club secretary, Mrs. Francis Gilman.

The report of the committee was accepted as presented and the officers declared elected.

Mrs. Budlong invited the members to meet at the rectory on February 12th, when a program will be given, followed by a social hour.

HIS FIRST FIDDLE WAS MADE FROM A SHINGLE

A local contestant for the state fiddling championship at Hartford, Jan. 26th, is Jerry Pellerin of Wauregan, who is 69 years old and the father of 19 children. He is just as spry today as a man of 35 years. He came from Canada in 1875 and has been the wizard of his section of the country ever since. His first fiddle was a home made outfit made from a house shingle using the hair from his father's horse's tail for his fiddle and bow. When his father caught him taking the hair one day, he chastised him so severely that he finally got enough money to buy a violin and he has been playing a fiddle ever since.

It will surprise the public what he can do when they hear him in Hartford. He did not go to the fiddling contest in Providence because he didn't know at the time of the event. But seeing that the fiddlers are getting so much publicity he has decided to give the public the benefit of his wonderful music by putting on a wonderful program at Hartford, Jan. 26.

CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION ENTERTAINED THEIR MOTHERS

A programme which showed the mothers what is done by the General Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, was carried out at the January meeting which was held in the Community house last week and to which the mothers were invited. Mrs. William H. Dawley, regent of Faith Trumbull chapter was a guest at the meeting and spoke interestingly to the children.

After the business meeting at which president, Rose B. Standish, presided, a social hour was held in which Dorothy B. Stewart rendered a spirited violin solo, A Dance In Ye Olden Style, by Ernest Gillett. Sherrod Ingalls gave a finely executed piano solo, Murmuring Zephyrs, by Nieman and this was followed by a solo dance, Hungarian Rhapsody, by Dolly Edmond. As an encore she gave Anitra's Dance. Miss Dorothea Tucker was her accompanist.

A peanut hunt and dancing were enjoyed after which ice cream and cake was served. The hostesses were Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, Mrs. Clarence A. Spear, Mrs. Frank B. Royce, Mrs. Louis H. Geer, Mrs. Frank J. Core and Mrs. Charles H. Standish.

BIG MAIL ORDER BUSINESS BY AMERICAN LIBRARIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—American libraries are doing a large mail order business.

Free books, delivered by parcel post, have been offered by the St. Louis Public Library several years and in 1924 approximately 2,500 volumes were distributed to patrons, many of whom are blind.

In Chicago and Seattle a borrower deposits a dollar to pay postage on books mailed. When the amount is nearly exhausted, the reader is notified so it may be renewed.

The Free Public Library in East Orange, N. J., delivers books by messenger at the expense of the borrower and many libaries throughout the country have instituted the "vacation privilege" system, under which a patron may keep books during the summer or have them exchanged by mail or express.

As a part of its adult education movement, the American Library Association is encouraging the development of the mail order distribution of books.

SAYS SOUTH CAN MEET WORLD DEMAND FOR COTTON

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Boll weevil or no boll weevil, the cotton belt of the United States can produce all the fleecy staple the world will consume and pay for at a "living price" in the opinion of Alabama Experiment Station officials.

This could be accomplished through intelligent use of fertilizer and better varieties of seed, said Professor M. J. Funchess, director, after studying results of experiments extending over a 15-year period.

The added cost necessary to increase production would be small compared with the net return and it would not be necessary to extend the cotton area, he explains.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—A sharp downward revision of stock prices, public offering of an unusually heavy volume of new stocks and bonds and the steady climb of British and Japanese exchanges toward gold parity, were the high lights of this week's financial markets.

The reaction in the stock market was precipitated by the heavy profit taking of traders who had bought stocks in the closing weeks of the year with the intention of unloading them on the rise which usually accompanies the reinvestment of year-end dividend and interest accompanies the reinvestment of year-end dividend and interest payments, and by bear selling, which was particularly effective in the motor shares. The decline, which was a natural correction of a weakened technical position, was not associated with anything in the week's business news which was generally favorable.

Commodity prices were mixed Wheat dropped one to four cents a bushel, largely in reflection of the relatively poor foreign demand. The cotton market was steady, the bulk of the week's speculative accounts.

A rise in sterling exchange is usual at this time of the year. Demand for sterling has been accentuated, of at by the scant supply of cotton and wheat bills and the increased requirements of importers. The advance in Japanese yen is believed to forecast an early return of Japan to the gold standard.

William Chenette of Hunters avenue began harvesting ice on the Lisbon pond last week.

The Sunday evening meeting of the Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavor was held in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. Miss Mary Greenhalgh was the leader and the topic discussed was Big Ideas that have Moved People.

William T. Delaney of South A St., has purchased a new automobile.

HANOVER CHURCH ROLL-CALL WITH ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting and roll-call of the Hanover Congregational church was held at the parish house, last Wednesday evening. A delicious supper was served at 6:30 o'clock by the Ladies' Guild, seventy-five members and friends, enjoying the followship together.

The annual meeting was called to order at 8:15 by the minister, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, who led in an opening service of worship. Following the minutes of the last meeting, reports of all the various organizations of the church were given. The church started the year without a minister, had only one candidate, Rev. D. C. Stone, who was the regular supply during the vacancy and welcomed him as minister of the church the first Sunday in April. The installation service on Oct. 12 was one of the big events of the year.

All of the reports showed that much good work has been done in Hanover, where it is the constant aim to make the village a happier and better place in which to live. Each organization in its own line of work had something to contribute tao help the church do its work as a whole. During the year the parsonage and vestry have been renovated throughout at a cost of $1,000, a friendly community spirit has been fostered by men and women alike, the church school has grown in numbers and its educational program has been decidedly improved. Along missionary lines the reports showed a little better work generally, particularly among the young women and children where a new organizations have been started. The gifts as a whole were larger than last year. Yet in all of the reports there was a spirit which seemed to feel that much more could be done and a determination to make 1928 come even nearer our ideal.

The report of the nominating committee was read by the chairman, Henry A. Adams, accepted and officers elected as read. The meeting concluded with the roll-call of membership by the clerk, Wm. S. Lee, and the responses by the members. There was a general feeling that this had been one of the best annual meetings in the history of the church.

CENTRAL BAPTIST SCHOOL ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Officers were elected Sunday at the Central Baptist church school as follows:

Superintendent, Emery H. Davis; assistant superintendents, Edward Y. Messinger, Charles S. Storms, Judge Allyn L. Brown; secretary, Wills P. Hill; assistant secretary, Walter U. Forschler; treasurer, N. Eugene Smith; assistant treasurer, Harry Kromer; chorister, Fred J. Maples; auditor, Joseph S. Adams.

Harold S. Burt, who has filled the position of superintendent during the past year with great acceptance to the church and school, declined to be considered for another term.

DESCRIBE CHANGES IN AFRICA SINCE CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION CAME

The evening service Sunday at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church was devoted to a talk on Africa, songs in the native tongue of the Belgian Congo, and an exhibition of curios from that far away land. The programme was presented by Rev. J. Henry Erickson, Mrs. Longworth and Miss Everett, returned American missionaries from Africa. Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service.

Following the usual opening of the church service Mrs. Longworth and Miss Everett entertained with a sacred duet after which Miss Everett exhibited and explained the use of a number of African curios. She showed cooking utensils and described the native method of cooking their simple foods. The men eat first, and the women last said Miss Everett. Axes, made by native blacksmiths, knives, clothing made of grass cloth were shown and described. Following the curio exhibition Mrs. Longworth sang several songs in the language of the African people in the Belgian Congo.

Rev. Mr. Erickson gave a very interesting talk on life in Africa especially in the Congo section. He told how Portuguese navigators as long ago as 1485 visited Africa and went up the Congo for a distance of 105 miles this being as far as they could go owing to the rapids and water falls. There they chiseled a record of their visit on a rock. The natives to this day speak of the rock as the God Rock. A few years later, 1491, a Catholic priest went into the lower Congo.

For a number of years he and others labored among the natives and a number were converted. A neighboring tribe came along and killed or drove all the Christians from that section. In 1877 Henry Stanley followed the Congo almost from its source down to the Ocean. From then on natives through traders got some idea of the white man.

The natives were greatly afraid of the white man whom they thought came from spiritland to take their souls back with them to sell in spiritland in order to buy more cloth to trade. That was 50 years ago.

Today there are steamship lines to Africa, telephone lines, telegraph lines, hydroplanes, aeroplanes and even the radio in Africa. Today in Belgian Congo there are 60,000 native Christians. Rev. Mr. Erickson told of some of the difficulties the missionaries meet in trying to learn the native language. He also spoke of the queer names of living and their queer outlook of life and also made reference to the many diseases among the natives. In regard to the native religion he said it may be summed up in three words, ignorance, superstitution and witchcraft.

Following Rev. Mr. Erickson's talk Mrs. Longworth sang another solo after which the service came to a close. The missionaries left shortly after the service for Hartford where they are located at the present time.

ABNER SCHWARTZ ON "OVERSEAS CHEST" COMMITTEE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 17—(AP)—Nearly 150 delegates, representing Jewish organizations and communal groups of the state, were present here today at the conference which launched the effort of Connecticut Jewry to raise its $350,000 share of the $15,000,000 "overseas chest," which Jews of all states have undertaken as a joint task. Samuel J. Well, of New Haven, was elected chairman of the state organization.

The fund sought is to be used to carry further the work for economic and physical restoration of the war impoverished Jews of Eastern Europe. The campaign in Connecticut will be from February 1 to May 15.

Abram Spelke, of Stamford, was elected associate chairman and Alexander Cahn, of New Havan was elected treasurer.

The vice chairmen are: Judge Jacob Capian, Joseph H. Ullman, New Haven; H. P. Koppiemann, Benjamin S. Haas, Hartford; Herman J. Weisman, Waterbury; Nestor Dreyfus, New London; Dr. S. L. Quitt, Greenwich; Jacob B. Klein, Israel J. Cohn, Bridgeport; Benjamin Epstein, Winsted; Dr. Samuel N. Diets, South Norwalk; Asher Papish, Danbury; George Lewitt, New Britain; M. M. Wilder, Meriden; Jacob H. Bellin, Ansonia; Abner Schwartz, Norwich; Israel J. Polinr, Middletown; Louis Tunick, Torrington.

David A. Brown, of Detroit, national chairman of the United Jewish campaign, was the guest of honor and principal speaker today. His main address was devoted to an account of a first hand investigation he made last spring of the "back-to-the-soil movement among the Jews of Russia."

Judge Capian and Colonel Isaac L. Ullman, of New Haven, speaking at the morning session, stressed the need of the campaign. Rabbi Kotler, of Bridgeport and Rabbi Jurman, of Waterbury also spoke at the forenoon meeting.

Speakers at the afternoon session included Mayor John B. Tower, Commissioner Hyman Jacobs, Rabbi S. S. Tedesche and Rabbi Leon Spitz.

REVIEWS POULTNEY BIGELOW'S BOOK, "SEVENTY SUMMERS"

Although there is no mention of his student days at Norwich Free Academy, from which he was graduated with the class of '73, there is interesting reading for many Norwich residents in a review of Poultney Bigelow's latest book, "Seventy Summers." This snappy and not too gentle review is by Stuart Sherman and appeared in the New York Herald-Tribune book section Sunday.

It is entitled "A Superstatesman on the Perfect Life" and refers to the author as a "cynical sage of seventy, reveling in prejudices, a mettlesome gamecock, tough as a butternut, amusing as a chipmunk." Nothing could be more engaging than the account of Mr. Bigelow's unusual career which has given him the privilege of smartly knocking a miscellaneous lot of things which most Americans revere. As the reviewer sums up, the book furnishes "a rare opportunity for circumscribed Americans to learn what life in the real world is like."

If there is any suggestion of the reviewer "roasting" Mr. Bigelow, the latter doubtless won't mind it even a little bit. There is a long standing suspicion that he rather prides himself upon his skill in the gentle art of making enemies.

LOUIS K. GEER RECOVERING FROM FOOT OPERATION

Louis Kimball Geer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Geer of 94 Fourth St., is making excellent recovery at a Hartford hospital where he underwent an operation on his foot last week to overcome a condition which developed as the result of a fracture some time ago.

Relatives who visited him Sunday found him getting along fine and it is possible that he will be able to return home in another week, though it will be several weeks before he will be able to get about. His many friends will be pleased to learn of his satisfactory improvement.

HEALTH LECTURE AT MEETING AT POQUETANUCK

With about sixty present, the January meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held at the Poquetanuck school-house last week.

Dr. Knowlton, of the state department of health gave an instructive lecture on preventable diseases, illustrated by magic lantern slides, which the children as well as adults enjoyed.

Health pamphlets were distributed to those present and a generous supply was left which were given to the children the next day to be taken home.

Refreshments were served at the close.

Invitations to Cincinnati Wedding

Invitations have been received by Norwich relatives from Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ward Mallon of Cincinnati, O., to the marriage of their daughter, Sophie Beadle Mallon and Bryant John Brooks of Cincinnati. The wedding is to take place at 8 o'clock on Saturday evening Jan. 28, at the Calvary church, Clifton, Cincinnati. Mr. Mallon, who is a prominent lawyer of Cincinnati is a graduate of Yale and a cousin of Thomas M. Shields and William H. Shields, Jr., Norwich attorneys.

HUMANE SOCIETY WORK REPORTED FOR DECEMBER

During the month of December the Connecticut Humane society investigated 134 complaints of cruelty to animals, involving 246 horses, mules, cattle, dogs and cats. There were five prosecutions on charges of cruel treatment or animals left without food and shelter. A conviction was obtained against each defendant with one jail sentence imposed. The balance were made to pay fines. Food or shelter was provided for seventy-five farm animals and veterinary care was given to twenty-seven animals. Thirty-five horses, dogs or cats temporarily provided for at the shelter for animals on Washington street, Hartford. Thirty-seven injured small animals were given attention. One hundred seventy-three sick or unwanted small animals were humanely disposed of and ten unfit horses were put to sleep.

Eleven sick or neglected men and women were provided either with medical or hospital care or town aid. Thirty-eight families were reported during the month concerning 142 neglected or ill-treated children. Five prosecutions were instituted against persons on charges of misconduct or placing children in situations likely to impair their morals. Twelve petitions were filed for the commitment of adults or children to institutions. Twenty children were provided with hospital or medical care and five were provided for temporarily by the society. Eighteen children were provided for by friends or relatives.

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the society will be held at headquarters in Hartford, Wednesday afternoon January 27 at 3 o'clock, when reports covering the entire year's work will be submitted. Mrs. W B. Williams, secretary, is in charge of the recreation committee and tea will be served.

HELD RELIGIOUS SERVICE AT THE NORWICH JAIL

A religious service was held Sunday morning at 9:15 at the county jail by a delegation from the Y. M. C. A. Hugh Kinder sang three solos very impressively and Edmond A. Prentice gave a forceful address on "Success in Life. What it is, and how it is obtained." He said in part that success in life was the choosing of some occupation or abyss, that has the approval of God and then pressing on diligently and prayerfully towards the accomplishment of that object, and that always produced two results, first, a well lived life and second, service to others. Four things were necessary; first, the cultivation of the soul, the only lasting thing we possess; second, the development of the mind; third, the security and maintaining of a healthy body, and fourth, that we are stewards only, of the thing God gives us. Then Mr. Prentice said that no one could hope to succeed who did not take with his consideration the fact that God is, and that God rules. How does the man who steals or the man who sells heoch expect to succeed? Is there any law on the statute books that give you permission to break the laws of God and of the state? Does the Bible give any such privilege? No, and when you did those acts you had to turn your backs on God. You did not dare to look Him in the face.

Mr. Prentice said he was extremely sorry to see so many young men here this morning. "When you committed the acts for which you are confined here," continued, "you did not use that God given power, the brain; now this Sabbath morning you are clothed in your right mind. Let me ask you that when you go to your cells you thank your Heavenly Father that you now have your right mind and have the privilege of thinking how as he sends the physical sun to warm the earth, so the sun of God's love can warm your hearts." Mr. Prentice closed by giving a graphic description of the lives of people he knew, who made great success out of life, because they completely trusted in God through Jesus Christ to direct and guide their lives and no one, said the speaker, who will prayerfully do that can ever fail to succeed.

A number of moist eyes were noticed among the men and more then twenty of them asked to be remembered in prayer.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS REACH 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Church of the Redeemer, in Hartford, the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Order of the King's Daughters and Sons was celebrated. Mrs. George H. Pryor, of Jewett City, international president, was the guest of honor and speaker. Reports of the work of the past year were read. Mrs. William Gilbert sang, accompanied by Mrs. Forsythe at the piano. The devotional exercises were in charge of Professor P. E. Shaw of the Theological Seminary, who offered suggestions for the work of the coming year. A social hour with tea followed. The first meeting of the order was held, January 18, 1886. Mrs. Margaret Bottome, was the first president. At the end of the first year the membership had grown from 10 to 70,000. The order is non-sectarian, undenominational, and originally was formed for a silent service to sisters in need of help. The order maintains hospitals, homes, lunch and rest rooms, nurseries, free clinics and dispensaries, night school, industrial schools and many other branches of help throughout the world.

Beware of a Cold

A cold means danger. Over 150,000 people die from pneumonia alone. And countless other troubles come from colds.

Stop a cold at the start. Do it in the quickest, most effective way. Take Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. It checks a cold in 24 hours, and grippe in three days. Millions now use it, for in 25 years no one has found a better way to stop colds.

Don't trust lesser treatments when you can get this. All druggists sell Hill's.

NORWICH TOWN

A large delegation from Troop No. 12, Boy Scouts of Park Congregational church, Mr. Woodman, scout master, visited Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts, of Norwich Town, Frederic H. Wyant, scout master, at their camp on Mediterranean Lane, Friday evening. The meeting opened at 7:30, when the scouts pledged Allegiance to the Flag, and repeated the scouts oath. The boys of Troop 20 made cocoa over the open fire place and this with maple syrup they had partly boiled down and turned over biscuits, was served to the entire company. After the feast many of the scouts went out on the Norwich Town Green and played the game of Capturing the Flag. The few who remained indobrs popped corn, which, when the other scouts returned to the camp, was eaten with all sitting around the fire place, listening to the radio. Following this, the scouts made up several teams and played blow football, after which they sang taps and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Frederick D. Millard (Gladys Belle-Beebe), until recently of Philadelphia, is passing several weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Beebe, of Scotland road.

Mr. Millard, who recently changed his business location from Philadelphia to New York, spends each week end with his wife, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beebe.

Ernest Kennedy of Danielson, was a caller Saturday afternoon at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy, of Town street.

The president, Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey was hostess to the Drop-in class of the First Congregational Sunday school, when 15 attended the annual business meeting Friday evening at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

With Mrs. Bailey presiding, routine business was transacted. The former treasurer, Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, reported a total of over $200 in the treasury. From this the class contributed $144, to cover the expense of laying a new hard wood floor in the chapel parlor, which charge this class voluntarily assumed.

Officers elected for 1926, were: President, Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey; vice-president, Mrs. Charles P. Learned; treasurer, Mrs. Henry T. Frazier; secretary, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery. The newly elected committees are: Supper, Mrs David M. Dean, chairman; Christmas, Mrs. Charles P. Learned, chairman, Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe and Mrs. Michael Buckley.

A delightful social hour followed and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Relatives and friends of Joseph H. Olsen were shocked to learn of his sudden death Sunday morning about 5 o'clock, at the home of E. B. Worthing, 632 Main street, where he had made his home for the past year or more.

Mr. Olsen who was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hans Olsen (Selma Jacobson) was born in Sweden, June 7th, 1894, having come to America with his parents when a babe about six or seven months old.

When a young boy Mr. Olsen's family resided in Norwich Town, where about half of his life was spent.

He was a loyal member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, a member of the Young Men's class connected with the Sunday school, and the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor society. In all branches of the church he was an interested worker, being especially active in the Y. P. S. C. E., and on various occasions conducted the Sunday evening meeting in a very capable manner. He was kind hearted, and a liberal given to worthy causes. His untimely death has cast a gloom over the town in which he was rearer and where many of his fellow associates still reside.

For the past several months since living in the city, Mr. Olsen attended the First Baptist church and Sunday school where also his influences have been felt and appreciated. He was a member of the Ancient Order United Workmen.

Surviving are a brother John Olsen, a sister Mrs. Walter D. Kelley (Mary Olsen,) a nephew, Donald Olsen and another nephew, Walter Kelley and one niece Helena Kelley, all of Norwich Town. Mr. Olsen was in as good spirits as usual on Saturday and had dinner at his brothers home on Town street.

POETRY

"Launch Out"

Luke 5: 4-6; Matt. 4: 19.

Launch out, launch out: "Launch into the deep;
Let down your net for a draught";
Toil on, toil on, though others sleep;
Your Captain commands your craft.

Launch out, launch out; at His bidding go;
There are souls engulfed in sin;
Launch out, and your net will overflow
With the precious freight within.

Launch out, launch out, there is man a soul
Who fain would come to land;
More bruised by sin, they would fain be whole;
They long for a friendly hand.

Launch out; fear not though the waves beat high,
And the billows lash your craft;
He who commands is standing nigh;
"Let down your net for a draught."

Launch out; oh, haste, lest you be too late
Your perishing soul to save!
Speed to your barque! oh, do not wait!
See! o'er him sweeps sin's dark wave.

Launch out! launch out! Hear the spurring word:
"I will make you fishers of men."
Let your feet be swift to action stirred,
That your hands be free from stain.

O ye at ease on the pleasant shore,
Launch out on the seething foam!
Away! steer the boat, or wield an oar;
Go! bring ye the lost ones home.
—By Jennie Wilson-Howell.

Brook Song

Brook, would thou couldst flow
With a music all thine own—
Thy bubble of music alone—
Not a word of the Long Ago
In thy brawling down below,
Not a sigh or the wind by thee,
The wind in the willow tree!

Or, Brook, if thou couldst go,
As once, in the prime of May,
For a whole long holiday,
When the cowslips down below
With the babble of two by thee,
And the violets watched thy flow,
And the wind in the willow tree,

O Brook if thou couldst so
Make a living music, and sing
Of a faded, bygone spring,
And down by the violets flow
With the babble of Long Ago—
I would listen forever to thee
And the wind in the willow tree.
—James Herbert Morse.

FRENCH MINISTRY TO FORCE BUDGET BALANCE MEASURES

Finance Minister Doumer Maintains That Prompt Adoption of His Bill is the Only Measure That Will Obviate the Necessity of Turning Out a Few Billion Francs More Paper Money—Debate in the Chamber is Likely to Come Thursday or Friday

PJARIS, Jan. 18—(AP)—The conflict between the government and certain groups of the government majority in the chamber of M. Doumer's financial restoration bills goes on, with continually shifting fortunes of battle. The leaders of the recalcitrant elements of the left have regained some of their aggressiveness since another truce was declared Saturday. Today they countered on M. Doumer with the menace of such amendments to the stamp tax on business transactions as would make the passage of this principal feature of his programme improbable.

The finance minister insists that the prompt adoption of his bi lls the only means of producing immediate relief which the treasury needs. He declares that the bills prepared by the radical-socialist members of the finance committee would furnish no ready money, and that, if additional revenue was not forthcoming without delay, parliament would be obliged to ask the Bank of France to set the printing press running again to turn out a few billion francs more paper.

The leaders of the moderate groups today were endeavoring to bring about a compromise that would make it possible for the chamber to act before the end of the week. The debate is likely to come Thursday or Friday, and the government is determined to force the issue in case the finance committee is not able to come to an agreement with M. Doumer.

The radicals and socialists on the finance committe completed their counter measures today, after which the president of the committee waited on Premier Briand and declared that those measures would balance the budget, provided an agreement could be reached with M. Doumer on modification of the stamp tax.

CARDINAL MERCIER FAILING UNDER GASTRIC ATTACKS

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier's strong natural constitution is gradually succumbing to the gastric attacks which almost daily followed the operation he underwent December 23 for a lesion of the stomach. He is becoming feebler; he suffers distressing weakness, but because of his wonderful organism, his resistance has been remarkable.

Tonight the attending physicians, after a consultation, announced that artificial feeding had been resorted to, but that the patient's failure to assimilate nourishment rendered his condition serious. No formal bulletin was issued.

"The physicians held out the hope that the cardinal may live several weeks yet, owing to his power of resistance, but, one of them added "science is unable to perform miracles. However, everything that science can do has been done and is still being done."

All visitors were barred from the sickroom today, not even the cardinal's secretary being permitted to consult with him. But mas said in chamber by his nephew, Abbe Joseph Mercier, and special masses will be celebrated in all the parishes throughout Belgium tomorrow.

For years Cardinal Mercier has been accustomed to severe dieting and fasting, and, as the physicians explain it, he has not been affected as severely by the digestive disturbances as others many years his junior might have been. Meanwhile, the indomitable prelate's spirits continue bright. On the occasion of a recent visit, Governor Beco, of Brabant province, told him, in reply to the cardinal's question that the Basilica of the Sacred Heart being erected on the heights of Koekelberg Plateau would have the crypt finished in 1926, and added: "Your eminence will surely be there to dedicate it."

Cardinal Mercier smiler, well pleased, and grasped the governor's hand silently.

475 NEW CASES OF MEASLES IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Jan. 18—(AP)—There were 475 new cases of measles reported to the state department of health last week, the total being 37 less than the previous week. Bridgeport still has the greatest number of cases, 102, while eleven other communities each reported more than ten new cases. The disease, while prevalent in every country, is not particularly virulent, no deaths having been reported thus far.

Cities and towns having more than ten cases are: Fairfield, 19; Norwalk, 11; Stamford, 39; Hartford, 30; Manchester, 20; West Hartford, 15; Wethersfield, 12; Milford, 36 New Haven, 38; Waterbury, 33; Colchester, 31.

Whooping cough cases also increased during the past week, 80 being reported as compared with 60 the previous week. Diphtheria decreased slightly from 49 cases an 41, while scarlet fever jumped from 70 to 74 and typhoid fever remained at a total of three cases. Other totals were: Broncho pneumonia, 52; chickenpox 143; influenza, 5; mumps, 15; tuberculosis, 25.

Well child conferences for next week have been announced as follows: Wednesday, East Haven and East Hampton; Thursday, Windsor and Somersville; Friday, Gilead. All conferences are from 2 until 4 p. m.

INHERITANCE TAX CASE BEFORE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—The right of states to specify the time in which gifts shall be considered as having been made in anticipation of death and therefore subject to an inheritance tax, was argued today before the supreme court.

The issue came before the court in an appeal by the executors of the estate of Ferdinand Schlesinger of Wisconsin who within a few years of his death made gifts to his wife and children totaling approximately $6,500,000 out of an estate of about $3,500,000. The Wisconsin law under attack, which provides that such gifts within six years of death, shall be as made in anticipation of death, was upheld by the lower courts.

Counsel for the state pointed out Arizona, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Carolina, Tennesee and West Virginia, all had such laws, those of Arizona and North Dakota, he said fixed the same time limit as the Wisconsin law, while the others made the period five years or less.

200 BOTTLES OF WHISKEY SEIZED IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 18—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents this afternoon seized nearly 200 bottles of whiskey, a number of empty bottles and apparatus for filling and sealing bottles in a raid on a garage at the rear of 344 Franklin street. They arrested Henry Arpino who was released on bond of $1,000. He was alleged to have been in the garage at the time of the raid.

TO GOVERN EMPLOYMENT OF ANTHRACITE MINERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18—(AP)—More drastic regulations to govern employment of anthracite miners than those provided under the present miners certificate law are proposed in a bill prepared for introduction in the Pennsylvania general assembly tonight by Representative John E. Stavitski of Luzerne county. Representative Stavisiki is a member of the United Mine Workers.

Representative Staviski's bill is intended to replace the certificate law now in effect. A bill sponsored by Senator George Woodward, of Philadelphia, proposing repeal of the two years experience clause of the present law, was on the senate calendar tonight. It was planned to send it back to the committee on mines and mining and to present a similar bill in the house so that joint hearings by the mining committees of the two branches can be arranged on all anthracite measures. The house committee now has in charge two administration supported measures to make coal a public utility and to permit state compacts for regulation of production and distribution.

Passage of these last two bills will be urged by Governor Pinchot in a message which he plans to deliver this week.

Another move having as its purpose a resumption of negotiations between miners and operators also was under consideration. This was a contemplated resolution calling upon the legislature to ask the two groups to meet with a legislative committee in an effort, to bring about an early resumption of mining operations.

200TH ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF BENJ. FRANKLIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18—(AP)—Philadelphia today observed the 220th anniversary of the birthday of Benjamin Franklin—"Poor Richard"—the ceremonies including the impersonation of the meeting between Franklin and Miss Deborah Read, the girl he later married.

Benjamin Franklin, publisher, patriot, ambassador, educator, and the country's first postmaster-general, was born in Boston, January 17, 1706. His birthday was yesterday, but being Sunday, the observances were held today. Franklin came to Philadelphia at 17.

The observances began with a pilgrimage to Franklin's grave, in Christ burial ground, where wreaths were placed.

In the parade were delegations from the University of Pennsylvania, founded by Franklin; police, fire and street cleaning departments, and other institutions which owed their inception to the man whose memory was honored today.

President Coolidge, a great admirer of Franklin, also sent a wreath to be placed on the grave, but it did not reach here until after the ceremony at the cemetery was over. It will be placed on the grave tomorow by members of the Poor Richard club.

TROUBLE IN FORMATION OF GERMAN CABINET

BERLIN, Jan. 18—(AP)—Chancellor Luther failed to complete his cabinet today owing to the intransigeant attitude of the Bavarian peoples party, which opposes the selection of "Dr. Erich Koch as minister of the interior. The Bavarian reactionaries are suspicious of Dr. Koch because of his attitude on the question of federalism versus state rights: He is the sturdy champion of strong federal authority vested in the central government.

After conferences lasting all day Chancellor Luther decided to postpone his final conference with the party leaders until tomorrow, as he is now confronted with the task of placating the democrats, who are visibly chagrined over the ultimatum delivered by the Bavarian Volkspartei. The Bavarians demand that a non-partisan official be selected for the ministry of the interior.

One of the significant developments of the week-end was the acceptance by Dr. Otto Gessler of the post of minister of defence, after he had several times declined to continue in that office.

HOPEFUL THAT PERSHING MAY RETURN TO ARICA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—The state department still is hopeful that General Pershing may return to Arica after treatment here to resume the presidency of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission, despite the disclosure Saturday that he regards the situation there as almost hopeless under present conditions.

The question of his return, however, is one which General Pershing alone will decide. He has informed the department that he was coming home because of his health and officials there, in the absence of other information, still assume that he will return if his health permits.

1,600 Passengers Thrown Into Pa[nic]

When Two Brooklyn-Manhattan Trains Collided on the Williamsburg Bridge—Child Killed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—High up above the icy waters of the East river, hidden from view by a swirling mantle of fog, two Brooklyn-Manhattan trains collided on the Williamsburg bridge today, causing the death of one passenger, a five-year-old girl, and injuries to more than 50 others.

About 1,600 passengers were in the trains and took part in a wild scramble for safety, with men, women and children screaming as they groped their ways from the darkened cars.

Creeping onto the bridge from the Brooklyn side, one of the trains consisting of eight steel cars, had moved cautiously to the middle of the bridge when it stalled. The passengers that crowded the train to capacity waited patiently, gazing out into the fog.

Meanwhile another train, consisting of wooden cars, also loaded to capacity with passengers, moved onto the bridge. The motorman, believed the tracks to be clear.

Passengers in both trains suddenly were thrown into a panic by a deafening crash. The moving train had ploughed into the end of the stalled train. Windows were shattered and lights in both trains went out instantly. Shrieks filled the air as the passengers fought to free themselves. Doors were wrenched open and men, women and children were trampled in the rush. The first car of the wooden train, was stripped torn away, sagged to the tracks.

When firemen and ambulances reached the scene, at least 50 passengers were found to have been injured. One little girl was found unconscious from a fractured skull and died a few hours later in a Brooklyn hospital. In the frightened crowd no trace could be found of any relative and she had not been identified when she died.

As word of the collision spread, hundreds of anxious relatives stormed and broke through the mounted police guard at the bridge heads. Reinforcements barred all traffic from the bridge until the wreckage was removed.

The little girl who died of injuries sustained in the wreck was identified tonight as Ruth Soieffer of Brooklyn, after her death a charge of felonious assault which had been placed against John Simmer, motorman of the moving train, at Bellevue hospital, was changed to a technical charge of homicide.

FAWN GRAY SUES FOR ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18—(AP)—Fawn Gray, dancer who stepped into the limelight when Harry K. Thaw escorted her about the night clubs of New York, filed suit in Baltimore circuit court today for annulment of a marriage of two months ago to Theodore MacFarland, of Philadelphia. More recently, she again came to notice in connection with the Thaw name when Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, recovering from self-administered poison in a Chicago hospital, and whom the dancer described as an old friend, refused to see her. In the petition filed today, she revealed herself as Gladys Marie Brown, daughter of a New York cartoonist.

The marriage took place in New York, the annulment petition states as the climax of a three-day party starting in Philadelphia, when the dancer was in a weak mental and physical state, unable to use her reasoning faculties to know what she was doing." The petition further alleges that while she was "in such an irresponsible condition," MacFarland, by fraud, misrepresentation, duress and deceit," caused the marriage ceremony to be performed.

J. Charles Fagan, attorney for the dancer, entered the petition. Walter T. Fleming was named guardian for the purpose of the suit. Miss Gray's age having been stated as 20. MacFarland's age was given as 27.

FORECAST FOR GALES ALONG THE NEW ENGLAND COAST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—Gales along the New England coast tonight or tomorrow were forecast late today by the weather bureau.

Storm warnings were ordered displayed late today from Boston to Eastport. Early in the day, similar warnings were ordered from Delaware breakwater to Boston.

The warning this afternoon said: "Advisory 4 p. m. southeast storm warnings ordered north of Boston to Eastport. Secondary disturbance near Washington increasing in intensity and moving north, north eastward will cause strong southeast and south winds probably reaching gale force late tonight or Tuesday, morning, shifting to southwest and west Tuesday."

The bureau tonight issued a third storm warning, saying:

"Advisory 10:30 p. m., warnings changed northwest, Delaware breakwater to Boston. Disturbance over Connecticut will move northeastward and cause strong northeast winds on Tuesday."

CONVENTION OF INSTITUTE OF RADIO ENGINEERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—Revolutionary modifications of radio transmitting apparatus and considerable changes in present types of antennae were predicted today by Dr. Greenleaf W. Pickard, consulting engineer of the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Co., of Boston, addressing the first annual convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The predictions were based upon research studies in polarization in which it was discovered that the radio wave changes in important respects in the course of transmission.

Donald McNicol, editor of Telephone Age, was elected president of the institute. Dr. Ralph Brown, research engineer for the American Telephone and Telegraph company, was chosen vice president.

Frank Conrad, chief radio engineer of the Westinghouse Electric company, was presented with the Norris Liebmann medal and prize for the most noteworthy contribution to radio during the year for his work in the development of short wave length transmission.

Fog Tied up Shipping In New York Harbor

Fifty Liners and Frighters Anchored Off Ambrose Lightship Waiting For the Fog to Lift.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—A dark, impenetable fog, clinging to familiar land marks and blurring tall buildings, settled on New York and the harbor today, demoralizing both land and water traffic.

Fifty liners and freighters, reaching Ambrose lightship, dropped anchor, waiting for the fog to lift. All day they lay idle, ringing bells and blowing whistles to warn other craft of their positions the liners Cristobal, Ascania, Flore, Fort Victoria and Andania were among them.

Ferry boats ran on delayed schedule, and were steered cautiously to their slips by ringing bells. Two persons were injured in a collision between a five-ton truck and a surface car, caused by the poor visibility and wet streets.

TO WRITE SCORE FOR ALL-AMERICAN JAZZ OPERA

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—New York next autumn will hear an "All-American" jazz opera—"Deep River."

W. Franke Harling, whose "A Light From St. Agnes," thrilled a Chicago audience at its presentation by the Chicago Civic Opera, signed a contract with Arthur Hopkins, theatrical producer, today to write the score. The book is already being written by Laurence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory?" and the author of the screen play "The Big Parade."

"Deep River," the composer promised, is to be "more inherently an American opera" than his first success. It is to be laid in Louisiana of a generation before the Civil war, with themes from the negro spirituals prominent in the score.

400 BODIES OF CHINESE BEING SENT TO CHINA

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—More than 400 bodies of Chinese today were started on a long journey to the land of their ancestors. Final services here consisted of an address by a Chinese preacher and the presentation of bowls of food for the journey home.

Some of the bodies had been interred 10 years.

It was not the mere bones to which the Chinese bade good bye and godspeed and for which they bought food. It was for the souls of the dead.

"The 412 bodies sent back to China are those of Chinese for whose soul happiness there are none who cares," Louis Sing of Chicago said. "They were brought to the cemetery here from all parts of the United States, this city being the temporary gathering place for bodies, the souls of which require being sent home. We have gone to the expense of between $15,000 and $20,000 yearly 10 years for this purpose and the Chinese God is pleased."

FILIBUSTER IN THE SENATE BLOCKS WORLD COURT VOTE

As Vice President Dawes Was on the Verge of Ordering a Roll Call, Senator Lenroot Demanded the Reading of the Court Statute—Senator Blease Seized the Opportunity to Launch Into What He Himself Denominated as a Filibuster.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—For just about a split second today it appeared that the senate would vote on the world court.

Friends of the court intervened, however, long enough to allow the opposition to catch its breath and throw Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, into the breach for a third time within a week.

After debate had proceeded for nearly three hours, and with none of the opponents apparently prepared to continue it, there were cries of "Vote," "Vote", and "Put the question" coming from both sides of the chamber The spectators who crowded the galleries leaned forward in the expectation of action.

Vice-President Dawes was in the act of ordering a roll call when Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, demanded the reading of court statute which technically is not before the senate. Meanwhile, Senator Blease had entered the chamber and launched into what he himself denominated as a filibuster.

Reading a speech he made in South Carolina some years ago and then addressing himself to the court questio n the fiery South Carolinian held the floor until court proponents asked him to suspend so there might be an executive session before a recess was taken until tomorrow.

With respect to the reading of the statute, proponents of the court explained that they preferred to have the twenty pages read rather than that the senate get into a lengthy discussion as to the necessity for such reading.

Before Senator Blease started to speak, there had been no small amount of private discussion among senators about invoking cloture and thus limiting each senator to one hour in debate should a filibuster rear its head.

After the South Carolina senator got well under way, leaders of both parties said that, should it transpire that this constituted the beginning of a real and prolonged filibuster, a move for cloture would be made and that the necessary two-thirds majority to invoke it could be obtained.

Senators Johnson, Republican, California, and Reed, democrat, Missouri, desired to make somewhat extended addresses on the court question and both democratic and republican leaders of proponents of adhesion are not inclined to force the cloture issue until they have spoken.

Senator Johnson had intended to speak today, but he had a cold and Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, delivered a third address. After he had concluded, he assured the senate, in response to an inquiry by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, that he would not conduct a filibuster, adding that he never had engaged in one in the eighteen years he had been in the senate.

"Can the senator suggest a date when a vote can be had?" asked Senator Heflin.

"I would say the tenth of February," responded Senator Borah.

Other senators laughed, as this is the day which Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, has suggested for a vote on the tax reduction bill.

The move to get the court question out of the way by invoking cloture was launched by those who desire early action on the tax bill and have expressed apprehension that opponents of the court might cause delay on that measure to bring about further delay just about a split second today it appeared that the senate would vote on the world court.

TO CONTEST SOME OF THE TAX BILL PROVISIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—A fight against some provisions of the tax reduction bill ordered unanimously reported to the senate by its finance committee, appears certain despite the compromise agreement between republicans and democrats.

The provisions for repeal of the inheritance tax and the publicity of income tax returns are almost certain to be made the basis of the contest by some western senators of both parties.

The compromise, however, has apparently assured overwhelming support for the bill and its enactment in time to become effective by March 15 seems assured.

Secretary Mellon withheld definite approval of the bill today pending a study by experts to determine the full extent of the reduction it will provide. He had warned the finance committee to hold the total of reduction to the $320,000,000 limit approved by the house, but Chairman Smoot of the senate committee estimated today the bill probably would provide for at least $360,000,000 in reduction.

Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, in a brief discussion of the bill in the senate today, expressed doubt that the "farmers will be consoled by the agreement of the two great parties to slash surtax rates and repeal inheritance taxes."

Chairman Smoot said he would present the bill to the senate as soon as it is printed but he expressed doubt that this would be possible before Wednesday. He will then wait at least two days for senators to study its provisions and indicated he would not seek to call it up for consideration before the end of the week.

THREAT OF CLOTURE IN SENATE ON WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—A declaration in the senate today that the senate has rules under which it can end filibusters brought a broad grin to the face of Vice President Dawes, who is conducting a campaign for amendment of the rules to prevent such delaying tactics.

As Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, made the remark, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, interrupted to call attention to the smile of the presiding officer, and both the senate and galleries burst into laughter.

Senator Heflin's declaration was coupled with a warning that cloture could be invoked to prevent a filibuster on the world court. Such a filibuster immediately ensued, being conducted single-handed by Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina.

Mr. Dawes appeared to get considerable amusement out of the one-man filibuster and joked about it with a number of senators who came to his desk from time to time. At other times he leaned back in his chair, exchanging smiles with senators on the floor.

So far as the senate itself is concerned the vice president's campaign for changes in the senate rules is just where it was when Mr. Dawes launched it in his famous inaugural address last year.

WOULD OBSERVE FESTIVAL OF KINGDOM OF CHRIST

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—A suggestion that all Christians join with the Roman Catholic church in observing the festival of the kingdom of Christ was made today by the Rev. Dr. William P. Ladd of the Berkeley Divinity school (Episcopal) Middletown, Conn., in a sermon at Trinity church.

In a recent encyclical Pope Pius appointed the last Sunday in October as an annual festival of the kingdom of Christ. Dr. Ladd said: "It might bring all denominations together in a way not quite accomplished by the other great days of the Christian year.

"The festival of the kingdom of Christ might become a festival of reconciliation and be more than a move in the direction of church unity."

TO CO-ORDINATE AIR AND RAIL POSTAL SCHEDULES

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A national air mail time table, co-ordinating federal air and railway postal schedules, with those of private air post lines throughout the United States, was approved here today by holders of government air mail contracts. Eight of the nine routes so far contracted for were represented.

The schedule takes in more than seventy-five cities from Maine to the Pacific northwest, giving rates between them and indicating the time saved by air mail as compared with existing railroad schedules. In effect, the contractors said, it cuts the transportation map of the United States to one-third its size as now measured in hours by rail.

Copies of the table will be generally available within 30 days and actual operation making the schedule effective was tentatively set to begin in the early spring, possibly by April.

CHARGED WITH POISONING HER EIGHTH HUSBAND

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Confession she poisoned her seventh husband, John Ebert, Newell, West Va., two months ago, was made tonight by Mrs. Laura E. Christy, according to local police. She is being held here on a first degree murder charge for poisoning her eighth spouse the Rev. William Christy, here last week.

Confession was made verbally, officers said. The woman admitted she administered the poison to Ebert in a capsule, which she substituted for meddicine prescribed by the attending physician.

"I gave him poison, because he was mean to me," police said she told them.

MONTHLY ALLOWANCE OF $750 FOR MRS. BUDLONG

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 18—(AP)—A monthly allowance of $750 was granted today to Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong of Newport and New York, by Judge Walsh in superior court here pending a hearing of the suit for separate maintenance brought by her husband, Milton J. Budlong.

Mrs. Budlong's motion for an allowance for counsel and witness fees was disallowed after she admitted that she had sufficient funds to pay them.

Judge Walsh said in giving his decision that Mrs. Budlong "is a woman who evidently does not know how to spend money, therefore she needs more than a careful spender would."

The monthly aloiwance was the same as that granted Mrs. Budlong in her own action for separate maintenance which she lost. Counsel for her husband asked today that her allowance be set at $500 to $600.

CAPTAIN AMUNDSEN TO VISIT DR. COOK, IN JAIL

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Jan. 18—(AP)—Captain Ronald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and hero of a recent airplane dash to the North Pole will come to Leavenworth tomorrow to visit Dr. Frederick Cook, Arctic explorer, who claimed to have discovered the North Pole.

Dr. Cook is an attendant in the hospital in the federal penitentiary where he is serving a term for using the mails to defraud in connection with oil stock sales.

ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 18—Rev. Henry E. Quinn, pastor of St. Joseph's R. C. church, made public the annual financial and spiritual reports of the parish for the year 1925 Sunday, showing that the church has enjoyed a healthy year despite the fact that the period was industrially poor. Receipts for the year amounted to $29,-636.70 including a balance on hand December 31, 1924 of $822.18. Expenditures were $25,576.39 and $2,000 were paid on the church mortgage leaving a net balance of $1,654.31. The receipts were derived from the various sources of collection including seat money, monthly collections, door collections, offertory, extraordinary collections, revenue from cemetery, special collections, such as Easter, Holy Land, Peter's Pence, coal collection, Jubilee whists, etc. The expenses were for improvements to the church and repairs to the school, teachers' salaries, fuel, cemetery, convent and other channels. The sum of $1,700 less than last year was received during 1925 but the expenses were nearly $4,000 lower than in 1924. A deficit of $113.35 is shown in the cemetery department, the total income being $3,311.63. This is explained by additional work being done during the year but yet is compared favorably with 1924 when the deficit was $504.

Close to $4,000 was spent for church improvements, $6,000 for school maintenance, including $1,241 for repairs and salaries. The roof of the church was repaired at a cost of $1,473.67 and the work of sand blasting the exterior brick walls of the edifice cost $1,077.-63. Church furniture to the amount of $144.67 was purchased.

The spiritual report was highly gratifying with a total of 140 births in the parish during the year. Sixty-four were male and seventy-six female. Two adults were baptized. There were sixty-nine deaths, 32 males and 37 females. Three hundred and seventy-three children, 156 boys and 217 girls, were confirmed during the year, there were 79 first communions and 529 children attended the parochial school being taught by twelve sisters, an average of 44 pupils to a teacher.

With the church spire having been repaired in 1924, at a cost of $3,719.19 and repairs to the amount of $3,000 or more in 1915, the edifice is now in excellent condition, except for the interior, which will be redecorated later. The building is about 53 years old.

At present the parish debt is about $13,824, which is included in two outstanding notes. Rev. Father Quinn has stressed the necessity for increased revenue. The parish is one of the largest in the diocese and as it includes the church, school, cemetery and other extensive property its maintenance cost involves a large annual expenditure.

Succumbing to a stroke of apoplexy, Miss Rhoda Dexter, 77, was found dead at her home at Talcott Hill, North Coventry, late Sunday afternoon about ten hours after death had overtaken her. William E. Orcutt made the discovery and notified Medical Examiner Dr. William L. Higgins, of South Coventry. Upon viewing the remains and establishing that apoplexy was the cause of her death, Examiner Higgins gave permission for the removal of the remains by a local undertaking firm.

Miss Dexter has been suffering from ailment for some three weeks past and she had been making her home with the Orcutt family. She appeared to rally toward the week-end and last Friday decided to return to her home. Much against their wishes members of the Orcutt family drove her to her home. Mr. Orcutt had gone to pay her a visit Sunday, when he discovered her body. Miss Dexter was a daughter of Nathan Dexter. She had resided alone for several years. Her only survivors are a niece and nephew, who reside in Sound View.

Arthur Gaudreault, formerly of Lowell, Mass., whose store at 185 Main street was successfully raided by the police Saturday evening, pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell, in police court Monday morning. After a brief review of the raid given by Chief McArthur, who personally tested the alcohol "splits" in open court and appeared to find the liquor too powerful to be relished, Judge Foss imposed a fine of $200 and costs amounting to $218.75, which was paid in cash. Thirty-three pints of the concoction were found in Gaudreault's place.

Francis Dube, of 53 Lyes street, who was held by the police as a material witness, when he was nabbed as he was leaving the Gaudreault store with a pint of the alcohol mixture, was in court, but was not called upon to testify.

Leslie Flippen, local young man, was found guilty of reckless driving in police court Monday morning when his self-continued case was taken up. He was fined the minimum of $25 and costs, amounting to $53.75, which he paid. On the afternoon of November 23, last, Flippen was driving a Ford touring car with Martin J. Prue and Joseph Wawer, both of this city, as passengers. At Larrabee's corner, in Windham Center, the machine failed to make the turn and crashed almost head-on into a large tree. Flippen was but slightly hurt. Prue sustained a broken foot and broken right arm. Wawer suffered a brain concussion. The machine was quite badly damaged. Constable Alfred P. Abbe, of Windham, placed Flippen under arrest and held him for trial until Prue recovered and was able to appear in court to testify.

The first witness was Alvin D. Weeks, of Brick Top, who said that he was driving his truck toward the corner when he saw the Ford car speed around the bend and crash into the tree. He believed that too much speed caused the accident.

Constable Abbe said that he got to the scene about two minutes after the time of the wreck. He studied the wheel marks in the road and saw that the machine had taken an absolutely straight course from the corner to the tree. He could not state whether or not there was anything actually wrong with the car before the mishap as it was wrecked when he saw it.

Martin Prue and Joseph Wawer testified that although there was no speedometer on the car they would judge the speed at between 20 and 25 miles an hour. They saw no indication of reckless driving.

Leslie Flippen, the defendant, said that he was driving the machine around the Windhams to charge the battery. He travelled about 20 or 25 miles an hour as he approached the bend. Suddenly both his front wheels locked due to some inexplicable cause. The machine zig-zagged onto the shoulder of the maccadam and he could do nothing to prevent a collision with the tree. At this point Judge Foss imposed sentence.

Funeral services for Samuel Mullen were held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, with a service at St. Mary's church. The remains arrived in this city from the U. S. Naval hospital at Brooklyn, N. Y. Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor, officiated at the services. Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau, at the organ, rendered America and a military march at the close of the service. Taps was sounded by Bugler Arthur Paradis. The casket was draped in an American flag. The remains were placed in the receiving vault at St. Joseph's cemetery where Bugler Paradis again sounded Taps. Relatives and friends were present from Woonsocket, R. I., Waterbury, Hartford, Norwich South Windham and this city.

The remains of Mrs. Sarah R. Robinson, who died in New Haven, last Thursday, arrived in this city Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the Liberty Hill cemetery. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

At ten o'clock Monday morning, the funeral of John Williams was held, the remains being placed in the receiving vault at the Willimantic cemetery. Arrangements were by Avery and Van Zandt.

One of the two sets of alleged attachment papers served on Constable Joseph Peck some time ago proved to be but a garnishee notice it was said Monday. The garnishee was in the case of the Willimantic Lumber and Coal company, relative to a judgment received in favor of the company some time ago against Frank J. Watson, former proprietor of the Hotel Hooker. Constable Kelley, who served the papers, is quoted as having stated that the garnishee process was served by him on Constable Peck, as the latter did not have enough money from the Watson case to satisfy the judgment rendered and the notice was for the balance claimed to be due.

The first set of papers was an attachment in satisfaction of a suit brought by Richard Haddad, for an alleged over-charge on constable fees by Peck, for work which he did in a case in which judgment was rendered against Haddad.

With a total of 4,536 tons of ice in the houses, the men who have been employed in harvesting the ice crop at the municipal pond at the pumping station in Mansfield, were called off at three o'clock Monday afternoon, and the work was declared completed. The ice is of fine quality and averages 12 inches in thickness. It is housed in three buildings. It took 35 men seven days to do the work. At the Ayer ice houses on the Willimantic river, the work continues and the Brown Brothers were planning to start harvesting at the old Eaton pond today (Tuesday) if the weather clears.

Arrangements for an old fashioned dance contest between the sets of fours, led by J. B. Ethbridge, of Eastford, and Harry N. Moseley, of Scotland, are being made by a committee of the Youth's Welfare association, as a feature of one of a series of dances, to be given during the winter months. Any other team wishing to enter the contest may do so. Mr. Ethbridge recently issued an all-New England challenge to pit his old fashioned dance team against all comers.

Harry W. Standish is exhibiting in teresting curios in the nature of two watches, one made in 1745 and still in good running order. The timepiece has a silver case and is designed in old English. A record on one of the hands shows that it was cleaned and repaired in 1795 by E. Carey, Windham clock and watch maker. The other watch is quite large in size and was made in 1795. It was repaired in 1831 by S. and A. Chapin.

Many of the automobiles and trucks which came to this city Monday morning displayed results of driving over slippery highways. With a drizzling rain and fog obstructing the view and a thin coating of ice, caused by a drop in temperature during the night, motorists were driving under a handicap. One man said that on his way to this city early Monday morning, he saw 16 automobiles stranded on icy surfaces.

Engine company No. 1, responded to a still alarm for a chimney fire at the residence at 5 Strong's court, owned by the Capen estate, at 6:20 o'clock Monday morning. Six gallons of chemicals were used.

Noting her approaching marriage to Harold Raymond Bose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bose, of Waterford, Miss Effie Butler was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home, 23 Ash avenue, last Saturday evening. The wedding will take place in New London, next Wednesday.

Mrs. W. C. Norris was among those assisting in serving at the Chappell golden wedding last Friday.

Miss Evelyn Gadue, of 980 Main street, is making rapid recovery from a fractured ankle and other injuries sustained last week, while she was coasting down Mansfield avenue.

Hundreds of dance and music lovers braved inclement weather Monday evening, to gather at the Al-Pierre Tabarin, where Joe Roman's Pennsylvanians furnished the music. The orchestra was considered one of the best heard in this locality in some time.

Miss Katherine Twomey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Twomey, has returned to her home from St. Joseph's hospital, where she underwent an operation for acute appendicitis.

Mrs. Florence Rogers Storrs is planning an auction of her household goods. She is being assisted in arranging for the sale by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rogers, of Springfield, Mass.

Brief Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Doyle spent the week-end as guests of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chalvers, of Norwich.

President James B. Fullerton and General Secretary Albert B. Smith, of the Y. M. C. A., attended the state convention in Waterbury, Saturday and Sunday.

The Misses Elizabeth and Alice McGuire entertained Miss Mary O'Brien, of Hartford, over the week-end.

Mrs. James Converse, of Putnam, was a recent visitor with her cousin, Mrs. M. Eugene Lincoln, of this city.

Francis W. Perkins, of Boston, Mass., spent the week-end at his home, here.

Mrs. George Dubois, of Norwich, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Tanlste Gadue, in this city.

Mrs. William A. Buck was a week-end visitor with her sister, Miss Clara Phillips, in Springfield, Mass.

How to Easily Lose Fat

Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommends French Discovery to FAT PEOPLE

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can today easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 percent better."

Mrs. Koster, of Brooklyn writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 39 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctors care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fonquerney.

SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed absolutely harmless, and positive to reduce you or money refunded. Sold at all good drug or department stores or you can send direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C. On sale at Lee & Osgood's, Dunn's or Morgan's Drug Stores.

SOUTH WINDHAM

The many friends of Mrs. Walter Abbe Sr., were grieved to learn of her death, which occurred at her home in Windham at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning. She was well known in South Windham, where she was a frequent visitor. Mrs. Abbe is survived by two sons and two daughters, Walter Abbe Jr., of South Windham, Alfred Abbe, of Windham, Mrs. Rex Lack of Boston, and Miss Elizabeth K. Abbe of South Windham. There are three grandchildren, Robert Abbe, Walter Abbe 3rd, and Harriet Abbe Lack. Although Mrs. Abbe had not been in the best of health for some time she had kept about as usual and her death was quite unexpected. It is a sad circumstance that her death occurred while her daughter, Miss Abbe, and her only surviving sister, Mrs. Smith, are en route for Palestine. Much sympathy is being expressed for the members of the family.

Mrs. Eastman is confined to the house by illness, and is being cared for by Mrs. Mary Larkham.

Charles Maynard, who was a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, has returned to his home.

Edward Hummiston, who injured his foot while at work for the Smith-Winchester Co., is improving.

Mrs. Abbard is convalescent after several weeks illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tubbs and son, of Hartford, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. Tubbs' mother, Mrs. Helen Tubbs.

Elmer Baker, Timothy Colbert, and Frank Murdock, were in Norwich Friday evening to hear "Uncle" Joe Shippee.

The local Sunday school had a record attendance Sunday morning when 46 of the 58 members were present. Of the members who were absent, one is abroad, two are spending the winter in Florida, one was at home on account of a death in the family, and another was ill. The members are showing a most gratifying interest in the sessions of the Sunday school.

Two Fierce Hunters Meet.

The wise will ne'er be overbold
If they desire to grow old.
—Teeny Weeny the Shrew.

It was cold. Yes, sir, it was cold! Everybody said so. Nobody was doing much sitting around. Everybody kept moving in order to keep warm. It was so cold that it didn't seem as if such a tiny fellow as Teeny Weeny the Shrew could stand it at all. But as a matter of fact, Teeny Weeny wasn't minding it a bit. He was out hunting and he wasn't wasting a minute. You never will find Teeny Weeny sitting about hugging himself and complaining because it is cold.

Now, over in the Green Forest another hunter had started forth to look for a breakfast. This hunter was bigger—oh, very much bigger than Teeny Weeny, but even so, he was a small person. Unlike Teeny Weeny, he had perfectly good eyes. He had good eyes, good ears and a good nose, and not even Teeny Weeny was quicker in his movements. He was slim and trim and he wore a coat as white as the snow. The tip of his tail was black, but otherwise he was pure white. Of course, you know who he was. He was Shadow the Weasel.

He was just in time to see something vanish behind the hunk of a tree

Shadow was running lightly over the snow and trying to make up his mind just what he would like for breakfast. "A fat Wood Mouse would taste good," muttered Shadow, "but a Rabbit would taste better. I wonder if Peter Rabbit is over here this morning or if he has gone back to the dear Old Briar Patch. I suppose he has gone back. If it were not so far over there I would pay him a visit, but I am not hungry enough to go way over there and perhaps not find him at home. I will look around here first. Hello! Did I see something move?"

Shadow stopped abruptly and sat up. You know he does sit up in just the same way that Peter Rabbit does. He sat up that he might look around better. He was just in time to see something vanish behind the trunk of a tree, instantly Shadow bounded toward that tree. As he did so he saw a tiny dark form scamper across the snow toward an old stump. He got only a glimpse of it. "I wonder if that was a young Mouse," thought he, and bounded after it.

By the time he reached the old stump no one was to be seen. Shadow started around the old stump. Half way around he came face to face with—who do you think? It was Teeny Weeny the Shrew. Now had it been anybody but Teeny Weeny Shadow wouldn't have hesitated a second. He would have sprung quicker than you could catch your breath. But Teeny Weeny was different. Shadow could think of many things that he would like better for breakfast than Teeny Weeny. You see, Teeny Weeny is in a small way a very disagreeable perfume. It is apt to spoil the appetite of even a very hungry person. So Shadow hesitated.

Now Teeny Weeny didn't see Shadow. Even had Shadow been dressed in brown instead of pure white Teeny Weeny wouldn't have seen him. His eyes were not good enough for that. But his ears or his nose, or perhaps both together, told him of Shadow's presence as quickly as Shadow's eyes had told him of Teeny Weeny's presence. Teeny Weeny didn't hesitate. He rirn't hesitate the tiniest part of a second. He was there, and then he wasn't there. Had you been watching him it would have seemed to you as if he had vanished by magic. But to Shadow the Weasel there was no magic in that disappearance. Shadow's eyes became red. With just the faintest of snarls he sprang. But he was too late; there was no Teeny Weeny there. There was only a little hole in the crust of snow—a little hole leading down under the old stump. Slim as Shadow is, that hole was too small for him.

"I didn't want Shrew for breakfast, anyway," muttered Shadow, and started on.

BOZRAH

A gathering of special interest was the Church Night social held at the church Thursday evening. A supper consisting of meat loaf, escalloped potatoes, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee was served at 7:0 o'clock, the committee in charge being Mrs. A. J. Bailey, Mrs. John J. Collins and Mrs. N. E. Webb. Following the supper a musical program was enjoyed. C. A. Parker favored with cornet solos, Rev. Mr. Webb, violin solos and Harold Rose and Frank Rose, vocal solos. Several tonists on musical subjects were given.

Mrs. Floyd Abel gave a recitation "On Shiloh Field" and Mr. Rose sang "When I Can Read My Title Clear." Other numbers on the program were a piano solo by Marion Wightman of Norwich and music by a comb orchestra.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of gifts to Mrs. Herbert Wightman of Norwich, Mr. Frank Rose of Wauwecus Hill and Harold Rose, of Norwich Town, who have been assisting the choir in the Sunday morning services. Rev. N. E. Webb in making the presentation expressed the appreciation of the church for the service which they had rendered.

The friends of Mrs. M. A. Bosworth regret to hear of her serious illness. Her son, Dr. L. H. Abls, of New York, is with her.

A farm bureau meeting was held at the town house Friday evening.

The Woman's Missionary society met with Mrs. Jabez Bailey and Mrs. A. J. Bailey of Yantic Saturday afternoon.

Gold Alloys

White gold is an alloy or mixture of metals, and is not mined in the form of the mixture. There are several formulas for different alloys which have the appearance of white gold. Gold is the chief constituent about 77 per cent being used with 15 per cent of nickel and 8 per cent of zinc. Of course there are cheaper alloys of a similar color which may contain no gold at all.

Select Their Own Coffins

In many parts of China and Japan "coffin shops" are to be seen on the principal streets. These people like to make early preparations for their demise by purchasing their coffins. The shops show an attractive line of samples from which to make selection.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore.

DANIELSON

OLD TIMERS ARE GETTING READY FOR THEIR DANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 18—Dancers of the Charleston and other modern fandangoes in Danielson a..d surrounding territory are due for a showing up this week. Exponents of the old time dances are to do the demonstrations. Demonstrators of the quadrille, the lancers, money musk galiop, polka and other favorites of the dim past are to be on hand and such "hoofing" as this generation has not seen is promised. It should be a gala occasion.

"Uncle Joe" Shippee, championest of all the champion fiddlers of New England and his orchestra, are to furnish the music. The affair is certain to be a wow for young and old. Sales of rattlesnake oil and other lubricants are soaring amazingly today as the old-timers get ready to steam out creaking joints and rub suppleness into atrophied muscles. The preparations involve setting up exercises and balancing acts. A few of the old-time Beau Brummels of the ball room are even letting their whiskers grow and getting out their new felt boots for the occasion. No pencil-line moustaches or rolled hose for them. These are dancers, not hop, skip and jumpers. The Charleston brigade will see something real when this dance is staged in Danielson. And just think, they will not be able to do one of the wonderful old-time numbers. That's where the old-timers will get back at them—if only for a night. Possibly that's a wrong bet, too. The young people might pull off a Charleston to the music of Turkey in the Straw. They have been known to do it with no better music than two Ford horns and a tire iron for a symphony, so why not with the Turkey music.

DANIELSON INTERESTED IN SUIT AGAINST SIBLEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 18—Interest of hundreds of Danielson and Brooklyn people has been aroused over the announcement that Frederick S. Sibley has been made defendant in a $35,000 book account suit ni the Rhode Island courts. Up to within a few weeks ago Mr. Sibley was a vice president of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust company. He resigned late last fall and it was announced at that time he was to have charge of the Connecticut interests of Dutee W. Flint, with his headquarters at New Haven. His resignation came shortly after the arrest of Edward Radding, Providence and Pawtucket real estate operator. Friends here of Mr. Sibley, a former resident of Danielson, said Monday they believe that the suit against Mr. Sibley is brought on technical grounds merely. Mr. Sibley was a credit man at the Providence bank, which, it is said, lost considerable sums through the Radding operations. Messrs. Sibley and Radding were acquaintances in Springfield before business opportunities called them to Providence.

Monday was such a day as usually produces motoring disasters on Dark Lantern or some of the other steep hills in this territory. However, up to sunset, the record of the day was not so bad. A light truck overturned at Dark Lantern hill during the morning, but no one was injured to amount to anything. A wrecker from Danielson righted the truck and it was driven away.

Among the numerous good works in which Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., interests itself is that pertaining to the welfare of immigrant women who, for one cause or another, are detained for considerable periods of time at Ellis Island. These women, at the very gate of America, often find time hanging heavily on their hands. There is little for them to do except await a decision of the immigration authorities on their cases. Aware of this and of the comfort and interest that useful gifts and opportunity for useful work will bring them, members of the local chapter of the D. A. R., are about to send them a box of articles. This box will contain materials from which aprons will be made, things to embroider and crochet and other articles of practical value that are certain to be well received. Members of the chapter are to bring the articles they are contributing to the home of Mrs. E. H. Keach when a meeting of the chapter is held next Thursday afternoon, or leave them meanwhile with Mrs. Helen S. Dowe.

At her home in Dayville, where she had been resident for many years, the death of Mrs. Hattie E. Randall, widow of Edgar M. Randall, occurred on Monday morning. Mrs. Randall, a native of Temple, Me., was 81 years of age and nearing her 82nd birthday, which would have been February 2.

On December 2 Mrs. Randall, who lived alone, suffered a shock. A woman who assisted her with household duties came in on that morning to find that Mrs. Randall had fallen to the floor and had incidentally suffered two burns of considerable severity by coming in contact with a lighted oil stove. Since that time her condition had been grave and little hope for her recovery had been entertained.

Mrs. Randall leaves two sisters, Mrs. L. Dora Mitchell and Mrs. Amy F. Derby of Temple, Me., and a number of nephews and nieces. Mr. Randall died in 1914.

Mrs. Randall was a member of St. Alban's church in Danielson, having been confirmed by Rt. Rev. C. B. Brewster in March, 1899.

There is an old story about a man, who lived in Danielson and liked his liquor mighty well. He is remembered by many still residing here. It is related of him that he awoke early one Sunday evening after sleeping off a debauch, heard bells ringing and promptly proceeded to open up the market where he was employed, and where he had been asleep. He got on his butcher's apron and coat, hung out the hams, as they used to do in those days and stood in the doorway awaiting customers. Though many went past none came in. All were very well dressed and all seemed to be headed up town. A bit bewildered over what to him was a real puzzling situation he inquired of a crony that came along as to where all the people were going. "Going to Sunday evening service" was the laconic reply and then Horace, if that was his name, really came to. "I thought those were the Monday morning mill bells" was his only comment.

In such a fog as prevailed here on Monday, this man might have been excused for making such an error. Motor cars were running about Danielson as late as 10 o'clock Monday forenoon with their headlights burning. All the day was dour and gloomy. Rain glazed icy sidewalks and streets so that many a person suffered a fall, and there were other inconveniences. The day might rate as belonging to a January thaw period.

At the fourth uarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal church David King, Dr. W. H. Judson and F. E. Colvin were elected members of the board of trustees. Nathan D. Prince was named as treasurer, Henry A. McEwen as clerk and Harold Holsehouse as superintendent of the Sunday school.

Among the things that have gone into the discard, at least temporarily, is the long talked of plan to build a bridge over the Assawaga river, from some point along Railroad street. Such a bridge to carry vehicles as well as pedestrians likely will come in future years—when the pressure of need of it becomes sufficiently great but that day does not appear to have arrived.

While the local police get no inconsiderable number of reuests for putups at the police station of a night, the demand has not been excessive this year, due largely to the fact, perhaps that the practice of putting up wanderers, who have no homes and care for none, are discouraged from seeking favors here.

The telephone demonstration to be given here by the S. N. E. T. Company is to be on Wednesday of next week at the assembly hall in the high school.

That part of Danielson's ice supply that comes from the Hygeia reservoir, near East Killingly, has not been cut as yet, but will be harvested at the earliest opportunity.

Stomach Remedy A Fast Seller

DARE'S MENTHA PEPSIN

Six Thousand Bottles Sold in One New Jersey Town Last Year. Lee & Osgood Co. Declares Money Back if One Bottle Doesn't Make Any Stomach Sufferer Rejoice

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bother with slow actors when one dessertspoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, acidity, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

PUTNAM

WARNS AGAINST USE OF MINT VENDING MACHINES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 18—Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson has notified the police and the owners of the mint vending machines, which are quite common in this city, that these machines are gambling devices and will not be tolerated here. He is giving the owners and renters of the slot machines an opportunity to remove them before legal action is brought.

An attorney for the company that installs the machines was in Putnam last week, but was unable to convince the prosecuting attorney that the machines came under the law, and the police have been notifying all owners and renters to remove the machines at once.

The marriage of Wilfred Bourque, son of E. Bourque of North Grosvernordale to Miss Claire Darche of Perryville was celebrated this morning at the Sacred Heart church in Webster at 8:30 o'clock. Albert Bouque, brother of the groom acted as best man and Miss Dora Darche, a sister of the bride was the bridesmaid. After the church services, which was attended by many relatives and friends, the bridal party had breakfast at the Bancroft hotel, Worcester. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bourque will be at home in their newly furnished house at North Grosvernordale.

Andrew V. Kennedy died Saturday night at ten o'clock at his home in the sawyer district, aged 76 years.

He had been in failing health for several months and since October had been confined to his bed.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the home conducted by Rev. Mr. Lockwood of the Baptist church.

He is survived, by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Reed, wife of Volney Reed of Chapman street.

Mr. Kennedy was born at Plainfield, Conn., August 18, 1849. For the past twelve years he had made his home in Putnam. He was a successful farmer, his farm near the Children's Home on the road to Thompson being one of the most productive and best kept in the neighborhood. With a genial kindly disposition, and an optimistic outlook on life he made and retained scores of friends. There were but few people in Putnam who did not know Andrew V. Kennedy and all will regret to learn of his death.

At a meeting of the Putnam grange, held at Odd Fellows' hall, Miss Alice Willis, an officer of that organization, was given a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Stanley Johnson, of North Grosvernordale. The shower came as a complete surprise to Miss Willis. Many useful and valuable presents were received by Miss Willis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Willis of Woodstock avenue.

Wilfred Parks, who is working as a draftsman and Arthur Johnson, who is working as a carpenter at Gomes, Florida, have sent a box of Florida oranges to their former classmates at the Putnam State Trade school. Both of these boys are graduates of the school. The gift was much appreciated.

The news of the death of John Tatlock, at the Corey Hill hospital, in Brookline, Mass., has been received with much sorrow by his many friends in this vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Tatlock spent much of their time at Pomfret and are well known.

Mrs. William Watson has returned to her home in Philadelphia, after a stay of several months at the Inn.

Letters from Miss Katherine Noyes state that she and her niece, Miss Noyes, of Stamofrd, are now in Paris, but expect to go to Italy very soon.

Mrs. Ralph Reed, of Manchester, N. H., is the guest of her father, Judge Holt and the Misses Holt, at the Lorillard house, in Pomfret.

Mrs. Florence Hutton and her mother, Mrs. Tripps, arived from Grahamsiea, Nantucket, Saturday, to remain at the Inn for the winter.

Miss Clara D. Hodges and Miss Hilt have returned from a visit to relatives at Flushing, N. Y.

Borough people were interested in the dispatch Monday that David Hale Fanning, of Worcester, had decided to retire from active business. Mr. Fanning gave the borough its attractive little park, also aided in securing the fine granite monument erected by the Civil War veterans, generously helped the library, did much to reclaim Jewett City cemetery, where his parents are buried, and in other ways has earned the affection and esteem of the residents of the town of Griswold, his birthplace. His last visit here was several years ago, when he was entertained at the hospitable home of Mrs. George A. Haskell.

PINCH OF SALT PREVENTS EXHAUSTION OF MINERS

How a pinch of salt in the drinking water prevents the exhaustion of workers in hot coat mines and steel plants was told before the Institute of Mining Engineers in London by Sir Josias Court recently. A similar discovery was made by Prof. Neville Moss of the University of Birmingham. He found miners who succumbed rapidly when working in a temperature of about 100 degrees were able to endure it better when their drinking water contained even one-fifth of 1 per cent of salt.

Dr. J. B. S. Haldane, an English physiologist, explains that during work at a high temperature the body gives off much perspiration and with it a large amount of salt; to this depletion of salt the physica. exhaustion is partly due. The addition of salt to their drinking water makes up for the loss.

DELAYING COURT ACTION

From all indications those who are opposed to the entry of this country into the world court are going to do everything possible to prevent it, and even to prevent a vote upon it if that is possible.

There is no questioning the right of those who oppose adherence to the court to be heard, and it is desirable that they should be. Both sides of the matter can well be heard, but that has long since happened. The opposition which is being offered now is no different from what was offered in the last session. There is no new evidence being unraveled from time to time to change the opinions which have been formed, and yet it is through delay and the prevention of the matter from coming to a vote that it is expected to accomplish the defeat.

By keeping the matter hanging fire and by employing all possible political tactics to gain strength for the opposition, it is figured that the vote can be delayed to the point where a jam of other business will make it impossible to reach it or where through efforts to talk it to death it can either get the necessity one third of the senate to defeat it or have it sidetracked in order to permit other matters to be acted upon.

There are being employed those same methods which have aroused so much indignation and dissatisfaction in the past. It is a case where a few obstructionists are contributing to a situation which is believed against the decided majority sentiment of the country. Even though it may be urged that the attitude of the country is not definitely known, there is every reason to believe that the people would insist at least upon the matter being allowed to come to a vote without delay. If that could be done it is believed that favorable action, would be taken and favorable action would strongly indicate public sentiment desired adherence to the court. Action along that line is what the country has been seeking for years.

APPLYING HEAVY PENALTIES

Within the past few months recognition has been given to the wisdom of abandoning the policy of leniency and dealing with those who enter the holdup and robbery business with the severity which such cases demand.

Courts have been brought to a realization of this need and have proceeded to impose sentences that were much stiffer than those which others had previously received. Instead of giving the minimum, the necessity of applying the maximum sentence, or close to it, has been recognized by judges who have come to realize the trend of affairs and the great increase in crime among young people.

Certain courts in Massachusetts have been ordering punishment that must not only bring the convicted individuals to a realization of what they were doing, but which cannot fail to be an impressive lesson for others who may have been contemplating entering the business of crime because it seemed highly profitable and involved only slight penalties.

But it is not alone in Massachusetts that the courts are taking heed of conditions. In Indiana one judge has just sentenced a youth of 20 to 10 to 20 years in prison after pleading guilty to the charge of banditry, and to his 17 year old companion he imposed a sentence of two years and seven months at the state's penal farm. These youths had been holding up and robbing people right and left and more than a dozen were in court ready to testify against them.

Just as long as such persons get the idea that they have nothing to fear from the law criminal conditions will continue to go from bad to worse. Leniency will not only encourage them in their work but it will invite others to follow in their footsteps. Not many however are going to be inspired by the fact that others are forced to spend long periods of their lives behind prison walls. The handing out of what may be regarded as drastic penalties will unquestionably prove one of the quickest and most effective methods of ending the tendency to crime among young people.

ALIENS' FAMILIES

Just at the present time much is being said in behalf of a change in the immigration laws that will make it possible to avoid the division of families. This is being urged to cover the cases of those who came here before the quota restrictions were established and who are now finding it difficult to bring their relatives over. Such a division of households is arousing considerable sympathy, and it is being advocated that the immigration law be modified to the extent of admitting the families of such persons.

Whether there will be the disposition to begin making amendments of such a character is a question. It could easily be regarded as the entering wedge and recognized that if this was adopted there would be many other plausible pleas made for the extension of similar leniency. Once such a change is started it is rather difficult to say where the amending must stop.

In the advocacy of the letting down of the bars such a privilege would not apply to those who come in the future else the entry of one alien would mean that anywhere from one to ten others would be able to claim the right of admission, providing they could meet the requirements of the immigration laws, upon the strength of his presence here. It would be intended to cover those who had come before the restrictions and who had intended later to bring their wives, children, fathers and mothers but who had not anticipated the putting up of the bars in time to get them over.

There is, of course, no obligation on the part of those who are here without the rest of their families remaining, and yet it can be appreciated that there are undoubtedly many instances where family circles have been broken up by the conditions which, have developed through the new immigration restrictions. There has been no great disposition to increase the number of immigrants, the tendency being in the opposite direction, so that the mere advocacy does not insure the success of the effort.

THE DEBT AGREEMENTS

The action by the lower house of congress in ratifying the debt agreements which have been arranged by the debt funding commission is only what was expected. The representatives have given their sanction to the judgment of the commission and taken on the stand that they have obtained the best possible term under the conditions that existed. Where there have been concessions made because it has been shown to the commission that there are restrictions on the capacity of the nations to pay they have received approval.

It is to be realized that while there has been opposition to the reduction that has been granted in certain instances there are those who have insisted and continue to argue that the debts ought to be cancelled. The number who take such a view is decidedly small. It is for the best interest of the debtors that they should pay what they can, and when that capacity has been fixed and agreed upon there is wisdom in early ratification.

All the talk that has been indulged in concerning favoritism and unfairness to this country fades into nothingness once the facts are disclosed. The commission has in fact gone all through that and looked well to the interest of the country they represented. They were not named to obtain advantages for other countries and they have not gone beyond the point where fairness had to be the guide.

The house has done no more than was called for under the circumstances and its course should be quickly followed by the senate. All things considered there is no other action that can be reasonably taken.

FRAUDULENT SCHEMES

From time to time there is information given concerning the large amount of money that is lost by individuals who display overconfidence in other people. They are attracted by some alluring proposition that, according to the story told them, will net big returns. They swallow the story, hook, bait and sinker, but when they go to reach for the golden prize it is missing. The only thing which they have gotten out of it is a lesson. That same lesson may be heeded and it may not. They may be so gullible as to do the same stunt over again under slightly different methods. The cost of such an experience isn't always a deterrent, any more than the knowledge of such a loss prevents others from falling into the same kind of a trip.

According to the head of the Anti-Stock Fraud bureau of New York state, the sizeable sum of $500,000,000 is spirited out of the pockets of the unwary every year in that state. There are many ways of separating funds from the owners, and it is unfortunate that in most of them the owner participates eagerly without realizing the fact that he is throwing his money away. This means that many individuals are contributing their hard earned dollars as easy money to the swindler chiefly because the simple precaution of investigating before buying is not resorted to.

What goes on in New York state is only a part of what is done along similar lines throughout the country. Those who have a little money, or much money, cannot exercise too much care when it comes to getting interested in the well presented schemes which are promised to furnish handsome returns. The time to be careful with your money is while you have it. After the other fellow has got it it is too late.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—A strong effort will be made this winter to put through congress legislation providing for the return of the ad valorem tax collected by the federal government during the years 1866-1867-1868.

The matter has been pending many years and at various times bills for that purpose have been introduced in congress, but failed of enactment largely through the absence of concentrated effort by states interested in the refund.

States have now made a get-together matter of the refund and a number, 17 already being listed and many have authorized their legislatures, or made other provisions, for the employment of counsel to represent them in this important matter.

Senator Keyes of New Hampshire has introduced a bill for the refund and this bill is accepted by other states interested, as representing their views, so individual bills will be discarded and the Keyes bill form the basis of the effort to get congressional legislation at the present congress.

The Keyes bill would grant permission for a suit against the federal government in the supreme court of the United States brought by any state where the legislature has provided for the return of this tax to the representative of the tax payer, wherever such representative can be found, and the balance escheat to the state.

The share of refund for some states is estimated at many millions, that of New Hampshire reaching more than $5,000,000 it is said.

The Keyes resolution is drawn on simple lines and without complications of any sort. Representatives of the states interested are greatly pleased with the clearness of the statements therein. While all states interested have not yet passed the legislation necessary to demand the return of the tax, it is expected they will fall into line in the near future. Direct distribution to heirs is not attempted in the Keyes bill, as the interests of the United States must of course be fully protected but the proponents of the present plan believe this is accomplished under the plan of state distribution. Under the Keyes bill each state would distribute the amount collected from its citizens, provided its suit was won before the supreme court.

The entire amount involved is several hundred millions of dollars. The claims of the southern states rests mostly on cotton, the ad valorum tax on raw cotton alone amounting to more than $100,000,000. Other states base their claims on iron, and steel products, clothing, those of New England being based mostly on the products of its industries.

Already New Hampshire and Rhode Island, of the New England states, New York, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, Oregon, Utah, Tennessee, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Florida, have enacted legislation providing for counsel to represent the states in this matter, a number of the counsel are now in Washington perfecting details of bringing the measure to the front in congress.

The General Federation of Woman's clubs brought out presidents and directors for Connecticut clubs when the board meeting was held here this week. Many plans for the work of the coming year were discussed, perhaps the most important being preparations for the biennial meeting to be held at Atlantic City, May 29th. One of the features of that occasion will be a genuine New England night dinner at which time distinguished visitors to the meeting will be guests of the New Hampshire delegates, who expect to bring to the front the splendid work done by the federated clubs of New England.

The club women were handsomely entertained while here. President Coolidge received them one morning, the National D. A. R., gave a reception in their honor; as did the director of the Smithsonian Institute, the Red Cross officers and many other organizations.

The women divided their time between attending the business meetings of the board and listening to world court debate in the senate, or the hearings going on before congressional committee on the Shepard Towner bill. The New England women expressed great satisfaction over the workings of women's clubs in the various New England states, regarding better care of women and children, and predicted the clubs would carry on such work regardless of what the proposed law would do.

Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, member of congress from the 5th Massachusetts district, delivered an address Monday before the convention of Industrial Women Workers, in which she set forth clearly the difference of existing conditions now and in the early days of New England industrial activity, including Connecticut.

After showing what Massachusetts, which she represents in congress, has done to better industrial laws in its own state, she gave interesting figures and statements that apply equally to all New England industrial conditions, especially factories.

Among other things to which Mrs. Rogers called attention, was the increase of pay and decrease of working hours, by taking extremes in both. For instances she said that 1839 women worked on an average of 12 hours and 18 minutes a day, or 73 hours and 18 minutes actual working time each week. The time of beginning work was changed between winter and summer, in the latter season work begun at 5 o'clock a. m., in the winter months two hours later on account of the difficulty in lighting the factories. In 1825 the average wage for the woman worker was one dollar a week; that rose to $5 a week by 1892 and since then has advanced to $17 while the hours of labor have decreased to 48 in factories and 40 for garment workers.

Mrs. Rogers also gave facts regarding the changed conditions in sanitation, comfort and safety for workers, and the provision of suitable houses at low rental for employes of many of the great industrial plants of New England.

Shortly before the house passed the bill assenting to the proposed settlement of the Italian debt, Floor Leader Tilson made an eloquent plea for the passage of the bill. He characterized the settlement "as the greatest boon one friendly nation can give another by removing an obstacle that blocks the road to Italian rehabilitation. The proposed settlement will give the brave and struggling people of Italy courage as well as credit, and at the same time will place our country where it belongs at the top of the list of wise friendly and helpful nations." Tilson paid a warm tribute to the Italian people saying they recognized the loans made by the United States as an honest debt and would have paid in cash at once had such a course been possible.

Every New England senator, with the exception of Green of Vermont, who was absent through illness, voted against the seating of Nye. This included Gerry, the only democratic senator from New England. Nye would have failed to get his seat, had four republican senators, already declared against him, not escaped the test, by absenting themselves from the chamber, unpaired, when the vote was taken. To say that the anti-Nye republicans were at anything less than a white heat of rage, over that absenteeism, would be understating the case.

Congressman Freeman, as ranking member of the rivers and harbors committee and its New England member, will soon introduce a bill for the purchase of the Cape Cod canal by the government. All subsequent efforts to get such a measure through congress have failed, although recommended by every president for the last three administrations.

Afflictions are light lightning. You can never tell where they will strike until after they have fallen.

DAY'S WORKS

The dentist starts out the day debonair, crisp, smiling. "Now, let us see, Miss Herbert, whom have we on for today? Lovely day, isn't it? Every hour filled? Good!"

Large, bluff, red-faced gentleman (watch in hand as he enters)—"Confound these early appointments! Totally forgot I had to meet a man from N'York—gosh, go easy! Say, do you have to file off any more? Won't have etooth left—wow, that hurts! I read about a new kind of dentistry that doesn't pain at all, f'ever hear of it? Shid think it would pay for you fellows to keep up on what's going on! What! I hafta come again? Suffering catfish, whatchu doing to me, my teeth were in good condition except for that one hole—oh, yes, the other one you found! No, can't come Friday, miss Herbert, nor Saturday, make it Monday—well, whenever you have an opening, then."

Little delicate creature with large eyes—"Oh, I nearly phoned you, Dr. Diggins, that I positively couldn't come today! My nerves are all jumpy and I could just fly to pieces! You'll be careful and not hurt, won't you? A friend of mind has a dentist who does the most wonderful things—she says you never know he's working on your mouth and she plans all her clothes and what she's going to write to her mother-in-law when she has her teeth filled—oh, mercy, that hurts! You're not going to fix the other today? Why, I supposed you could finish with me! No, Miss Herbert, I can't possibly come Monday— my bridge club—and Wednesday I have some friends to luncheon—make it Friday. Oh, you just must get me in on Friday because Saturday——"

Sad woman (whose teeth are going)—"Dr. Diggins, before you do a thing o that tooth I just want to read you a tter I got from my cousin out in California. Her teeth were worse than mine and she found a dentist out there who uses a new method and he didn't hurt at all and saved every tooth! Why I should think you'd have heard of anything so important to your profession as that! There's a new method that preserves teeth and I wish you'd look it up—no, Miss Herbert, I can't possibly come Tuesday, make it Wednday. Not till the 20th? Oh, I'll be out of town then——"

Giddy flapper (flapping into the chair and quirking an eye)—"Well, get it over! Mammoth cave is yawning on the left side and the excavation of Pompeii on the other! Can't we have the fan going and how about a little jazz! Well, a friend of mine has a dentist that turns on the radio and amuses his patients—oh, that hu-u-rts! Do—do you hafta bore so hard? Say, you've no heart at all, old thing, have you? My, my! Another cavity? Well, don't look any farther! I want to come next Thursday, Miss Herbert, because—well, positively Friday is the only other day—not till the 21st? My dear young friend, I won't be in town the 21st, so you absolutely must date me for this coming week——"

Anxious mother (propelling reluctant child)—"I do hope you won't hurt Frankie much, because he is exceptionally sensitive—climb right up, Frankie mother'll stand right here and hold your hand and Dr. Diggins won't hurt, well, if you grab like that, of course, you will spill everything! Now he's picked the instrument tray over! Stop Frankie, it will make you sick if you have a nervous spell! A friend of mine—did you say something?—I was saying a friend of mine takes her children to a dentist who has a perfectly remarkable system, and the little ones just love to go and have their teeth fixed! He doesn't hurt them at all—stop, Frankie! I'll hold his feet, and if Miss Herbert could hold his hands—you'd better hurry with that boring! Well, let it go and I'll bring him again when he isn't so nervous! No, Miss Herbert, we can't come Thursday nor Friday Give me Saturday—oh, you can't? Well, never mind, may be I'd better take Frankie to that other man I spoke about!"

Thirteen other patients—"Do you have to bore so hard? O-O-Oh, you hurt! Do you have to hurt so? Why, a dear friend of mine has a dentist who—"

Dr. Diggins—(at 5:30, moving slowly like an old man with a saturnine, dark face)—"Thank the lord it's over! Why, I ask you, why is a human being, man, woman or child?"

Miss Herbert (repairing damages from her vanity case, bitterly)—"Huh! All you do is fill 'em! What if you had to date 'em? Whoever tried to improve on monkeys made a big mistake!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Miss Hendersen's Fine Work

Mr. Editor: I would like to say a few words in behalf of the late Miss Effie Henderson and the highly valuable and humane service she rendered in behalf of cats. She understood them, knew how to doctor them, treated great numbers of them and was never happier than when engaged in such work. Whether they were suffering from the lack of food, a home or disease she was eager to relieve the situation, and invariably she did.

Some of us in close touch with her work knew what she did in this direction. She was sensitive on the street but I know she walked long distances to treat someone's cat, giving time, treatment and medicine. Many valuable pets are strong and well today because of Miss Henderson's kind and patient attention. She never deserted them until they were cured, if such a thing was possible. Not being a licensed veterinarian she could not charge for her services so much of her self sacrificing work for dumb animals was the work of love.

I am quite sure that her death was hastened by a duty imposed upon her by some thoughtless person less than ten days before her death. It was a bitter cold night that she came to my house about 11 o'clock. I was so surprised I said, "What are you doing out at this time of night, and it's near zero?" She asked me if I would take two little half grown kittens, adding that she was preparing for bed, heard steps at her door and heard them depart without knocking. Soon she heard distressed mewing and upon opening the door found a paper bag containing the two kittens. She had two cats and had been forbidden to have more. Even though it was late at night, cold and she had to be at work at seven in the morning this is where Miss Henderson's fine spirit came in. She must find a place for those kittens. She finally found a good warm home for them and was satisfied.

I am sure some hand guided and helped her in the work that she did for dumb animals. Even though it seemed almost a hopeless task at times she never wavered, and now maybe that same Hand has found a home for her where there is plenty of warmth and eternal rest.

JUST AN ACQUAINTANCE.

Norwich, January 18, 1926.

Economic Determinism

Mr. Editor: Mr. Troland's argument, to quote his own words, is "that matter is inert, incapable of setting itself in motion", "hence it is plain that it is subject to some ulterior, exterior power." (Super natural power?) He says further, "We have no solution for the power that creates, except that which pre-exists in a divine intelligence we call God." I claim that this is contrary to the evidence of scientific investigation.

I said, "Matter is not inert, but, on the whole, is in constant motion. Mr. Troland quotes Steele's Elementary Physics, as saying, the fourth property of matter is inertia: "Inertia is the natural laziness of matter which forbids its changing its state from motion to rest, or vice versa." Now Steele is here speaking "relatively" and I do not believe he would uphold Mr. Troland's contention upon the whole as against mine. Thus a boulder may be resting upon a hill, may have been there for hundreds, even thousands of years. But it has not always been there, and will not always be there. Relatively it is in inertia. But, to say nothing of its atomic action, it is subject to other natural forces; such as heat and cold, wind and rain. It is undergoing eternal change. There is no such thing as absolute inertia of matter.

Mr. Troland says, "We have not found in any source, that matter is set forth as eternal, as our opponent holds." I go to the library and lay my hand on the first book on physics which comes handy, one which I never saw before, Anderson's Physics for Technical Students and quote from page 139, "In spite of prolonged research to prove the contrary, it still seems to be an established fact that matter can neither be created nor destroyed." Therefore, it must be eternal.

Mr. Troland speaks of Laplace and his nebular hypothesis. Laplace was for his time a wonderful man, but died 98 years ago, before modern scientific knowledge had been gained.

In regard to the nebular theory, let me quote Saleeby in Evolution, The Master Key, page 71, "But before you are willing to follow the argument, you will stop and ask where this nebula came from, you know the nebula did not spring out of nothing." And of course you know that as a scientist he offers a natural explanation.

Now as to evidences of intelligence. Intelligence moves as quickly and directly as possible to the end and strives for perfection. Nature is ruthless; not economical, but prodigal in wastefulness; has never produced a perfect thing; wonderful but not perfect. What is the object—the end? Millions of seeds fall to the earth, a few get a start, most of these die; some fall on barren soil, some on rocky soil, some on fertile soil. They grow and flourish for a hundred years and become wonderful trees. Thousands of leaves are produced, perhaps not one perfect. They are all shed and lost. Thousands of leaves start but for lack of light and air die and are lost.

At the end of a hundred years, a fire, or a hurricane or an earthquake destroys the whole work. What is true of inanimate life and nature is just as true of animate life. The cat may know that the sparrow has fallen to the ground but that does not help the sparrow any.

This divine, intelligent man: What evidence does he show of either divinity or intelligence? Divided into nations, creeds and sects hating and reviling one another. True there have been in every age a few men of high ideals seeking to teach men to love, and to have charity and respect for one another; and to subvert the individual for the welfare of the whole, but these Utopian ideals have met with but little response. Economic determinism is still the greatest force in human society.

Long Way From Knowledge

Mr. Editor: Where Mr. Boardman gives to the public the benefit of his doubts as to the efficacy of prayer—if benefit it be—no one should find fault with him. But when he makes the emphatic declaration "that prayer is futile," it seems to us that his pronouncement is a long way from his knowledge.

In the efficacy of prayer,

The Weather for the Month of January 1815 and February 1815

Mr. Editor: Perhaps some of the readers of your valuable paper would like to know what the weather predictions were in 1815. The Cloud Digger might get some information from it; also that Danielson fellow who speaks so well of the Cloud Digger's predictions. I love to read them when they knock so hard that the other fellow will come back. The following predictions are taken from an (Almanack) Performed by Nathan Daboll in 1815.

Jan. 1 to 5, pretty good weather if not too cold; 6 to 14, some low southerly winds; 14 to 18, rain or snow may be expected; 18 to 21, pleasant for winter, 21 to 31, more snow or rain; Feb. 1 to 4, a storm is now gathering; 4 to 11, cold, chilling winds liable to blow 11 to 18, snow, rain, sleet, then more pleasant but soon change to winds; 18 to 26, chilly uncomfortable weather; 26 to 28, some pleasant weather.

Very Truly Yours,

INTERESTED IN THE WEATHER.

Plainfield, Jan. 18, 1926.

Scout Executive Benton

Mr. Editor: The community deeply regrets the loss of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Benton and family through the resignation of Mr. Benton as scout executive of Norwich council.

Mr. Benton, since coming here five years ago from Philadelphia, has made many friends among the citizens and boys of Norwich and has endeared himself to the people by his earnest and conscientious endeavors to further the interests of scouting.

In 1921, when Norwich became a first class council, there were about 90 scouts and five scoutmasters. Since that time under Mr. Benton's guidance there has been formed 20 troops with 350 scouts. The services of over 150 men have been enlisted as scout masters, troop committeemen, merit badge examiners, or members of council, and the work has been intensively as well as extensively carried on. His work has been satisfactory to the regional office and to New York. The camp life at Tippecan has been a feature of the movement in Norwich and many activities have been successfully brought about by his persistent work.

But people are prone to forget the many good things a man does, while criticism of a destructive type runs rampant.

Mr. Benton's resignation came as a great surprise to his many friends, but we learn that his action was taken because of the persistent carping of a few men. When a movement is progressing in a sane and growing manner, it is unfortunate that its course should be disturbed and its success handicapped by the present conditions that forced this action.

Mr. Benton deserves better treatment at the hands of the people with whom he has cast his lot for the past five years, and in justice to him it ought to be said that his action was not of his own volition but was forced upon him by needless criticism that at last, made this action inevitable.

Many people of Norwich and vicinity have inquired why this action was necessary and expressed their regrets very forcibly.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. David Starr Jordan, who celebrates his 75th birthday anniversary today, is chancellor emeritus of Leland Stanford, Jr., university, and from 1891 to 1913 was the active head of that institution. He was its first executive and, in fact, its creator on the pedagogical and administrative sides, the Stanford family providing the funds and the civic purpose which brought the amply endowed California university into being. In his earlier career as an educator Dr. Jordan had been on the faculty of Cornell and had filled the presidency of Indiana university. In later years he has become known internationally as a protagonist of arbitration and judicial settlement of international disputes. As an agent of the World's Peace Foundation and as an author of many books, he has reached a wide circle of people. In 1924 he was awarded a prize of $25,000 offered by the World Federation of Education associations for the best plan to avert war.

From Small Beginnings

James M. Lynch

The man who sets the type of this article may become a very famous man—who knows! At any rate he has the opportunity. Biography shows that typesetters and printers have often risen to great prominence. Perhaps that is because their very occupation forces them to read. Their reading sets them to thinking, and almost before they know it they are saying: "Say, what fools these authors are! I can do better myself!" Then some one says: "You can, hey! Well, I'd like to see you do it!" With that the humble setter goes at it, and emerges a Benjamin Franklin or a Horace Greeley or a President Harding.

There was "Jim" Lynch, standing before his type cases "sticking type" His hands were soiled, his eyes were intent on his "copy" and he was no more to be noticed than any one else in the composing room. Still, there was something about him that took him out of the composing room and into public life, so that he became a leader of men, a labor commissioner for the state of New York, a member of a great industrial commission, and president of the International Typographical Union. "It's all luck," people say about such men. True, it is all luck, but men like "Jim" Lynch make their own luck. In the first place, "Jim" Lynch was a good typesetter. He had had no chances when he was a boy up in Manlius, New York, and so he said to himself: "I'd like to do something. I think I'd like to be a printer!" He was thirteen or fourteen years old when he got a job in a printing office, and he was so proud of it that he tried to do his level best. That put him in the habit of doing his level best, and so he became a very expert typesetter and printer. He liked people, became acquainted easily, talked genially and slowly grew into a leader. What he said was sensible, and so he made people respect him. The rest was easy.

Stories That Recall Others

Good Enough Reason.

Not long ago Billie saw a picture of some midgets and asked his dad what they were. He was told that they were people who had big heads but their bodies had not grown.

Sometime afterwards the conversation reverted to midgets and Billie said he did not wish to see any of them, they were too conceited. When asked where he got such an idea as that he said, "Why, because dad said they had 'big heads' didn't he?"

Quick Thinking.

Recently a man dropped into a drug store and asked for a box of candy. The druggist complied with the request and finally sold the customer a box valued at several dollars.

A few days later the customer dropped into the store accompanied by his wife. Never doubting that the candy bought a few days previously had been presented to "wifie" for a birthday present or for some favor, the druggist remarked that "that that box of candy certainly was a peach."

"What candy?" cooed the wife.

"O, yes," replied the customer, before the druggist could reply, "I did forget and walk out without buying it the other day. I'll take it now."

And the druggist sold a duplicate.

"Aren't you a dear," said the wife and the couple left the store. According to last accounts the druggist will recover.

FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF LOS ANGELES TIMES

The Los Angeles Times has observed its 40th anniversary by issuing a 200 page edition in which there is well set forth the progress that has been made in the southern part of California during those four decades. There has been extensive development and the Times sets it forth in an attractive and interesting manner. It is quite evident that the Times has kept pace with the development that has been going on about it.

To Give Your Gums a Healthy Coral Tint

and restore "off-color" teeth to clearness

Accept full 10-day tube of this new way, widely urged by dental authorities. Note the change in the color of your teeth and gum firmness as dingy film goes.

• • •

There is now a way to quickly lighten and polish cloudy teeth; a way world's dental authorities advise. Your teeth are not naturally off color . . . simply clouded by a film coat. Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel it . . . a slippery sort of coating.

It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. Germs breed in it and invite tooth decay, pyorrhea and gum troubles. It is known that ordinary dentifrices don't fight film successfully.

Remove it and you'll be amazed at the whiteness of your teeth. Your smile will be charming, your teeth like polished ivory, your gums firmed to coral color.

Today get the film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. Send the coupon for a 10-day supply free. Or . . . purchase full size for a few cents at your druggist's.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Don't Worry When Hair Falls or Scalp Itches

Parisian Sage feeds the hair roots, banishes all dandruff, stops scalp itch—hair ceases to come out.

The cleanest, daintiest, most refreshing hair invigorator in the world is Parisian Sage. If you have used it you know it—if you have not, you have missed a real treat, for it's a joy to use.

The speedy manner in which it causes dandruff to disappear and scalp to stop itching is really astonishing.

But that's only one reason why hundreds of thousands of people use Parisian Sage.

Another reason is that it stops hair from falling out and growing thin and furnishes healthy nourishment to the hair roots.

And still another reason for its big sale by Lee & Osgood Co. and every drug store and at every toilet goods counter in the United States and Canada is the popular price—everybody can afford to use Parisian Sage—everybody ought to use it.

OBITUARY

Everett Talbot.

Everett Talbot, 36, a veteran of the World war, died Sunday afternoon at his home in North Adams, Mass., following 11 day illness with pneumonia. Mr. Talbot was employed as a farmer. He served overseas and was gassed. He leaves his widow, Rosalia, one brother, Robert, of Springfield, a sister, Mrs. Gene Butman of Southbridge and his father, Everett Talbot of Mansfield, Conn.

Mrs. John Coughlin

Following an illness of about four weeks, Ellen Holland, widow of John Coughlin, died Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home, No. 27 Roath street. She was born in Ireland but the greater part of her life had been passed in this city. She was united in marriage 44 years ago with the late John Coughlin.

Surviving are six daughters, Mrs. Johanna Kelly, Mrs. John Barry, Mrs. Nellie Schrieckert, Mrs. Nora Simmons and the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Coughlin and two sons, John and Daniel Coughlin. There are two brothers in St. Louis, eleven great grandchildren and a great grandchild. Mrs. Coughlin was a member of St. Mary's parish. She was well known throughout the Greeneville section of the city and had many warm friends who are deeply grieved to learn of her death.

Mrs. C. Raymond Dolbeare

Mrs. Lydia M. Bushnell Dolbeare, wife of the late C. Raymond Dolbeare, and a life-long resident of Norwich and Taftville, died Monday evening at her home at 25 Spring Gardne avenue, following an illness of about two weeks. Mrs. Dolbeare, who was well advanced in years, had been totally blind for the past ten years, but bore her affliction with true Christian fortitude. She has been cared for by her daughter, Miss Eliza B. Dolbeare.

Mrs. Dolbeare was born in Norwich, the daughter of Joseph P. and Eliza T. Morgan Bushnell, and when a young woman was united in marriage in Norwich with C. Raymond Dolbeare, who died a number of years ago. For a considerable time she made her home in Taftville where she made many friends. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and took an active part in the life of the church while her health permitted.

She is survived by her only daughter Miss Eliza B. Dolbeare, and was the last of her immediate family. She also leaves several nephews and nieces.

RAIN HALTS ICE CROP BUT IS VALUABLE AID TO WATER SUPPLY

An all day rain Monday, put a stop to the ice harvest that was in full swing on the ponds in this vicinity, but was a welcome contribution that will help to swell water supplies in reservoirs.

The rain began at about 2 o'clock Monday morning and continued with varying intensity throughout the day. About 7 o'clock in the evening there was promise of the storm clearing off as there was a shift in the wind and a slight drop in temperature, but this was only an illusion as half an hour later, the rain came down harder than ever, accompanied by gales of wind, and it continued to rain throughout a large part of the night.

At the Ford ice pond at East Great Plain, the rain compelled a halt in gathering the crop, but not before the houses were all filled as this was completed on Sunday. At the last cutting the ice was about 12 1-2 inches thick. The force of men was engaged Monday, in packing ice under the shed and the supply is to be still further increased by building a stack outside because this extra supply is needed to meet the demands of the business during the year.

At Kramer's pond, in Greeneville, the rain put a stop to getting in the ice crop. The houses have not been filled yet, but will be at the first opportunity that is offered.

The heavy rain came at a time when conditions were just right to result in a substantial flow into the reservoirs and it is expected that a large gain will be shown when the measurements are next taken. The frozen ground with a coating of snow, will doubtless result in a large flow of surface water into the reservoirs and the streams that feed them so that from now on there should be a satisfactory margin in the water supply for this time of the year.

PICTURE AND ADDRESS STRESS LAW OBSERVANCE

Not only was every seat taken but many were obliged to stand at the afternoon meeting at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday. The meeting was held in the large gymnasium. The opening exercises consisted of the singing of hymns, reading of scripture and prayer. Hugh Kinder who furnished very appropriate music for the entire service, also rendered pleasingly a vocal solo. The feature picture "Broken Laws" was shown by the large Powers machine, and the audience was greatly impressed. A clergyman present stated that the picture was a wonderful sermon with a deep impression. The picture story was featured by Mrs. Wallace Reid and Percy Marmont, and it emphasized the great necessity of law observance and respect for law, particularly as it effects children. The beautiful touch of mother love was portrayed impressively. It was a dramatic story of two families in a middle west town, where lack of law observance in the home and in the town resulted in harm to the children, it was one of those rare pictures at once interesting, suggestive, enjoyable and positively uplifting, and the management of the Y. M. C. A. feel grateful to have had the privilege of bringing it to the attention of such a large number on this occasion.

Between the reels a timely address was given by Rev. G. F. Bailey of the First Congregational church, whose words were listened to with real interest. Mr. Bailey spoke in part as follows:

Law is one of God's best gifts to the world. It is the friendly ally of man. By it life is made secure and our actions may be intelligently performed. Law makes for harmony in all spheres of life and by means of it every man is given a fair chance. Seeing that God's world gets on so well because of a system of wise laws operative in nature, man has undertaken to make some laws for himself. If God's laws work so beneficiently in the natural world, why will not man made laws work helpfully in the sphere of human society.

So people band together and say these shall be the laws which shall govern us while we live together in this certain domain, and to the observance of them we pledge our allegiance. Every person who observes the law thus made is in harmony with the newly constructed social scheme.

Occasionally one will violate his contract by breaking a law of social scheme. When he does so it means that he is tired of his environment which is harmonious and puts himself outside this environment into a little world of his own. This little world where self has no restraint is usually a world of discord.

The picture on the screen this afternoon reveals some of the tragedies which are going on in the upper layers of social life. The trouble with the boy began when the father broke the speed law with his automobile, evaded arrest and the whole family had a merry time over the slick getaway. It is not strange that the boy disrupted the peace of the home, and caused discord in the school, and finally came to his logical end in prison while still in his teens. Fathers can not expect their sons to measure up to a higher standard than is set for them by example.

The boy did not take kindly to the social scheme and so set up a little world of his own outside the realm of law where he could live by himself. This would have worked better on an uninhabited island, but it did not work well in the home or the school or on the public highway. These little selfish worlds belong outside the realm of society and provision has been made for those who choose this world in quiet places behind prison bars. The provision is a logical one and it is a kind arrangement. Logically it puts a man where he wants to be, for by his deeds of lawlessness he virtually declares his abhorrence of the social scheme. Isolating a lawbreaker is a kindness to him as well as a benefit to society and is done with a view to restoring a man to himself and to the social world where he ought to be.

Had the boy's mother allowed him to have been segregated for a brief space of time in his younger days, it might not have been necessary to take him out of the social sphere for a protracted season later on.

Every broken law brings its penalty, and the penalty is born by him who transgresses. Others suffer by reason of it but the penalty is born by the violator.

The laws of God which are so sure in the physical world are suggestive of the sure laws in the moral and spiritual life.

The heavenly Father sets us the example of obedience to the laws which he himself hath made. He can not do wrong. He can not permit violations of laws in any sphere to go unrequited. His love brings Him into suffering with us in our lonely life of transgression but His love can not set aside the foundation of His moral order. Acquaint thou thyself with Him, cooperate with Him in a friendly well ordered world and be at peace.

Edmund A. Prentice was in charge of the service and Lewis H. Church had charge of the ushering.

POST CARD SHOWER WILL OBSERVE 90TH BIRTHDAY

The many friends and relatives of Mrs. Arthur Mathews, who lives with her granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph Reven of 64 Tenth street, are planning to give Mrs. Mathews a post card shower to observe her 90th birthday which occurs on Thursday.

Mrs. Mathews is exceptionally hale and hearty for one of her age, still taking active part in the duties of her household, and is one of the very few who can boast of having 13 great grandchildren, the oldest being 23 years.

CROWDED HOUSE GIVES SWANEE MINSTRELS OVATION

The Swanee Minstrels, staged under the auspices of the Junior Catholic Council, played to a crowded house Monday evening at the Strand Theatre. The opening part of the programme was devoted to the minstrels under the caption A Night in a Cabaret and the remainder of the programme comprised several big feature acts, including The Harmony Four, a quartette of local vocalists, The Swanee Melody Boys in Melody Land, Hooker and Cassano in dance steps, Echoes of the Oldtimers, a group of Spanish songs and melodies, tenor selections by Warren Kane, the well known and popular Norwich vocalist, and a concert programme by Thumm's orchestra. It was a splendid entertainment throughout and the minstrels and other attractions well deserved the hearty applause showered on them by the delighted audience. The program lasted a full three hours, as it was after eleven o'clock before the finale was given.

The stage setting for the minstrels was excellent and the electrical effects were unique. The minstrel programme was varied and very attractively arranged. Below is the programme as given:

Finale

An especially attractive number was the group of songs by the Harmony Four. They made a hit with their song, Show Me the Way Home. The Swanee Melody Boys, ukulele, banjo, mandolin and guitar artists greatly pleased the audience with their excellently rendered numbers. Hooker and Cassano made a decided hit in their solo and duet dance numbers which won for them a thunderous burst of applause.

A very pretty feature of the evening's programme was the group of old time melodies, by twelve young ladies who appeared in costume. Their programme included solo, duet and ensemble numbers. The tenor solos by Warren Kane were splendidly given and as usual won him instant applause. The Connecticut March by the Melody Boys proved another unusually fine number. In this selection the musicians were assisted by nine young misses dressed in white and carrying American flags while a large American flag appeared suspended above the stage.

Thumm's orchestra entertained with a delightful and varied programme in which they featured Henry Riordan, introducing him as the Charleston King of Norwich.

The programme was staged under the personal direction of Daniel J. O'Brien and the executive staff comprised: Miss Kathryn Sullivan, chairman; Daniel O'Brien, director; Isabel Mulcahy, secretary; Albert Zieglemayer, stage carpenter; Edward Peneault, electrician; Fred Carbray, property man.

COMMON PLEAS APPEAL BY AUTOMOBILE DRIVER

James W. Murray, Jr., 27, of No. 66 Meyers avenue, was found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning and was fined $200 and costs with a 10 day jail sentence, suspended for a year. Mr. Murray through his counsel, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, immediately appealed to the court of common pleas and furnished a bond of $300. He was arrested Sunday evening following an auto accident at Washington square in which he was involved.

W. E. Baldwin, Taftville, testified that he was driving on Main street, in a westerly direction at the Breed hall corner at about 15 miles an hour and was about to turn the corner into Church street when his car was suddenly hit from the rear, the noise being that of a fast moving automobile. He got out of his machine and talked with Mr. Murray who appeared to be groggy and did not act naturally.

Constable Meyer Blumenthal, who arrested Murray, told of reluctance on the part of Murray to show his registration card or operators' license and said that Murray was under the influence of liquor. Murray told him that he had a half a glass of cider about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, according to the constable.

Dr. Clarence G. Thompson who examined Murray at police headquarters, stated that he had determined that Murray was under the influence of liquor. He had a slight tremor, his speech was incoherent and he smelled of liquor.

Police Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officer Peter Driscoll who investigated the accident, stated that when Murray was taken to the police station he clamored for a doctor to examine him. "I'm not asking for a doctor, I am demanding one" Murray is said to have stated at police headquarters.

The accused testified that Mr. Baldwin's car stopped rather suddenly and that he did not see any signal, with the result that he bumped into it. Murray stated that he had spent the day with his brother-in-law on Fox Hill and was on the way home with his wife, father-in-law and four children. He claimed that the excitement following the accident caused him to act unnaturally. He admitted having half a glass of cider in the afternoon.

Mrs. Murray, the accused's wife, and Clarence Hill, his father-in-law, both told of being with Murray all day and that they did not see him take any liquor. George Ayer, brother-in-law of the accused, whom Murray visited said that they had a glass and a half of cider in the afternoon, but that it had no effect on him. Judge Libby then found the accused guilty and imposed the fine and suspended jail sentence.

A local man was given 10 days in jail, suspended for a year, on a breach of the peace charge.

CLOTHING THIEVES TAKEN FROM NORWICH JAIL

Two clothing thieves who completed serving a six months term in the Norwich jail on Monday were taken to Hartford in the morning for presentation in the Hartford city court on the charge of theft of clothing there.

The men are Josi Sato 27, of Chicago and John Mario, 27, of New York and are Mexicans. They were taken to Hartford Monday when two members of the Hartford police force arrived here with a warrant for them and were sent to the Norwich jail by Chief Linton, accompanied by Officer Charles Smith.

Sato and Mario were caught here on Aug. 23, when they were detected stealing men's suits from the Brooklyn Outfitters store on Main street. Their method was for one man to engage the attention of a clerk while the other picked up any clothing he could. This they were doing at the Brooklyn Outfitters, where one of the men led the clerk to the rear of the store while the other remained at the front and packed some clothing into a suit case that he was carrying. But the woman bookkeeper in the store saw what he was doing and told him to put the suits back, which he did. When the men left the store, the police were informed and on a tip that was given by Officer John Donovan, the two men were caught on a trolley car in Greeneville by Officers Barney Keenan and Michael Carroll. When presented in the city court they were fined $75 each and sentenced to six months in jail.

While they were slick operators in other cities where they had worked without being caught, they ran up against a snag when they hit the Norwich police and they will now pay the penalty of the theft of about $300 or $400 worth of clothing in Hartford.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Monday Afternoon Sewing club was entertained by Miss Marion L. Bishop, of Broadway.

The meeting of the Monday Study club was held with Mrs. Francis Gilman at Lowthorpe. A very interesting paper was read on "The Capture of Grenada and Moorish Monuments in Spain."

Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox, who has been a guest at the Plaza, Miami, since the fall, has returned to her home at Fort Point.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. B. Starr, of 173 Broadway, were guests of Mark Swan, the farce comedy playwright, to witness his first production of "Puppy Love," at a Hartford theatre Saturday.

Following the monthly luncheon of the Manhattan Matinee club of New York, at the Waldorf-Astoria on Wednesday, Mrs. Howard Clinton Russ, formerly of Norwich, as hostess has arranged for the members to see "The Patsy" with Claiborne Foster.

Miss Carrie E. Rogers, who left Norwich to spend the season at her winter home in Washington, was a dinner guest during the week of the noted writer, Helen Rowland (Mrs. Frederick Kinney Noyes) of New York, who is visiting her mother in Washington.

Monday afternoon, Mrs. Christopher G. Allen, of Church stret, entertained several children for her little daughter, Margaret Lee Allen, the date being her fourth birthday. The table decorations were yellow and white, the favors being yellow baskets of candy, also little spinning wheels for the girls and automobiles for the boys. The small guests were Mary Louise Graham, Mildred DeRusha, Goodwin Carney and Pearle Roberts. Mrs. Allen and daughter are leaving today (Tuesday) for a visit with the former's relatives in Asheville, N. C., and New Orleans.

SUSIE AND BOY FRIEND FIND SKATING IS NOT A VERY COMFORTABLE SPORT

Susie and the boy friend are fit subjects for some good chiropractic or osteopath as they tried their hand at skating with the usual accompanying results. Although in more or less pain, Susie writes of her experiences as follows:

Dear Sports Editor:

Can you tell me who invented skates? Not the kind my old man gets on some times, but them things your supposed to slide on the ice with. If you know, don't tell the feller, but tell me, 'cause I wanta put some carbolic acid in his coffee. I'll bet they was thought of by some feller what makes liniament and who had a inferior motive in doin' it. The way I thinks, that's a mean way to boost your business. I guess by now you has tumbled that me and the boy friend has been skatin'. Well, you' right, we has, and I can painfully say that its the last time I ever puts them inventions of the devil on my feet again. Sittin' here on a coupla pillars I can write pretty comfortable, so I'll tell you 'bout my first and only time I ever tried to become a Charlie Jewtraw.

Well, the other afternoon I meets the boy friend down town and he says whatcha goin' to do tomorrow night, and I says nothin'. Well, he says let's go up to Mohegan park skatin', and I says, sure, let's, only I ain't got no skates. Get your old man to buy you a pair, says he, and I says, fat chance. But I asks the male parent for some sheckles to buy a pair o' skates and he surprises me and says yes. He gives me the money an' I goes down to one of them sporty stores and buys them cussed skates. They throws in a pair of shoes with 'em and believe me, they auta furnish sofy pillars, too.

Well, the next night the boy friend shows up with his skates and we starts for the pond up in Mohegan park. I dress all up in a pair of Willie's knickers with them golf stockin's and a tricky like sweater like them girls you see in the papers who claim they is enjoying winter sports up at them lakes where the Swiss cheeses come from. We gets up to the pond and the boy friend starts to put on my skates for me, but I remembers theys a hole in one of the sox of Willie's, and I does it myself. Well, I gets 'em on and I says to the boy friend, now you help me, 'cause this is the first time I'se ever been on skates. And whatda you know, the boy friend says, sure, and this is my first time, too. Gosh, ain't we a fine pair o' boobs. Its a case o' the drunk leadin' the drunk.

Well, we gets on that ice and in about two seconds we is all over the place. I thinks somebody's pushed the ice out from under me until I hit it and then I know they ain't. The boy friend grabs me and I grabs the boy and bang, we hits that frozen water like we been dropped off the court house tower. Well, when we collects ourselves and find they ain't no need of callin' the ambulance we tries to gets up. But it ain't possible, 'cause every time I gets half ways up, down I comes. I tries it a coupla times and then I gets a bright idea and I crawls on my knees to land. The boy friend ain't meetin' with no better success and he comes crawlin' in to shore too. We sits there on the bank and then I says, I aint goin' to let no frozen water throw me, but I'm wrong. Finally, when we gets rested we tries again. We kinda eases out on that ice and we goes about a dozen feet when I feels myself slippin' and I grabs the boy friend around the neck and he hollers to let him be, but I'm deaf to his pleadin'. His feet slip the other way and there we stands, his feet sneakin' off to the east and mine is goin' to find a home in the west. We looks like the ark de triumphant, what you sees pictchers of. We holds this pose for a coupla seconds and then I feels my grip slippin', and, plop, down we goes flat on our stumicks. That ain't all. After I gets the breath o' life back in me I finds we has picked a fine place to do our stuff. We has landed in about a inch of nice, cool water. Gosh, I auta wore a bathin' suit instead of them knickers.

I'm a game kid so I decides to try again. While I'm tryin' to seperate me and the water some fresh guy comes along and says, Hello sweetie didja fall? No, I says I was trying to do the Charleston and that's where I makes me bow. After I gains a perpendicular posture again I says to the boy friend, grab hold o' me now 'cause you know united we skates and divided we hits the ice. Well I guess the boy friend don't belong to no union 'cause he don't no nothin' about that unitin' stuff. Well, we gets goin' again when all of a sudden I feels my head gettin' ahead of my feets and when I tries to have 'em catch up again it ain't no use and I'se licked. I does my best but it ain't good enough and I knows me and that ice is goin' to get together again and we does. This time my feets say they ain't goin' to have nothin' to do with that ice and they starts up toward the stars. Well I just naturally sits down on my neck and my head nestles into that ice like a pillar only they ain't no feathers in it. Well, I sees plenty of stars for a second and then somethin' hits me in the stumick like a ton o' brick. When I recovers my wind I finds it's the boy friend whose just lit. Get offa my body, I yells at him, this ain't no parkin' place for bum skaters, can't you see I got here first. Well says the boy friend, if you don't wanta skate no more we'll go home. We done a heluva lot o' skatin' we has, I says, we has done more sittin' down then skatin', I don't use them bad words very often but I was so mad I hadta that time. Well, I knows when I'm licked and we starts for shore. Finally after hittin' that ice about a dozen more times we makes land and I gets them skates off and limps off home.

All the next day I has to eat my food off the mantel and I'se just got so's I can sit down with the aid of plenty o' sofy pillars. I guess I have used up two bottles a liniament and a coupla jars of salve but I ain't much better. I ain't got them skates no more, I has traded 'em in. I took 'em back a coupla days after the melee up at the pond.
